MEANING OF TERMS

USED IN CLASSIFYING ANNOTATING CASES.

THE different expressions used to describe the effect of the annotating cases have the following meanings, and the classification of the annotating cases has been done strictly in accordance with these meanings. The annotating cases are listed chronologically except such as are classified as " Referred to " or " Mentioned." These come at the end and are arranged inter se in chronological order. The terms used in classifying the annotating cases are as follows :—

- " APPLIED " (Apld.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the principle of law enunciated in the annotated case has been applied to a new set of facts and circumstances in the annotating case.
- " APPROVED " (Apprvd.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the annotated case has been considered to be good law in the annotating case where the latter is in a higher court than the former.
- " CONSIDERED " (Consd.).—This expression is used where the remarks in the annotating case are devoid of adverse criticism and merely denote the giving of more or less careful consideration to the annotated case.
- " DISTINGUISHED " (Distd.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but where some essential difference (either on the facts or in law) between it and the annotated case is pointed out.
- " DOUBTED " (Dbtd.).—This expression is used where the court in the annotating case without definitely going to the length of saying that the annotated case is wrong, adduces reasons which seem to show that it is not accurate.
- " EXPLAINED " (Expld.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but the decision arrived at is justified or accounted for by calling attention to some point of fact or of law which is usually, but not necessarily, one not obvious on the face of the report.
- " EXTENDED " (Extd.).—Compare " APPLIED," supra.
- " FOLLOWED " (Folld.).—This expression is used to denote that the same principles of law are applied in the two cases. It does not necessarily imply that the facts are substantially identical in the two cases.
- " NOT FOLLOWED " (N.F.).—Compare " FOLLOWED," supra, to which it is the adverse.
- " OVERRULED " (Overd.).—This expression is used where the annotating case is on substantially identical facts with the annotated case and in a higher court and the rule in the latter case is held to be wrong.
- " REFERRED " (Refd.).—This expression is used only where the annotating case deals with the point of the Digest paragraph and is without comment of any definite character on the case annotated, and where there is no delicate shade of approval or disapproval which would justify the use of any of the foregoing words.
- " MENTIONED " (Mentd.).—This expression is used only where none of the foregoing terms apply. In other words, it is used only where the case annotated is cited on a point having nothing to do with the point in the Digest paragraph.

NOTE.—The Acts now in force in England are Bills of Sale Act, 1878 (c. 31), Bills of Sale Act (1878) Amendment Act, 1882 (c. 43), Bills of Sale Act, 1890 (c. 53), & Bills of Sale Act, 1891 (c. 35), herein referred to as 1878 Act, 1882 Act, 1890 Act, & 1891 Act respectively. In considering the cases set out in this title regard must be had to their date, the Act under which they were decided, & the effect of the subsequent Acts.

Part I.—Objects and Application of Bills of Sale Acts.

See 1878 Act, ss. 3, 20, 23 : 1882 Act, ss. 3, 15.

1. 1854 Act—Protection of creditors.—The object of the above Stat. is to provide against frauds committed by secret bills of sale of personal chattels, whereby debtors are enabled to keep up the appearance of being possessed of their property (STUART, V.-C.).—PIERCY v. HUMPHREYS (1868), 17 L. T. 463.

2. 1878 Act Applies only when grantor in possession or apparent possession.—The above Act does not affect the validity of an unregistered bill of sale, where the grantor is not in possession of the goods.—HALL v. SMITH (1887), 3 T. L. R. 805, C. A.

3. — Extent of repeal of—1878 Act, s. 8.—The above sect. is still in force as regards absolute bills of sale.—ROBINSON v. TUCKER (1883), 1 Cab. & El. 173.

4. ——— 1878 Act, s. 10.]—1882 Act repeals the above sect. only so far as that sect. relates to bills of sale given by way of security for the payment of money.—CASSON v. CHURCHLEY (1884), 53 L. J. Q. B. 335; 50 L. T. 568, D. C.

Annotation:—Reid. Read v. Joannon (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 300.

5. ——— 1878 Act, s. 20.]—1882 Act repeals the above sect. in respect of bills of sale given by way of security, but not in respect of bills of sale given by way of absolute transfer.—SWIFT v. PANNELL (1883), 24 Ch. D. 210; 53 L. J. Ch. 341; 48 L. T. 351; 31 W. R. 543.

6. ——— Protection of creditor—1882 Act—Protection of debtor.]—The object of the earlier Bills of Sale Acts was entirely different from that of 1882. The former enactments were designed for the protection of creditors, & to prevent their rights being affected by secret assurances of chattels which were permitted to remain in the ostensible possession of a person who had parted with his property in them. The bills of sale were made void only as against creditors or their representatives. As between the parties to them they were perfectly valid. The purpose of 1882 Act was essentially distinct. It was to prevent needy persons being entrapped into signing complicated documents, which they might often be unable to comprehend, & so being subjected by their creditors to the enforcement of harsh & unreasonable provisions. A form was provided to which bills of sale were to conform, & the result of non-compliance with the Act was to render the bill of sale void, even as between the parties to it. But, this being the object, the enactment is limited to bills of sale given "by way of security for the payment of money by the grantor thereof" (LORD HERSCHELL).—MANCHESTER, SHEFFIELD & LINCOLNSHIRE RY. 7. ——— ——— ———.]—That 1854 & 1878 Acts were intended to prevent false credit being given to people who had been allowed to remain in possession of goods which apparently were theirs, the ownership, however, of which they had parted with, is manifest enough by the language of those Acts. The Acts intended, in a case with creditors, that if people were allowed to remain in possession of goods, of which nevertheless the ownership was no longer theirs, those goods & chattels should be subject to the execution of bona fide creditors, who ought not to have been

C. & Co. being pressed by plf's., their bankers in Chicago, for collateral security for two of their notes of $5,000 each, discounted by plf's., indorsed over to plf's. the warehouse receipts for the goods. At the maturity of the notes, C. & Co. not being able to retire them, in pursuance of an arrangement to that effect, the warehouse receipts were cancelled & new ones, dated Oct. 12, 1883, were made out direct to plf's. induced to give credit by the apparent ownership of the goods being in those persons, & who were entitled to have their debts satisfied when, by the default of the assignees of those goods, they had been allowed to continue in the possession of persons to whom the property in them no longer belonged. That was the intended policy; & for such purposes it is manifest that the Legislature would desire to give the widest possible interpretation to every one of the documents by which the ownership was really intended to be practically changed, while the goods still remained in the apparent possession & dominion of the persons from whom the ownership had nevertheless really passed away. 1882 Act was directed to a totally different subject-matter. It was thought by the Legislature, rightly or wrongly, that a great number of impecunious debtors might be induced to sign documents, the legal effect of which those persons did not understand. It was intended by the Legislature, in order to protect them, to give a particular form of words which should plainly express the nature of the contract as to the loan & the security for the loan. The Legislature, in order to effect the object, gave a form of bill of sale, & made every bill of sale void, unless it was in accordance with the form given by the Act. The Legislature neither intended to interfere, nor is it the effect of the legislation to which I have referred to interfere, with other transactions than those which the Legislature has expressly pointed out (LORD HALSBURY, C.).—*CHARLESWORTH v. 17. Not within Act—Inventory & receipt not mentioned in Act.]—A tradesman expecting the execution of a writ of fi. fa. issued by the Ct. of Ch. for payment of costs in a suit, effected a sale of the whole of his furniture & stock-in-trade. The only document passing upon the occasion was a receipt for the money paid upon the purchase:—Held: the receipt given for the goods did not amount to a bill of sale under 1854 Act, & it did not require registration.—*HALE v. 19. Consideration for past debt.]—Upon the trial of an interpleader issue, pltf., to prove a sale of the goods to him, put in a receipt, as follows: "Received of B. £90, being the amount agreed to be paid for the purchase of household furniture & effects on the premises, No. 94, etc., of which I have this day taken possession. B." No money passed at the time; but the consideration for the giving of the receipt was a past debt, & the goods remained in debtor's possession:—Held: the instrument did not require registration under 1854 Act.—*BYERLEY v. 20. ———.]—Being pressed to pay rent in arrear, a tenant & his partner sold their furniture to the landlord under an arrangement, by which the purchase-money was to be applied in payment of the rent due, & the following document was drawn up: "Bought of D. & J. W. [certain goods at specified prices]. Memorandum. We acknowledge that we have this day sold & delivered to M. the above articles & effects for the price we named £163 13s., & that payment there has been made to us, of that amount in between us, & under the agreement arrived to be made with respect to the amount owing by us to him for rent, interest & expenses." The sale was subsequently advertised. The goods were delivered to the landlord, & then let by him to the tenant, who remained in possession of them until they were seized by the sheriff under a fi. fa. issued by an execution creditor of J. W.:—Held: the document was a mere receipt, &, notwithstanding the memorandum, did not need registration as a transfer under 1854 Act.—GRAHAM v. WILCOCKSON (1876), 46 L. J. Q. B. 55; 35 L. 21. Within Act if an assurance—Mere receipt—Grantee taking possession of growing crops.]—A creditor agreed with his debtor to take a growing crop in satisfaction, debtor gave him a receipt for the amount of the debt, as if for money paid on a sale of the crop, & the creditor took possession:—Held: the transfer, though not registered, was good as against an execution creditor.—*NEWMAN v. 22. ——— Mortgage by memorandum of sale & receipt.]—B. mortgaged an engine to an assocn. as security for a loan then made to him, & the assocn. marked its initials upon the engine. The mtgce. was taken in the form of a memorandum of sale & receipt, with a power of removal at the convenience of the mtgees. On the afternoon of the day on which B. filed his petition for liquidation, the assocn., without any notice of such petition having been filed, made a demand for possession of the engine. The sheriff was in possession at the time of the demand under some executions:—Held: the receipt was a bill of sale within 1854 Act, & not having been registered was void as against the trustees in bkpcy.—*Re BAMPFIELD, Ex p. On the same day the purchaser let the goods to debtor, who kept possession of them until they were again seized in execution:—Held: the receipt did not require registration as a bill of sale under 1854 Act, because the sale by the sheriff's officer was a transaction complete & effectual in itself, & the receipt was not the medium of transfer of the goods.—*WOODGATE v. 26. ———.]—C., on July 18, advanced W., who had then an execution in his house, £150, which was employed partly in paying out the execution. An inventory was made of W.'s furniture, & at the foot of it W. signed a receipt for the £150, as "for the absolute sale" to C. "of the above-mentioned articles." On the same day a written agreement was entered into between C. & W. for the letting of the same furniture, specified in a schedule, by C. to W. for two months for £170, to be paid by W. to C. on Sept. 18 or such other time as might be agreed on. The agreement gave C. power, in case the £170 should not be duly paid, or if at any time during the continuance of the agreement the goods should be taken under an execution or distress, or W. should become bkpt. or take proceedings for liquidation of his affairs or composition, or on the happening of some other specified events, to determine the agreement, & thereupon to take possession of the goods & to sell them. If upon a sale he should realise more than what was due to him under the agreement & his expenses, he was to pay the surplus to W.; if he should realise less, W. was to make good the deficiency. On the payment of the £170 & expenses the goods were to become the property of W.:—Held: the two documents together constituted a mtgc. to secure £170, & they required registration under 1854 Act.—*Re WALDEN, Ex p. See 1878 Act, s. 4.

28. Whether property passing independently—

Sale by sheriff.]—The sheriff having seized the goods of deft. under a writ of fi. fa. issued by C., sold them to claimant for £65. A deposit of £40 was paid at the time of sale, & £25 on the following day; the sheriff, thereupon, gave to claimant an inventory of the goods, & a receipt for the price, which were never registered under 1878 Act. Deft. remained in possession of the goods, which were afterwards seized by the sheriff under another writ of fi. fa.:—Held: the inventory & receipt did not amount to a bill of sale, & claimant was entitled to the goods as against plffs.—MARSDEN v. MEADOWS (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 80; 50 L. J. Q. B. 536; 45 L. T. 301; 29 W. R. 816, C. A.

29. Contemporaneous letting to debtor's wife.]—The goods of deft. were seized by the sheriff under a writ of fi. fa. issued by claimant, & were sold by private contract to claimant, who agreed to let them to deft.'s wife on certain terms. On completion of the sale the sheriff gave claimant an inventory of the goods, which were afterwards seized by the sheriff under another writ of fi. fa. issued by pltf. An interpleader issue having been tried in the county ct., the judge found there had been a complete transaction of purchase & sale irrespective of the inventory: Held: there was evidence to justify the finding, & the inventory was not an assurance within 1878 & 1882 Acts.—HAYDON v. BROWN (1888), 59 L. T. 810, C. A.

30. ———.]—A sheriff having seized pltf.'s goods under a writ of execution, an order was made by consent giving the sheriff power to sell them by private contract to deft. co. The goods were sold to the co. for the amount of the execution debt; the money was paid, & a receipt for it, together with an inventory of the goods, sent by post. The same day deft. co. let the goods to debtor's wife on a hiring agreement. Debtor became bkpt., & his trustee claimed the goods. The receipt and inventory were not registered:—Held: the transaction was one of purchase & sale, & the documents did not require registration.—JONES v. TOWER FURNISHING CO. (1889), 61 L. T. 84; sub nom. Re JONES, Ex p. TOWER FURNISHING CO., 6 Morr. 193, D. C.

31. ———.]—On Aug. 17, 1887, a creditor issued a writ of execution on a judgment recovered against A. On the next day A. made a statutory declaration authorising pltf's., as far as they could purchase the furniture from the sheriff, to do so, & thus to avoid a sale by auction on the premises, & on that day an order was obtained at chambers, by consent of A. & the judgment creditor, that the sheriff should be at liberty to sell the furniture to pltf's. for £800, describing it as "then seized by the sheriff," but it had not in fact then been seized, although an officer had been sent down to make an inventory. On the 19th, the warrant was issued on the writ to an officer to execute the writ, & a receipt was given by the officer to pltf's. for £800, then paid by them to him, the receipt being "for £800 for furniture seized & sold" by the officer, & it was dated on the 19th, though not actually given until the 20th. On the 19th there was an agreement in writing between pltf's. & A.'s wife, which agreement on the face of it was a hiring agreement, i.e., an agreement to let her the furniture on hire, & that she should pay £1,200 for it in monthly instalments of £25, & that on full payment it should become hers, & so the furniture was left in the house as before. In Nov., 1887, deft. recovered judgment against A. for above £900 & issued a writ of execution against the furniture, & an interpleader issue was directed, to try whether the goods at the time of deft.'s execution belonged to A. or to pltf's. The judge told the jury that in substance the question was whether the transaction was honest & bonâ fide, & was really what it purported to be, & that if so there would be no objection to it, that it was the only way to protect the furniture of a judgment debtor, & that if the transaction was real they should find for pltf's., which they did:—Held: the jury, in finding that the transaction was honest & was really what it purported to be, had virtually negatived the suggestion that it had been something different, & an application for a new trial must be dismissed.—TOWER FINANCE & FURNISHING CO. v. BROWN (1890), 6 T. L. R. 192, D. C.

32. ———. Receipt containing terms of sale.]—Although a document may be in form a receipt given by the sheriff on the sale of goods, if such document really is an embodiment of the contract made by the sheriff with the purchaser, & was intended by the parties as such, it amounts to an assurance, & must be registered as a bill of sale.

Goods seized by the sheriff under a writ of execution were sold privately by leave of the ct., & a receipt was given by the sheriff to the purchaser in the following form: "Received from, etc. . . . £122 1s. 9d. being for the goods, chattels, & effects now in & upon the premises No. 471, Bethnal Green Road, which were seized by the sheriff of the county of London under & by virtue of a writ of fi. fa., & hereby sold as far as he lawfully can or may, without any warranty of title & with the consent of deft., who is a builder, & under an order of the master, dated, etc." :—Held: the document was a bill of sale & not being registered must be declared void.—Re HOOD, Ex p. BURGESS (1893), 42 W. R. 23; 9 T. L. R. 541; 37 Sol. Jo. 602; 10 Morr. 231; 4 R. 502, C. A.

33. ———.]—An execution having been levied on the goods of B. an arrangement was made that S. should buy the goods from the sheriff & let them on hire to B. A few days afterwards S. applied to the auctioneers who had been employed by the sheriff for an inventory, which was sent to him, with a receipt from the sheriff's officer, for which no request had been made. The goods were afterwards taken in execution while in B.'s possession:—Held: S. had a good title without the documents, & the inventory & receipt did not require registration.—STAMMERS v. MARGRETT (1905), 21 T. L. R. 342.

34. ———. Sale by county court bailiff.]—The bailiff executing a county ct. judgment seized goods on which C. had a bill of sale. C., by letter to the bailiff, offered to buy the goods at a valuation, deducting the amount of his advance. The bailiff assented, & the goods were delivered to C., with an inventory, on which was written a memorandum of the sale to C.:—Held: the letter was only an offer, & what really transferred the property was the subsequent oral sale, & the letter & the memorandum did not need registration.—GRACE v. GARD (1889), 6 T. L. R. 74, D. C.

35. ———. Sale by owner.]—In an execution on a judgment obtained by deft. against K. certain bricks were seized, which were claimed by pltf. Pltf.'s claim was that K. had sold him 60,000 bricks, & a receipt for £80 as the price of them was produced. It was proved that K. had in his possession a larger number of bricks & continued dealing with them & there was no evidence that any had been appropriated to the contract:—Held: pltf.'s title depended on the receipt, which was a bill of sale & void for want of registration.—SNELL v. HEIGHTON (1883), 1 Cab. & El. 95.

36. ———. Sale by trustee in bankruptcy.]—An execution having been levied on the goods of H., he filed a liquidation petition, & the trustee in the liquidation paid out the sheriff & sold the goods to P., giving him a receipt & inventory. P. then let the goods on hire to H., & execution was afterwards levied on them for another debt of H.:—Held: the inventory & receipt given by the trustee did not require registration.—PARNACOTT v. DIEUDONNÉ (1885), 2 T. L. R. 98.

37. ———. Debtor & grantee living in same house.]—B. having become bkpt. was allowed to retain some of his furniture, which he sold to J. The remainder was sold to J. by the trustee in bkpey., a receipt being given in each case. B. & J. were living in the same house & continued to do so after the sales to J. Execution being levied on the furniture for a debt of B. it was claimed by waggon was in A.'s possession at the time, in an unfinished state, & was left with him to be completed in consideration of the balance due on the account. There was no other evidence of a sale of the waggon from A. to B.:—Held: as there was no sale of the waggon independent of the written document, it amounted to a bill of sale.—SHIRREFF v. VYE (1885), 24 N. B. R. 572.—CAN.

35 i. ———. Sale by owner.]—At the trial of an interpleader issue involving the question of ownership of certain horses, pltf. gave evidence of having bought the horses from execution debtor, & put in evidence a document purporting to be a receipt for the purchase-money. The judge having non-suited pltf., on the ground that the document was an assurance of personal chattels, requiring to be registered under 1898 Act, s. 3:—Held: the non-suit must be set aside, as the document

39. — — — — —.—I. being indebted to H., agreed to sell his "valuation" at the S. Hotel to him, T. to value for both. T. prepared & signed an inventory, & valuation for £930 12s. 7d., which was stamped & dated Aug. 9, 1902. Subsequently, on Sept. 12, H. granted I. a quarterly lease of the hotel, & also let to him the fixtures & effects set out in the schedule, & at the end of the lease it was stated "the whole of the valuation as per inventory is the property of H. & Sons, brewers," & that was signed by I. :—Held : neither the document of Aug. 9 nor the lease of Sept. 12 constituted a bill of sale, as there was a good sale, which passed the property independently of the documents.—CLAPHAM v. IVES (1904), 91 L. T. 69 ; 48 Sol. Jo. 417, D. C.

40. — — — Goods delivered to purchaser—Subsequent letting agreement.—A lessee being in arrear with his rent, agreed for the sale to his lessor of the furniture on the premises for £1,500, to be applied in reducing the arrears, & the lessor agreed to grant the lessee a lease of the same furniture for six months with an option to buy it back at any time during that period for a like sum. A representative of the lessor gave cheques for £1,500 to the lessee, who thereupon handed him a chair by way of delivery of the whole furniture. The lessee then signed a document consisting of a receipt for £1,500 as consideration for the furniture comprised in the inventory attached. The lessee's part of the hiring agreement was next handed over duly executed, but the lessor did not execute the agreement till a day or two later. Finally the lessee indorsed the cheques over to the lessor in reduction of the arrears of rent. No document was registered as a bill of sale. Some four months later debts. distrained on the furniture for rates owing by the lessee in respect of the premises. Thereupon the lessor brought an action claiming a declaration that the furniture was his property :—Held : as the property in the furniture passed by delivery, the receipt with inventory attached was not an assurance, but a mere record of the sale which did not require to be registered.—PRUDENTIAL MORTGAGE CO. v. MARYLEBONE BOROUGH COUNCIL (1910), 8 L. G. R. 901 ; 71 J. P. Jo. 339.

41. — Prior oral agreement—Letting agreement contemporaneous with receipt.—The B. co., being in want of money & being in possession of wagons in which they had an interest, applied to resp., who agreed to buy the wagons for £1,000, & advanced that sum, £257 thereof being paid to the owners of the wagons & the rest, £743, to the co. Resp. received from the co. an invoice for the wagons & a receipt for the £743, & from the owners of the wagons a receipt for the £257. At the same time resp. leased the wagons to the co. for three years, at a yearly rent payable quarterly, & calculated to replace the £1,000 with 7 per cent. interest, upon the terms that if all the payments were duly made the co. should have the option of purchasing the wagons at the end of the lease for a nominal sum, & that if the rent was not duly paid after demand resp. should be entitled to repossess & enjoy the wagons as of their former estate, & that the agreement should thereupon cease & determine. The co. having made default in payment of the rent, resp. claimed the wagons from a railway co. into whose possession they had come, but were resisted on the ground that the transaction was void under the 1878 & 1882 Acts, the documents not being in the form prescribed by those Acts :—Held : the transaction was in fact a purchase by resp., & was not a mtge. by the co. or a security for the payment of money, & the documents were not bills of sale, but even if they had been, resp. had made an independent title to the wagons.—*MANCHESTER, SHEFFIELD & LINCOLNSHIRE RY. 42. — — — Goods in warehouse.—Furniture, the property of C., was deposited in a warehouse in the name of J., who paid the warehouse charges. C. subsequently agreed to sell the furniture to J. & R. for £55, & they sent C. a cheque for that amount. C. then sent them a list of the furniture with a receipt written at the end, & the furniture was shortly afterwards sent to them from the warehouse, the delivery order to the warehouse being signed by J. The furniture was afterwards settled by J. & R. on C.'s wife, & was in her possession :—Held : there had been a perfect & complete transaction of purchase & sale, by which J. & R. acquired a good title to the furniture, independently of the list & receipt, & the document was not a bill of sale.—*SHEPHERD v. 43. — — — Consideration for guarantee of grantor's banking account.—Where, upon an oral agreement by which title to a personal chattel was given by way of security for an advance, the grantor of such chattel signed a "receipt," which was not intended to, & did not, express the contract between the parties :—Held : such document, not being an assurance, was not a bill of sale, & was in form a receipt for the purchase-money, & since there was evidence of a sale completed independently of it, it should have been left to the jury to say whether such an independent transaction had in fact taken place or not.—TRACEY v. MADDEN (1908), 7 C. L. R. 143.—AUS.

44. — Prior independent bargain—Sale by husband to wife.—A wife, who had separate estate, agreed to purchase from her husband some furniture & other personal chattels belonging to him, which were in the house in which she lived with him. She stipulated that a receipt for the purchase-money should be given to her, & instructed her solicitor to draw the receipt. After the purchase-money had been paid to the husband he signed a receipt, which the wife's solr. had prepared. The document acknowledged the receipt from the wife of the agreed sum, as the purchase-money "for all my furniture, plate, etc., which I hereby acknowledge are now absolutely her property." There was no formal delivery of the goods by the husband to the wife, but they remained, as they had previously been, in the house in which the husband & the wife were living together. She subsequently sent part of the goods to her own bankers, & the remainder were afterwards taken in execution by a judgment creditor of the husband. In an interpleader issue between the wife & the execution creditor: Held: the receipt, notwithstanding the words at the end of it, did not form part of the transaction passing the property in the goods to the wife, but the property had passed to her by the prior & independent bargain, & the receipt did not require registration, & the wife was entitled to the goods as against the execution creditor.—*RAMSAY v. 45. — Possession taken by grantee—Furniture subsequently let to grantor with house.—On Mar. 4, 1881, A. paid B. £200 for the purchase of his furniture, taking at the time of the purchase & payment a receipt for the purchase-money. The furniture remained in the possession of B. until Mar. 15, when A. removed it to a warehouse, paying for the removal & warehousing. On Mar. 26 A. again removed it to a house, which she let to B. from Mar. 29, together with the furniture therein. On Nov. 14 the furniture was taken in execution under a judgment obtained against B. in proceedings commenced in July:—Held: the purchase of the furniture being a bonâ fide transaction, A. had a good title thereto apart from the receipt, & the receipt was not a bill of sale, & did not require attestation & registration.—PREECE v. GILLING (1885), 53 L. T. 763; 2 T. L. R. 79, D. C.

46. — Out & out sale—By grantee of bill of sale.—The grantees under a bill of sale given by F. sold the goods to H. & gave him a receipt & inventory. H. allowed the goods to remain in the possession of F., & execution was levied upon them for a debt of F. H. having claimed the goods against the execution creditor:—Held: the title had passed by the sale, & the receipt & inventory did not require registration.—HAY v. NATHAN (1886), 3 T. L. R. 11, C. A.

47. — Sale ostensibly by landlord's broker—Contemporaneous letting agreement to debtor's wife.—The household furniture of deft. was distrained by his landlord on two occasions, & was sold by the landlord's broker to claimants, who on each occasion immediately after the sale let it to deft.'s wife under a hiring agreement. On completion of each sale the broker gave claimants an inventory of the goods, & a receipt for the purchase-money. The documents were not registered. Deft. remained in possession of the goods, which were afterwards seized by the sheriff under a writ of fi. fa. issued by pltf.:—Held: the documents together constituted a bill of sale, & required registration.—*FRENCH v. 48. — Sale followed by hire-purchase agreement.—W., a solr., in order to provide funds for the dissolution of a partnership between his brother & Y., bought some of the machinery in Y.'s sawmill for £650, receiving from Y. a written receipt for the money as in full payment for the machinery. On the next day W. & Y. signed an agreement, by which W. let the machinery to Y. at a half-yearly rent of £50, it being agreed that when the half-yearly payments amounted to £1,000 the machinery should revert to Y. absolutely on the payment of a further sum of £5. The machinery remained in Y.'s possession, nameplates being attached declaring W. to be the owner, until Y.'s bkpey., when W. claimed it:—Held: there was no document requiring registration, & W. was entitled to the machinery.—*Re YARROW, COLLINS v. At the time of the gift he pointed to an inventory attached to a deed reciting the gift but not then executed, saying: "I give you all the goods mentioned in this inventory":—Held: though reference must be made to the inventory it did not come within the definition of a bill of sale.—LOCK v. HEATH (1892), 8 T. L. R. 295, D. C.

50. — Receipt with inventory on absolute sale—Contemporaneous letting agreement—Consideration for past debt.—A. being indebted to B. & having no property but her furniture, the total amount of the debt & interest was agreed at £900, but no definite arrangement was come to until Feb. 26, when the four following documents were executed: (1) a receipt with inventory attached, wherein A. acknowledged the receipt of £900, agreed purchase price of the furniture & effects set forth in the schedule attached thereto; (2) an agreement for the hiring by A. of the furniture at a rental of £40 per annum, with a proviso giving B. power to determine the agreement on giving six months' notice; (3) an agreement releasing the previous loans, which recited that £900 had been set off against the purchase price & that the ment: "Received £50 11s. for the undermentioned goods," giving an inventory of them, but remained in apparent possession of the goods:—Held: as there was no complete & independent contract proved apart from the document, which was intended to indicate that the son sold the goods to the father, & was not a

furniture had been delivered to B.; (4) a letter signed by B. that A. was to have the right to repurchase the furniture at any time on payment of £900. On the same day B. wrote to A.'s housekeeper authorising her to take possession of the furniture on B.'s behalf, & on Feb. 29 A. handed the housekeeper a chair in the name of the whole of the furniture, & later in the day the housekeeper redelivered the chair to A. under the terms of the hiring agreement. In Apr. A. became bkpt. & A.'s trustee in bkpcy. claimed the furniture as property divisible amongst her creditors. The county ct. judge having found that there had been an oral sale of the furniture & an oral hiring prior to the execution of the four documents, & that they were not necessary to complete B.'s title, which was good apart from them:—Held: the finding of fact of the county ct. judge was wrong, & the transaction was carried out by what amounted to a bill of sale.—*Re EALES, Ex p. 51. — Alleged sale by husband to wife—As security for loans.]—Bkpt., husband of resp., purchased for £950 the furniture in the house of a previous tenant & inhabited the house with his wife & children, the lease of the premises being in his wife's name. The rent, rates & taxes were paid out of money provided by the husband, the wife having a banking account which was fed from the husband's banking account into which he paid large sums for household expenses, the children also contributing to the support of the home. The wife alleged that in Dec., 1914, she advanced her husband £100, that in July, 1915, her husband wanted £350 & that she then agreed to buy the furniture in the house for £600 & allowed her husband to pawn certain articles of jewellery belonging to her for £350, it being agreed that the £350 & the £100 should be received by the husband on account of the purchase-money. £50 was alleged to have been paid by the sale of the pawnticket of the jewellery, & the remaining £100 was paid by three instalments of £20, £50, & £30 after the act of bkpcy. The wife produced receipts for the loans. The trustee in bkpcy. moved for a declaration that the receipts or some or one of them were or was a bill of sale & void under 1878 & 1882 Acts:—Held: the receipts were a security for loans which the wife had made to bkpt. on the security of furniture, & the documents were void as being bills of sale.—*Re LAVEY, Ex p. 52 i. Contract of sale—Of hotel & freehold.]—H. agreed to purchase from deft. a freehold property, including hotel & furniture, for £20,000, & agreed to pay £5,000 cash, to pay the balance by instalments with interest, to give a mtge. over the hotel & land, & to give a bill of sale over the furniture. Subsequently deft. agreed to accept guarantors for the amount of the cash deposit, & to carry out the other terms of the prior agreement, except that instead of a bill of sale being taken over the furniture deft. agreed to let the furniture on hire, so as to obviate the necessity of a bill of sale, & deft. expressly stipulated that the property in the furniture was not to pass to H. Deeds were prepared, including a deed of sale of the hotel & freehold for £20,000, expressly excluding sale of the furniture:—Held: the deeds did not require registration. *DANBY v. k. Contract for absolute sale—Contemporaneous verbal agreement for redemption.]—A contract in writing for the absolute sale of goods by debtor to his creditor, if there be a contemporaneous parol understanding between the parties that the vendor may have back the goods on paying what is due, is void unless filed as a bill of sale. The transaction does not come within Act No. 557, s. 15.—ROSEL v. STEPHENS (1883), 9 V. L. R. 379.—AUS.

m. — Possession retained by vendor.]—A. executed a written note of sale to B. of chattels, & retained possession of them. The day before A.'s insolvency, B. seized them:—Held: as the note was not registered as a bill of sale, the trustee was entitled to the chattels.—Re SHAW (1883), 9 V. L. R. 16.—AUS.

n. — Chattels leased by purchaser to third party.]—In Jan., 1908, C. owed W. £100, & being unable to pay, sold certain horses, dray & harness to W. in consideration of the discharge of the debt & £5 in cash. A document of sale described as a "sale note" was drawn up & signed by the parties on Jan. 31. The goods remained in the possession of C. until early in Feb., when they were leased by W. to a third party, who took possession of them & paid rent to W. They were subsequently seized while in possession of the third party, under an execution issued against C.:—Held: the goods having passed out of the possession of the vendor the document of sale was not invalid because of the non-registration as a bill of sale, whether it was intended to be an absolute bill of sale or a bill of sale by way of security.—WOODROFFE v. TINDALL (1908), 10 W. A. L. R. 117.—AUS.

o. — Chattels not in apparent possession of vendor.]—A father & son lived in the same house. In 1892 the son purchased of the father a safe, a buggy, & a billiard-table. The contract was embodied in sale notes, which were not registered under 1889

Act. The safe & buggy were kept in the premises where the father & son lived. The son had the key of the safe, & kept his papers in the safe. The buggy was generally known to be the son's property. The billiard-table was kept in a house belonging to the purchaser's mother, & away from the residence of the father. The mother let her house & the billiard-table, with the consent of the son, to a third party on the day on which the father committed an act of bkpcy. In June, 1891, the father became bkpt.:—Held: the sale notes came within the term "instrument" in the above Act, & were void as against the official assignee for want of registration.—*SLATTERY (OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE) v. q. Deed of gift of chattels in possession.]—A domiciled resident of Queensland, being about to die, executed in 1899 a deed of gift, voluntarily conveying to his wife & several children in equal shares the whole of his property, which included (inter alia) chattels in possession, i.e., household goods, implements & live stock:—Held: the deed was intended to take effect as an absolute conveyance, & if ineffective for that purpose could not be made effectual as a declaration of trust, & the assignment of the chattels in possession fell under 1891 Act, & auctioneer, & contained a copy of the conditions of sale, & specified the lot & the price. No part of the purchase-money was paid, one of the conditions being that the purchaser was to have six months' credit, & the whole of the hay remained on the premises of the vendor & in his apparent possession. The entry in the auctioneer's book was not registered as a bill of sale. The hay was seized in execution under a judgment obtained by creditors of the vendor:—Held: as the sale would have been void under Stat. Frauds, s. 17, but for the memorandum of the contract contained in the auctioneer's book, such memorandum was an assurance & a bill of sale within 1878 Act, void as against the execution creditors for want of registration.—*Re ROBERTS, EVANS v. 54. Agreement for sale—Reserving vendor's lien.]

—Under a provision contained in testator's will, & with the sanction of the ct. in an action for the administration of his estate, A., one of the trustees, entered into an agreement with C., the other trustee, for the purchase of testator's business, the purchase-money to be paid at future date, & A. & C. as the trustees, to be entitled in the meantime to a lien or charge upon the business & effects for the amount of the purchase-money with interest. The agreement was not registered as a bill of sale. A. took possession of the business & effects under the agreement, & subsequently became bkpt., & the purchase-money being still unpaid, C. claimed to enforce the lien against the proceeds of sale of certain chattels, which belonged to the business at the time of the bkpey.: Held: the agreement operated as an assignment to A. upon purchase & a regrant to C. of the property purchased & was an assurance of personal chattels within 1878 Act, s. 4, which ought to have been registered.—COBURN v. COLLINS (1887), 35 Ch. D. 373; 56 L. J. Ch. 504; 56 L. T. 431; 35 W. R. 610; 3 T. L. R. 419.

60. —.]—An agreement for the letting of an hotel by debt. to pltf. contained a covenant that the landlord should have the same rights & remedies as landlords ordinarily possessed in cases of rent in arrear against the goods of the tenant for the recovery of any amount due for any liquors sold by him to the tenant, not exceeding £200, over & above any rent due, & should be at liberty to seize & distrain any goods of the tenant in respect of any such debt or amount, & to sell same as landlords were empowered to do for arrears of rent. The agreement had not been registered as a bill of sale. Debt. entered under the covenant upon the demised premises, & distrained in respect of a debt then due to him for liquors supplied to pltf.: Held: the covenant amounted to a bill of sale, although there was no existing debt at the time when it was made, as being "a licence to take possession of personal chattels as security for a debt" within 1878 Act, s. 4, & was void for want of registration.—*STEVENS v. A written agreement, entered into by C. at the time of receiving the piano, provided that it should remain the property of P. & S. until fully paid for, & that in default of any instalment they might resume possession without previous demand:—Held: the agreement was not in the nature of a bill of sale, & did not require to be registered.—Re PYKE (1873), 9 N. should be seized under the power therein-after contained, the notes, or so many of them as should then be current, should be given up on demand & become void. The agreement provided that, in the event of non-payment of any instalment, the upholsterer might seize & retake possession of the furniture & any money already paid to him was to be forfeited, & that on payment of the full sum of £65 the furniture should become the property of the hirer, but till payment of the whole sum it should remain the sole & absolute property of the upholsterer. The hirer, after paying £15, filed a liquidation petition, & afterwards, two instalments being in arrear, the upholsterer took possession of the furniture:—Held: as no property in the furniture passed to debtor until payment of all the instalments, the licence given by him to the upholsterer to seize the furniture could not amount to a bill of sale, & no registration was requisite.—*Re ROBERTSON, Ex p. W. stated that it was agreed that the fixtures were to become the property of the lessee at the expiration of the term on his regularly paying the rent. G. stated that W. agreed to sell & he, G., agreed to buy the chattels set out in an inventory for £862, to be paid with interest by equal instalments over six years along with the real rent of the premises, the ground rent being only £23 per annum; G. produced an invoice which he said was received from W. for the price of the goods & chattels & effects enumerated in the inventory showing him to be indebted to W. in a sum of £806. It was also agreed that in case of failure to pay any of the instalments, or if the lessee should become bkpt., the lessors might elect either to recover the full balance remaining due, or instead to resume possession of the engine & sell it &, after retaining out of the purchase-money all expenses & the balance remaining due, pay the surplus, if any, to the lessee, provided that if the lessors should see fit to resume possession of the engine without selling, the loss to them occasioned by the lessee’s non-performance of the agreement should be borne by him, & in case of bkpcy. the lessors should be entitled to prove against his estate for that loss as liquidated damages. The lessee paid the first instalment & the engine was placed on his premises. While it was still there he became bkpt., some instalments being overdue. 72. Following verbal sale to vendor.]—In June, 1886, R. sold the furniture in his house for £100 to W., who handed him a cheque for the money, but no receipt was given. Shortly afterwards, by an agreement in writing, W. agreed to let the furniture to R. until July 10 then next, & R. agreed to pay a rent of £100 for the use of it during the term, as follows:—£1, interest, on the signing thereof, £50 on or before June 25 then next, & £50 on or before July 10 then next. On breach of any of the stipulations, W. was to have power to remove & sell the furniture:—Held: the agreement was not a bill of sale.—REDHEAD v. WESTWOOD (1888), 59 L. T. 293; 4 T. L. R. 671.

73. Following genuine sale to vendor—Power of vendor to seize his own chattels.]—Where A., the original owner of goods, sold them to a club, who afterwards let them to A. under a hire-purchase agreement containing a licence in certain events to enter A.'s premises & seize the goods:—Held: the words "licence to take possession of personal chattels as security for any debt" did not apply, & the agreement did not require registration.

The words "licence to take possession of personal chattels as security for any debt" mean a licence by the owner of the property to the person who advances money to take possession of the chattels which remain in the custody of the owner. That is not the nature of this transaction, because the only licence which is to be found in the instrument is a licence to the person who is described as the owner to take possession of his own chattels (FRY, L.J.).—*UNITED FORTY POUND LOAN CLUB v. 74. Following sale & delivery by purchaser to vendor.]—W. obtained a loan from L. in the following way. She professed to sell him her furniture for £150, he giving her the money & she handing him a chair as a constructive delivery of the goods. On the same day she signed a hire-purchase agreement, which described L. as owner of the goods, & W. as the hirer, & stated that L. agreed to let them to W., for which W. was to pay £200 in five instalments of £40 at intervals of four months, the furniture to become the property of W. on payment of the £200. There was also a power reserved to L. to retake possession of the furniture in case of a breach of the agreement by W. It was

& to give a bill of sale over the furniture. Subsequently debt. agreed to accept guarantors for the amount of the cash deposit, & to carry out the other terms of the prior agreement, except that instead of a bill of sale being taken over the furniture debt. agreed to let the furniture on hire, so as to obviate the necessity of a bill of sale, & debt. expressly stipulated that the property in the furniture was not to pass to H. Deeds were prepared, including a deed of letting & hiring by which H. agreed to hire the furniture from debt., & to pay rent at a rate which exactly corresponded with the payment of the interest provided by the other agreement for the unpaid portion of the purchase-money, & upon the payment of the final instalment the furniture was to become the property of H.:—Held: as the property in the furniture remained in debt.,

b. No obligation to deliver particular chattel referred to in agreement.]—S. obtained a piano from M., under an agreement in writing, that S. should pay rental, for the period of thirty months, at the rate of $10 per month, & that, on completion of the payments agreed to be made, S. should be entitled to receive from M., "one piano, equal in value to the above-named piano, with a receipted bill of sale thereof":—Held: 5th R. S. (c. 92), s. 3, was not applicable, there being nothing in the agreement entitling S., at the termination of the period of hiring, to the possession of the particular piano referred to in the agreement, M. being entitled to deliver, found as a fact by the county ct. judge that W. did not wish to sell the furniture, but only to borrow money on it, & that L. really lent the money on the security of the furniture:—Held: the ct. was not prevented by the form of the document from considering the real nature of the transaction, & on the above findings the document was a bill of sale, & required registration.—*Re WATSON, Ex p. 75. Following alleged assignment to vendor.]—Pltf. executed an absolute deed of assignment of chattels to debts. & on the same day a hire-purchase agreement, whereby he hired the same chattels back from them. The documents were not registered. In an action for trespass to the goods through the seizure of them by debts., the jury found that the transaction was really one of loan, with security under the disguise of an assignment followed by a hiring:—Held: the ct. was not prevented by the forms of the documents from considering the real nature of the transaction, & the documents, not having been registered, were void.—MADELL v. THOMAS & Co., [1891] 1 Q. B. 230; 60 L. J. Q. B. 227; 64 L. T. 9; 39 W. R. 280; 7 T. L. R. 170, C. A.

76. Following alleged distress by landlord—& sale by landlord's broker to vendor.]—Pltf., being in want of money & in arrear with his rent, applied to debts. for a loan on the security of goods. It was arranged between them that he should get his landlord to put in a friendly distress for the rent, & that debts. should purchase the goods distrained from the broker. A distress was put in, & the goods distrained, which, by agreement between the parties, included the tools of pltf.'s trade, & which were found by the jury to be worth £63, were appraised at £29 5s. Pltf. signed a memorandum requesting the broker to sell the goods at the condemned price to debts., there being an understanding that a hire-purchase agreement should afterwards be made, by which pltf. should be entitled to repurchase the goods on terms to be fixed by such agreement. Debts. thereupon paid to the broker £29 5s. A hire-purchase agreement was subsequently executed, by which debts. purported to let the goods to pltf.'s wife on the terms that certain monthly instalments should be paid by the hirer until the total amount of £50 was paid, & that debts. should have power to seize the goods for default in performance of the terms of the agreement by the hirer. It was provided by the agreement that if the lessee should at any time within the period of forty-four months from the date of the agreement pay to the lessor the $350, the lessors would deliver to the lessee one instrument equal in value to that named with a receipted bill therefor:—Held: the agreement entered into between debts. & M. was not one that required to be registered.—*CHAPMAN v. seized the goods for such default, & pltf. brought an action in respect of such seizure:—Held: (1) the true inference of fact from the arrangement made between the parties & the whole of the circumstances was that the parties really intended that there should be in form a sale of the goods under the distress, but that the beneficial interest in the goods should not pass to defts. until a hire-purchase agreement was executed, & that till then there was a trust in favour of pltf.; (2) in the above circumstances, defts. had not a title to the goods independently of the hire-purchase agreement, but such agreement amounted to a bill of sale, &, not being registered, was void.

In considering the question whether in any particular case Bills of Sale Acts come into operation, it is necessary to bear in mind that the Acts do not avoid transactions but documents. The inquiry must begin with the question whether the document itself that is under discussion is a bill of sale within the definition given by the Acts, for which purpose we must examine it by the light of the circumstances of the case. The next question is whether there is or is not a transaction which may stand at law & equity apart from the document, although the Act would avoid the mere document as a bill of sale if the document stood alone. That second question depends on considerations of law apart from Bills of Sale Acts. In dealing with these questions, we must consider the true nature of the transaction (BOWEN, L.J.).—BECKETT v. TOWER ASSETS CO., [1891] 1 Q. B. 638; 60 L. J. Q. B. 493; 64 L. T. 497; 55 J. P. 438; 39 W. R. 438; 7 T. L. R. 400, C. A.

77. Following alleged sale to vendor.—In May, 1883, A. & B. mortgaged furniture, horses, & jewellery to C. In Aug. they applied to D., a money-lender, to make them an advance upon a bill of sale of the same goods. D. refused, but said he would purchase the goods, & they were thereupon assigned to him for £1,200, of which £1,000 was paid to C. & £200 retained by A. & B. C.'s mtge. was transferred to D. & an inventory & receipt was signed by A. & B. & given to D., who registered it under 1882 Act as a bill of sale. At the same time D. executed an agreement letting the goods to A. & B. at a rent of £90 a quarter. That agreement was not registered. The goods having been seized by pltf., an execution creditor of A.:—Held: there was no real purchase by D., the intention being that the goods should remain in the hands of A. & B., & the goods were not protected from the seizure.—*HOOPER v. In the following July a similar transaction took place, under which W. received £2,000. The hire-purchase agreements contained a licence to seize & sell. On Feb. 6, 1901, W. assigned to deft. co. all his trade assets, including the chattels comprised in the two hire-purchase agreements:—Held: the transactions resulting in the hire-purchase agreements were in reality loans, & being unregistered were void owing to the power to seize & sell.—*WHEATLEY'S TRUSTEE v. The wine merchant went to the vendor & paid him £2,000, the vendor giving a receipt for that sum as the purchase-money of the furniture. The same day the wine merchant & M. signed a hire-purchase agreement, by which M. hired the furniture for £2,412 to be paid by instalments, the furniture not to become the property of M. till all the instalments were paid. The purchase was then completed & M. took possession. After paying some of the instalments M. became bkpt.:—Held: the circumstances showed that as a matter of fact the sale to the wine merchant was only colourable, & the transaction between him & M. was really a loan upon the security of the hire-purchase agreement, & the agreement not having been registered was void as against M.'s creditors.—*MAAS v. Subsequently B. attended the sale & bought the goods. A hire-purchase agreement, containing a licence to seize, was then entered into between B. & S. in respect of the goods, & the goods were delivered to S. An execution being levied against S., the goods were seized by the execution creditors. B. put in a claim. In interpleader proceedings in the county ct. the judge found that the true inference from the facts was that the transaction between B. & S. was merely a loan upon the security of the hire-purchase agreement, & that the hire-purchase agreement was a bill of sale & void for want of registration:—Held: (1) (LUSH, J.) the transaction between B. & S. was a bonâ fide hire-purchase; (2) (ATKIN, J.) there was evidence upon which the judge could hold that the transaction was really a loan by B. to S. upon the security of the hire-purchase agreement.—*JOHNSON v. The principal terminated the agency & contended that the agreement was a bill of sale & void for want of registration :—Held : (1) the agreement gave no power to seize goods, but only to retain possession of goods come to his hands ; (2) when the goods came to the agent's hands he had possession coupled with an agreement which gave him a legal, not an equitable, right, & the agreement was not void as a bill of sale.—*MORRIS v. By separate agreements the co. let to the merchant allotments within the railway yard for the purpose only of stacking & dealing with the coal. The co. had the keys of the yard gates & kept them locked at certain times. The payments being in arrear, the co. closed the account, locked the gates, & detained the coal :—Held : (1) the inference of fact from the circumstances was that both parties intended the co.'s right of detainer to be preserved & if necessary enforced against the coal while in the railway yard ; (2) the ledger agreement conferred no licence to take possession of personal chattels or charge or equity thereon & was not a bill of sale.—*GREAT EASTERN RY. v. No mtge. was given & the purchase was not completed. The co. having gone into liquidation the trade fixtures were claimed by the liquidator :—Held : the vendor's lien extended to trade machinery which was affixed to the freehold, & the lien being given by law, & there being nothing which could be registered, 1878 Act did not apply, & the vendors were entitled to the fixed trade machinery. Re VULCAN IRONWORKS, LTD. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 312.

The son, after W.'s death, elected to purchase, & paid part of the purchase-money, but before the residue of it was paid became bkpt. The receiver, in an action to administer W.'s estate, claimed to have a charge upon certain stock in the possession of the son for the residue of the purchase-money due to W.'s estate as against the trustee in bkpey. of the son :—Held : as there was not any document signed by bkpt. which could be registered as a bill of sale Bills of Sale Acts did not apply.—*Re WEBBER, Ex p. 87. By handing over invoice & delivery order—Goods bought on credit.—Whatever documents are included in the expression "bill of sale" as defined by Bills of Sale Acts, they must still, by force of 1878 Act, s. 3, be limited to documents "whereby the holder or grantee has power to seize or take possession of any personal chattels comprised in or made subject to such" document ; & the Acts do not include letters of hypothecation accompanying a deposit of goods or pawntickets given by a pawnbroker, or in fact any case where the object & effect of the transaction are immediately to transfer the possession of the chattels from the grantor to the grantee.

A trader, who required an advance of £500, deposited with his bank the invoice of goods bought by him on credit & consigned to him by rail, & gave the bank a delivery order directed to the railway co., requiring the co. to hold the goods to the order of the bank. On arrival of the goods the co. sent the usual advice note to the bank stating that they held the goods to the order of the bank. The £500 was then advanced, & a minute of the transaction, stating the rate of interest on the advance, the terms on which the goods were to be redeemed, etc., was entered in the bank ledger, & was signed by the trader & stamped. Eleven months afterwards the trader became bkpt. :—Held : as the effect of the transaction was immediately to transfer the possession of the goods to the bank, the delivery order & minute did not require registration as a bill of sale, & the title of the bank was good as against the trustee in bkpey.—*Re HALL, Ex p. On the same day pltf. signed & handed to the warehouseman a delivery order, requesting him to "deliver" to defts. or their order "all property warehoused with you in my name on payment of your charges":—Held: the delivery order was not a bill of sale, the whole transaction being one of pledge, & the effect of the delivery order being equivalent to actual possession by defts., the pledgees.—*GRIGG v. At the same time the secretary signed a memorandum of charge on behalf of the co., which stated that the goods were to be held as security for £200 & interest, & contained a power of sale:—Held: the memorandum was not a bill of sale within 1882 Act. Seem: the Act did not apply where possession of goods was given to the lender at the time of the borrowing.—Re CUNNINGHAM & CO., LTD., ATTENBOROUGH'S CASE (1885), 28 Ch. PART II. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 6.

88 i. By handing over delivery warrants.]—A distillery co. gave, as security for advances, warrants making the whiskey therein mentioned deliverable to the holder of such warrant. The name of the holder was entered in the books of the co. opposite the numbers & particulars of the casks of whiskey, which still remained in possession of the co. & were dealt with by them. When they sold the whiskey they cancelled the warrant, & erased the holder's name in their books & substituted another warrant over other whiskey as security to the creditors:—Held: if the transaction created a valid pledge, the warrants were void as not being registered under Irish 1879 Act, s. 4.—DUBLIN CITY DISTILLERY, LTD. v. DOHERTY, [1914] A. C. 823; 83 L. J. P. C. 265; 111 L. T. 81; 58 Sol. Jo. 413; 48 I. L. T. 115, H. L.—IR.

e. By deposit of horse for pasturage—To be held as security for payment thereof—& of accommodation note.]—A. placed a mare with B. to be pastured at a fixed price per month, for the payment of which it was agreed that B. should be entitled to hold her. Later A. obtained an accommodation note from B. upon the understanding that B. should hold the mare as security for payment of the note as well as the pasturage, & upon the further express understanding that if B. should be called upon to pay the note, the animal should become his property:—Held: the transaction was one of pledge, & did not fall within Chattel Mortgage Act.—KEELLY v. POLLOCK (1902), 1 O. W. R. 735.—CAN.

91. —.]—Goods were pledged as security for a loan & were delivered to the pledgee, & an agreement was signed recording the transaction & regulating the rights of the pledgee as to the sale of the goods:—Held: the agreement was not a bill of sale.—WILKINSON v. GIRARD FRÈRES (1891), 7 T. L. R. 266.

92. — With letter containing terms of loan—Prior verbal agreement for loan & deposit.]—Pltf. verbally agreed to advance money to B., the latter agreeing to deposit plate as security for the advance. A letter containing the terms of the loan was given to pltf., the advance was then made, & at the same time pltf. took possession of the plate. The letter was not registered:—Held: pltf.'s title did not depend on the letter, the transaction being one of pledge & independent of 1882 Act.—BOWKER v. WILLIAMSON (1889), 5 T. L. R. 382, D. C.

93. By handing over key of room containing goods—Subsequent letter authorising lender to retain possession.]—In Nov., 1883, A. agreed to lend B. £2,500 on the security of a valuable collection of prints & engravings. On Nov. 19 A. advanced B. £1,250 on account of the loan, & it was arranged between them that the collection should be stored in a certain room, & on Dec. 21 B. wrote to A.: "the collection was moved in to-day. L. has the key which I place entirely at your disposal." On Dec. 24 A. advanced to B. the balance of the loan, & on Jan. 11, 1884, B. wrote to A.: "You having advanced to me £2,500, I hereby authorise you to retain possession of my collection of engraved prints, now deposited by me in a certain room, the key of which room is at present in your possession or power, & I hereby acknowledge that you are to retain possession of such prints, etc., until the whole of the £2,500, with interest at 5 per cent., has been repaid to you." B. died insolvent, & his administratrix disputed the validity of A.'s security, on the ground that the letter of Jan. 11 constituted a bill of sale, which was void under 1882 Act, ss. 8, 9:—Held: the transaction was one of pledge, independent of the letters, & the Act did not apply.—HILTON v. TUCKER (1888), 39 Ch. D. 669; 57 L. J. Ch. 973; 59 L. T. 172; 36 W. R. 762; 4 T. L. R. 618.

SUB-SECT. 7. —OTHER INSTRUMENTS.

94. Instrument reciting prior sale—Purporting to be demise to original vendor—No sale apart from document.]—An instrument reciting a sale of certain chattels by A. to B., of which sale there was no other evidence, purported to be a demise of the chattels by B. to A. at a certain rent payable quarterly, with a proviso entitling B.

for payment of the note as well as the pasturage, & upon the further express understanding that if B. should be called upon to pay the note, the animal should become his property:—Held: the transaction was one of pledge, & did not fall within Chattel Mortgage Act.—*KEELLY v. 97. Verbal agreement for auctioneer to pay out sheriff—Possession taken by auctioneer—Subsequent letter authorising auctioneer to hold possession.—The owner of goods seized under a writ of fi. fa. verbally agreed with an auctioneer that in consideration of his paying out the sheriff the auctioneer should hold possession of the goods, sell them by auction, & pay the balance, if any, to the owner. The agreement was reduced into writing & the sheriff was paid out, the man in possession remaining in possession for the auctioneer: Held: the written agreement was not an assurance or licence to take possession, or in any other respect a bill of sale, as it did not to sell and pay the mtge. debts:—Held: the instrument did not require registration. PATTERSON v. KINGSLEY (1878), 25 Gr. 425. —CAN.

g. — To take property in assignment of chattels—Void for want of filing.—An assignment of chattels, in addition to the conveyance of the property, contained a power of attorney to the assignee to take & hold it, but was void as an assignment, for want of filing:—Held: the assignee's right could not be sustained under the power of attorney. —*WILSON v. h. Sale of growing crops—Giving purchaser power to enter. To take care of crops.—Where growing crops were sold to a purchaser by a written instrument authorising him to enter upon the land for the purpose of taking possession, & of putting a party in charge of them: Held: as the purchaser had acquired no estate in the land, he had not such an actual possession of the crops as dispensed with the necessity of registering the bill of sale.—SHERIDAN v. MCARTNEY (1861), 5 L. T. 27; 11 L. C. L. R. 506; 6 Ir. Jur. N. S. 193. —IR.

98. Verbal assignment of goods in hands of auctioneer—As security for overdraft at bank—Subsequent direction to auctioneer to pay proceeds of sale to bank.—Pltf. bank required F., a customer, to find further security for his overdrawn account. He verbally agreed to assign his firm's interest in certain goods sent to auctioneers for sale; afterwards he sent them written notice of the assignment, instructing them to pay over proceeds of sales to pltf. bank:—Held: the notice was not a licence to take possession of personal chattels as security for a debt.—LONDON & YORKSHIRE BANK, LTD. v. WHITE (1895), 11 T. L. R. 570; 39 Sol. Jo. 708.

99. Agreement for sale—Giving vendor power to resume possession on default.—On a sale of furniture goods were assigned by an instrument which was a bill of sale within 1878 Act, & contained a promise by the purchaser to pay the purchase-money at a future date & a licence to the vendor to resume possession of the goods if the price was not then paid:—Held: the instrument under which the purchaser acquired the goods was not a bill of sale within 1882 Act. *STOCKS v. 100. Deed of gift from husband to wife—Subsequent deed of separation—& lease by wife to husband.—A husband & wife were interested in certain furniture as joint tenants or tenants in common. The husband by deed of gift registered under 1878 Act, s. 10, conveyed all his interest in the furniture to the wife. The deed was not re-registered after the expiration of five years as required by s. 11. Subsequently the husband & wife executed a deed of separation containing a clause by which the wife leased the furniture to the husband:—Held: the deed was not a document "whereby the grantee has power to seize or take possession of personal chattels" within

95 ii — Giving owner power to remove chattels at any time.—B. made a verbal sale of goods to pltf., who paid him part of the price. Pltf. then executed a lease of the goods to B., who continued in apparent possession thereof. The lease gave pltf. power to remove any part of the goods at any time:—Held: the lease was not a document requiring registration.—ESNOUF v. GURNEY (1895), 4 B. C. R. 114. —CAN.

101. Mortgage of land & fixtures—No power to take possession of fixtures apart from land.]—

At the date of a mtge. there was annexed to the land certain trade machinery, which was not expressed to be dealt with by the mtge., or even mentioned therein. The mtge. deed contained a proviso that the powers contained in Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 19, should be exercisable without serving the notice required by s. 20 of that Act:—Held: there was no right in a mtgee. of freehold land to sell fixtures passing by his mtge. in the absence of an express power enabling him to do so, & the mtge. was not an authority or licence to seize or take possession of personal chattels, & Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1881, s. 19, did not authorise the mtgee. to sever fixtures & sell them apart from the land.—*Re YATES, BATCHELOR v. that F. should be at liberty, at any time while such business was carried on, to enter into the place of business & take possession of the goods & premises, & wind up the affairs:—Held: this was not such an agreement as required to be registered under Chattel Mortgage Act, to enable the vendors to hold as against subsequent purchasers with notice.—*FISKEN v. m. — On purchaser's failure to conduct business properly.]— Ptff. in 1898 agreed to supply M. & S., dry goods dealers, with goods under an agreement in writing that such goods should remain ptff.'s property, & that, should ptff. at any time consider that the business of M. & S. was not being conducted in a proper way or to ptff.'s satisfaction, ptff. should be "at liberty to take possession of our stock, book debts, & other assets, & dispose of same, & after payment in full of any amount then owing to you by us, whether due or to become due, the balance of the proceeds shall be handed to us." If I fail to pay any of the above-named notes, G. can take over possession of the business & all stock in the store at time of me failing to meet or pay above or aforesaid named notes":—Held: the document came within the term "bill of sale" in 5th R. S. (c. 92), s. 10, & should have been filed.—MANCHESTER v. HILLS (1901), 31 N. S. R. 512.—CAN.

o. Letter giving auctioneers sole right to stock bought through them.]— H., who owed appts., stock-auctioneers, £1,171, sent them the following letter: "On looking over my accounts I find I owe you a considerable amount, & as I have two hundred cattle grazing at O. which were bought through you, I am giving you the sole right to them. The amount the cattle cost is between £1,000 & £2,000. I only ask that I be allowed to jockey the cattle off through your firm." There was no evidence to show whether or not it was the custom for stock-dealers to give such letters to auctioneers:—Held: the letter was an instrument by way of security within Chattels Transfer Act, 1889, s. 2, & was not within the exceptions (e) or (h) to that sect.—*WILLIAMS & KITTLE v. 102. To assign chattels—Followed by delivery of possession.]—An agreement to assign chattels to a bonâ fide creditor, followed by open delivery & possession of same, need not be registered under 1854 Act.—PIERCY v. HUMPHREYS (1868), 17 L. T. 463.

103. — Followed by assignment & delivery of possession.]—In 1870, two traders, who carried on business in partnership, agreed, in consideration of past & present advances, that they would, on demand, assign to their father & brother the business then carried on by them together, with the lease of their business premises, which lease was afterwards deposited with the lenders, & also the fixtures & their stock & utensils in trade, & it was provided that if debtors should repay the sum due with interest, then the agreement should be void, but should they be unable to repay the sum due, then a valuation of the premises thereby agreed to be assigned should be taken, & the amount whereby such valuation should exceed the sum then due should be paid by the father & brother of debtors. In 1873, an assignment was made in accordance with the agreement, & the amount whereby the valuation exceeded the sum then due to them was paid by the father & brother to debtors, who expended same in paying certain creditors:—Held: the assignment was not an evasion of 1854 Act, inasmuch as possession of the property assigned was given at the same time the trade of a chemist & druggist, having fitted up the premises with suitable trade fixtures, all of which were admittedly capable of being detached without injury to the freehold. After the annexation of the fixtures C. mortgaged the premises. In the mtge. the parcels were simply described as "building ground" with boundaries, etc., as in the lease, omitting any specific mention of the fixtures:—Held: the mtge. did not come within Bills of Sale Acts.—Re CALVERT, [1898] 2 L. q. Lien note—(Giving grantee power to resume possession on default.)—The owner of manufactured articles, which were in his possession free from any lien for the unpaid portion of the purchase-money, signed a lien note in favour of debt., the manufacturer, containing a statement that the property in the goods was to remain in debt. until paid for in full, & that on default debt. might enter & retake them. The lien note was not registered under 63 & 64 Vict. c. 31:—Held: for want of such registration, the lien note, being an instrument to operate as a mtge. of goods which remained in debtor's possession until his assignment for the benefit of his creditors, was null & void as against his creditors.—*COX v. 117. Mining lease—Distress for rent—On chattels not on demised premises.]—A mining co. were lessees, from separate lessors, at certain rents & royalties, of two adjoining coal mines A. & B. There was no shaft on mine B., & the co. worked both mines by means of a shaft on mine A. In each of the leases the lessor reserved to himself express power to distrain for rent in arrear, not only upon chattels belonging to the lessees on the demised premises, but also upon chattels belonging to the lessees in or about "any adjoining or neighbouring collieries." In Oct., 1896, the lessors of mine B. levied a distress upon chattels belonging to the lessees on mine A.:—Held: having regard to the nature of the demise & the manner in which the minerals were worked, the power to distrain upon chattels belonging to the lessees upon adjoining or neighbouring mines did not constitute the mining lease a bill of sale, so as to require registration under Bills of Sale Acts.—*Re ROUNDWOOD COLLIERY CO., LEE v. 128. ——— Apparent possession of husband.]—A wife, who had separate estate, agreed to purchase from her husband some furniture & other personal chattels belonging to him, which were in the house in which she lived with him. She stipulated that a receipt for the purchase-money should be given to her, & instructed her solr. to draw the receipt. After the purchase-money had been paid to the husband he signed a receipt which the wife's solr. had prepared. The document acknowledged the receipt from the wife of the agreed sum, as the purchase-money "for all my furniture, plate, etc., which I hereby acknowledge are now absolutely her property." There was no formal delivery of the goods by the husband to the wife, but they remained, as they had previously been, in the house in which the husband & the wife were living together. She subsequently sent part of the goods to her own bankers, & the remainder were afterwards taken in execution by a judgment creditor of her husband. In an interpleader issue between the wife & the execution creditor:—Held: the wife had a sufficient possession of the goods to take the case out of 1878 Act, for the situation of the goods being consistent with their being in the possession of either the husband or the wife, the law would attribute the possession to the wife who had the legal title.—*RAMSAY v. 131. Unfinished ship.]—In Aug., 1874, A., having overdrawn his account with his bankers, offered to give them a security over a ship, which he was then building. Two months later, A.'s account being still largely overdrawn, the bankers requested him to give them the promised security, & he deposited with them the builder's certificate of the ship, which was still unfinished, & the following day they put a man in possession:—Held: the deposit of the builder's certificate was a good equitable mtge. of all A.'s property & interest in the ship, & although the ship was unfinished, registration under 1854 Act was not necessary.—Re SOFTLEY, Ex p. HODGKIN (1875), L. 132. Ship not registered under Merchant Shipping Act, 1854 (c. 104).]—A ship built in order to be sold to a foreigner & to be delivered to him at a foreign port, was assigned by her builder to pltf. for a valuable consideration, under an agreement, which was not in the form of a bill of sale given by the above Act. The assignment was not registered, either under that Act or under 1854 Act. At the time of the assignment the vessel had been completely built & had been tried:—Held: the assignment fell within the proviso in 1854 Act, s. 7.—UNION BANK OF LONDON v. LENANTON (1878), 3 C. h. Shipping receipt Indorsed to bank as security for advance.]—C. & Son, bought oats from persons who shipped them to Toronto consigned to their (the sellers') own order, or to the order of some bank other than pltf.s., sending the shipping receipt with draft for the price of the oats attached to C. & Son at Toronto. The latter then took the shipping receipt to pltf.s., who advanced the money thereon to pay the draft, returning the shipping receipt to C. & Son, for the purpose of obtaining the oats from the carriers, after taking from C. & Son a receipt in these words: "Received in trust from the D. Bank bill of lading for . . . bushels oats, & I hereby undertake to sell the property specified for the bank & collect the proceeds of sales thereof, & deposit same with the bank, in Toronto, to the credit of same, I hereby acknowledging myself to be bailee of the property for the bank." C. & Son received the oats from the carriers & warehoused them, taking warehouse receipts in their own name, which they indorsed to pltf.s., who then gave up the bailee receipt:—Held: Chattel Mortgage Act could have no application, for when the oats first came into the possession of C. & Son, they came charged with or subject to pltf.s.' title.—*DOMINION BANK v. *of sale—Goods held as security for advances.]—*P. carried on business in London, Melbourne, & elsewhere as a bookseller. Pltf., a bank, advanced money to P. to enable him to carry on his business, & to import goods. To secure the advances pltf. received from P. the bills of lading of consignments of books, the bills of lading being indorsed absolutely to it. The consignments on reaching Melbourne were placed in bond, & the parties agreed under seal that when P. required, for the purposes of his trade, any of the books so consigned, he was to apply to pltf., & on giving an acknowledgment, to receive the bill of lading relating to such books, & obtain the books from the bond. In pursuance of the arrangement he obtained certain books from the bond, took them to his place of business, & disposed of them there in the usual course of business. At the date of P.'s bkpy. some of the books thus obtained from the bond were on his business premises for sale in the usual course of his business. On that date pltf., as owner under the indorsed bills of lading & as P.'s principal, seized these books. P.'s debt to pltf. at the time exceeded the value of the books seized. Deflt. claimed them as part of the bkpt.'s estate:—Held: the circumstances in which P. obtained possession of the goods seized did not constitute that transaction a bill of sale within Instruments Act, 1890.—*FEDERAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. v. n. Application of Instruments Act—Debenture.—A trading co. issued debentures by which it charged with all payments of principal & interest "all its property whatsoever & where-soever both present & future;" the charge was to be a floating security, but so that the co. should not be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge in priority to the debentures. The principal moneys secured were to become payable if default were made in payment of interest or in case an effective resolution be passed for the winding-up of the co. The co. went into liquidation & the debenture holders claimed the proceeds of the sale of certain chattels & fixtures; the liquidator resisted the claim on the ground that the debentures were bills of sale & were void for non-registration under Instruments Act, 1890:—Held: the debentures were not void for such non-registration.—*BANK OF VICTORIA, LTD. v. The covering deed of Nov., 1883, purported to be a conveyance & assignment of the hereditaments, fixtures, & chattels in terms rather larger than those used in the condition; the future chattels being not only those substituted for existing chattels, but also any brought upon the premises in addition thereto. The deed was not registered under 1882 Act:—Held: assuming the covering deed to be void for want of registration under Bills of Sale Acts, the intention to give the debenture holders a valid charge, within 1882 Act, s. 17, on the property comprised in that deed, was manifest on the face of the debentures, read in conjunction with the annexed condition, & amounted to an equitable contract which would be carried into effect to give a charge upon all the property of the co., & the chattels intended to be charged with the money due on the original debentures were subject to an equitable charge in favour of the holders of those debentures.

162. Title deeds—No intention to create charge on land.]—By a bill of sale the mtgor. assigned to the mtgee. as security for an advance “the chattels & things” specifically described in the schedule thereto “& now being in & about the dwelling-house & premises known as the Lion Hotel, Farningham.” The schedule contained a list of articles about the premises, & it concluded with the following item: “Assignment dated Jan. 21, 1902” (the parties being stated) “of lease dated Nov. 13, 1891, of the Lion Hotel & all the muniments of title referred to in the assignment”:—Held: the bill of sale did not create a charge upon the leasehold interest, & it was made in accordance with the statutory form.

Although title deeds savour of realty & are the symbols of the land to which they relate in the hands of the owner, yet it is quite possible for the owner to sever the title deeds from the land & to deal with them as so many pieces of paper & pledge them accordingly; & in that case they come within the description in 1878 Act, s. 4, of “articles capable of complete transfer by delivery” (ROMER, L.J.).—*SWANLEY COAL CO. v. 166. Share in partnership.]—B., as trustee & exor. of his father's will, became entitled to one half share in a distillery business lately carried on in partnership between his father & another. In pursuance of a provision in the will, B. continued the partnership business, & afterwards purchased the interest of the beneficiaries under the will, & executed mtges. to secure the purchase-money, by one of which, dated Sept., 1872, B. assigned all his beneficial interest under his father's will as a security for payment of the money due, & by the same deed charged all his share & interest in the distillery partnership, & in the goodwill of the business, with the repayment of the money due. New articles of partnership were then entered into between B. & the old partner, in which the former appeared as the owner of one half the business:—Held: as between B.'s trustee in bkpey. & the mtgee., the mtge. of B.'s share & interest in the partnership was a charge upon a chose in action, & as such, was not affected by 1854 Act.—Re BAINBRIDGE, Ex p. FLETCHER (1878), 8 Ch. D. 218; 47 L. J. Bey. 70; 38 L. T. 229; 26 W. R. 439.

his rights in the properties to applts., “& also all & singular the sheep, cattle, chattels & effects which are now, or may at any time during the continuance of this security be upon or belonging to the stations.” Resp. subsequently conveyed his equity of redemption in the properties to applts. in identical language:—Held: the right of the taxpayer under the certificates to a return of the taxes paid by him was a personal right in the nature of a chose in action & did not pass in a conveyance of an equity of redemption under the words “chattels & effects upon or belonging to the stations.”—*GOLDSBROUGH MOET & CO., LTD. v. a. Whether capable of transfer by delivery—Goods in customs warehouse.]

Certain goods assigned belonged to the assignor, but were lying in the customs warehouse subject to duties, no change of possession having taken place & no compliance being shown with the formalities required by Customs Act, 1847:—Held: the Act requiring registration did not apply to such goods, as they were not capable of delivery.—*HARRIS & WOODSIDE v. b. — Plant & materials provided by contractor under building contract.]—By a contract between defts. & F., whereby F. agreed to perform works for defts., one of the terms of the contract was that all the plant, materials, etc., provided by F. for the work was to become, & until completion of the work be, the property of defts. for the purpose of the works, but, upon completion of the work, such plant, materials, etc., as should not have been used and converted, should be delivered up to F.:—Held: that at the time of the execution of the contract the plant, materials, etc., could not then be articles capable of complete transfer & delivery, & it was only a bill of sale of such articles that was required to be registered.—CLANCEY v. GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RY. CO. (1910), 14 W. L. R. 201.—CAN.

c. Right to return of taxes under Meat & Dairy Produce Encouragement Acts.]—Resp., the holder of certain grazing properties, paid taxes under the above Acts, & received certificates therefor. By mtge. deeds he assigned to customers under six hiring agreements, were indebted to P. on bills, one of which had become due. P. refused to supply D. & Co. with goods until security was given, & they assigned to P. all money due & hereafter becoming due to them in respect of the hiring agreements & all rights & remedies to which D. & Co. were entitled:—Held: as the assignment gave to P. merely a chose in action, it was not a bill of sale.—*Re DAVIS & Co., Ex p. Reversionary interest in chattels subject to life estate.—Testator by his will gave to his wife the right of possession & enjoyment of all his pictures during her life, & subject thereto bequeathed all his pictures to his son, T., for his absolute use & benefit. Testator died, & on Mar. 28, 1881, T. executed a mtge., by which he assigned as mtgor. & beneficial owner all his share & interest under his father's will in the sums of money, hereditaments, & premises devised & bequeathed thereby expectant upon the decease of his mother:—Held: T.'s interest in the pictures was a chose in action, & the assignment was excepted from the operation of Bills of Sale Acts.—*Re TRITTON, Ex p. The owners in fee of land constructed a mill thereon, with machinery, mill-gear & other works, partly fixed to the soil, & partly not, & then mortgaged the freehold, mill, machinery, etc., & fixtures, etc.:—Held: as the whole freehold was mortgaged, & the machinery passed as being attached thereto, the above Act had no application.—*MATHER v. Assignment of land—Fixtures assigned by separate words—Whether within Act.—The freehold of a mill was mortgaged by J. to M., & for further security, J. afterwards assigned to M. certain machinery then upon the premises. By indenture of Sept. 14, 1853, J. assigned to deft., subject to the mtge., the equity of redemption of the mill & all the machinery included in the assignment to M., & also certain other machinery that had been subsequently erected & fixed in the mill. By another indenture of Aug. 14, 1854, J. sold & assigned to deft., to secure a further advance of £500, certain machinery then on the premises, & set forth in a schedule to the deed, & which did not include any of the machinery assigned by the deed of Sept. 14, 1853, & also further charged with the £500 the equity of redemption in the premises before charged to deft. The machinery assigned by the latter deed was affixed to the premises only for the purposes of trade, & the deed of sale treated them as machinery which J. had a right to sell distinct from the land. The deed of Aug. 14 had not been filed as required by 1854 Act. J. became bkpt., deft. at the time having taken possession of the said machinery:—Held: the machinery assigned by the deed of Aug. 14, 1854 was personal chattels within 1854 Act, s. 7, & the deed itself was a bill of sale, as it created a primary charge on the machinery distinct from the land, & the deed, not having been filed as required by s. 1, was inoperative.—*WATERE v. SECT. 5.—TRADE MACHINERY.

See 1878 Act, ss. 4, 5.

198. Machinery excluded from statutory definition—Not personal chattels for any purpose—Even though not assigned with land.]—The effect of 1878 Act, s. 5, is that the articles which are thereby excluded from the definition of "trade machinery" therein contained are not "personal chattels" within the Act for any purpose whatever, & any assignment of such articles does not require registration under the Act; & this applies to such articles even though they are not actually affixed to the land with which they are assigned, but, by virtue of an easement, to other land belonging to a stranger.

A brick-making co. deposited their title deeds to certain beds of coal & fire-clay with their bankers, together with a memorandum of deposit. The co. were not the owners of the surface of the land under which the beds of coal & fire-clay lay, but they had the right to use the surface for the purpose of working the minerals, & they had erected on the surface certain trade machinery of the kind excluded by s. 5:—Held: the assignment of the trade machinery did not require registration.—TOPHAM v. GREENSIDE GLAZED FIRE BRICK CO. (1887), 37 Ch. D. 281; 57 L. J. Ch. 583; 58 L. T. 274; 36 W. R. 464.

the transaction was a sale by J. to W. of a third interest in the crop to come into existence in the future, & Bills of Sale Act, ss. 9, 15, did not apply.—INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO. v. JACOBSEN & WEITZER (1915), 32 W. L. R. 332; 9 W. W. R. 87; 24 D. L. R. 632; 34 W. L. R. 879; 10 W. W. R. 955.—CAN.

197 v. — Lease of land on crop-payment plan.]—A. let to B. a farm on which grain had been grown by an indenture reserving as rent "the share or portion of the whole crop which shall be grown upon the demised premises as hereinafter set forth," & the lease provided that the lessor might retain from the share of the crop that was to be delivered to the lessee a sufficient amount to cover taxes, & to repay advances & other indebtedness, that the lessee immediately after threshing should deliver the whole crop, excepting hay, in the name of the lessor, at an elevator to be named by the lessor, that all crops of grain grown upon the premises should be & remain the absolute property of the lessor until all covenants, conditions, provisos, & agreements therein contained should have been fully kept, performed & satisfied, & that the lessor should deliver to the lessee two-thirds of the proceeds of the crop to be stored in the elevator, less any sum retained for taxes, advances, indebtedness or guaranties previously mentioned.—Held: the lessor's lien or charge was void under R. S. M. 1902 (c. 11), s. 39, as being a charge upon crops to be grown in the future.—CAMPBELL v. MCKINNON (1903), 23 C. L. T. 234; 14 Man. L. R. 421.—CAN.

197 vii. — — Assignment of.]—By a lease L. demised land to G. for five years at a yearly rent of half the grain grown on the premises, excepting that grown on forty acres, which was to be G.'s property. Afterwards L. assigned G.'s lease, but although the land was covered by the assignment, the parties only intended that the rent reserved & the benefit of the covenants in the lease should pass:—Held: the assignment was valid under Bills of Sale Ordinance, but all grain grown on the demised land belonged to G. until it was divided, or delivered under the terms of the lease.—ROBINSON v. LOTT (1909), 9 W. L. R. 684; 2 Sask. L. R. 150; reversd. 11 W. L. R. 59; 2 Sask. L. R. 276.—CAN.

199. Agreement for security over premises & goods thereon—Except such articles as should require registration—Trade machinery not included.]

—A banking co. entered into an agreement to sell certain paper-mills & machinery to the L. co. for £20,000 to be paid by instalments. By clause 2 of the agreement it was provided that upon payment of the first two instalments the bank should convey the premises to the co. upon their executing a mtge. for the balance of the purchase-money, & that the mtge. should contain a clause enabling the bank, in case the business of the co. should be suspended, to re-enter & take possession of the premises, & of everything which should have been built or placed thereon, & which should not require registration within 1878 Act, & to hold same for their own use & benefit absolutely, but without prejudice to the liability of the co. for the unpaid balance of the purchase-money. The agreement was not registered as a bill of sale:—Held: the agreement to mtge. did not extend to any property which required registration under Bills of Sale Acts, & the trade machinery was not included in the security.—Re LONDON & LANCASHIRE PAPER MILLS CO. (1888), 58 L. T. 798; 4 T. L. R. 312.

200. Mortgage of land—No power to sell machinery apart from land—Whether within Act.]

—The owner of land & buildings which he used for the purposes of his business, & in which there was fixed machinery belonging to him, being trade machinery within 1878 Act, mortgaged them in fee without any general words or any reference to fixtures or machinery. By the mtge. deed it was agreed that the powers in Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1881 (c. 11), s. 19, should be exercisable without such notice as required by the Act:—Held: (1) the mtge. was not an assignment of the trade machinery since the trade machinery only passed by virtue of being affixed to the freehold; (2) the power of sale did not authorise the mtgee. to sell the trade machinery apart from the freehold; (3) the instrument was not a bill of sale, & gave a valid security on the trade machinery.—Re YATES, BATCHELDER v. YATES (1888), 38 Ch. D. 112; 57 L. J. Ch. 697; 59 L. T. 47; 36 W. R. 563; 4 T. L. R. 388, C. A.

one had been paid & the remainder had not become payable when the bill of sale was given. Debt. pointed out that the bill of sale would be void if given for a consideration under £30, & proposed to lend that amount, with a stipulation that £15 should be repaid on demand & £15 by instalments. Pltf. agreed to the terms of the loan, & on the execution of a bill of sale, received £30. Immediately after pltf. had received the £30 debt., at the suggestion of pltf., demanded repayment of the £15, which pltf. then paid:—Held: in the absence of evidence that the transaction was a sham, the bill of sale was valid.—*DAVIS v. SUB-SECT. 2.—STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATION.

See 1878 Act, s. 8; 1882 Act, s. 8.

A. Must be Complete.207. Collateral agreement.—Not to register bill.

—A bill of sale was expressed to be made in consideration of £242 advanced by the grantee to the grantors, & the grantors agreed to repay the advance, together with £100 by way of interest & bonus, in certain instalments. There was a verbal agreement by the grantee not to register the bill of sale, in consequence of which he charged a larger bonus for the advance than he would otherwise have done:—Held: the agreement not to register was a mere collateral agreement, & not part of the consideration for the bill of sale, & it was unnecessary to state it in the deed. — Re STOREY, Ex p. POPPLEWELL (1882), 21 Ch. D. 73; 52 L. J. Ch. 39; 47 L. T. 274; 31 W. R. 35, C. A.

PART V. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.

o. Collateral agreement.—To give bill of sale.]—A collateral agreement entered into between the same parties at the time of the making of an agreement to give a bill of sale need not be referred to in the bill of sale if in fact it did not form one of the terms on which it was given.—DANBY v. AUSTRALIAN FINANCIAL AGENCY & GUARANTEE CO., LTD. (1891), 17 V. L. R. 481.—AUS.*

p. — Agreement entered into on day after execution of mortgage.]—R. agreed to sell his business to M. for cash. M. being unable to pay the entire sum in cash, gave a chattel mtge. to R. as security for the balance, reciting an existing indebtedness to the amount of the balance. On the day after the execution of the chattel mtge., a formal agreement was entered into by R. & M., providing for the future giving of a chattel mtge. to secure the unpaid balance:—Held: the true consideration had been stated in the chattel mtge., & that the subsequent agreement could not affect the matter.—RUSSELL v. QUAKER OATS Co. (1915), 32 W. L. R. 953; 9 W. W. R. 617; 25 D. L. R. 82; 8 Sask. L. R. 399.—CAN.*

q. — Separate declaration of trust—Consideration nominal.]—A bill of sale (registered) for the consideration of 5s., with a separate declaration of trust referred to & forming part of the instrument (not registered) is invalid: the conveyance registered must show the true & full consideration for which it is given.—ARNOLD v. ROBERTSON (1858), 8 C. P. 147.—CAN.*

r. — Providing for payment of advances secured by mortgage.]—A mtge. purported to secure $1,600, acknowledged to have been paid by the mtgees., the property mortgaged being 2,500 logs, & the proviso for redemption being on payment of $1,600, at 7 per cent., on or before Sept. 1, or by delivering lumber of first & second classes, as agreed between the parties, to that value. The agreement, which was of even date, declared that in consideration of the $1,600 then paid & advanced to the mtgors., by pltf., "which sum is collaterally secured to the parties by chattel mtge. bearing even date herewith," etc., the mtgors. agreed to deliver to pltf. all the first & second class lumber made at their mill on or before Oct. 1 then next; & pltf. agreed to pay at the prices named, "or, if the advance now made is not exhausted, to allow them for the lumber so delivered at rates aforesaid." The affidavit of the mtgees. was in the usual form under Chattel Mortgage Act, s. 2: Held: the mtge. was one within Chattel Mortgage Act, ss. 1 & 2, & not s. 5, & it was not open to objection for not truly showing the real transaction between the parties.—BEECHER v. AUSTIN (1871), 21 C. P. 334. CAN.

s. — Not affecting consideration.]—By an agreement under seal contemporaneous with the mtge. the mtgor. agreed that he would, for three years from that time, give his whole time & attention in looking after the cattle & horses, & the mtgee. agreed to allow the mtgor. to sell a number, sufficient to pay running expenses of the ranch:—Held: this agreement did not affect the consideration for the chattel mtge. which was correctly stated as $3,000 the purchase price of the cattle.—GRAVELEY v. SPRINGER (1898), 3 Terr. L. R. 120. CAN.

t. What must be stated—Amount of indebtedness.]—The mtge. did not state the amount of the indebtedness:—Held: void as against pltf., the amount of indebtedness existing or created by the mtge. not being mentioned therein.—STEVENS v. BARFOOT (1886), 9 O. R. 692; 13 A. R. 366. CAN.

a. — Bill subject to condition.]—A bill of sale given subject to a condition not appearing therein is void as against creditors. DOLL v. HART (1890), 2 B. C. R. 32.—CAN.*

b. — Actual consideration—Not *mere legal effect.]—In a bill of sale made under Chattel Securities Acts, 1880, the actual consideration ought to be stated & not its mere legal effect.—Re BLOOMFIELD (1885), 3 N. Z. L. R. C. A. 177.—N.Z.

c. Sufficiency of statement—Grantor taking over indebtedness of third party.]—If a bill of sale shows on its face that the consideration for giving it was that the grantor should take over the business & stock & the indebtedness of a third party who was under obligations to the grantor, it is not necessary that it should further state that such third party was to be released from his debt. DANBY v. AUSTRALIAN FINANCIAL AGENCY & GUARANTEE CO., LTD. (1891), 17 V. L. R. 481. AUS.

d. — Natural love & affection, etc. Prior agreement to take over liability.]—A husband transferred to his wife certain furniture by a deed of gift, which recited the consideration as "natural love & affection, & also for divers other good causes & considerations." It had been previously agreed that in consideration of this transfer the wife should take over a liability of £100 due by the husband:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated as required by Bills of Sale Act, 1891, s. 4. Re HOURIGAN, Ex p. KENNA, [1903] S. R. Q. 117.—AUS.*

e. — Bill to secure past advances.]—Where a bill of sale was given to secure past advances only, it was not necessary under Chattel Securities Act Amendment Act, 1883, s. 4, to set out each advance separately so long as the language of the deed was such as to express that the security was for a past advance.—Re McMASTER, Ex p. MURRAY, ROBERTS & Co. (1887), 5 N. Z. L. R. 444.—N.Z.*

f. — Present & past advances distinguished.]—It was sufficient under Chattel Securities Act, 1883, s. 4, if a bill of sale distinguished the total respective amounts of present & past advances, & it was not necessary to set out how each was made up of document, e.g., a promissory note, which contains terms not allowed by 1882 Act, & the whole of the conditions of the transaction are gathered from the joint effect of the two documents, the bill of sale is void. — SIMPSON v. CHARING CROSS BANK (1886), 34 W. R. 568, D. C.

209. — Providing for compound interest—Avoidance of bill.]—Under 1882 Act, s. 8, a bill of sale is void unless it “truly sets forth the consideration for which it was given,” i.e., it must show, on the face of it, the true agreement between the parties, & must not be dependent for its real effect upon some other instrument.

Where M. agreed in writing to execute in favour of S. certain instruments, including a bill of sale, as securities for a debt, the agreement providing for payment of compound interest, & M. executed a bill of sale, which did not explain the real nature or extent of the agreement, & contained only such part of it as could properly be embodied in a bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale was void.—SHARP v. McHENRY, SHARP v. BROWN (1887), 38 Ch. D. 427; 57 L. J. Ch. 961; 57 L. T. 606; 3 T. L. R. 817.

See, also, No. 280, post.

210. — Smaller present payment—To represent larger future liability.]—The consideration for a bill of sale was stated to be £7,575, thereby admitted by the grantor to be due. At the time the grantor was only indebted to the grantee on two bills of exchange for £8,300 then current:—Held: assuming it was agreed at the time that the £8,300 due in futuro should be taken as between the parties to be represented by £7,575, the bill of sale was void, the consideration for which it was given not being truly stated.—COCHRANE v. MOORE (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 57; 59 L. J. Q. B. 377; 63 L. T. 153; 54 J. P. 804; 38 W. R. 588; 6 T. L. R. 296, C. A.

211. Second bill given—In substitution for invalid bill.]—In Nov., 1887, plffs. gave to defts. a bill of sale on certain scheduled furniture, & on all other chattels & things which might thereafter at any time during the continuance of the security thereby created be substituted therefor, or which might thereafter be brought on the premises. In Feb., 1888, the Ct. of Appeal decided that a bill of sale purporting to assign chattels other than those described in the schedule was void under 1882 Act, & defts. took immediate steps to have their bills of sale put in proper form, & several persons, including plffs., who had given bills of sale in the invalid form were summoned to defts.’ business premises. Plffs. were not informed of the decision of the Ct. of Appeal, but were told that they must renew their bill of sale, which they

g. — Evidence.]—Upon appeal from an order summarily determining, in favour of plff., an interpleader in respect of a horse seized by a sheriff under plff.’s execution, & claimed by the bargainee in the bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale sufficiently expressed the consideration, & upon the evidence on affidavit, the determination should have been in favour of claimant.—IRELAND v. ANDERSON (1911), 29 W. L. R. 329; 20 D. L. R. 961.—CAN.

h. Mortgage to secure against indorsements—Liability extended to renewals & future indorsements—Liability not set out in affidavit.]—In a chattel mtge. to secure plff., the mtgee., against certain notes on which he was an indorser, the notes were set out, & were all payable within the year; but in the recital the mtge. was stated to be executed not only as security against these notes, but also against any note or notes thereafter to be indorsed by plff. for the mtgor.’s accommodation by way of renewal of the said recited note, or otherwise howsoever. The proviso was, for the payment of the said notes, & all & every other note or notes which might thereafter be indorsed by the mtgor. for plff. by way of renewal of the aforesaid note, or otherwise; & the covenant was to pay the said note, & all future & other promissory notes which the said mtgee. should thereafter indorse for the accommodation of the mtgor.:—Held: the mtge. was invalid, in consequence of the affidavit of bona fides not stating the amount of the liability intended to be created & covered; for the covenant showed that it was intended as a security against the notes specified, & any other notes which might be indorsed, & the affidavits stated that it was executed to secure against the payment of such liability.

Another mtge., subsequently given, contained nearly all the notes referred to in the above mtges., while it not only appeared that none of such notes were then in existence, they having all been renewed several times & reduced in amount, but that it also contained a further note which was not indorsed at all:—Held: this mtge. was also bad, as it could not be said to contain a true statement of plff.’s liability. KORON v. PRICE (1877), 27 C. P. 309.—CAN.

k. — Must show indorsements or renewals will fall due within a year.]—A chattel mtge., given to secure the mtgee. against his indorsements for a mtgor., must show on its face that the notes indorsed, or any renewals thereof, will fall due within the year, otherwise the mtge. will be void against creditors or purchasers, but not against the assignee in insolvency. ONTARIO BANK v. WILCOX (1878), 43 U. C. R. 460.—CAN.

l. — Future
The requirements of R. S. O. 1877 (c. 119), s. 6, as to setting forth an agreement in the mtge. apply only to mtges. to secure future advances for the purposes therein mentioned. In the case of a mtge. under the above sect. as security against liabilities incurred by indorsing, or in any other way, all that is necessary is that the liability shall be one not extending for a longer period than one year from the date of the mtge., & shall be sufficiently described or identified therein. The reference to a possible future renewal or extension of liability, which has not been agreed to & which the mtgee. is not bound to grant, does not invalidate the mtge. if in other respects sufficient.—EMBURY v. WEST (1888), 15 A. R. 357.—CAN.

m. — Whether necessary to set out agreement—Amount of liability.]—A mtge. of goods & chattels for securing the mtgee. against the indorsement of promissory notes is void if it does not set forth by recital or otherwise the terms, nature & effect of the agreement between the parties thereto, & the amount of the liability intended to be created, as required by Bills of Sale Act, 1893.—LEVASSEUR v. BEAULIEU (1896), 33 N. B. R. CAN.

212. "Shall truly set forth"—Word "truly" surplusage.]—The lease of a house & the furniture were sold for £600, of which £100 was paid by the purchaser. The remainder was secured by a bill of sale on the furniture which recited the consideration as "£500 now paid":—Held: the insertion of the word "truly" in 1882 Act, s. 8, did not distinguish that sect. from 1878 Act, s. 8, &

after date to C. B., or order, for $1,000. The proviso & covenant were to pay the said note at maturity, & save harmless the said mtgee. against his indorsement thereof. The affidavit of the mtgee. stated that he had indorsed the promissory note in the mtge. named: "that the said mtge. was executed in good faith, & for the express purpose of securing the due payment of the said promissory note, & security & indemnity to me against the said indorsement or any loss thereby, & not for the purpose of protecting the goods & chattels mentioned in the said mtge. against the creditors of the said mtgors., therein named, or preventing the creditors of such mtgors. from obtaining payment of any claim against the said mtgors.":—Held: (1) the agreement was sufficiently set forth in the mtge. & verified in the affidavit; (2) the affidavit was sufficient.—O'DONOHUE v. WILSON (1877), 42 U. C. R. 329.—CAN.

s. ——— Note set out.]—The provisions of Ontario Chattel Mortgage Act requiring the consideration of a mtge. to be expressed therein is satisfied when the mtge. recites that the indorsement of a note is the consideration & then sets out the note. Only the facts need be stated, not their legal effect.—ROBINSON v. MANN (1901), 31 S. C. R. 484.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2. —B.

t. Shall truly set forth—Construction of agreement limiting liability.]—A bill of sale reciting that £4 3s. 7¹/₂d. was then due from the grantor to the grantee, & that the grantor had requested the grantee to join in securing him to certain banks for £86 & £29, & such further or other sums as the grantee might advance to or for the grantor, or the grantee might be obliged to pay in consequence of his having become, or being about to become, or hereafter becoming surety for the grantor, stated that the consideration was £1 3s. 7¹/₂d. then due, & the agreement of the grantee "to undertake or join in certain liabilities" & such further or other sums in which the grantor might become indebted to the grantee: & it was further provided "that the sums to be secured hereby shall not exceed £300, nor shall it be obligatory on the grantee to advance any sum or undertake any liability beyond those already verbally agreed upon & at present existing." On the trial of an interpleader issue the grantee deposed: "The arrangement was I would secure or assist my brother (the grantor) to the extent of £300. It was agreed that I would secure & the consideration was truly stated.—STANFORTH v. CAPON 3), 2 T. L. R. 493, D. C.

213. ———.]—Held: the addition of the word "truly" in 1882 Act, s. 8, was only putting into that sect. what the cts. had said was the meaning of 1878 Act, s. 8. Semble: cases decided on the former Act were authorities on the latter Act.—Re HOCKADAY, Ex p. NELSON (1887), 35 W. R. 264; 3 T. L. R. 285; 4 Morr. 12, C. A. Annotation:—Mentd. Re Tweedale, Ex p. Tweedale, [1892] 2 Q. B. 216.

214. Small inaccuracy—Clerical error.]—The original of a bill of sale stated in the recital the sum for which it was given as being £100, but by mistake, in the operative part of the instrument, the sum was described as £1,000. In all other parts of the bill the sum was correctly described as £100:—Held: this was a clerical error which might be amended, & did not invalidate the bill of sale.—ELLIOTT v. FREEMAN (1863), 1 New Rep. 328; 7 L. T. 715.

make advances to my brother: the limit to be £300." It was objected that the agreement so proved was that the grantee was bound to advance £300 while the bill of sale only stated that this was the limit of the advance:—Held: the substance of the consideration was truly stated, within 1879 Act, s. 8.—QUANE v. QUANE (1881), 15 L. L. T. 98.—IR.

a. ——— Strict accuracy.]—A bill of sale is void under (Chattel Securities Act 1880 Amendment Act, 1883, unless it sets out the consideration with strict accuracy.—REID v. McCALLUM'S OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE (1886), 5 N. Z. L. R. C. A. 68.—N.Z.

b. ——— Substantial accuracy.]—The full & true consideration for which a bill of sale is given must be set out in it, with substantial accuracy, otherwise the bill is void.

G. being indebted to B., gave his note for the amount which B. discounted at a bank. As security G. executed a chattel mtge. to the bank. At maturity B. took up the note. Afterwards he procured from G. a bill of sale of the goods. The bill recited the mtge. & an agreement to sell the goods for $100 over the mtge. The expressed consideration was the premises & $100. The $100 was not paid or intended to be paid:—Held: although the debt upon the notes might have been a sufficient consideration for the bill of sale, yet, as that was not the consideration stated, the bill was void.—BATHGATE v. MERCHANTS BANK (1888), 5 Man. L. R. 210.—CAN.

c. ——— Notes taken from mortgage—Transferred by mortgagee prior to execution of mortgage.]—A chattel mtge. was expressed to secure payment of $870.34 the amount owing by the mtgor. to the mtgee. A large portion of it, however, was represented by notes which the mtgee. had, previous to the date of the mtge., transferred to a bank as collateral security for his own debt:—Held: the mtge. was not upon that account invalid.—STEPHENS v. McARTHUR (1890), 6 Man. L. R. 496; revid. 19 S. C. R. 446.—CAN.

d. ——— Mortgage to secure liability on acceptances.]—In a chattel mtge. given & expressed to be given to secure a liability on notes the consideration is truly expressed & Bills of Sale Ordinance, s. 5, does not apply to the transaction.—ONTARIO & WESTERN LUMBER CO., LTD. v. COTE (1897), 3 Terr. L. R. 454.—CAN.

214 i. Small inaccuracy.]—A small inaccuracy in stating the consideration will not avoid a bill of sale.—WALLEY v. HARRIS (1892), 3 Terr. L. R. 161.—CAN.

214 ii. ———.]—Where upon the evidence it was shown that a fair price for the goods & an additional lowest in two further timber contracts was paid:—Held: an inaccuracy of statement was no indication of fraud; no sufficient reason for invalidating the bill of sale.—CLIFF PAPER CO. v. AUGER (1917), 13 O. W. N. 50.—CAN.

214 iii. ——— Clerical error.]—A bill of sale recited the sale to be for $820 & other valuable considerations, & went on to say that it was in consideration of the said valuable considerations & of the sum of $820. The affidavit of bona fides stated that the consideration was $850, & it was admitted that the figures "820" were inserted in the bill of sale by a clerical error:—Held: the bill of sale was not one in which the consideration was not truly expressed within Bills of Sale Act, s. 13.—TORONTO TYPE FOUNDRY CO. v. RIDDETT (1913), 23 W. L. R. 951; 10 D. L. R. 633; 4 W. W. R. 292; 6 Sask. L. R. 212.—CAN.

214 iv. ——— Omission in recital.]—The mtge. to plff. was first drawn to secure $500, but before execution it was changed to $600 in every place except the recital, where the word "five" was inadvertently left:—Held: there was no such untrue statement in the affidavit attached to the mtge. as would invalidate it, the evidence affording satisfactory explanation of the mistake in the recital.—FRASER v. MACPHERSON (1898), 34 N. B. R. 417.—CAN.

214 v. ——— Omission to fill in blanks in printed form.]—Lien-notes given by plff. to deft. G., the agent of deft. co., for the price of goods sold to plff., were indorsed by G. to the co., & after they were overdue, plff. executed a document purporting to be a chattel mtge. upon some wheat in shock to secure the amount due upon the notes. The document was a printed form of chattel mtge., containing blanks to be filled in, but only some of the blanks were filled in, namely, those left for the names of the mtgor. & mtgee., the consideration for executing the document, $312.98, & the property intended to be mortgaged. The form contained what was intended to be a redemption clause, but the amount to be paid or when it was to be paid was not filled in. It appeared from extrinsic evidence that the $312.98 was the amount due upon the notes:—Held: the instrument was a mtge. to secure $312.98, payable on demand, with interest at 5 per cent.—v. PARIS PLOW CO. (1910), 14 W. L. R. 680.—CAN.

215. — Misstatement as to amount due.—Bill good to extent of sum really due.]—The insertion in a bill of sale of a sum larger than that really due, does not invalidate the security, provided it be done without fraud, & with the intention that the security shall be made available only to the extent of the sum actually due.—BIDDULPH v. GOULD (1863), 2 New Rep. 420; 11 W. R. 882.

216. — False statement.]—A false statement of the amount of consideration does not avoid a bill of sale, if no fraud in fact be shown.—KEVAN v. MAWSON (1871), 24 L. T. 395; 35 J. P. 311; 19 W. R. 1145.

217. — The “consideration” mentioned by 1878 Act, s. 8 is that which the grantor receives for giving the bill of sale, not necessarily the amount secured by it.

A bill of sale was given to secure, not only a present advance, but also the amount for the time being due to the grantee upon a mtge. including future advances which had been previously given to him by the grantor. The recitals in the bill of sale in stating the amount then due on the mtge. omitted a sum which had been advanced on a bill then current:—Held: that misstatement formed no objection under s. 8 to the validity of the bill of sale.—Re ROGERS, Ex p. CHALLINOR (1880), 16 Ch. D. 260; 51 L. J. Ch. 476, n.; 44 L. T. 122; 29 W. R. 205, C. A.

218. — A bill of sale set forth part of the consideration for which it was given as £121 due for goods supplied to grantor. The evidence showed that £115 was actually due when the deed was executed:—Held: not a misstatement within 1878 Act. Semble: an honest inaccuracy will not render a bill of sale invalid where there is substantial accuracy & a truthful deed.—Ex p. PROBYN (1880), 21 Sol. Jo. 341, C. A.

219. — No particulars of old debt.]—A. lent £150 to B. & later, upon receiving a bill of sale, a further £50. The bill of sale stated the consideration to be an old debt of £150, a present advance of £50 & also 5s. It was contended for debt. that the description did not comply with 1878 Act, as it did not give any particulars of the old debt, & as the 5s. had not been paid as stated:—Held: the consideration was correctly described as an old debt, & there was no substance in the objection with respect to the 5s.—CORKHILL v. LAMBERT (1880), 70 L. T. Jo. 46.

220. — Amount due on account stated—No money passing.]—A. being indebted to B., gave him a bill of sale to secure £7,350, which, on stating the accounts between them, was found to be the balance due, & by such bill of sale that sum was to be paid by A. with interest on demand in writing. The bill of sale recited that B. had agreed to lend A. £7,350, & the consideration for such bill of sale was stated therein to be £7,350, then paid by B.

215 i. — Misstatement as to due.]—A misstatement of the consideration in a chattel mtge. is not, in the absence of bad faith, ipso facto a fatal defect. It is merely an element to be considered in dealing with the question of bona fides.—MARTINSON v. PATTERSON (1892), 19 A. R. 188.—CAN.

215 ii. — Question of fact.]—The consideration in the mtge. was stated as $1,148; it appeared in evidence that the amount actually owing was $1,030.80:—Held: the erroneous statement of the consideration did not avoid the mtge., as a matter of law, but was a circumstance for the jury to consider when deciding the issue of fraud.—HAMILTON v. HARRISON (1881), 46 U. C. R. 127.—CAN.

215 iii. — Discounting of draft drawn by mortgagee.]—Part of the consideration of the mtge. was covered by a draft drawn by mtgee., a merchant, in the course of business, on the mtgor., a customer, & discounted at the bank:—Held: the amount of the indebtedness in the mtge. could not be said to be untrue. HERBURN v. PARK (1884), 6 O. R. 172.—CAN.

221. — Motive of grantor.]—A bill of sale dated Jan. 17, 1880, recited that the mtgor. owed the mtgee. £1,444 14s. 3d., & that the mtgor. had agreed to execute the mtge. deed in order to induce the mtgee. not to institute proceedings against him. The facts were, that on Jan. 13, 1880, the mtgee. drew a cheque for £1,444 14s. 3d., & gave it to the mtgor., but, upon hearing rumours about the mtgor., he stopped payment of the cheque. On Jan. 16 the stop was withdrawn by the mtgee. upon the understanding that good security should be given, & the cheque was paid a few hours prior to the execution of the bill of sale. No proceedings had been threatened by the mtgee.:—Held: the consideration was properly set forth.

A small inaccuracy in the statement of consideration is not sufficient to avoid a bill of sale (JESSEL, M.R.).—Re FOTHERGILL, Ex p. WINTER (1881), 44 L. T. 323; 29 W. R. 575, C. A.

222. — Grammatical error.]—A bill of sale, after reciting that the mtgor. had applied to the mtgees. to advance him £70, less £16 the agreed interest & expenses, to be deducted & retained as thereafter expressed, witnessed that, in consideration of £54 being the £70 less the £16 deducted & retained therefrom, & being the agreed interest & expenses in consideration of which the loan was granted, & which £54 & £16 conjointly were, thereafter called the loan, by the mtgees. paid to the mtgor. at or before the execution thereof, the receipt whereof the mtgor. thereby acknowledged, etc. It was proved or admitted that £54 only had been paid by the mtgees. to the mtgor. at the execution of the bill of sale:—Held: the consideration was truly set forth.—COLLIS v. TUSON (1882), 46 L. T. 387, D. C.

223. — Promissory notes misdescribed as bills of exchange—Covenant omitted.]—A bill of sale recited that two of the grantees were liable as sureties for the grantor on a bill of exchange for £60, which had been discounted at a bank, that two of the grantees & O. were liable as sureties for the grantor on a bill of exchange for £100, which had been discounted at the same bank, that the grantor was unable to meet the bills, & was also in urgent need for a further £45, & had applied to the grantees to take up the two bills of exchange & make him a further advance of £45, which they had agreed to do in consideration of the grantor entering into the bill of sale, “for the purpose of securing repayment to them with interest as well of the £15, as also of the two bills of £60 & £100 respectively with all expenses due thereon." The bill of sale then witnessed that "in consideration of £15 now paid to the" grantor "by the grantees, & of the covenant on the part of the grantees hereinafter contained," the grantor covenanted with the grantees on demand to "pay to the grantees all & every the several sums of £60, £100, & £15, & all costs, charges, & expenses," & meanwhile to pay interest thereon. The instruments described as bills of exchange were promissory notes, & had not been discounted:—Held: the consideration was stated with sufficient accuracy, & "was truly set forth" within 1882 Act, s. 8, notwithstanding the misdescription of the promissory notes, & the agreement to take up the bills recited in the deed was in effect a covenant to take up the promissory notes.—ROBERTS v. ROBERTS (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 794; 53 L. J. Q. B. 313; 50 L. T. 351; 32 W. R. 605, C. A.

224. — £32 "or thereabouts."]—By a bill of sale expressed to be given in consideration of the grantee thereof having at the request of the grantor become guarantee, & signed a promissory note for payment of £15 by the grantor, of which £32, or thereabouts, was then owing, the grantor assigned to the grantee certain chattels, described in a schedule, by way of security for any money which the grantee might be called upon to pay in respect of such guarantee, & interest thereon at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, & the grantor agreed that he would pay to the grantee any sums as aforesaid, together with interest then due, by

h. — £10,000 & upwards.] The consideration in the mtge. being stated at £10,000 & upwards:—Held: good, the amount being certain as to £10,000, & it not being shown that there were more goods than would satisfy that amount.—McGEE v. SMITH (1859), 9 C. P. 89.—CAN.

k. — Present debt payable at future day.] The mtge. showed the debt in the proviso as only becoming due & payable at a future day, but the consideration was stated to be money acknowledged to be paid for the transfer of the property, & the evidence showed it was given to secure an overdue debt:—Held: the mtge. could be upheld, regarding it as given for a present debt to be paid at a future day.—FARLINGER v. WILLIAMS (1892), 93 T. Jo. D. C.

226. — Goods delivered—Part of goods not delivered.]—Part of the consideration of a bill of sale was stated to be a debt of £10 the value of goods sold & delivered to the grantor to enable him to carry on his business. Part of the goods were not in fact delivered until some time after the execution of the bill:—Held: the language of the bill was consistent with the fact that the goods had not all been delivered, & the consideration was truly stated.—GRIFFITH v. C. What may be described as Consideration.

(a) Present Payment.

227. True statement—Past debt of grantor.]—By a bill of sale in consideration of £200 then due, & "in consideration of £50 now advanced," debtor liabilities.] A chattel mtge. under C. S. U. C., c. 45, s. 5, may be given as security against past or concurrent, but not against future, indorsements or liabilities. If it did not apply to past liabilities, then a mtge. to secure against them would not be avoided by the Act for want of compliance with its provisions. MATHERS v. LYNCH (1869), 28 U. C. R. 354. CAN.

t. Mortgage to secure present payment & future indebtedness—Not void in toto.]—A chattel mtge. was given to secure (1) payment of an existing debt, & (2) future indebtedness: Held: the mtge. was valid as to (1) but invalid as to (2). HUNT v. LONG (1916), 9 O. W. N. 421. CAN.

u. Past advances—Moneys never received.]—Bankruptcy Act, 1892, s. 79 (2), renders null & void a contract to pay moneys which have never been received, as well as a contract to pay past advances.—Re Gore (1895), 13 N. Z. L. R. 710.—N.Z.

v. Debt secured not existing—Verbal promise by grantee to make future advances.]—Under 20 Vict. c. 3, a mtge. cannot be supported which is given in great part for a debt not existing, but for advances which the mtgee. has merely promised verbally to make, & had not made when the mtge. was executed or the affidavit for registry made.—ROBINSON v. PATERSON (1859), 18 U. C. R. 55.—CAN.

227 i. True statement—Past debt of grantor.]—A bill of sale represented the £100 consideration as a pre-existing debt. It appeared that £98 had been owing from the grantor to the grantee, & that the attesting solr. required the balance of £2 to be paid over before execution. A payment was accordingly made, but the sum actually assigned to his brother his stock-in-trade & other effects. Of the £50 expressed to be then advanced, £5 had been advanced at the request of debtor the previous day, so that on execution of the deed, only £45 was actually paid over:—Held: the consideration was truly set forth, since the present advance was in fact £50, though £5 of it was paid on the previous day.—Re SMITH, Ex p. SMITH (1880), 15 L. J. N. C. 39.

228. ———.]—A bill of sale was expressed to be in consideration of the payment of £81 18s. by the grantee to the grantor, & in further consideration of the payment of £16 3s. by the grantee to the sheriff of Surrey for & at the request of the grantor. The former sum was a past payment & the latter sum was a present payment made in discharging an execution levied on the goods of the grantor:—Held: a sufficient setting forth of the consideration.—*CARRARD v. The two transactions of July 7 & 11 may properly be considered as one transaction, & the statement, that the £400 was advanced "on or immediately before the execution of these presents," is a truthful statement of what really took place, there being only that short interval of four days between the two transactions, so that really the transactions which led up to the bill of sale may be considered as begun by the undertaking given on July 7, & that would be sufficient to prevent our setting the deed aside (COTTON, L.J.).—*Re CHAPMAN, Ex p. 231. ———.]—A. made a bonâ fide advance to B. of £220 which was secured by a bill of sale. After the day for repayment was past, the bill was found to be invalid, thereupon a new bill was by the agreement of all parties drawn up according to the form given in 1882 Act; it a will, to secure an advance of £800 then made to him by B. with interest thereon, the principal money being made repayable under each instrument on a certain date in 1911. The bill of sale contained a provision that in case any caveat should be lodged against the filing thereof, it should be lawful for B. to sell the chattels, & that whenever a right should arise under the bill of sale to sell the chattels the whole of the principal & other moneys secured & for the time being due & payable under the bill of sale should immediately become "due, payable & recoverable." Caveats were lodged against the filing of this bill of sale & it was not filed & became void. Three months afterwards A. gave B. a second bill of sale which recited that A. was indebted to B. in £800, & that "the same is now due & owing," & that A. had requested B. not to press for the immediate payment thereof, which request B. had agreed to grant upon A. giving the bill of sale. The consideration was stated as "the sum of £800 now due & owing" by A. to B., & the time for repayment of the principal was the same date in 1911 as under the first bill of sale & the mtge. In the notice of intention to file the second bill of sale the consideration was stated under the sub-heading "past debt" as being "the sum of £800 now due & owing by A. to B., & in consideration of B. agreeing not to press for the immediate payment thereof":—the consideration was sufficiently stated in the notice & in the second bill of sale.—*O'CONNOR v. d. ——— Mortgage to secure overdue—The consideration in a stock mtge. was found to be "a forbearance to sue on certain promissory notes." The mtge. was given to secure these promissory notes which were overdue, & which amounted to the sum of £1,013 7s. 8d. The deed purported to be given in consideration of a sum of money, mentioning the above amount, "now due & owing," & further advances, & the sum was made payable on demand. The deed was registered, & in the memorial so registered there appeared under the column headed "consideration" the words "one thousand & thirteen pounds seven shillings & eightpence & further advances":—Held: the registration was sufficient.—*VICTORIAN FARMERS LOAN CO. v. e. ——— Present advance—Not merely to secure future liability.—F. owed plff. & M. $200 & $100 respectively for goods supplied by them, & had given a chattel mtge. on his property to Flint for $600. Being pressed by Flint, he applied to plff. & M. for the money, offering them a chattel mtge. therefor as well as for what he already owed them, which they agreed to, but not having the money at the time they borrowed it from J., giving him their note indorsed by F., & Flint was paid off. F. gave plff. & M. the mtge. in question, the expressed consideration being $900. The affidavit of bonâ fides made by plff. stated that the mtgor. was justly & truly indebted to him & M. as the mtgees. therein named in the sum of $900 mentioned therein, etc.; on renewal of the mtge. the affidavit was made by plff. in like manner. When all the £600 had been paid, S. gave a bill of sale to T., one of the six, to secure the loan of £600. The consideration was stated to be £600 now paid by T. T. subsequently gave a memorandum to the other members of the syndicate acknowledging that he held the bill of sale as trustee for them:—Held: T. was in the position of a collector, & acted as agent responsible to see that the money was duly applied, & where a bill of sale was given to a person in that position it was true to state the consideration therein as now paid by the collector or agent.—*Re SMITH, Ex p. When the mtge. was executed a cheque for the fresh advance was given to the customer, who, pursuant to a subsequent arrangement, did not use it, but afterwards drew at intervals on the firm, until the amount of the cheque was paid, when it was returned:—Held: the mtge. was valid as it was a mtge. to secure a present actual advance, & not future advances so as to come within s. 6 of the Act.—*ROSS v. g. Untrue statement—Grantor's account guaranteed at bank—Overdraft paid by grantee.]—M., having agreed to lend to B. the sum of £500 upon the security of certain chattels, a bill of sale was executed by B. reciting the agreement, but containing nothing as to the consideration for which it was given. B. signed the receipt endorsed on the bill of sale for £500. As a matter of fact M. did not lend the money, but guaranteed B.'s account at a bank to the extent of £500, all of which sum was drawn out by B., & was eventually paid off by M.:—Held: the consideration was not truly set forth, & the bill of sale was of no effect

234. Untrue statement—Grantor's rent paid by grantee—Rent not due at execution of bill.]

A bill of sale, dated Mar. 23, was expressed to be made "in consideration of £50 by the assignee paid to the assignor at or before the execution hereof." In fact only £21 10s. was paid to the assignor on the execution of the deed, £3 10s. being retained by the assignee for the expenses of the deed, & £25 being also retained & paid by him on Mar. 30 to the landlord of the assignor's house, in which the chattels comprised in the deed were, for two quarters' rent for the quarters ending respectively Mar. 25 & June 24. The rent of the house was payable quarterly, but there was nothing to show that it was payable in advance. The £3 10s. & the £25 were retained upon the written request of the assignor dated the day of the execution of the deed:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated in the deed, because, even if the £25 were taken to have been paid to the assignor, it was not paid "at or before the execution" of the deed.—*Re SPINDLER, Ex p. now paid to the said B. by the said M., assigned to M. certain goods & chattels therein specifically described, by way of security for the payment of the sum of £50 & interest thereon. No sum of £50 was at the execution of the bill of sale paid to B.; the only money which passed was a sum of £10 solrs. costs, but there had been previous money transactions between the parties, in which B. was indebted to M. for over £50:—Held: the bill of sale was entirely void, as the consideration was not "truly set forth," within 1883 Act, s. 8.—*WHELAN v. The full amount of £1,500 was subsequently drawn:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated, & the bill of sale was void as to the chattels comprised therein, which were liable to be taken in execution by debt.—*QUEENSLAND NATIONAL BANK, LTD. v. h. — Grantee taking over grantor's debt to third party—No money actually advanced.]—H., being indebted to a benefit society, agreed to give S., the president of the society, a bill of sale over certain chattels for a sum equal to the amount of the indebtedness, on consideration that proceedings were not taken against him, S. taking over the liability of H. to the society. No money was actually advanced by S. to H., nor had S. paid any part of the sum due to the society. In the bill of sale from H. to S. the consideration was described as money now lent by S. to H.:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated on the bill of sale, which was void as against the execution creditors.—SHIOSAKI MANKICHI v. STREETER & Co. (1907), 9 W. A. L. R. 205.—AUS.

k. — Post-due debt.]—The consideration of a bill of sale was stated in the bill to be certain moneys "this day paid," whereas in fact no moneys then passed, the consideration really being a post-due debt:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated, & the bill of sale was void.—*YIT TIE CHEE v. to creditors of the grantor, which were intended to secure a composition made by the grantor with his creditors. The bills were accepted by the grantee, amounting to £126, being part of the alleged consideration. There was an arrangement between the parties that the grantee should be the person to pay the bills when due, & in point of fact the bills were afterwards duly paid by the grantee as they became due. The transaction was a bona fide one, & there was no intention to mislead. At the time of the execution of the bill of sale the bills were not then due, & the grantee had not paid them:—Held: the £126, the amount of the bills accepted by the grantee of the bill of sale, was not “then owing” by the grantor to the grantee, & the consideration was not truly set forth.—MAYER & FULDA v. MINDLEVICH (1888), 59 L. T. 400, D. C.

237. — Payment delayed after execution of bill.—A bill of sale set forth the consideration for which it was given as “money now paid,” but, in fact, no money was actually paid at the time of the execution of the bill of sale, nor until three days afterwards. On the fourth day afterwards, the bill was duly registered:—Held: the bill did not truly set forth the consideration for which it was given.—CRIDDLE v. SCOTT (1895), 59 J. P. 119; 11 T. L. R. 222, D. C.

238. Bills of exchange given to grantee—Payable after execution of bill.—The consideration for a bill of sale granted by one who had become bkpt. was stated to have been £300 paid to bkpt. In fact £100 was paid by cheque & two bills of exchange were given for £100 each, payable twelve months after date:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated.—Re MOORE, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER (1897), 4 Mans. 51.

239. — Present payment & future liability.—A bill of sale was given in consideration of 12s. “now owing” under a promissory note, & of £16 8s. paid at the time of making the bill of sale. The promissory note had been previously authority to re-advance the money upon security. F. (a brother of the partners) had about the same time made arrangements to advance £200 to the firm. The following day a bill of sale was executed by the partners in favour of Mrs. C. & F. to secure £100, which amount was recited as “well & truly paid, lent & advanced,” in equal sums of £200 each, “at or immediately before the execution of these presents.” Upon the day of execution F. gave his cheque for £200 to the same solrs., who one day later drew their own cheque for £400 & paid it to the credit of the partnership banking account:—Held: the consideration being as to £200 a past debt & not a present advance was not truly set forth & the bill of sale was void as to the chattels comprised in it.—Re COLLINS BROTHERS, Ex p. WHITE, [1903] S. R. Q. 47.—AUS.

235 v. ——Where the consideration for a bill of sale was stated to be a present payment of $1,000 but where it was actually a past indebtedness:—Held: the consideration was not truly set out therein, under Bills of Sale Ordinance, s. 11, & the instrument was void.—*SASKATCHEWAN LUMBER CO. v. given by the grantors of the bill of sale to the grantee, & by it the grantors of the bill of sale promised to pay to the grantee £14 3s. 4d. by twenty-five weekly instalments. The actual consideration for the promissory note was £10. At the time the bill of sale was given the first instalment under the promissory note had been duly paid, but the other instalments had not become due & payable:—Held: the consideration was not truly set forth.—DARLOW v. BLAND, [1897] 1 Q. B. 125; 66 L. J. Q. B. 157; 75 L. T. 537; 45 W. R. 177; 13 T. L. R. 108, C. A.

Of the £90 £10 had been advanced in various amounts before the date of the bill of sale, & £50 was advanced at the time the bill of sale was made:—Held: as £50, part of the £90 declared to be then “due & owing” was not then due & owing, the consideration was not truly stated, & the bill of sale was void upon that ground.—DAVIES v. JENKINS, [1900] 1 Q. B. 133; 69 L. J. Q. B. 187; 81 L. T. 788; 48 W. R. 286; 44 Sol. Jo. 103; 7 Mans. 149, D. C.

(b) Payment to Grantor.

241. Debt of dissolved partnership—& new advance to remaining partner.—A bill of sale, dated Jan. 10, 1879, recited that in the month of June preceding the mtgor. applied to the mtgee. for a loan of £340, which the mtgee. consented to make on the mtgor. agreeing to execute a bill of sale, when called upon to do so, of certain chattels, & that in the month of July following the mtgor. applied for a further loan of £60, which the mtgee. agreed to make, on the condition that the advance should be secured in like manner. The facts were, —Held: the fact that as to part of the consideration for their mtge. debts, had not made an actual advance, but were merely liable on promissory notes, did not invalidate the mtge., R. S. O. 1877 (c. 119), not requiring, as does the corresponding English Act, that the consideration should be truly expressed.—CRAIB (1883), 4 O. R. 696.—CAN.

239 ii. ——A mtge. was given for $1,070. It afterwards appeared that the amount was made up in part of a note made & given by the mtgee. to the mtgor. at the time of the execution of the mtge., & not paid for some months afterwards:—Held: in the absence of fraud the mtge. was valid.—WALKER v. NILES (1871), 18 Gr. 210.—CAN.

239 iii. ——A chattel mtge. was given for an alleged consideration of $1,500, the real consideration being $1,203 in promissory notes, & an agreement on the part of the grantees to supply goods for the balance. The affidavit set out that the sum of $1,203 was justly & honestly due, & “as regards the balance the parties have agreed to supply goods for the full value thereof, etc.”:—Held: as the mtge. did not set forth the terms, nature & effect of the agreement for future advances, & as the affidavit did not state that the amount set forth as the consideration was justly & honestly due, nor that the mtge. truly set forth the agreement entered into, the filing & registration of the instrument was incomplete & defective, & could not operate to prevent the sheriff from seizing the goods under execution.—LEVY v. LOGAN (1892), 24 N. S. R. 412.—CAN.

239 iv. ——A bill of sale executed by the members of a co-partnership purported to be made in consideration of £300 already advanced through a cash credit bond for £400, & of a present cash advance of £300. The first sum of £300 consisted of two sums of £150 each, one of which was a private debt due from one of the mtgors. to one of the mtgees. The second sum of £300 was not advanced in cash, but by acceptances. It was contended that the deed was fraudulent, because it represented part of the consideration as a present cash advance, whereas acceptances only had been given:—Held: the misrepresentation as to the nature of the consideration, rendered the transaction suspicious; but if the mtgors. chose to treat the acceptance as cash the objection could not be taken.—MORRIS v. McNEIL, O. B. & F. 55.—N.Z.

240 i. — Past debt & present advance.—Where the consideration was expressed to be a present payment but it was really only partly cash & partly an old debt:—Held: the bill of sale was void, under Bills of Sale Ordinance, s. 11.—HENNENFEST v. MALCHOSE (1906), 3 W. L. R. 171.—CAN.

240 ii. ——A mtge. was taken to secure an old debt of $600, & a fresh sale of goods for $100, & the consideration was stated in the mtge. to be $700 “paid at or before the sealing & delivery of these presents”:—Held: the consideration was not truly expressed in either the mtge. or the affidavit of bona fides.—*AYERILL v. that £73 on Mar. 3, 1878, £60 on Apr. 6 or 7, 1878, & £107 on Apr. 26 or 27, 1878, were severally advanced by the mtgee. to a partnership firm, consisting of the mtgor. & another person. On June 8, 1878, the partnership was dissolved, the mtgor. taking over the assets, & undertaking in an informal way to indemnify his late co-partner against the debts of the partnership, of which the above £240 remained one. On June 14, 1878, the mtgee. advanced £100, & on July 16 he advanced the remaining £60 to the mtgor. alone:—Held: the consideration for which the bill of sale was given was not set forth therein sufficiently to satisfy 1878 Act.—*Re THREAPPLETON, Ex p. 242. Partial retention to meet liability of grantor—For expenses of grantee & to third parties.]—The consideration for a bill of sale was stated to be “£182 3s. now paid by the grantee to the grantor.” That sum was, at the request of the grantor, in fact paid as follows: £8 3s. 3d. & £103 17s. 5d. to discharge two executions against the grantor’s goods, £25 0s. 9d. to a solr., who attested the execution of the bill of sale, for money lent & for costs due to him from the grantor, & the balance, £45 1s. 7d., in cash to the grantor:—Held: in the absence of any suggestion of fraud, a sufficient setting forth of the consideration.—HAMLIN v. BETTELEY (1880), 5 C. P. D. 327; 49 L. J. Q. B. 465; 42 L. T. 373; 11 J. P. 111; 28 W. R. 956, D. C.

243. ———.]—The consideration of a bill of sale was paid in two cheques. By arrangement one of them was applied in payment of a previous charge to a third person, & a part of the other was paid by the grantor to the solr. of the grantee:—Held: the consideration was truly stated.—FURBER v. ABREY (1883), Cab. & El. 186.

244. ——— Effect of receipt clause.]—In the operative part of a bill of sale it was expressed to be made in consideration of £120 advanced upon its execution by the grantee to the grantor. In fact, only £90 was paid to the grantor, £30 being retained by the grantee for “interest & expenses.” At the foot of the deed, immediately after the attestation clause, there was a receipt, signed by the grantor, which stated that the £90, “together with the agreed sum of £30 for interest & expenses,” made the £120, “the consideration money within expressed to be paid”:—Held: the receipt was not part of the deed, & the deed did not set forth the consideration.—*Re PARKER, Ex p. 245. ——— Including auctioneer’s fee for valuing property.]—A bill of sale is not vitiated under 1878 Act, s. 8, because a part of the sum stated in it as the consideration is retained by the grantee to pay the solr.’s costs of preparing the deed & a further agreed sum for costs previously incurred, & the fee of an auctioneer for valuing the property with a view to the making of the loan.—*Re ROGERS, Ex p. 246. ——— & commission on loan.]—In a bill of sale the consideration was stated to be “£700, now in hand, paid.” On the making of the bill of sale the grantee gave the grantor two cheques amounting to £700, & under a previous arrangement between them, the cheques were cashed, & out of the proceeds £7 10s. cash, together with a promissory note for £10, was paid to the grantee for “commission on the loan & expenses”:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated.—HAMILTON v. CHAINE (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 319; 50 L. J. Q. B. 456; 44 L. T. 764; 29 W. R. 676, C. A. Annotations:—Refd. Re Spindler, Ex p. Rolph (1881), 19 Ch. D. 98; *Parsons v. 248. ——— Solicitor acting for both parties.]—A bill of sale in its operative part was stated to be given “in consideration of £10 now paid by H. to C.” In the preparation of the bill of sale D. acted as solr. for both H. & C., & on the execution of the deed retained with C.’s consent, £9 out of the £10 in payment of his bill of costs in the matter, & only handed C. the balance of £1:—Held: in the circumstances, the consideration was truly stated, for, on the execution of the deed, D. no longer held the money as agent for H. or had any duty to perform towards him, but held the money as C.’s agent & could with C.’s consent retain the amount of his bill of costs.—Re CANN, Ex p. HUNT & Co. (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 36.

249. ———.]—The consideration for a bill of sale was stated to be the payment of a sum of money by the grantee to the grantor. Part only of such sum was in fact paid over, the remainder being retained by the grantee, by agreement with the grantor, in satisfaction (inter alia) of an agreed sum for expenses of the transaction:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated.—*RICHARDSON v. The consideration was stated as £114 paid to the grantor, & no mention was made of the agreement to pay the costs:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated.—COHEN v. HIGGINS, JONES v. 251. ——— On bills of exchange given to grantee.]—The consideration in a bill of sale was stated to be £2,050. On the execution of the bill the grantor returned £550 to the grantee to pay off his promissory notes & a bill of exchange, which he had previously given for advances:—Held: the consideration was sufficiently stated.—*Re HAYNES, Ex p. When a man borrows money he generally does so for the purpose of paying his debts, at any rate he ought to employ it in paying them, & if by his direction the money stated as the consideration is applied by the lender in the honest discharge of the borrower's debts, there is no reason for saying that that is not a payment of the money to him—that was the principle of our decision in *Ex p. 252. ——— For rent not then due.]—A bill of sale of chattels dated Mar. 23, was expressed to be made "in consideration of £50 by the assignee paid to the assignor at or before the execution hereof." In fact £25 was retained & paid by the assignee on Mar. 30 to the landlord of the assignor's house, in which the chattels comprised in the deed were, for two quarters' rent for the quarters ending respectively Mar. 25 & June 24. The rent of the house was payable quarterly, but there was nothing to show that it was payable in advance. The £25 was retained upon the written request of the assignor dated the day of the execution of the deed:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated, because the £25 was not paid to the assignor, but only agreed to be paid on his behalf.—*Re SPINDLER, Ex p. In fact a cheque for £30 was handed to, & indorsed by, her, & was then cashed by the grantee's agent, who, as a condition of making the loan out of the proceeds, paid £25 15s. for the rent & costs of the distress & gave the balance to the grantor:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated.—BISHOP v. CONSOLIDATED CREDIT CORPN. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 378, D. C.

254. ——— For balance of purchase-money then due.]—A mtge. of a leasehold brewery & some chattels was stated to be made in consideration of £2,000 paid by the grantee to the grantor "immediately before the execution of these presents." No money was in fact paid by the grantee to the grantor, but the £2,000 was the balance due by the grantor to the grantee in respect of the purchase-money of the brewery, which had been assigned by the grantee to the grantor, in consideration of £2,500, by a deed executed immediately before the mtge. Of that sum only £500 was paid by the grantor, it being agreed that the balance of £2,000 should be secured by the mtge.:—Held: the consideration was truly stated in the mtge. deed, so as to satisfy 1878 Act, s. 8.—*Re ROPER, Ex p. On July 5 A. executed another bill of sale to B., in consideration of a further loan of £35 to secure that amount & a further sum of £10 for bonus & interest, & a cheque for £35 was drawn by B., cashed by a clerk, & after deducting £17 which was owing on the first bill but was not then payable, together with 5s. for stamps from the £35, the balance of £17 15s. was received by A.:—Held: £17 15s. being all that A. actually obtained upon the second bill of sale, the consideration was not truly stated.—*Re GORDON, Ex p. 256. ———.]—Pltf. in 1914 borrowed on a bill of sale from defts. £400, repayable by instalments, of which £325 was still unpaid. In 1915 she borrowed on a fresh bill of sale from defts. £450, of which by agreement £100 was paid to one of her creditors, £25 to herself, & the remainder was retained to meet the £325. That agreement was carried out in such a way that a question arose whether in fact the £450 was at any time at her disposal. The consideration was stated in the second bill of sale to be "£450 by the co. now paid." Pltf. also signed a receipt as follows: "I acknowledge to have received from you this day £450 free from all deductions on a bill of sale & that I have been to the bank & cashed the cheque myself":—Held: as the £325 was not actually due, it could not be treated as paid, & the consideration for the bill of sale was not truly set forth therein.

Where part of the money lent is retained by the lender it will not be treated as paid to the borrower unless it is retained to pay a debt which is actually due.—PARSONS v. EQUITABLE INVESTMENT CO., —Held: the solr. was the agent of the borrower for making such payments, & the consideration for the bill of sale truly stated.—TAYLOR v. PYNE (1889), 7 N. Z. L. R. 555.—N.Z.

257. — On prior bill of sale then due.]—In Jan., 1889, H., being indebted to pltf. upon a bill of sale, & being desirous of obtaining a further advance of £50, it was arranged that pltf. should take a second bill of sale upon the same goods for £290, & should advance the £50 to H., upon the understanding that H. should pay to pltf. £235, the agreed amount of the previous debt. H. executed a bill of sale, expressed to be in consideration of £290, which sum was paid to him by two cheques, & two days later he paid back to pltf. the £235:—Held: the consideration was truly stated.—THOMAS v. SEARLES, [1891] 2 Q. B. 408; 60 L. J. Q. B. 722; 65 L. T. 39; 39 W. R. 692; 7 T. L. R. 606, C. A.

The cheque was cashed & the proceeds were received by the grantor, who then returned £300 to the grantees to pay off a prior bill of sale:—Held: it was not necessary to set forth the payment to the grantees, & the consideration was truly stated.—Re DAVIES, Ex p. EQUITABLE INVESTMENT CO., LTD. 259. — On antecedent debt.]—The grantor having received £30, the full amount for which a bill of sale was given, paid back £1 to the grantee for an existing debt. There was no agreement that he should do so:—Held: the consideration was truly stated as £30 paid to the grantor.—COCHRANE v. DIXON (1887), 3 T. L. R. 717, D. C.

260. — For future hire of furniture—& on current acceptances.]—The consideration for a bill of sale was stated to be the payment of a sum of money by the grantee to the grantor. Part of such sum was retained by the grantee by agreement with the grantor in satisfaction (inter alia) of the amounts of acceptances which had been given by the grantor to the grantee, & were then running, & a sum agreed to be paid by the grantor to the grantee for the hire of furniture assigned by the bill of sale for a period of three months:—Held: the consideration was not truly stated.—RICHARDSON v. HARRIS (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 268; 37 W. R. 426; 5 T. L. R. 178, C. A.

261. — To third party—On promissory note not then due.]—W., who owed E. £100, applied for a further loan of £200. E. advanced the £200, on condition that W. should apply £100 in retiring a promissory note, on which they were both jointly & severally liable, which was shortly to become due, & give E. a bill of sale for £300 to secure the £100 already owing together with the £200 then advanced. E. gave W. two cheques for £100 each, one payable to W. & the other to the bank who were holders of the promissory note, & who were also W.'s bankers. The bill of sale stated the consideration to be £300 "now paid" by the grantee to the grantor:—Held: as the liability under the promissory note was a liability to a third party & not to the grantee, the fact that it was not due did not render it necessary to set out in the bill of sale the agreement under which the money was advanced, & the consideration was truly stated.—Re WILTSHIRE, Ex p. EYNON, [1900] 1 Q. B. 96; 69 L. J. Q. B. 145; 81 L. T. 616; 48 W. R. 256; 7 Mans. 145, D. C.

262. Payment to joint account—Of grantor & agent for grantees.]—Debtor, in order to pay an agreed composition to his creditors, obtained a loan of £150 from certain of the creditors, & in consideration thereof granted a bill of sale to such creditors to secure the advance of £150 & their own compositions. The advance was made by cheques payable to the joint order, & paid into the joint account, of the grantor & L., the agent of one of the grantees, who was to see to the payment of the compositions to the other creditors, the joint account being opened for the purpose of enabling L. to make the payments:—Held: the advance was really made to the grantor for the purposes set forth in the bill of sale, & the arrangement made as to the joint account did not alter the character of the consideration, which was truly stated.—PEACE v. BROOKES, [1895] 2 Q. B. 451; 64 L. J. Q. B. 747; 72 L. T. 798; 2 Mans. 491; 15 R. 593.

263. Payment to trustees.]—In 1904 A., a butcher, died, leaving his business to his widow, B., & C. as trustees, with power to carry on the business. In 1907 D. was empowered by an order of the Ch. Div. to lend £250 to the business, & on his lending such sum D. was to take C.'s place as trustee. D., having no money of his own, borrowed the £250 from F., & lent it to the business in Feb., 1908. He became trustee on Apr. 9, & on Apr. 27 D. & B., as trustees, gave a mtge. of leaseholds to D. to secure the £250, & D. transferred the mtge. to F., the real lender of the money. On May 1 a further £90 was lent to D. by F., & by him to the trustees. As before a mtge. was given to D., & transferred by him to F., but on that occasion F. exacted from the trustees a promise that they would give her a bill of sale whenever she demanded it. The first mtge. was repayable on July 27, the second on Aug. 1. Subsequently a further advance of £50 was made by F. without security. In Dec. the trustees required a further loan of £34, but F. insisted on getting a bill of sale over the chattel assets of the trustees before she would lend the £34, & on Dec. 23, the trustees granted a bill of sale, in which the consideration was stated to be £250, £90, & £50, already due & owing from D. & B. to F., & £34 then paid by F. to D. & B. The county ct. judge having found that the consideration was not truly stated, the loans having been made by F. to D., & not by F. to D. & B., as recited in the bill of sale:—Held: the consideration was truly stated, for the real truth was that F. had lent the trustees all the sums recited in the bill of sale.—Re JONES, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER (1910), 55 Sol. Jo. 30, D. C.

(c) Payment by Grantee.

264. Grantees being partners—Money stated to have been advanced by grantees in equal shares.]—A bill of sale recited as the consideration an advance of £40 "in equal shares by A. & B.," who carried on business in partnership. The advance was made by the firm:—Held: the consideration was truly stated.—DAVIDSON v. CARLTON BANK (1892), 8 T. L. R. 741; affd. without touching this point, [1893] 1 Q. B. 82, C. A.

265. Grantee collector for several lenders.]—Six persons joined together to advance £600 to S. They contributed the loan in different amounts & at different times. When the whole £600 had been advanced, S. gave a bill of sale to T., one of the six, to secure the loan of £600. The consideration was therein stated as £600 now paid by T.:—Held: this was a true statement of the consideration, & T. was not a trustee, but merely a collector for the six lenders.—Re SMITH, Ex p. TARBUCK (1894), 72 L. T. 59; 43 W. R. 206; 39 Sol. Jo. 182, D. C.

Annotation:—Distd. Kinnersley v. Payne (1909), 100 L. T. 229.

266. Grantee trustee for firm—No mention made of firm.—The grantee of a bill of sale was acting as trustee for a firm which really advanced the money. The bill recited the payment as by the grantee without any mention of the firm:—Held: it was important to state by whom the payment was made, & the consideration was not truly stated.—KIMMER v. BRERETON (1897), 41 Sol. Jo. 510, D. C.

267. Grantee advancing only part of sum expressed—Remainder paid direct to grantor by third party not named in bill.—K. & P. each advanced £100 to F., who in pursuance of a previous arrangement gave P. a bill of sale on furniture belonging to F. to secure £200, which was expressed in the bill of sale to have been paid by P. to F., whereas in fact, K. paid his £100 direct to F.:—Held: the consideration for the bill was untruly stated.—KINNERSLEY v. PAYNE (1909), 100 L. T. 229.

SECT. 2.—FORM OF BILLS OF SALE BY WAY OF SECURITY.

See 1882 Act, s. 9.

SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

268. Necessity for statutory form—Instrument not reducible to form.—Although it is from its nature impossible that a licence to take immediate possession of goods as a security for a debt, which is a bill of sale within 1878 & 1882 Acts, should be made in the form given in 1882 Act sched., such a licence is void under s. 9 of that Act as between grantor & grantee, the object of the Act being to make void every bill of sale given to secure payment of money by the grantor, unless it is made substantially in accordance with the statutory form.—*Re TOWNSEND, Ex p. n. Accuracy essential.—Bills of sale should not be so framed as to convey an untrue or misleading impression, to those who are likely to be affected by or to act on them.—Re DONOVAN (1910), 10 S. R. N. S. W. 532.—AUS.

270 i. Necessity for statutory form—Bill absolute in form—In fact by way of security.—When the transaction evidenced by an instrument in the form of an absolute bill of sale is in fact the giving of security for an existing debt, the parties cannot evade compliance with R. S. O. 1897 (c. 148, ss. 2 & 3), merely by the form of the instrument. If, however, the real transaction is a sale with a right of re-purchase upon certain terms, the vendor can only be required to observe the provisions of s. 6.—HOPE v. PARROTT (1903), 24 C. L. T. Occ. N. 206; 7 O. L. R. 496; 2 O. W. R. 248; 3 O. W. R. 499.—CAN.

272. What variations from statutory form invalidate bill—Substantial & material.]—A bill of sale of personal chattels, whereby the grantor, “as beneficial owner,” assigns the goods as security for money, is void under 1882 Act, s. 9, as not being in accordance with the statutory form, on the ground that the words “beneficial owner” introduce the implied covenants of Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 7 (c), which covenants are not in accordance with the statutory form in 1882 Act.

cerned, though the seal was attached without the presence of two directors.—NEWBY v. RUTHERFORD (1877), 3 V. L. R. 340.—AUS.

b. Time for execution—Bonâ fide sale of goods.]—On a bonâ fide sale of goods, it is not necessary that the bill of sale shall be completed by execution of the instrument in any particular time after the actual sale.—MCDONALD v. GAUNT (1899), 30 O. R. 398.—CAN.

c. Formal defect—Blanks in clause not filled up—Clause unenforceable.]—One of the clauses of a hire-purchase agreement contained a number of blanks which, by inadvertence, were not filled up at the time the agreement was executed :—Held : the ct. could not give effect to the clause in question, but must deal with the agreement as if the clause were not there at all.—MILLER BROTHERS v. should be repaid by monthly instalments of "seven" on a certain date in each month :—Held : as, having regard to the amount of monthly interest, the bill of sale could only be paid off if the repayments were at the rate of £7 per month, the bill of sale was not rendered invalid by the omission of any unit of monetary denomination after the word "seven," & was not void as not being in accordance with the statutory form.—MOURMAND v. 276. — Complicated provisions.]—A bill of sale, which is in its terms so complicated as substantially to vary from the statutory form, is void by 1882 Act, s. 9, notwithstanding it may not contravene any of the other sects.

A bill of sale made between the grantor & four sets of mtgees. to secure different debts owing to each respectively at different times, with a declaration that, in case of default in payment of any sum thereby secured or of any other default mentioned as a cause of seizure in 1882 Act, s. 7, it should be lawful for the mtgees. to seize & sell the goods assigned :—Held : to be not in conformity with the statutory form, & void.—MELVILLE v. STRINGER (1881), 13 Q. B. D. 392; 53 L. J. Q. B. 482; 50 L. T. 774; 32 W. R. 890, C. A.

277. — Inconsistent clauses.]—A bill of sale contained two sets of clauses covering the same ground, & giving rise to the supposition that they are not identical in effect or consonant to the powers of Bills of Sale Acts :—Held : a perverse departure from the statutory form, which avoided the bill.

If people choose to insert in a bill of sale two sets of clauses which, assuming that they produce the same result, are expressed in different words, they make the true interpretation of the bill of sale a puzzle to any one who reads it, & on that ground it is invalid (LORD ESHER, M.R.)—FURBER v. e. — Cured by conveyance before execution levied—Conveyance not retroactive.]—A formal defect in a chattel mtge. may be cured by a conveyance at any time before an execution reaches the sheriff's hands, but such conveyance, whether effected by a deed or by delivery only, has no retroactive operation.—SMITH v. 279. — Superfluous recitals.]—The grantor of a bill of sale thereby assigned chattels, as security for money paid by the grantees in discharge of a liability of the grantor & his wife. The bill of sale contained recitals showing how such liability had arisen:—Held: the presence in the bill of sale of the recitals did not cause the bill of sale to be void, as not being made in accordance with the statutory form.—BRANDON HILL, LTD. v. LANE, [1915] 1 K. B. 250, 84 L. J. K. B. 347; 112 L. T. 316; 59 Sol. Jo. 75, D. C.

280. — Agreement to perform covenants in recited deed—Covenants not disclosed in bill.]—A bill of sale, after reciting a certain indenture, contained an agreement by the grantor that he would “perform the covenants & stipulations contained in the recited indenture,” but those covenants & stipulations did not appear in the bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale was void under 1882 Act, s. 9.—*LEE v. 281. — Second deed varying prior bill.]—By a bill of sale made on Aug. 15, 1913, M. assigned her household furniture to a firm of money-lenders for securing repayment of £700 & interest at the rate of 60 per cent. per annum. On Mar. 7, 1914, the money-lenders by indenture, declared to be supplemental to the bill of sale, assigned to P. the principal sum of £700 secured on the bill of sale, & the chattels & things included therein. By an indenture of the same date, which recited the above-mentioned deeds, & that M. & P. had agreed on the interest for the future being at the rate of 27½ per cent. per annum & not as mentioned in the bill of sale of Aug. 15, 1913, & that repayment of the mtge. debt should be made by instalments at regular periods, M. agreed to pay off the principal & interest as thereinbefore mentioned. The original bill of sale was filed at the Central Office in 1913, but the assignment & the contemporaneous deed were refused registration, on the ground that the original bill of sale was still in existence:—Held: whether or not the second deed, varying the terms of the original bill of sale, was a defeasance within 1878 Act, s. 10 (3), the true terms were not in the form required by 1882 Act, s. 9, as the original bill of sale no longer expressed the true intent & meaning of the parties thereto.—CORNELL v. MAY (1915), 112 L. T. 1085, D. C.

282. Effect of bill not being in statutory form—Avoidance in toto.]—1882 Act, s. 9, in avoiding a bill of sale which is not made in accordance with the statutory form, avoids it in toto, not merely as regards the personal chattels comprised in it, so that a covenant contained in it for payment by the grantee of the principal & interest thereby secured is rendered void as against him.—*DAVIES v. 283. — Invalid as licence.]—Where at the date of execution of a bill of sale there was no schedule attached to the bill, & afterwards the grantee entered the grantor's house & seized the goods under the bill:—Held: the absence of the schedule vitiated the bill of sale under 1882 Act, s. 9, for all purposes, & the bill did not operate as a leave & licence to the grantee to enter & seize the goods.—GRIFFIN v. UNION DEPOSIT BANK (1887), 3 T. L. R. 608.

—Omission to declare trust in mortgage.]

—A chattel mtge. made by D. to M. was given to secure a sum made up of debts due to M. & two other persons: M. made the usual affidavit of bona fides, asserting that the whole sum was due to him; no trust of any kind appeared upon the mtge., though the intention was that M. should hold it as trustee for the other two. The mtge. was filed within the proper time after its execution. M. assigned the mtge. to plffs., who afterwards obtained judgment against D., & under the execution the sheriff seized the property covered by the mtge. After this seizure plffs. instructed the sheriff to withdraw, & then took & held possession of the property under the mtge. Defts. placed writs of execution against the goods of D. in the hands of the sheriff after plffs. had taken possession under their mtge. D. was solvent when he gave the chattel mtge., but insolvent when plffs. took possession:—Held: the fact that no trust was declared on the face of the mtge. was an informality, & was cured by the taking possession before the rights of creditors had attached on the chattels; & neither the insolvency of the mtgor. at the time of taking possession, nor the fact of the seizure under execution before taking possession, affected the position of plffs.—*BANK OF HAMILTON v. 286. —.—.—.]—The grantee of a bill of sale was therein described as H. M. The name H. M. was put up at the office & was often mentioned there as the name of the lender, & the business was so conducted as to produce on the grantor's mind the impression that there was a person named H. M. with whom he was dealing. No such person as H. M. existed, the real name of the grantee being H. T.:—Held: the name of the grantee of a bill of sale must not be looked upon as part of the statutory form & the identity of F. T. & H. The goods so described did not any of them belong to the grantors jointly, but some belonged to one of them & the rest to the other. The schedule did not specify to which grantor the goods respectively belonged:—Held: the bill of sale was void as not being in accordance with the statutory form.—SAUNDERS v. 289. Joinder of unnecessary party.]—The grantor of a bill of sale thereby assigned chattels, which were his sole property, as security for money paid by the grantees in discharge of a liability of the grantor & his wife. The wife of the grantor was named in the bill of sale as a party & she executed it, but she did not join in the assignment of the chattels or the covenant for payment of principal & interest:—Held: the joinder of the wife as a party to the bill of sale did not cause the bill of sale to be void as not being made in accordance with the statutory form.—BRANDON HILL, LTD. v. 290. Untrue statement—Whether departure from statutory form.]—An untrue statement of the consideration is not a deviation from the statutory form, & does not render the bill wholly void under 1882 Act, s. 9, but only in respect of the personal chattels comprised therein under s. 8.

291. goods left in the mtgor.'s possession by pltf.'s grandfather. He subsequently lent the mtgor. various sums of money to secure which the chattel mtge. was executed:—Held: pltf. was entitled to succeed.—HARRINGTON v. MARSH (1859), 8 C. P. 227.—CAN.

o. Stock mortgage—Valuable consideration for—Forbearance to sue.]—The mere existence of a debt does not of itself constitute a valuable consideration for a stock mtge. under Instruments Act, 1890, Part VIII. There must be a forbearance to sue, or such circumstances proved as will justify the inference that a forbearance to sue was part of the consideration. The mere possibility that the mtgee. might forbear is not sufficient con-per annum. The bill of sale, after stating that the £250 was "now paid" by the grantees to the third person, did not add words acknowledging the receipt thereof:—Held: the bill of sale was void on the ground, as the receipt clause was omitted, the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form.—BURCHELL v. THOMPSON, [1920] 2 K. B. 80; 89 L. J. K. B. 533; 122 L. T. 758; 36 T. L. R. 257; 64 Sol. Jo. 307; [1920] B. & C. R. 7, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 4.—CHATELS CAPABLE OF SPECIFIC DESCRIPTION.

293. After-acquired chattels—Whether bill void absolutely—Former law.—A bill of sale assigned unto the grantees "all the crops now growing, or which shall at any time hereafter during the continuance of this security be growing in or upon" certain farmlands in the grantor's occupation, "& also all horses, cattle, carts, carriages, implements of husbandry, farming machinery, tools, utensils, hay, straw, consumable stores, live & dead stock, furniture, & household effects, which now are, or at any time hereafter during the continuance of this security shall be, in, upon, or about the same farm, or the farmhouse, barns, stables, or other buildings or erections thereon, & all which crops, stock, implements, furniture, & effects are intended to be specifically described in the schedule hereunder written, but the schedule is not to abridge the other words of description contained in these presents." The schedule to the bill of sale contained a list of live stock, & the words "household furniture & effects," without any list or inventory thereof, & also under the heading "crops" a list of fields with their names, acreage, & the nature of the crops growing thereon:

—Held: the grant of the after-acquired property did not invalidate the grant of the existing property, but the bill of sale was void as against execution creditors of the grantor in respect of any property afterwards acquired by the grantor.

The inclusion of after-acquired goods in a bill of sale does not invalidate the instrument, which, as far as these goods are concerned, does not require registration.

The notice of intention to file a bill of sale made no reference to the inclusion of after-acquired property in the bill of sale. The bill of sale did include after-acquired property:—Held the omission to include the after-acquired property in the notice of intention did not make the bill of sale void.—*BRUCE & SONS v. f. ——— Present & future advances To enable borrower to carry on business.]—The mtge., besides being a security for $1,400 actually advanced, provided that it should also be a security for further advances, if necessary, of goods & merchandise to enable the mtgor. “to carry on business”—not “to enter into & carry on” as in the statute—which should “be repaid on demand at any time within one year from the date hereof, or such other time as the parties may agree thereto”:—Held: the omission of the words “to enter into” could not render it unnecessary to register the mtge., as regarded the $1,400.

Qu.: whether the clause for future advances was not void as enabling pay-of the covenant by the grantor to pay the principal sum secured “by equal payments” at specified times, directory & not obligatory, & a covenant to pay the principal sum by unequal payments at the specified times does not render a bill of sale void.—*Re Cleaver, Ex p. The provision in the statutory form that there must be a “stipulated” time of payment means that the time at which payment is to become obligatory upon the grantor must be fixed.—De Braam v. Ford, [1900] 1 Ch. 142; 69 L. J. Ch. 82; 81 L. T. 568; 16 T. L. R. 69; 44 Sol. Jo. 87; 7 Mans. 28, C. A.

money recovered—In discharge of money secured.]

—Where there is a provision for insurance of the chattels by the grantor of a bill of sale, & “that he will expend any money paid in consequence of loss or damage by fire under such policy in discharge of the money secured by these presents,” it does not vitiate the bill of sale as making uncertain the time for payment of the money lent contrary to the statutory form. *NEVERSON v. 326. ——— On failure to pay instalment.]

By a bill of sale, chattels specified in the schedule were assigned, by way of security, for £300 & interest as follows: In consideration of the advance of £300 the grantor assigned the goods “to secure payment of the £300, & of the capitalised interest thereon as hereinafter mentioned, being at the rate of 60 per cent. per annum,” & agreed to pay £480, being the £300 & £180 for the capitalised interest in certain instalments at certain dates. The deed provided that if the grantor should break any of the covenants set forth, then all money secured by the bill of sale should immediately become payable:—Held: the bill of sale was void, because the clause as to capitalised interest, which made the whole interest payable at any time upon a breach of covenant, was not in accordance with the statutory form.—*DAVIS v. 333. — "The said debt."]—A bill of sale to secure £200 & interest at 60 per cent. contained the following clause: "& will, so long as the principal sum as aforesaid or any part thereof shall remain unpaid at the times hereinbefore appointed for payment of the instalments of the principal sum, pay interest after the rate aforesaid upon the said debt, or so much as shall for the time being remain unpaid":—Held: the word "debt" included the principal sum & interest due thereon, & the covenant amounted to payment of interest on interest, & the bill of sale was void.—DRESSER v. TOWNSEND (1886), 81 L. T. Jo. 23.

334. —]—The grantor of a bill of sale covenanted that so long as the principal sum or any part thereof should remain unpaid at the time appointed for payment of the instalments he would pay interest on the said debt, or upon so much as should for the time being remain unpaid: Held: the covenant did not operate so as to make interest payable on any overdue sum of interest, as the words "the said debt" referred only to the principal sum or any part thereof remaining unpaid. Re CLEAVER, Ex p. RAWLINGS (1887), 18 Q. 336. — Or on reduced sum.]—Where a bill of sale contains a covenant by the grantor to pay the principal sum by equal yearly payments until the whole of that sum & interest is fully paid, & a further covenant to pay interest quarterly "on the said sum" at a certain rate per annum, it must be construed to mean that interest is payable only on the money from time to time due, & is within the statutory form.—WEARDALE COAL & IRON CO. v. 337. — Whether payments referable to principal or interest.]—The grantor of a bill of sale assigned certain chattels to secure £50 advanced to him by the grantees, & agreed to pay the principal sum & interest then due on Oct. 26, 1887, & the like sum on the same day in every succeeding month thereafter until Sept. 26, 1889, "then the balance & interest as aforesaid is to be paid":—Held: (1) the bill of sale was valid as being in accordance with the statutory form; (2) monthly instalments were payable in respect of interest & not principal, & the balance to be paid at the end of two years was the principal, & any interest then due.—EDWARDS v. MARSTON, [1891] 1 Q. B. 225; 60 L. J. Q. B. 202; 61 L. T. 97; 39 W. R. 165; 7 T. L. R. 127, C. A.

339. — Involving calculation as to number & amount of instalments.]—In a bill of sale, the grantor agreed to pay the principal sum, £500, together with the interest then due "by monthly payments of £30 on the 18th day of every month." Objection to the bill of sale having been raised, on the ground that the amount of the last instalment, being less than £30, was not accurately stated:—Held: the objection was groundless, & the provision for payment of instalments followed the statutory form.—SIMMONS v.

340. ———. ———.]—The grantor of a bill of sale assigned his household effects as security for £200 & interest at the rate of 6d. in the pound per month, & agreed to pay the principal & interest by weekly payments of £2 6s. 2d. There was no default clause:—Held: (1) the bill of sale could not be avoided on the ground that it did not comply with the statutory form, for although the weekly instalment was not an aliquot part of the principal, & the instrument did not indicate the number of instalments necessary to satisfy the amount secured, yet it might be an aliquot part of the principal plus the varying sums for the diminishing interest, as the proper proportion of each weekly instalment was appropriated to the payment off of principal; (2) the statutory form appeared to necessitate such a calculation.—Re BARGEN, Ex p. HASLUCK, [1894] 1 Q. B. 444; 69 L. T. 763; 10 T. L. R. 55; 10 Morr. 301; 10 R. 74; sub nom. Re VON BARGIN, Ex p. HASLUCK, 63 L. J. Q. B. 209.

342. ———. ———.]—A bill of sale assigned certain chattels "by way of security for payment of £50." The grantor further agreed that he would pay "the principal sum with interest thereon after the rate of 5 per cent. per annum by the following instalments, viz., £10 on Dec. 25, 1903, & the like sum of £10 on Mar. 25, June 24, & Sept. 29, & Dec. 25 in each year succeeding, until the whole amount be duly paid":—Held the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form.—*ATTIA v. 343. ———. ———.]—By a bill of sale goods were assigned to the grantee to secure an advance of £30 made by him to the grantor, with interest thereon at the rate of 10d. in the pound per month, & the grantor further agreed & declared that he would pay to the grantee the principal sum aforesaid, together with the interest then due, by monthly payments of £2 on the 9th day of every month succeeding the date of the bill of sale, the first payment to be made on Nov. 9 then next, & that, in default of payment of any instalment of the principal sum, he would pay interest on such instalment at the rate aforesaid from the date when the same should become due until payment thereof. The real bargain between the parties was that the payment of both the principal & the interest should be made by monthly payments of £2:—Held: the bill of sale expressed the real bargain between the parties, & it was not void as not being in accordance with the statutory form.—ROSEFIELD v. PROVINCIAL UNION BANK, [1910] 2 K. B. 781; 79 L. J. K. B. 1150; 103 L. T. 378; 17 Mans. 319, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 6.—TERMS FOR MAINTENANCE OR DEFEASANCE OF SECURITY.

A. In General.

345. "Necessary for maintaining security."—The expression "necessary for maintaining the security" means, not the maintenance of a sufficient security less than that agreed to be given, but the maintenance of the security created by the bill of sale, & the security is maintained only when the subject-matter of the charge, & the grantee's title to it, & preserved in as good plight & condition as at the date of the bill of sale. If a stipulation is not necessary for the maintenance of the security, it cannot be made so by the agreement of the parties.—FURBER v. COBB (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 494; 56 L. J. Q. B. 273; 56 L. 346. Insertion of wider terms than necessary—No power of seizure other than statutory powers.—The insertion in a bill of sale of terms agreed to by the parties for the maintenance of the security, but which are not necessary for maintaining the security within 1882 Act, s. 7, does render the bill of sale void, provided power is not given to the grantee to seize the goods for default in the performance of any covenant or agreement not necessary for maintaining the security.—TOPILEY v. CORSBIE (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 350; 57 L. J. Q. B. 271; 58 L. T. 342; 36 W. R. 352, D. C.

the mtgor. agreed to insure the property assigned in offices in London or Westminster, to be approved by the mtgee., in default whereof it should be lawful for the mtgee. to insure & add the premiums paid by him to the security. The bill of sale empowered the mtgee., on breach of any of the mtgor.'s covenants, to seize, etc., & also provided that the property should not be liable to seizure for any cause other than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: the bill of sale was not void as failing to comply with the statutory form.—FURBER v. ABREY (1883), 1 Cab. & El. 186.

348. ————.]—A bill of sale contained a stipulation that the grantor should insure the chattels, & pay the premiums, & that in case of default the grantee might keep up the insurance, & that all money expended by the grantee for that purpose should be repaid on demand, & should be a charge on the chattels. The bill conferred a power of seizure, following the language of 1882 Act, s. 7 (1), & it concluded with a proviso that the chattels should not be liable to seizure for any cause other than those specified in s. 7:—Held: the power of seizure was confined to default in payment of the principal & interest, & the bill complied with the statutory form.—BRIGGS v. PIKE (1892), 61 L. J. Q. B. 418; 66 T. 637, C. A.

349. — & payments for rent, rates, & taxes.]—By a bill of sale, given by way of security, it was provided that, if the mtgor. did not pay the rent, rates, taxes, & outgoings of the premises on which the goods assigned might be within seven days after the same respectively became payable, the mtgees. might pay such rent, rates, taxes, & outgoings, & all sums of money so paid by the mtgees., with interest thereon, should be charged on the goods assigned, & be recoverable in the same manner as the principal moneys & interest secured by the bill of sale. The bill of sale contained a proviso that the goods should not be liable to seizure or to be taken possession of by the mtgees. for any cause other than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: such bill of sale was void as not being in accordance with the statutory form.—*BIANCHI v. 350. ————.]—By a bill of sale given by way of security, it was provided that, if the mtgor. did not pay the rent, rates, taxes, & outgoings of the premises on which the goods assigned might be within seven days after the same should respectively become payable, the mtgees. might pay such rent, rates, taxes, & outgoings, & all sums of money so paid by the mtgees., together with interest thereon, should be charged on the goods assigned, & should be recoverable in the same manner as the principal moneys & interest; & it was further provided that the goods assigned should be liable to seizure for any of the causes specified in 1882 Act, s. 7, but should not be liable to seizure for any other cause:—Held: such bill of sale was void, on the ground that it contained terms importing a power of seizure in contravention of s. 7.—*REAL & PERSONAL ADVANCE CO. v. The bill of sale also provided that the goods should not be seized for any other cause than those allowed by 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: the amount originally secured was no longer the sum secured, but that amount, or any balance left unpaid, together with any expenses incurred, & the bill of sale was void.—*MACEY v. 352. On bankruptcy of grantor—Whether power wider than statutory power.]—A bill of sale empowered the grantee to seize the property in case the grantor “shall do or suffer any matter or thing whereby he shall become a bkpt.”:—Held: that event was in substance equivalent to the event “if the grantor shall become bkpt.” in which, by 1882 Act, s. 7, a grantee was permitted to seize under a bill of sale, & the bill of sale was not void.—*Re MUNDAY, Ex p. 353. ————.]—The grantor of a bill of sale agreed therein with the grantee that in case the borrower should at any time enter into liquidation for the benefit of, or compound with, his creditors, the principal & interest should become immediately payable without the necessity for any demand of payment, provided that the chattels assigned should not be liable to seizure for any cause other than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form, & was void.—BARR v. KINGSFORD (1887), 56 L. T. 861; 3 T. L. R. 524, D. C.

Annotation:—Distd. Cartwright v. Regan, [1895] 1 Q. B. 900.

354. ————.]—A bill of sale contained a proviso giving power to the grantees to seize the chattels granted by the instrument if the “mtgors. should take the benefit of any Bkpcy. Act.” Bkpcy. Act, 1883 (c. 52), enabled a person not only to become a bkpt. but to effect a composition with his creditors:—Held: the bill of sale was bad, as it conferred upon the grantees the power to seize on the grantor taking benefit of any Bkpcy. Act, which was a larger power than the statutory power to seize conferred by 1882 Act, which was limited to the event of a grantor becoming a bkpt.—GILROY v. BOWEY (1888), 59 L. T. 223, D. C.

355. ————.]—By a bill of sale the grantor covenanted that he would not do anything whereby he might become a bkpt. or have execution levied, but would preserve & keep the chattels safe as long as the money was unpaid, provided, that if the grantor should become bkpt., then the chattels should be liable to seizure, or to be taken in possession, provided that the chattels & things should be held & possessed without any let or hindrance from the grantee until same should be taken possession of by the grantee in consequence of the breach of any of the covenants, & that same should not be liable to seizure, or be taken possession of by the grantee for any other cause than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held:

the covenant not to do anything whereby the grantor might become a bkpt., was necessary for maintaining the security.—Re PAXTON, Ex p. POPE (1889), 60 L. T. 428, D. C.

Annotation:—Expld. Re Bullock, Ex p. Ward, [1899] 2 Q. B. 517.

356. On distress.]—By a bill of sale the grantor covenanted that he would not suffer a distress, provided, that if the grantor should suffer the goods to be distrained, then the chattels should be liable to seizure, or to be taken in possession, provided that the chattels & things should be held & possessed without any let or hindrance from the grantee until same should be taken possession of by the grantee in consequence of the breach of any of the covenants, & that same should not be liable to seizure, or be taken possession of by the grantee for any other cause than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: the covenant not to suffer a distress to be levied was necessary for maintaining the security.—*Re PAXTON, Ex p. 357. On fraudulent removal—Or on deterioration & failure to replace.] A bill of sale, given as security for money, assigned to the grantees the chattels specifically described in a schedule, & which were stated to be then in a certain house. The grantor covenanted that he would not remove the chattels from the premises where they then were, without the previous consent in writing of the grantees, & that he would not permit the chattels, or any part thereof, to be destroyed or injured, or to deteriorate in a greater degree than they would deteriorate by reasonable use & wear thereof, & would, whenever any of the chattels were destroyed, injured, or deteriorated, forthwith replace, repair, & make good the same; & it was agreed that, in case default should be made by the grantor in the performance of any of the covenants, all of which covenants were thereby declared & agreed to be necessary for the maintenance of the security thereby created, it should be lawful for the grantees after any such default without notice, immediately or whenever they should think fit, to seize & take possession of the chattels, & after the expiration of five clear days, to sell same. At the end of the deed was a proviso that the chattels should not be liable to seizure or to be taken possession of by the grantees for any cause other than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: (1) the covenant to replace & repair articles destroyed, injured, or deteriorated, was necessary for maintaining the security, & the bill of sale was not void because power was given to seize on a breach of that covenant; (2) the covenant not to remove the chattels without the consent of the grantees, was necessary for maintaining the security.—*FURBER v. & the bill of sale conferred upon the mtgees. a power of sale upon taking possession of the chattels, subject to 1882 Act, ss. 7 & 13, & the power of sale given by the above Act of 1881 did not apply, so that the provision in the bill of sale which erroneously assumed that that power of sale did apply, & excluded the operation of s. 20 of that Act, was superfluous, & where a stipulation was for the maintenance of a security, the mere fact that provisions were inserted which were invalid, but were not contrary to any express provision of 1882 Act, did not make the bill of sale void; (2) (LORD ESHER, M.R., & LOPES, L.J.) the effect of 1882 Act was to exclude the application to bills of sale under it of the powers of sale given to mtgees. by the above Act of 1881, but the importation into the bill of sale of those powers of sale unfettered by s. 20 of that Act, did not alter the legal effect of the statutory form of bill of sale, inasmuch as under the statutory form a power of sale might be expressly given to the mtgee. as a stipulation for the maintenance of the security, so that upon taking possession of the chattels the mtgee. would possess an implied power of sale, subject to 1882 Act, ss. 7 & 13, & 1882 Act itself gave powers to take possession of, sell, or redeem the chattels assigned, & those powers need not be inserted in the statutory form.—*Re MORRITT, Ex p. 377. ———.]—A bill of sale, given as security for money, was in the statutory form, except that the mtge. debt, instead of being made payable by instalments, was made payable, with interest, in one sum, a month after the date of the deed, & there was a covenant by the grantor, in case the principal money should not be then paid, to pay interest half-yearly on the principal money remaining unpaid:—Held: (1) the bill of sale was valid, & interest being in arrear for more than two months, the grantee had power to seize the chattels, & to sell them after the expiration of five days from the seizure; (2) (BOWEN & FRY, L.JJ.) the power of sale was conferred by the above Act of 1881, s. 19, subject to the restrictions imposed by s. 20 of that Act, & by 1882 Act, s. 13; (3) (LORD ESHER, M.R.) the above Act did not apply, but there was an implied power to seize & sell under 1882 Act.—WATKINS v. EVANS (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 386; 56 L. J. Q. B. 200; 56 L. T. 177; 35 W. R. 313, C. A.

379. Term relieving purchaser from inquiry—As to grantor's default.]—A bill of sale contained a reservation to the grantee of a power of sale which concluded as follows: “& upon any such sale the purchaser shall not be bound to see or inquire whether any such default has been made as aforesaid”:—Held: that was an addition to

Annotation:—Apprvd. Blaiberg v. Beckett (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 96.

380. ———.]—A bill of sale contained powers for the grantees, upon default being made by the grantor in payment of any of the sums secured, to enter upon the premises & seize & sell the goods assigned, & a stipulation that upon any such sale the purchaser should not be bound to see or inquire whether any such default had been made:—Held: such stipulation was not for the maintenance or defeasance of the security, & the effect of the stipulation was to alter, to the prejudice of the grantor, the legal rights which 1882 Act & the statutory form were intended to secure to him, & the bill of sale was void as not being in accordance with the form.—BLAIBERG v. BECKETT (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 96; 56 L. J. Q. B. 35; 55 L. T. 876; 35 W. R. 34; 3 T. L. R. 17, C. A.

381. ——— As to application of purchase-money by grantee.]—A provision in a bill of sale that the receipt of the mtgee. shall be a sufficient discharge to a purchaser of the chattels assigned, who shall not be required to see to the application of the purchase-money by the mtgee., is not in accordance with the statutory form, as it substantially alters the relation between the grantor & grantee.—GIBBS v. PARSONS (1887), 22 L. J. N. C. 96, D. C.

D. Terms for Application of Proceeds of Sale.

382. Retention of principal & interest—& costs of maintaining & realising security.]—A bill of sale of household furniture contained a clause permitting seizure & sale in certain events, & an agreement that the grantee after the sale might retain out of the sale money the principal & interest due & the cost of discharging any distress, execution, or other incumbrance on the chattels, & of their removal, warehousing, valuing, or sale:—Held: the stipulations in the deed related either to the maintenance or the realisation of the security, & the deed was substantially in conformity with the statutory form, & was valid.—CONSOLIDATED CREDIT CORPN. v. GOSNEY (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 24; 55 L. J. Q. B. 61; 54 L. T. 21; 34 W. R. 106, D. C.

384. ———.]—A bill of sale contained a proviso making void the security on payment of the principal sum & interest & any expenses which the grantee might properly incur in lawfully seizing & removing the chattels, & any costs he might properly incur in defending & maintaining his rights under the bill, & a power after five clear days from the day of seizure to remove & sell the chattels & retain out of the proceeds the principal unpaid & interest due & all costs & expenses he might incur as aforesaid & the expenses of sale:—Held: the bill was valid.—LUMLEY v. SIMMONS (1887), 34 Ch. D. 698; 56 L. J. Ch. 329; 56 L. T. 131; 35 W. R. 122, C. A.

Annotation: — Mentd. Re Wood, Ex p. Woolfe, [1894] 1 Q. B. 605.

385. ———.]—The power to sell all the chattels assigned by a bill of sale carries with it implied trusts with respect to the money produced by the sale.

Where the bill of sale contained an express declaration that the grantee should retain out of the sale money the principal sum, or so much thereof as might for the time being remain unpaid, & the interest then due, together with all costs, charges, payments, & expenses incurred or sustained in & about entering the grantor's premises & in discharging any distress, execution, or other incumbrance on the chattels assigned, & seizing, taking, retaining, & keeping possession thereof, & in & about the carriage, removal, warehousing, valuing, or sale thereof, including the cost of inventories, catalogues, or advertising:—Held: the trusts declared of the sale money were such as might reasonably & properly be inserted, & did not differ from the trusts that would have been implied if there had been no such express declaration.—Re CLEAVER, Ex p. RAWLINGS (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 489; 56 L. J. Q. B. 197; 56 L. T. 593; 35 W. R. 281; 3 T. L. R. 315, C. A.

386. ——— & expenses incurred in relation to security.]—The grantor of a bill of sale agreed that the grantee should, on sale, retain the principal sum advanced with interest, together with "all costs & expenses incurred in relation to the security":—Held: the bill of sale was invalid, as not being substantially in accordance with the statutory form.—LIVERPOOL COMMERCIAL INVESTMENT SOCIETY v. RICHARDSON (1886), 2 T. L. R. 602; 30 Sol. Jo. 433, D. C.

387. ———.]—A bill of sale given by way of security for payment of money, which contains a provision that the grantee may deduct from the proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged property expenses of such sale "or expenses otherwise incurred in relation to the security," is not in accordance with the statutory form, for the provision is so large that it would include expenses improperly incurred & also expenses incurred in the preparation of the bill of sale & before its execution, & the bill of sale is void.—CALVERT v. THOMAS (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 204; 56 L. J. Q. B. 470; 57 L. T. 441; 35 W. R. 616; 3 T. L. R. 684, C. A.

388. ——— & expenses of attending sale—& commission as auctioneers.]—A bill of sale, as security for money, assigned to the grantees, auctioneers, the chattels specifically described in a schedule, & which were stated to be then in a certain house. It was agreed that, in case default should be made by the grantor in the performance of any of the covenants, all of which covenants were thereby declared & agreed to be necessary for the maintenance of the security thereby created, it should be lawful for the grantees after any such default without notice, immediately or whenever they should think fit, to seize & take possession of the chattels, & after the expiration of five clear days, to sell same, & out of the proceeds of sale in the first place to reimburse themselves the costs, charges, & expenses of & attending such sale, including therein the full charges & commission of the grantees as auctioneers, as if they were selling on behalf of the grantor:—Held: the bill of sale was void because it authorised the grantees to retain their commission as auctioneers out of the proceeds of the sale of the chattels, that being a provision not for the maintenance of the security, but for obtaining for the grantees, in addition to the security, their trade profits as auctioneers by the sale, an advantage which they would not have had if the statutory form had been followed.—FURBER v. COBB (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 491; 56 L. J. Q. B. 273; 56 L. T. 689; 35 W. R. 398; 3 T. L. R. 456, C. A.

E. Terms for Insurance and Production of Receipts.

389. Insurance—& delivery of receipts for premiums.]—An agreement in a bill of sale that the grantor will pay all premiums necessary for insuring & keeping insured the chattels against loss by fire, & forthwith after every payment in respect of such insurance produce, & if required, deliver to the grantee the receipt or voucher for same, is not unnecessary for the maintenance of the security, & does not contravene 1882 Act.—*HAMMOND v. 391. ——— Power to grantee to insure on default—& add charges to sum secured.]—A bill of sale of chattels, given as security for money, contained stipulations by the grantor to insure the chattels against fire, to pay the premiums, & on demand, to produce the receipts for the premiums to the grantee, & that, if default should be made by the grantor in effecting or keeping up the policy, the grantee might insure the property, & that all money expended by him for that purpose, with interest thereon, should on demand be repaid by the grantor, & until repayment should be a charge on the property, but it was provided that the goods should not be liable to seizure by the grantee for any cause other than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: the deed was not made void by s. 9.—*Re BARBER, Ex p. 392. ————.]—A bill of sale contained a covenant by the grantor to insure the chattels assigned, & that in default it should be lawful for the grantee to insure same, & that all money for that purpose expended by him should on demand be repaid by the grantor, & until such repayment should be a charge upon the chattels. The bill of sale contained no power to the grantee to seize the goods on default of the performance of the covenant: Held: in the absence of a power to seize on default the insertion of the covenant did not render the bill of sale void.—TOPILEY v. CORSBIE (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 350; 57 L. J. Q. B. 271; 58 L. T. 342; 36 W. R. 352, D. C.

393. ————.]—A bill of sale contained a clause that the grantors should insure the chattels assigned & that on their failure to do so the grantee might make the payments, & all money so expended by the grantee, with 5 per cent. interest thereon, were to be repaid by the grantors, & until repayment were to be a charge on the chattels assigned. A further clause gave a power to seize the chattels in any of the events specified in 1882 Act, s. 7, but not otherwise:—Held: the insertion of the foregoing clauses did not invalidate the bill of sale.—HARRISON v. SHALLIS & Co. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 661.

394. Production of receipts for rent, rates, & taxes—No exception for reasonable excuse.]—A bill of sale contained a clause in which the grantor agreed with the grantees that he would, during the continuance of the security, pay all rents, rates, taxes, assessments, or outgoings which ought to be paid by the tenant or occupier of the premises then occupied by him, on which the chattels & things then were, or any other place or places where any of the chattels & things included in the security might during its continuance be, & would take proper receipts for such payments, & would, on demand in writing, produce to the grantees or their authorised agents the receipts for every such payment as aforesaid, provided always, that the chattels thereby assigned should not be liable to seizure or be taken possession of by the grantees for any cause other than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: as the covenant to produce the receipts was one for the maintenance of the security, there was a power to seize for a breach of it, but though the covenant to produce was not qualified by the condition that the non-production of the receipts might be excused, yet the power to seize under the covenant was not unqualified, but limited to the ground provided by 1882 Act, s. 7, & was not contrary to the statutory form.—TURNER & Co. v. CULPAN (1888), 58 L. T. 340; 36 W. R. 278, D. C.

395. ————.]—A bill of sale, given to secure money lent, contained a covenant by the grantor to produce, on demand in writing, the last receipts for rent, rates, & taxes, followed by a proviso that the chattels should not be liable to seizure for any cause other than those specified in 1882 Act, s. 7, which were set out in the deed:—Held: the above covenant must be read with the qualification contained in s. 7 (4), that the goods could only be seized if the failure to produce the receipts should be without reasonable excuse.—WEARDALE COAL & IRON CO. v. HODSON, [1894] 1 Q. B. 598; 63 L. J. Q. B. 391; 70 L. T. 632; 42 W. R. 424; 1 Mans. 396; 9 R. 844, C. A.

396. ———— Without previous demand.]—A bill of sale contained a covenant by the grantor to produce his last receipts for rent, rates & taxes, no demand in writing by the grantee being required, & a proviso that the chattels assigned should not be liable to seizure for any cause other than specified in 1882 Act, s. 7:—Held: the bill was not void as deviating from the statutory form.—CARTWRIGHT v. F. Terms against Removal and for Replacement.

397. Validity.]—A bill of sale of household goods contained a covenant by the grantor to preserve the goods assigned, & from time to time replace such of them as should be worn out by articles of equal value:—Held: the terms of the bill of sale were substantially in accordance with the statutory form.—CONSOLIDATED CREDIT CORPN. v. GOSNEY (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 24; 55 L. J. Q. B. 61; 54 L. T. 21; 34 W. R. 106, D. C.

398. ————.]—A bill of sale contained a covenant that the grantor would not remove furniture, the subject of the bill of sale, except to be repaired, without consent of the grantee, & would replace any articles damaged or worn out by others of equal value:—Held: the covenant might be inserted, as being for the maintenance of the security, & the bill of sale did not deviate from the statutory form. SEED v. BRADLEY, [1894] 1 Q. B. 319; 63 L. J. Q. B. 387; 70 L. T. 214; 42 W. R. 257; 10 T. L. R. 196; 1 Mans. 157; 9 R. 171, C. A. Annotation:—Folld. Coates v. Moore, [1903] 2 K. B. 140.

399. ————.]—By a bill of sale, given as a security for payment of money, the grantor assigned the chattels & things specifically described, & also all chattels & things which might at any time during the continuance of the security be substituted for them or any of them. The bill of sale contained a covenant by the grantor that he would during the continuance of the security replace such of the chattels & things expressed to be assigned as should be worn out by other articles of equal value to the articles worn out, so as at all times to keep up the total value of the chattels & things comprised in the security to the present value:—Held: the bill of sale did not deviate from the statutory form, the assignment of substituted chattels & things only applying to the chattels & things substituted under the covenant for the maintenance of the security.—COATES v. MOORE, [1903] 2 K. B. 140; 72 L. J. K. B. 539; 89 L. T. 8; 51 W. R. 618; 10 Mans. 271, C. A.

400. —.]—A bill of sale granted by depts., furniture removers, contained a clause that the grantors would not without the consent in writing of the grantee remove the chattels thereby assigned from the premises where they were or from any other place where they might at any time be. A further clause provided that the grantors should repair & replace the chattels assigned. A further clause gave a power to seize the chattels in any of the events specified in 1882 Act, s. 7, but not otherwise. The chattels assigned were pantehnicon & other vans & horses used in deft.'s business:—Held: the insertion of the foregoing clauses did not invalidate the bill of sale, & the clause prohibiting the removal of the assigned chattels referred to removal to other premises & did not prohibit the taking out of those chattels in the ordinary course of deft.'s business.—HARRISON v. SHALLIS & Co. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 664.

402. —.]—A bill of sale contained a clause that the grantors should pay the rent, rates, & taxes of the premises where the chattels were, & that on their failure to do so the grantee might make the payments, & all money so expended by the grantee, with 5 per cent. interest thereon, were to be repaid by the grantors, & until repayment were to be a charge on the chattels assigned. A further clause gave a power to seize the chattels in any of the events specified in 1882 Act, s. 7, but not otherwise:—Held: the insertion of the foregoing clauses did not invalidate the bill of sale.—HARRISON v. SHALLIS & Co. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 664.

403. Grantor to keep chattels in repair—Power to grantee to repair on default—& add charges to sum secured.—A bill of sale contained a covenant by the grantor to keep in repair the chattels assigned, & that in default it should be lawful for the grantee to repair same, & that all money for that purpose expended by him should on demand be repaid by the grantor, & until such repayment should be a charge upon the chattels. The bill of sale contained no power to the grantee to seize the goods on default of the performance of the covenant:—Held: in the absence of a power to seize on default the insertion of the covenant did not render the bill of sale void.—TOPLEY v. CORSBIE (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 350; 57 L. J. Q. B. 271; 58 L. T. 342; 36 W. R. 352, D. C.

404. Grantor to pay interest on mortgages.—A bill of sale given as a security for payment of money contained a covenant for the payment by the grantor of all interest on mtges., if any, of the premises on which the goods assigned were or to which they might be removed:—Held: the stipulation was a deviation from the statutory form, & the bill of sale was void.—WATSON v. STRICKLAND (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 391; 56 L. J. Q. B. 594; 35 W. R. 769; 3 T. L. R. 815, C. A.

405. Covenant for further assurance—Binding all claiming goods.—A bill of sale contained a covenant that the mtgor. & every other person claiming any interest in the chattels assigned or any of them, would at all times, at the cost, until seizure or sale, of the mtgor., & afterwards of the person requiring same, execute & do all such assurances & things for the further or better assuring of the chattels to the mtgee. as should be reasonably required:—Held: the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form.—*LIVERPOOL COMMERCIAL INVESTMENT SOCIETY v. 408. Grantor to obtain only limited credit—To give bulk of business to grantee—& keep books open to grantee's inspection.—J. gave a bill of sale to plffs., creditors, to secure repayment of £150, which they advanced to him to enable him to pay a composition to creditors other than themselves, & also to secure a composition to which they themselves were entitled. The bill of sale contained a stipulation "that during the course of the trading of J., he shall not during the continuance of this security, obtain credit to the extent of £10 without the consent of one of the firms parties hereto, but this clause shall not apply to his dealings or transactions for the purchase of goods from the firms, & J. binds himself to give the firms the greater portion of his business, & J. shall keep proper books of account of his business, & shall permit the parties hereto, or any of them, or any authorised agent of them or any of them, to enter the premises of J. & inspect same books at all reasonable times during the existence of this security":—Held: the stipulation was not for the maintenance or defeasance of the security, & the bill of sale was void.—PEACE v. BROOKES, [1895] 2 Q. B. 451; 64 L. J. Q. B. 717; 72 L. T. 798; 2 Mans. 491; 15 R. 593.

409. Grantor not to obtain loan from other office.]—At the time of the giving of a bill of sale as security for an advance, & before the completion of the transaction, the grantee handed to the grantor a card on which were printed certain conditions, which were made part of the bargain before the money was lent. One of the conditions was that borrowers were prohibited from obtaining or endeavouring to obtain money from any other loan office until the account was paid; otherwise they would be liable for the full amount to be called in, as though an instalment had been missed. The condition was not inserted in the bill of sale, which otherwise was in accordance with the statutory form:—Held: as the condition was not inserted in the bill of sale, & would have avoided it if it had been inserted, the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form, & was absolutely void. SMITH v. WHITEMAN, [1909] 2 K. B. 437; 78 L. J. K. B. 1073; 100 L. T. 770; 16 Mans. 283, C. A.

r. — — — — — Assignment of individual & joint property.—A deed was executed by J. N. Kline & Son, of the first part, whereby, after reciting that they had proposed & agreed to assign all their personal estate & effects to certain parties of the second part, they conveyed & assigned in the said parties “all & singular the stock-in-trade, goods, merchandise, sum & sums of money, bills, bonds, drafts, mtges., books of account, of what nature or kind soever, belonging to or due or owing to the said parties of the first part, & which are set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, marked with the letter ‘A,’ & subscribed by the parties hereto of the first & second parts: & all the personal estate whatsoever of the said parties of the first part, & all their estate & interest therein.” No schedule was attached to the deed at its execution, but schedules were afterwards annexed, signed John N. Kline & Son, John N. Kline, junr., Anthony Kline:—Held: independently of the schedule, the words of the assignment were large enough to include both the individual & joint personal property of John N. Kline.—HEWARD v. MITCHELL (1853), 10 U. C. R. 535.—CAN.

s. — — — — — Specific designation in schedule.—In a deed of assignment of all the property of a co. to trustees for the benefit of creditors, the property was described as “all the real estate lands tenements & hereditaments of debtors whatsoever & wheresoever, of or to which they are now seized or entitled or of or to which they have any estate right or interest of any kind or description, with the appurtenances, the particulars of which are more particularly set out in the schedule hereto, & all & singular the personal estate & effects, stock-in-trade, goods, chattels, & all other the personal estate & effects whatsoever & wheresoever, whether upon the premises where debtors’ business is carried on or elsewhere & which debtors are possessed of or entitled to in any way whatever.” The schedule annexed specifically designated the real estate & included the foundry, erections & buildings thereon erected, & all articles such as engines, etc., in or upon said premises:—Held: this was a sufficient description of the property intended to be conveyed to satisfy R. S. C., c. 119, s. 23.—HOVEY v. WHITING (1886), 14 S. C. R. 515; sub nom. WHITING v. HOVEY, 13 A. R. 7; 9 O. R. 314.—CAN.

423. — — — — — “Stock, two horses, four cows.”—Part of the chattels comprised in a bill of sale were described in the schedule as, “stock: 2 horses, 4 cows.” There was no evidence that at the date of the bill there were any other horses or cows on the premises of the grantor:—Held: there was not such a specific description of the stock as to satisfy 1882 Act, s. 4.—DAVIES v. JENKINS, [1900] 1 Q. B. 133; 69 L. J. Q. B. 187; 81 L. T. 788;

c. — — — — — “Stock of general merchandise as set out in stock list attached.”—No stock list attached. Inaccuracy as to locality.—A bill of sale described the property as “stock of general merchandise as set out in the stock list attached hereto & marked with the letter A., all of which stock of general merchandise, chattels & effects are now situate & being in the two-storey frame building situated on lots 1 & 2 in block 249, city of R.” No stock list was attached to the bill of sale. The goods were not all contained in the building mentioned—some being there & some in S. R. Street:—Held: the instrument did not contain such sufficient & full description of the goods as was required to distinguish them under Bills of Sale Ordinance, s. 12.—SVAIGHER v. ROTARU (1906), 3 W. L. R. 486.—CAN.

d. — — — — — “Stock of gold & silver watches, jewellery & electro-silver plate.”—Articles identifiable.—The goods & chattels were described in a chattel mtge. as follows: Certain specific articles were first enumerated in the mtge., & the description then proceeded, “also the stock of gold & silver watches, jewellery, & electro-silver plate, which, at the date hereof, is in the possession of the mtgor. in his said store.” The evidence showed the electro-plated goods & watches were numbered, & might have been identified thereby:—Held: a sufficient description of the goods mortgaged.—SEGSWORTH v. MERIDEN SILVER PLATING CO. (1882), 3 O. R. 413.—CAN.

e. — — — — — “Stable & coach house, three horses, one cow, etc.”—Description not detailed.—In an assignment 11 goods were described as “all the household furniture, goods, chattels, & effects belonging to & being in the dwelling-house of the said B., & which are enumerated & set forth in the second schedule hereunto annexed; & also the stock-in-trade, implements of business, & machinery in the said schedule enumerated & set forth.” In the margin of the schedule different localities were mentioned, & opposite to them the goods specified, some of the articles in question being as follows:—“Stable & coach house; three horses, three sets harness, one straw-cutter, one cow, one cutter, two buggies, etc., lumber yard; two waggons, one pair bob-sleighs, four wheelbarrows, trestles & scaffolding”:—Held: the description as to these was insufficient.—HAWORTH v. Sect. 2.—Form of bills of sale by way of security:
Sub-sect. 8, B. & C.]

The grantor of a bill of sale, given as security for an advance, was, at the time of the execution of such bill of sale, possessed of books to the number of 1,800 volumes, which were in a study at his house. The schedule annexed to the bill of sale commenced with the words: "The whole of the chattels at present at W. Vicarage, & consisting (inter alia) of the following." It then proceeded to specify the furniture & other chattels contained in each of the rooms in the house. Under the head "Study" was the item: "Eighteen hundred volumes of books as per catalogue." There was a catalogue of the books in the study in existence previously to the bill of sale. There was no evidence of facts showing that there was any difficulty in identifying the books comprised in the bill of sale without referring to the catalogue:

Held: the books were specifically described, inasmuch as the words "as per catalogue" were not restrictive of the previous part of the descripinsufficient as to all the goods.—WILSON v. KERR (1860), 18 U. C. R. 470.—CAN.

k. — Stock mortgage—Stock not earmarked as described.—By a mtge. of stock, which was duly registered, bkpt. had mortgaged to resp. a herd of cattle & certain sheep depasturing on land of the grantor therein described, & also all after-acquired stock. The instrument described all the stock as earmarked with the registered earmark of bkpt., & contained a covenant to brand and earmark. But no brand was specified in the instrument, & neither then nor subsequently did any of the cattle bear bkpt.'s brand or earmark: Held: (1) as the earmarks on the cattle were not the earmarks mentioned in the mtge., the description was insufficient under Chattels Transfer Act, 1908, s. 25; (2) though the instrument was not valid for the purposes of s. 25, the provision in s. 26 that an instrument comprising stock shall be deemed to include all the stock the property of the grantor which he has covenanted to brand or mark, & which are depasturing on the land mentioned in the instrument, made the security valid.—*BAILEY'S OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. m. — As to locality.—The goods were described as "all the goods in the house of the mtgor.; in bedroom No. 1, one bureau," etc., describing the articles in each room, & adding, "all the hereinbefore described goods & chattels being in the dwelling house of the party of the first part, situate on Q. street, in the town of B.; also, one bay mare, one covered buggy," etc., "being on the premises of the party of the first part on said Q. street; also the following goods & articles, being in the store of the party of the first part, on the corner of Q. & M. streets, in the said town of B.; that is to say, eighty-five gallons of vinegar," giving a long list; "& also the following goods, being of the stock-in-trade of the party of the first part, taken in the month of Apr. last; that is to say, sixteen pieces of tweed," etc.: Held: all the goods were sufficiently identified the books assigned.—DAVIDSON v. CARLTON BANK, [1893] 1 Q. B. 82; 62 L. J. Q. B. 111; 67 L. T. 641; 41 W. R. 132; 9 T. L. R. 20; 39 Sol. Jo. 699; 4 R. 100, C. A.

427. General words of bill—Whether limited by description in schedule.—A bill of sale purported to assign to R. "all the household goods & furniture of every kind & description whatsoever in the house No. 2, M. Place, more particularly mentioned & set forth in an inventory or schedule of even date, & given up to R. on the execution thereof." At the time of the execution of the bill of sale one chair was delivered to R. in the name of the whole of the goods & furniture. The inventory did not specify all the goods & furniture in the house:—Held: the bill of sale only operated as an assignment of the goods & furniture specified in the inventory.—WOOD v. ROWCLIFFE (1851), sufficiently described, for the last parcel of goods might be taken as described to be in the store.—MATHERS v. LYNCH (1869), 28 U. C. R. 354.—CAN.

n. — ——The goods were described as set forth in the schedules annexed. Schedule D. was headed, "Household furniture & property of J. R. McDermott," & the several apartments containing the furniture were specified:—Held: sufficient, as it might be assumed to refer to the party's residence.—FRASER v. BANK OF TORONTO (1860), 19 U. C. R. 381.—CAN.

o. — ——The property was described as "the goods, chattels, furniture, & household stuff expressed in the schedule hereunto annexed," which schedule was headed, "An inventory of goods & chattels in the possession of one J. R." on a named day. It proceeded to mention certain rooms & the articles therein contained: then jewellery, blankets, household linen, silver, etc., the locality of the house in which the goods, etc., were contained not being mentioned:—Held: sufficient.—POWELL v. BANK OF UPPER CANADA (1861), 11 C. P. 303.—CAN.

p. — ——Goods "in bond."—Semble: the description of goods as "in bond," means in the customs warehouse, & is a sufficient description as regards locality.—MAY v. SECURITY LOAN & SAVINGS Co. (1880), 45 U. C. R. 106.—CAN.

q. — ——Stock mortgage.—Where sheep were described in a mtge. as at a certain station, which was their headquarters, but at which they were not at the time, having to travel about the country in search of feed. Qu.: whether this fact invalidated the mtge.—SYNNOT v. ETTERSHANK (1877), 3 V. L. R. 136.—AUS.

r. — ——Household furniture in dwelling-house—Erroneous description.—Goods intended to be included in a chattel mtge. were described therein as those mentioned in the schedule, the property of the mtgors., situate upon the premises on the north-east corner of certain streets in a township. The schedule contained a list of goods, which consisted of household furniture, each article being described, & the articles in each room set out under a heading describing the room. The mtge. contained a covenant that if the mtgors. should part with the possession of the goods, the mtgee. was entitled to take possession:—Held: (1) the mortgaged goods were the property of the mtgors., in their possession, & contained in the building described in the mtge.; (2) the building was the dwelling house of the mtgors., the goods the household furniture in use by the mtgors.; (3) although when the mtge. was executed, the goods were in the house at the north-west corner, & not the north-east corner, the mtge. was not void: the erroneous part of the description might be rejected, & the statement that they were contained in the mtgors.' dwelling house would remain.—SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE (ACCOUNTANT OF) v. MARCON (1899), 30 O. R. 135.—CAN.

s. — ——Goods in warehouse of third party.—C. & J., by mtge., conveyed certain goods, mentioned & described in schedules attached thereto, to plff. Some of the goods mentioned therein were in possession of the manufacturer, one R.; other portions were in certain rooms in the A. & B. Hotels. The description given merely designated a portion of the property by locality, giving no particular description, & was as follows: "All & singular the goods & chattels, furniture, household stuff, & articles particularly mentioned & expressed in the schedule hereunto annexed, & which are now in the warehouse of R., in the city of H., & are about to be placed in the building known as the B. Hotel." The schedule began: "Schedule mentioned & referred to in the annexed indenture; one set parlour furniture," etc. (describing some articles), "in parlour H. One walnut bedstead," etc. (describing several articles), "in parlour C.":—Held: (1) all the goods in the schedule described as having been in certain rooms in either of the hotels, passed by the mtge.; (2) goods described specifically without any local description, passed; (3) goods which were made at the time of executing the mtge., & were the property of the mtgors. in R.'s warehouse, passed under the mtge. as a distinct grant from those in the schedules.—MILLS v. KING (1864), 14 C. P. 223.—CAN.

t. — ——Goods not on locality specified.—A description of goods as "being now on the premises occupied by the" mtgors. "in the town of P., being lot," etc., "& being composed of one stumping machine, one prize buggy, one lumber waggon complete," etc.:—Held: sufficient as to all the goods, though the stumping machine & waggon were not on the premises.—BERTRAM v. PENDRY (1877), 27 C. P. 371.—CAN.

inventory included stock-in-trade, which was not mentioned in the deed:—Held: the inventory could not, contrary to the intention of the parties, be allowed to enlarge the operation of the deed, & as it was not, as a matter of fact, intended that the stock-in-trade should be included in the mtge., it passed to the trustee in the liquidation of the mtgor.—Re McMANUS, Ex p. JARDINE (1875), 10 Ch. App. 322; 44 L. J. Bcy. 58; 32 L. T. 681; 23 W. R. 736, L. J. J.

431. Articles described in schedule—Bought before but not on premises until after execution.]—In an assignment of all the furniture in a house, & comprised in a schedule annexed, goods bought & inserted in the schedule before, but not received until after, the execution of the bill of sale, will pass.—SUTTON v. BATH (1858), 1 F. & F. 152; subsequent proceedings, 3 H. & N. 382.

432. Assignment of "personal estate"—Whether term of years included.]—A bill of sale recited that B. owed pltf. £50 for goods supplied, & that B. assigned to pltf. "all the household goods, furniture, stock-in-trade, chattels, etc., at the Black Bull, & all other his personal estate whatsoever to which he was entitled." B. surrendered the remainder of his term in the Black Bull to his landlord:—Held: the bill of sale operated only to pass the chattels personal, & not the term of years.—HARRISON v. BLACKBURN (1864), 17 C. B. N. S. 678; 5 New Rep. 90; 34 L. J. C. P. 109; 11 L. T. 453; 10 Jur. N. S. 1131; 13 W. R. 135; 144 E. R. 272.

433. Assignment of restaurant & trade fittings—Whether loose articles included.]—A. mortgaged the business of a restaurant together with the trade fixtures, fittings & other articles used for carrying on the business. The deed was not registered as a bill of sale. The loose articles were described in an inventory & included cooking utensils & furniture used in the restaurant as well as the general furniture of the house:—Held: the loose articles did not pass.—Re MACDONALD, DOWLING v. STEWART, [1885] W. N. 98.

d. Assignment of "wheat & grain & all other personal property of like nature"—Timber & sawmiller's stock-in-trade not included.] HURREY v. BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES (1882), 1 N. Z. L. R. C. A. 115.—N.Z.

e. Mortgage on "saw-logs"—Binds lumber into which sawn.]—A mtge. on saw-logs binds the lumber into which they are sawn, but the mtgee. must prove that such lumber was made out of them.—WHITE v. BROWN (1855), 12 U. C. R. 477.—CAN.

f. Mortgage of ship "with her boats, guns, ammunition, small arms, & appurtenances"—Piano on board not included.]—ST. JOHN v. BULLIVANT (1881), 45 U. C. R. 614.—CAN.

g. "Assignment of book debts, etc."—Moneys due from insurance company not included.]—The usual agreement called an "assignment of book debts, etc.," taken by banks from customers is of insufficient strength to justify the ct. in holding that moneys due from insurance cos. for loss by fire are book debts, or are ejusdem generis with book debts.—ROYAL BANK v. HEALBY (1916), 27 O. W. R. 428.—CAN.

h. Assignment of real & personal property—Whether book debts included.]—A co. made a mtge. of "its undertakings then made or in course of construction or thereafter to be constructed, together with all the properties real or personal, tolls, incomes, and sources of money, rights, privileges, and franchises, owned or held by it":—Held: the mtge. created an equitable charge on present future book debts, though not specifically mentioned.—NATIONAL TRUST CO. v. TRUSTS & GUARANTEE CO. (1912), 26 O. L. R. 279.—CAN.

k. Assignment of goods in specified place—Locality limited.]—M., owning parts of lots 13 & 14 in the 2nd concession of Murray, gave a chattel mtge. of certain crops, grain, hay, etc., described as "now being on the premises situate on the north-east half of lot 14 in the 2nd concession, & north half of lot 14 in the said concession of Murray":—Held: crops & hay upon lot 13 could not pass.—GRASS v. AUSTIN (1882), 7 A. R. 511.—CAN.

l. —.—In an action against a sheriff for false return the defence was that the goods seized & subsequently, on his being indemnified, abandoned by him, & which were on Bald Lake, Buckhorn Lake, Sandy Creek, & Squaw River, were covered by a chattel mtge. to a bank, the goods in which mtge. were described as being "now in & upon the waters of Mud Lake, Pigeon Creek, Pigeon Lake, Sturgeon Lake, & Scugog River, & the shore adjacent thereto." The evidence showed that the former waters were well known as such, & as distinct from & forming no part of the latter, & that no part of the goods seized had ever been "in & upon" the latter:—Held: the words in the mtge., "now in & upon," expressly limited the goods to which they referred to those goods which were then upon the waters mentioned in the mtge., & the shore adjacent thereto, & could not include the goods seized.—DONNELLY v. HALL (1885), 7 O. R. 581.—CAN.

m. Assignment of stock-in-trade—"In course of delivery" Goods lying at wharf included.] A trader, in consideration of a debt, by deed assigned to pltf. all his stock-in-trade, etc., on certain premises, "or in course of delivery to him":—Held: to pass his interest in goods lying at the wharf in the town where he resided, but not actually delivered to him.—McPHERSON v. REYNOLDS (1857), 6 C. P. 491.—CAN.

n. — Whether "account register" included Intention of parties.]—It was apparent from the terms of a chattel mtge. of a certain stock in trade that the word "stock" was used in a special & peculiar sense by the parties, & while if interpreted in its general & ordinary sense, the term in question would have included an "account register" placed in the shop, the ct. declined to hold that the account was included in the goods covered by the mtge.—DOMINION REGISTER CO. v. HALL (1913), 12 E. L. R. 494; 11 D. L. R. 366.—CAN.

o. — Tools not included.]—A bill of sale contained an assignment of "all & singular the stock-in-trade" of a cabinet maker:—Held: tools were not included.—PETERS v. JOSEPH, 3 J. R. N. S. 142.—N.Z.

p. — Movable property & specified stock—Shares not specified not included.]—All the assignor's "stock-in-trade, wares, merchandise, groceries, household furniture, & movable personal property in, upon, or belonging to his store, dwelling, warehouse, wharf, & tenement in Ontario street, in the city of K., or elsewhere (save & except & excluding the goods & chattels of the said J. F.," the assignor, "in the possession, control, or charge of D. only), & also all his stock in the K. Co.":—Held: shares in the B. Co. did not pass.—HEWITT v. CORBETT (1857), 15 U. C. R. 39.—

q. Assignment of stock-in-trade & book debts By new firm taking over business—Book debts due to old firm included.]—V. & C. sold their business, including all their stock-in-trade & book debts, to H. & B., who shortly afterwards gave a chattel mtge. to E. covering the stock-in-trade of the business, & also all book debts due to H. & B. in the business carried on by them:—Held: book debts originally due to V. & C. & assigned by them to H. & B. were covered by the chattel mtge.—ROBINSON v. EMPEY (1904), 24 C. L. T. Occ. N. 343; 10 B. C. R. 466.—CAN.

r. Stock mortgage Must describe station where stock depasturing.]—The station whereon stock are depasturing is an essential particular of a valid registered stock mtge., & must be truly described.—SLEE O'GILBY & CO. v. MURPHY (1890), 16 V. L. R. 636.—AUS.

s. — Brands must be clearly specified.]—In order to obtain protection given to stock mtges. by Stock Mortgages Act, s. 4, the brands of the mortgaged stock must be clearly specified so that any person on going to the place where the stock are depasturing can clearly see what are mortgaged & what are not. It is not sufficient to describe the brands as "various."—Re GEOHEGAN, Ex p. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE (1897), 18 N. S. W. B. 26.—AUS.

t. — Protection of stock branded, as described in instrument.]—Held: a mtge. of stock under Chattels Securities Act, 1880, Part II., protected only stock branded as described in the instrument. Qu.: whether a mtge. of horses not forming part of the stock of a farm or station was a mtge. of stock under Part II. of the Act.—Re SOMERVILLE (1889), 7 N. Z. L. R. 400.—N.Z.

a. — "Other chattels"—Instruments Act, 1890, ss. 169, 170, 171.]—The words "other chattels" on any station in Victoria in the above Act include all other chattels whatever may be their nature & whatever may be the purpose for which they are used on such station.—INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO. OF AMERICA v. ROWE, [1909] V. L. R. 244.—AUS.

b. Assignment of vehicle & horse—Not a mortgage of "stock" as regards

See 1878 Act, s. 10 (3); 1882 Act, s. 9.

434. Defeasance—Agreement made before or on execution of bill—Agreement not to register bill by grantee.]—In consideration of £242, advanced by a money-lender, a bill of sale was executed to secure repayment of £342 by instalments. The extra £100 was charged by way of bonus, & in consideration of so large a bonus the lender undertook, verbally, not to register his bill of sale. The bill of sale was, nevertheless, registered:—Held: the undertaking not to register was not a defeasance.—Re STORRY, Ex p. POPPLEWELL (1882), 21 Ch. D. 73; 52 L. J. Ch. 39; 47 L. T. 274; 31 W. R. 35, C. A.

435. ——— Promissory note by grantor.]—By a bill of sale, the grantor assigned certain specified chattels to secure to the grantees repayment of £80, & interest thereon at 30 per cent., the principal sum to be paid, together with the interest then due, by equal monthly payments of £5 6s. on specified days until the whole sum & interest should be fully paid. The grantor at the same time gave a separate promissory note bearing the same date as the bill of sale, promising to pay the grantees, or order, £95 12s., by equal monthly instalments of £5 6s. payable on the same days as the monthly payments in the bill of sale, until the whole £95 12s. should be fully paid, & the note contained a stipulation that in case of default in payment of any instalment the whole of the same sum should become due & payable:—Held: by reason of such stipulation the promissory note was a defeasance, because if at any time the whole sum payable on the note were paid, the rights of the grantees under the bill of sale would cease, & the bill of sale was void.—COUNSELL v. LONDON & WESTMINSTER LOAN & DISCOUNT CO. (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 512; 56 L. J. Q. B. 622; 36 W. R. 53; 4 T. L. R. 2, C. A.

a.] A bill of sale given by an expressman over his vehicle & horse is not as regards the horse a mtge. of stock within Chattels Transfer Act, 1889, s. 23, but a mtge. of a specific chattel. ANDREWS v. FAN TU (1909), 28 N. Z. L. R. 1012.—N.Z.

PART V. SECT. 3.

c. Defeasance—Must be contained in bill.]—Held: the chattels security was void because subject to a defeasance not included therein.—HAYES v. ROSS, [1919] N. Z. L. R. 777.—N.Z.

d. ——— Avoidance as between parties.]—A document made void by Chattels Transfer Act, 1889, s. 26, by reason of being subject to a condition or defeasance not contained in the body thereof, is void even as between the parties thereto.—OWLES v. LOVICK (1892), 11 N. Z. L. R. 178.—N.Z.

434 i. ——— Agreement made before or on execution of bill—Bill absolute in form.] Qv.: whether a bill absolute in terms, but subject to a defeasance, which is not reduced to writing & filed, is void against the persons named in Bills of Sale Act, s. 1.—SHERATON v. WHELFLEY (1880), 20 N. B. R. 75. CAN.

434 ii. ——— ———.]—A bill of sale, absolute on its face, was made subject to a defeasance or equity of redemption, but the defeasance was not filed under the Bills of Sale Act:—Held: the bill of sale was inoperative, & vested no title in the grantee as against the assignee of the grantor.—Re DE VEBER, Ex p. DE VEBER (1882), 21 N. B. R. 397.—CAN.

434 iii. ——— Verbal defeasance.]—A bill of sale absolute in its terms was made subject to a verbal defeasance:—Held: under Secret Bills of Sale Act, s. 2, such defeasance should have been written on the same paper or parchment on which the bill of sale was written, before the time when the latter or a copy thereof was filed; & the bill of sale alone having been filed, was void as against a judgment creditor of the grantor.—WILSON v. O'CONNEL (1865), 4 N. S. W. S. C. R. 264.—AUS.

435 i. ——— Promissory note by grantor.]—A bill of sale was given to two parties, & separate interests were secured to each under it. At the time the grantor executed the bill of sale he gave, in addition, a promissory note to one of the grantees for the amount of his debt secured under the bill of sale. No mention was made of the note in the bill of sale, & the other grantee knew nothing about the transaction:—Held: the giving of the note was not a defeasance or condition to which the bill of sale was subject within Chattel Securities Act, 1880, s. 52; nor was it part of the consideration for which the bill of sale was given.—COMMERCIAL PROPERTY & FINANCE CO. v. WATERS' OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE (1890), 8 N. Z. L. R. 560.—N.Z.

435 ii. ——— ———.]—Where, by a bill of sale, the amount secured was made payable on demand, & a promissory note at three months was given to secure the same amount in order to enable the lender to finance:—Held: the note was not a defeasance of the bill of sale within Chattel Securities Act, 1880, s. 52. CHRISTCHURCH FINANCE CO. v. DURANT & SON (1889), 7 N. Z. L. R. 619.—N.Z.

435 iii. ——— ———.]—A bill of sale of personal chattels, given to secure the repayment of certain money advanced, provided for redemption on payment on demand of the sum secured. Immediately before or at the time of the execution of the bill of sale, a promissory note for the principal & three months' interest was given, payable three months after date, & it was arranged that the money was to be lent for three months, & if paid off meanwhile there was to be a rebate of interest. The bill of sale was filed in accordance with Instruments & Securities Act, 1864, No. 204, s. 56, & Bills of Sale Act, No. 55, s. 1, but neither the promissory note nor arrangement was referred to:—Held: the promissory note & arrangement made amounted to a condition of defeasance of the bill of sale &, as it was not contained in the body of it or written on the same paper as the bill of sale, was null & void by virtue of 1864 Act, s. 57.—ANTHONESSE v. ANDERSON (1888), 14 V. L. R. 127.—AUS.

g. ——— Letter authorising mortgagee to collect book debts assigned.]—Where a bill of sale contains an assignment of book debts & a power to the mtgee. to at any time require payment of the same to himself, & to collect the same, whether any default has been made by the mtgor. or not, a letter given by the mtgee. to the mtgor., authorising the mtgor. to collect same, & reserving the right to cancel such authority if the mtgee. should at any time be dissatisfied with the way in which the mtgor. was collecting them, or with the amount being paid away by him, is not inconsistent with the terms of the bill of sale, & is not a condition or defeasance within Chattels Transfer Act, 1889, s. 26.—Re MARSH (1893), 12 N. Z. L. R. 456.—N.Z.

h. ——— Oral agreement for return of property.]—A document purported on its face to be an absolute transfer, with a right to immediate possession, but it was referred to in the affidavit as a bill of sale, & the evidence showed that there was an understanding, not reduced to writing, that S., the grantor, should get the property back on payment of the amount secured. After the filing of the bill of sale, the property was allowed to remain in the possession of S.:—Held: the oral agreement for the return of the property was not a "defeasance" in the sense in which that term is used, & the section of the Act which requires every defeasance to which a bill of sale is subject to be filed with it, was not applicable.—FRASER v. MURRAY (1901), 34 N. S. R. 186.—CAN.

k. ——— Oral agreement as to terms of repayment.]—Appl. sold a vehicle to one R. for a sum of £18 of which £2 was paid in cash, & the balance was to be paid by instalments of £1 5s. a month, & a document was signed by R. which was intended simply to give appl. the rights & powers of a mtgee. upon default in payment of any instalment. The document purported, however, to be a contract by R. to hire the vehicle to pay for it monthly the sum of £1 5s., & it did not specify the period over which such payments were to extend, nor contain any provision that upon payment of the last instalment the vehicle should become the property of R.:—Held: the document was void, as an instrument given subject to a defeasance or condition not expressed therein, or set out pursuant to Chattels Transfer Act, 1889, s. 26.—WRIGHT v. CARMODY (1897), 16 N. Z. L. R. 155.—N.Z.

repayment of a sum of money & interest, & at the same time, & as part of the same transaction gave them his promissory note for payment of the same sum & interest by instalments of the same amounts & to be paid on the same days as provided by the bill of sale. The promissory note also stipulated that in the event of any of the instalments falling into arrear the whole amount outstanding should immediately become due & payable. In an action on the promissory note:—Held: though the stipulation in the promissory note rendered the bill of sale void, the promissory note was good & plffs. were entitled to recover.—MONETARY ADVANCE CO. v. CATER (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 785; 57 L. J. Q. B. 463; 59 L. T. 311; 4 T. L. R. 464, D. C.

437. — Joint & several promissory note by grantor & others.]—Plff. gave a bill of sale to deft. to secure an advance of £60 & interest at 40 per cent. per annum, payable by weekly instalments, & on the same day plff., & three other persons as sureties, gave deft. a joint & several promissory note, payable on demand, for £85, being £60 & £25 interest thereon. The promissory note was a separate instrument & was not registered as part of the bill of sale. The evidence showed that the bill of sale & promissory note constituted one transaction for the securing of the loan of £60:—Held: the bill of sale was void, & fact that other persons besides the grantor of the bill of sale had joined in giving the promissory note made no difference.—ONN v. FISHER (1889), 5 T. L. R. 504.

438. — Mortgage to secure same debt & other advances.]—A bill of sale was given to secure repayment of £110 at the expiration of one month. At the same time the grantor of the bill of sale gave to the grantee a mtge. to secure repayment of £140, which included the £110, & covenanted to pay same on demand:—Held: the covenant in the mtge. was a defeasance.—ELLIS v. WRIGHT (1897), 76 L. T. 522, C. A.

439. — With different provisos.]—A. gave a bill of sale to secure £1,000, & on the same day executed a mtge. of his leaseholds to secure the same loan. The mtge. contained provisos different from the terms of the bill of sale:—Held: the mtge. was not a defeasance or condition, but an independent contract not requiring registration.—Re LEBER, Ex p. TRUSTEE (1908), 52 Sol. Jo. 483.

440. — Prior mortgage to secure same debt.]—A. borrowed money from B. & lent same to himself & his co-trustee C. A. & C. gave a bill of sale to B. to secure the loan, but prior to granting the bill of sale they had given mtges. of leaseholds to B. to secure the same loan:—Held: the mtges. did not operate as a defeasance of the bill of sale.—Re JONES, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER (1910), 55 Sol. Jo. 30, D. C.

441. — Alteration of terms of payment.]—A bill of sale was given for an advance of £30 to be repaid by monthly instalments of £2 10s. with interest at 60 per cent. On the day when the bill was executed the grantee gave to the grantor a letter agreeing to accept 25s. per month as interest:—Held: the agreement as to the interest was not a defeasance which it was necessary to set forth in the bill.—REED v. FRANKS (1900), 16 T. L. R. 347.

Annotation:—Overd. Pettitt v. Lodge & Harper, [1908] 1 K. B. 744.

442. —]—By a bill of sale the mtgor. agreed to pay the principal sum, together with the interest then due, by equal weekly instalments. Owing to the difficulty of calculating the varying amount of interest due from week to week the parties agreed to substitute for the mode of payment provided by the bill of sale payment by equal weekly instalments of an increased amount, to cover principal & interest, but that arrangement did not alter the aggregate amount payable by the mtgor. for principal & interest: Held: that was a defeasance which ought to have been contained in the body of the bill of sale, or written on the same paper with it before registration, & the bill of sale was void. Reed v. Franks, No. 411, ante overd.—PIETIT v. LODGE & HARPER, [1908] 1 K. B. 744; 77 L. J. K. B. 413; 98 L. T. 771; 24 T. L. R. 329; 15 Mans. 136, C. A.

443. — Guarantee by third person.]—A guarantee given by a third person to pay on demand any unpaid balance of the loan & interest secured by a bill of sale is not a condition or defeasance, & does not require registration.—OAKES v. GREEN (1907), 23 T. L. R. 560.

444. — Card of conditions shown before execution of bill.]—At the time of the giving of a bill of sale as security for an advance, & before the completion of the transaction, the grantee handed to the grantor a card on which were printed certain conditions, which were made part of the bargain before the money was lent. One of the conditions was to the effect that borrowers were strictly prohibited from obtaining or endeavouring to obtain money from any other loan office until the account was paid; otherwise they would be liable for the full amount to be called in, as though an instalment had been missed. This condition was not inserted with the mtgor. that, as long as he paid the interest due under the bill of sale, no seizure would be made:—Held: such an agreement was a condition or defeasance within Chattel Securities Act, 1880, s. 52, & not being set out, the bill of sale was void.—CHRISTCHURCH FINANCE CO. v. DURANT & SON (1889), 7 N. Z. L. R. 619.—N.Z.

m. — Subsequent lien.]—Resp. bank agreed to advance W. £1,000 on a mtge. of stock by himself & a guarantee by R. W. & R. attended at the bank, & executed respectively a mtge. of stock for £1,000 & further advances & a guarantee limited to £1,000. W. then, at the request of the manager of the bank, drew a cheque on the bank for £1,000. The manager took the cheque & obtained from his teller £1,000 in notes. W. then signed a credit slip for £1,000, & the £1,000 in notes was handed to the teller with the credit slip, and lodged to the credit of W. The mtge. of stock contained covenants by W. to give the bank wool liens yearly. Immediately after the lodging of the £1,000 to the credit of W., & at the same interview, the manager produced a form of wool lien, filled it up as a security for £1,000 and further advances, & requested W. to sign it. W. at first objected, but signed it before leaving the bank. None of the three documents, the mtge. of stock, the guarantee, & the wool lien, contained any reference to either of the others. By both mtge. of stock & wool lien the balance of the account current between W. & the bank was made payable on demand. By the mtge. of stock, W., besides covenanting to give wool liens yearly, further covenanted to deliver all his wool to the order of the bank. The wool lien itself contained the usual provisions enabling the bank to sell the wool, & apply the proceeds in payment of the amount secured, although no demand or default should have been made:—Held: (1) the guarantee was not a defeasance either of the mtge. of stock or of the wool lien within Chattels Transfer Act, 1889, s. 26; (2) the giving of the wool lien was a transaction subsequent to & distinct from the giving of the mtge. of stock, & the wool lien could not be a defeasance of the mtge. of stock within that sect.; (3) the wool lien, even if contemporaneous with the mtge. of stock, would not have been a defeasance of the mtge. of stock within the sect.; (4) the mtge. of stock was not a defeasance of the wool lien within the sect.—

in the bill of sale, which otherwise was in accordance with the form in the sched. to the Bills of Sale Act (1878) Amendment Act, 1882 :—Held : as the condition was not inserted in the bill of sale, & would have avoided it if it had been inserted, the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form, & was absolutely void, & the grantor's covenant for payment of interest was not enforceable by the grantee.—SMITH v. WHITEMAN, [1909] 2 K. B. 437 ; 78 L. J. K. B. 1073 ; 100 L. T. 770 ; 16 Mans. 283, C. A.

445. — Letter undertaking not to mortgage or borrow from other office.—At the time of the giving of a bill of sale as security for an advance & before the completion of the transaction, the grantee obtained from the borrower a letter addressed to the grantee & signed by the borrower to the following effect : “ I have this day obtained from you £34 upon the faith of my representation that the furniture ” comprised in the bill of sale “ is my own property free from any charge, & I hereby undertake & agree not to mtge. same or any part thereof in any way whatsoever nor borrow from any other loan office until the whole of the above sum has been repaid. Further, I am quite aware that it is solely upon the faith of these representations that I have obtained the advance from you.” The agreement was not inserted in the bill of sale, which otherwise was in the statutory form. The jury found that the signature of the letter by the borrower was a condition of obtaining the advance :—Held : as the agreement ought to have been inserted in the bill of sale, & if so inserted, would have operated as a defeasance of the security by virtue of the defeasance clause therein contained, the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form.—HALL v. WHITEMAN, [1912] 1 K. B. 683 ; 81 L. J. K. B. 660 ; 105 L. T. 854 ; 28 T. L. R. 161 ; 19 Mans. 143, C. A.

446. — Agreement made after execution of bill.—Hiring agreement after absolute bill.—A. agreed to make an advance to B. on having an absolute bill of sale of B.'s furniture, & it was agreed that the purchase should be made at the full value of the furniture. The bill of sale was made & registered. Shortly after the execution of the instrument but on the same day at a different place A. executed an agreement with B. to let the furniture to him at a rental of £21 per annum payable half-yearly. That agreement was not registered. The negotiations for the agreement for hire were subsequent to the arrangement for the advance of the money, although before the execution of the bill of sale. It was admitted that the execution of the deeds was on the same day, & within a short time of each other :—Held : (1) the utmost that could be attempted to be contended was that it was void under 1878 Act, s. 10 (3), because the bill of sale was accompanied by another agreement which it was alleged was a defeasance & was not registered with the bill of sale ; (2) the two agreements were separate & distinct & bona fide & the bill of sale was valid.—Re MCGINITY, Ex p. MCSHANE (1884), 29 Sol. Jo. 70, D. C.

447. — Book of “ rules & regulations ” received after execution of bill.—Pltf. signed a bill of sale & paid the first instalment, & deft. sent him a receipt in a book, on the cover of which were printed, “ Rules & regulations which are strictly adhered to.” Those rules & regulations contained various provisions very burdensome to pltf., which had not previously been mentioned to him. He did not assent so as to bind himself to them, but deft. afterwards wrote to him treating the rules & regulations as part of the bargain :—Held : the bargain being complete at the time when the bill of sale was executed, & the rules & regulations being no part of it, the false statement of deft. that they were part of the bargain did not enable the ct. to hold as against him that they were part of it, & so to hold the bill of sale void as being made subject to a condition or defeasance not expressed in it.—LINFOOT v. POCKETT, [1895] 2 Ch. 835 64 L. J. Ch. 752 73 L. T. 197 ; 44 W. R. 66 ; 11 T. L. R. 590 39 Sol. Jo. 721 ; 2 Mans. 482 ; 12 R. 504, C. A.

448. — Alteration of terms of payment.—An agreement between a grantor & grantee of a bill of sale, given by way of security for payment of a debt, whereby the terms of payment in the bill of sale are varied, but made subsequent to the execution of the bill of sale & constituting a separate transaction therefrom, is not a defeasance rendering the registration of the bill of sale void.

Deft. having obtained judgment against pltf. for a sum of money, levied execution on pltf.'s chattels, but agreed to withdraw the execution on pltf. executing in deft.'s favour a bill of sale over his chattels as security for payment of the judgment debt & costs of execution. A bill of sale containing a covenant by pltf. to pay the amount in two instalments at the end of three & six months was executed, & the execution was withdrawn. On the day subsequent to the execution of the bill of sale, & as a separate transaction, the parties entered into a verbal agreement, under which pltf. agreed to purchase coal for his business exclusively

n. — Assignments for benefit of creditors.—W., O., & N., traders, by deeds of assignment (A., B., & C.) assigned to pltf. all their real & personal estate in trust for creditors. The assignment A. was made for the general benefit of creditors, & the assignments B. & C. for the benefit of certain preferred creditors, the residue only, if any, being assigned for the benefit of creditors generally. Bearing even date with the assignments, the assignors executed separate bills of sale of their respective personal property (D., E., F.) to pltf., subject to the trusts contained in the deeds of assignment. None of the deeds of assignment were filed. The bills of sale were filed, but were not accompanied with affidavits under the 1883 Act, s. 1 :—Held : the assignments referred to in the bills of sale E. & F., setting out the considerations & trusts on which they were made not being of the character of defeasances, & it sufficiently appearing that no interest remained in the grantors, & that the sales & assignments were made for the benefit of creditors, such assignments were not required to be filed as part of the instrument of transfer.—DURKEE v. FLINT (1886), 7 R. & G. 487 ; 8 C. L. T. 19.—CAN.

o. — Reference to rules of building society.—Bill of sale collateral to mortgage.—Where a bill of sale over chattels upon land, the subject of a prior mtge., & given as collateral security by the mtgor. to his mtgee., a building society, makes reference to the rules of the society containing provisions regarding defeasance, but the bill contains also provisions differing in this respect from both those in the mtge. & those in the rules :—Held : (1) such bill is not void under Instruments Act, 1890, s. 116, as being given subject to a defeasance or condition not contained in the body of the bill, but that such provisions are incorporated by reference ; (2) being collateral to the mtge., the fact that its conditions differed from those in the mtge., did not render the bill of sale void.—WILSON v. BENDIGO MUTUAL PERMANENT LAND & BUILDING SOCIETY (1896), 23 V. L. R. 24.—AUS.

p. — Second bill incorporating first.—Defeasance not apparent.—Where a second bill of sale incorporates the first by reference only, & it is impossible to discover what the real defeasance of the second is without an examination of the first, the second bill of sale is void.—FERRIE v. ISAACS (1889), 7 N. Z. L. R. 745.—N.Z.

from debt., & to pay the amount for which the bill of sale was given as security by instalments of 10s. a week, & debt. agreed that the bill of sale should be unenforceable so long as those conditions were performed:—Held: the agreement subsequent to the bill of sale was not a defeasance, & pltf. was liable to perform its covenant & conditions.—LESTER v. HICKLING, [1916] 2 K. B. 302; 85 L. J. K. B. 1060; 114 L. T. 798.

449. Condition—Antecedent parol arrangement as to repayment.]—An antecedent parol arrangement to repay by instalments a loan secured by a bill of sale is a condition, & as such must be reduced into writing & appear on the registered copy of the bill of sale. Re SOUTHAM, Ex p. SOUTHAM (1874), 1 L. R. 17 Eq. 578; 43 L. J. Bey. 39; 30 L. T. 132; 22 W. R. 456.

450. — Written memorandum as to repayment.]—A bill of sale of chattels, with power to take immediate possession, was expressed to be made in consideration of an advance of £130, to be repaid by certain instalments without interest, the whole to become payable on default in any instalment. In fact the sum advanced was only £100, the mtgee., who was a money-lender, charging the £30 by way of bonus & interest. A written memorandum was signed by the mtgor., at the same time as the bill of sale, which stated that the £30 was to be paid in full, notwithstanding that the money secured by the bill of sale might be repaid, or the mtgee.'s rights under it enforced, before the expiration of the time limited for payment. The bill of sale was registered, but the memorandum was not:—Held: the memorandum was not a condition, & its not being registered did not affect the validity of the bill of sale.—*Re LEES, Ex p. 452. — Deposit of insurance policy—No memorandum of deposit or reference in bill.]—The grantor of a bill of sale deposited with the grantee a policy of insurance on his life as collateral security; there was no memorandum of the deposit, nor was the policy referred to in the bill of sale:—Held: the policy, being only a collateral security, was not a defeasance on condition which required registration.—*CARPENTER v. 453. — Mortgage by wife agreeing to pay compound interest—Bill of sale by husband & wife agreeing to pay simple interest.]—A husband & wife executed a bill of sale to T. to secure repayment of a loan of £300 with simple interest. The wife on the same day mortgaged her interest under certain wills to T. to secure repayment of £300 with compound interest. Both securities were given for the same debt & as part of the same transaction. The bill was registered, but the mtge. was not:—Held: the agreement in the mtge. to pay compound interest was a condition which ought to have been written on the same paper as the bill, & the bill was void under 1878 Act, s. 10 (3).

In considering whether a defeasance or condition is within the above sub-sect., it is immaterial whether it is in favour of grantor or grantee.—EDWARDS v. MARCUS, [1894] 1 Q. B. 587; 63 L. J. Q. B. 363; 70 L. T. 182; 10 T. L. R. 255; 38 Sol. Jo. 234; 1 Mans. 70; 9 R. 337, C. A.

454. — Cheque given to get matter arranged.]—Deft. agreed to lend pltf. £60 upon the security of a bill of sale over her furniture. Deft.'s representative thereupon took an inventory of the furniture, & asked pltf. for 30s., stating that the matter could not go through unless pltf. paid him that amount. Pltf., in order to get the matter through, gave him a cheque for 30s., it being arranged that the cheque should not be cashed until the advance had been made. The bill of sale was subsequently executed to secure £60 & interest, & the £60 was paid in cash to pltf. The bill of sale contained no statement as to the payment of the 30s.:—Held: the payment of the 30s. was not a condition, & it was not necessary that it should be contained in the body of the bill of sale or written on the same paper or parchment therewith before registration, & the bill of sale was not on that account void.—GRAHAM v. HARR, [1917] 1 K. B. 201; 86 L. J. K. B. 111; 115 L. T. 659; [1917] H. B. R. 147, C. A.

455. Declaration of trust—Must be trust in favour of grantor—Grantee undisclosed trustee for third party.]—The declaration of trust required by 1854 Act, s. 2, to be registered must be a trust for the benefit of the assignor of the goods, & a trust between the assignee & a third party need not be registered.

A. having advanced the money of a third person, & taken a bill of sale in his own name:—Held: though equity would declare A. a trustee for the person who had found the money, this was not such a trust as need be registered under the above sect.—ROBINSON v. COLLINGWOOD (1861), 17 C. B. N. S. 777; 5 New Rep. 11; 34 L. J. C. P. 18; 11 L. T. 313; 10 Jur. N. S. 1080; 13 W. R. 84; 144 E. R. 311.

457. Contemporaneous letter from grantor undertaking to transfer bill.—K. & P. each advanced £100 to F., who in pursuance of a previous arrangement gave P. a bill of sale on furniture belonging to F. to secure £200, which was expressed in the bill of sale to have been paid by P. to F., whereas in fact K. paid his £100 direct to F. K., who acted as the solr. of F., himself attested the bill of sale, & retained it. He also had given him at the same time a letter signed by P. & addressed to K., stating that the bill of sale was in fact to secure the £100 advanced by K., & undertaking to transfer the bill of sale to K. The bill of sale was registered, but the letter was not written upon or annexed to it:—Held: the contemporaneous letter was a declaration of trust which should have been written on the same paper as the bill of sale before registration.—*KINNERSLEY v. 469. ———.]—A co. gave a bill of sale of all its property to trustees for certain debenture-holders. By a resolution of the directors of the co., it had been provided that the seal of the co. should be affixed to documents only in the presence of two directors, who were to attest it by their signatures. The deed was sealed with the seal of the co., & adjoining the seal were the words: "Seal of the co., affixed at a board meeting June 23, 1865, in the presence of R. O., chairman; R. C., director. Countersigned—C. D., secretary pro tem." There was no other attesting witness. The bill of sale was duly registered, but the affidavit filed with it contained only the address of C. D., & not that of R. O., or of R. C.:—Held: the latter were not attesting witnesses, because they did not attest an execution of the deed already completed, their signatures forming part of such execution, & the affidavit was sufficient, & the bill of sale good.—DEFFELL v. WHITE (1866), L. R. 2 C. P. 144; 36 L. J. C. P. 25; 15 L. T. 211; 12 Jur. N. S. 902; 15 W. R. 68.

470. Who may attest—Agent & manager of one of several grantees.]—A bill of sale of personal chattels was given to secure repayment of money advanced by several firms, creditors of the grantor, in order to enable him to pay a composition to them & to others of his creditors. The sole attesting witness of the bill of sale was the agent & manager of one of the firms who were grantees. He had conducted the negotiations with respect of the giving of the bill of sale & the payment of the composition, & he had to see that such composition was paid to the creditors other than the grantees:—Held: the bill of sale was duly attested, because the attesting witness was not a "party thereto" within 1882 Act, s. 10.—PEACE v. BROOKES, [1895] 2 Q. B. 451; 64 L. J. Q. B. 747; 72 L. T. 798; 2 Mans. 491; 15 R. 593.

471. ——— Grantor's solicitor being also one of two grantees.]—K. & P. each advanced £100 to F., who gave P. a bill of sale on furniture belonging to F. to secure £200, which was expressed in the bill of sale to have been paid by P. to F., whereas in fact K. paid his £100 direct to F. K., who acted as the solr. of F., himself attested the bill of sale, & retained it. He also had given him at the same time a letter signed by P. & addressed to K. stating that the bill of sale was in fact to secure the £100 advanced by K., & undertaking to transfer the bill of sale to K. The bill of sale was registered, but the letter was not written upon or annexed to it:—Held: the bill of sale was void as regards the assignment of the chattels because the letter being a declaration of trust must be deemed to be part of the bill of sale, & K. was a party to the bill, & his attestation of it irregular.—KINNERSLEY v. PAYNE (1909), 100 L. T. 229.

472. Description of attesting witness—Occupation omitted—Witness having no occupation.]—The meaning of the term "description" in the statutory form is not confined to the description of the occupation of the witness.

Where the attestation clause of a bill of sale contained no description of an attesting witness who had no occupation:—Held: the bill of sale was void as not being in accordance with the statutory form.—SIMS v. TROLLOPE & SONS, [1897] 1 Q. B. 24; 66 L. J. Q. B. 11; 75 L. T. 351; 45 W. R. 97; 13 T. L. R. 57; 41 Sol. Jo. 80, C. A.

473. ——— Address & description omitted—Whether cured by affidavit.]—Under 1882 Act, a bill of sale given by way of security is void unless both the address & description of the attesting witness appear in the attestation clause, & the defect is not cured by the fact that such address & description appear in the affidavit filed on registering the bill of sale.—PARSONS v. BRAND, COULSON v. DICKSON (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 110; 59 L. J. Q. B. 189; 62 L. T. 479; 38 W. R. 388; 6 T. L. R. 226, C. A.

474. ———.]—A bill of sale did not contain the addresses & descriptions of the attesting witnesses, though that omission was rectified in the affidavit of registration, which properly contained the addresses & descriptions of the witnesses:—Held: the bill of sale was not in accordance with the statutory form, because it omitted the addresses & descriptions of the attesting witnesses in the attestation clause, & such omission could not be cured by the addresses & descriptions being properly set out in the affidavit.—BLANKENSTEIN v. ROBERTSON (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 543; 59 L. J. Q. B. 315; 62 L. T. 732; 6 T. L. R. 178, D. C.

475. ——— In one attestation clause—Two attestation clauses attested by same witness.]—A bill of sale had two attestation clauses, attesting the execution of the instrument by different grantors respectively. The signature to both clauses was the same, & in one of them the address & description of the attesting witness were given, but in the other they were not. An irresistible inference arose from what appeared on the face of the bill of sale that the witness in the two attestation clauses was the same person:—Held:

the bill of sale sufficiently complied with the statutory form.—BIRD v. DAVEY, [1891] 1 Q. B. 29; 60 L. J. Q. B. 8; 63 L. T. 741; 39 W. R. 40; 7 T. L. R. 5, C. A.

476. Execution—At foot of schedule.—There was no execution on the body of a bill of sale, the intended execution being at the foot of the schedule on a separate paper:—Held: the schedule being by 1882 Act, s. 4, annexed to the bill of sale, the execution was good within s. 9 of that Act & the statutory form.—MELVILLE v. STRINGER (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 132; 50 L. T. 531; 32 W. R. 388, D. C.; reversd. on another point (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 392, C. A.

What documents require registration.—See Parts II. & III., ante.

PART V. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.

a. Execution—Grantee need not execute.—A chattel mtge. need not be executed by the mtgee., & after execution by the grantor & delivery to & acceptance by the mtgee. or his agent it becomes binding as between the parties. The grantor's solrs. are his agents for such purpose.—ADAMS v. HUTCHINGS (1893), 3 Terr. L. R. 206.—CAN.

PART V. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 1.

b. Duty of registrar.—It is the duty of the registrar of any ct. in which bills of sale are required by the Bills of Sale Act, 1891, to be registered, to register any instrument presented to him for registration as a bill of sale, without inquiry as to the effect of such registration.—Re WATSON'S BILL OF SALE (1896), 7 Q. c. Agreement not to register.—Semble: an agreement not to register a chattel mtge. makes it void ab initio.—NATIONAL TRUST CO. v. TRUSTS & GUARANTEE CO. (1912), 26 O. L. R. 279.—CAN.

d. Mortgage not within Act.—If the mtge. is one which the statute does not provide for, or the affidavit cannot possibly be made, then the mtge. is not avoided by the Act for want of registration, or of the recitals required by the Act, but the Act does not apply at all, & the mtge. stands as at common law.—*BALDWIN v. k. Mortgage by company.—If a mtge. within R. S. O. 1897 (c. 148), ss. 2, 23, made by a co. is not registered, it is null & void under s. 5 of the Act.—NATIONAL TRUST CO. v. TRUSTS & GUARANTEE CO. (1912), 26 O. L. R. 279.—CAN.

l. Notice of intention to file—Object of Instrument Act, 1890, s. 135.—Held: (1) the object of the above Act & the fifth sched. thereto, in requiring a statement of the business or occupation, & the place of business or residence of the grantor to be stated was to enable a creditor to see if his debtor was about to give a bill of sale & that object not being fulfilled in this instance, the bill of sale was void: (2) registration could not cure the omission of that which the Act required.—ANDERSON v. WATSON (1891), 17 V. L. R. 263.—AUS.

m. — Statement of consideration in.—If the consideration is sufficiently accurately stated in the notice of intention to file, either as to its legal effect or as to its mercantile & business effect & substantially falls under the

481. — By certificate—That affidavit in proper form.—Upon the trial of an interpleader issue, pltf., in order to prove the due filing of a bill of sale in compliance with 1854 Act, produced the bill of sale itself & the following certificate stamped with the seal of the Ct. of Queen's Bench: "J. & M. A document purporting to be a copy bill of sale, & dated Apr. 8, 1875, indorsed with the above names, was registered at the judgment office of the Ct. of Queen's Bench on Apr. 15, 1875":—Held: no evidence that an affidavit satisfying all the requirements of the Act had been filed with the bill of sale.—MASON v. WOOD (1875), 1 C. P. D. 63; 45 L. J. Q. B. 76; 33 L. T. 571; 40 J. P. 72; 24 W. R. 41.

482. — — ——Semble: a certificate under the seal of the Q. B. D., that an affidavit was filed as required by 1854 Act, is, without production of the affidavit itself, prima facie evidence that the affidavit was in the form required by the Act.—

sub-heading under which it is placed, the notice is in that respect good.

The consideration stated in the notice must be substantially the same as that stated in the bill of sale itself.—O'CONNOR v. QUINN (1911), 12 C. L. R. 239.—AUS.

n. — — — Omission to state contemporaneous guarantee.—At the time of giving a bill of sale the grantees had, in addition to the consideration truly set out in the notice of intention to file the bill of sale, agreed to guarantee the grantor to the extent of £1,000 with a bank. The fact of the agreement to give such guarantee was recited in the deed, but no mention of it was made in the particulars filed under the form given in Instruments Act, 1890:—Held: the omission did not invalidate the bill of sale.—DANBY v. AUSTRALIAN FINANCIAL AGENCY & GUARANTEE CO., LTD. (1892), 18 V. L. R. 303.—AUS.

o. — Description of property in—Substantial variance.—A notice of intention to file a bill of sale described the property secured thereby as consisting of goods, chattels, etc., at present on certain premises. The bill of sale itself also included in the property secured thereby not only the goods, etc., on the premises at the time of making the bill of sale, but also property which might be afterwards acquired:—Held: as there was a substantial variance between the notice & the bill of sale, the registration of the bill was bad.—LYONS v. GRAHAM (1892), 18 V. L. R. 491.—AUS.

SUB-SECT. 2.—TIME FOR REGISTRATION.

See 1878 Act, ss. 8, 10 (2), 14, 22; 1882 Act, s. 8.

484. On same day as bill dated—But before consideration paid.]—B. executed a bill of sale, by way of mtge., of household goods to D., pltf., as a security for a debt of £130, then due from him to D., & for a further advance of £160, then to be made, the receipt of which was acknowledged, & the execution purported to be attested, on the day the bill was dated, Jan. 9. The £160 was not in fact paid till two days after, & the signature of the attesting witness was affixed on the latter day. The bill of sale was registered as of Jan. 9, the day it bore date:—Held: the consideration-money having been paid two days after the execution of the bill of sale, the registration was not informal.—DARVILL v. TERRY (1861), 6 H. & N. 807; 30 L. J. Ex. 355; 158 E. R. 333.

r. ——— Possession given under.]—Instruments Act, 1890, re-enacting Act No. 557, excluded from its application all bills of sale other than those given by way of security. Accordingly, a document which is an absolute transfer, & under which possession is given, need not be filed in the manner prescribed for a bill of sale by way of security.—ASKREW v. DANBY (1892), 18 V. L. R. 335.—AUS.

s. Goods with warehouseman—As agent of transferee.]—Registration of a bill of sale is unnecessary when the goods are in the hands of a warehouseman who becomes the agent of the transferee & agrees to hold the goods for him.—JONES v. HENDERSON (1885), 3 Man. L. R. 433.—CAN.

t. Removal of mortgaged goods—To another county.]—Goods covered by mtge. were removed from a county, & sold in another county to debt., the mtgor. being no party to the removal. Just over two months from removal, the mtgee., on hearing where they were, went & demanded them from debt.:—Held: such a removal was not within the Act, requiring a copy to be filed within two months of the permanent removal of the goods from a. ——— To another province.]—The owner of goods, having executed a chattel mtge. which was duly recorded in the proper registration district in the province of Saskatchewan, afterwards fraudulently removed them to the province of Alberta, where he sold them to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice:—Held: such sale conferred no title to the goods as against the chattel mtge., the Bills of Sale Ordinance, which requires a certified copy of the mtge. to be filed in the registration district to which the goods were removed, being inoperative, as a law of the province of Saskatchewan, beyond the boundaries of that province.—JONES v. TWOHEY (1908), 8 W. L. R. 295; 1 Alta. L. R. 267.—CAN.

b. Remedy for non-registration—At law.]—Where a contract of sale of chattels is not registered as a bill of sale under Act No. 557, the remedy is at law & not in equity.—DAVEY v. BAILEY (1884), 10 V. L. R. 240.—AUS.

488. Proof of time of registration.]—Under 1854 Act, s. 3, the officer of the Queen's Bench kept a book containing a list of every bill of sale filed in the office, & the dates of the execution & filing of same:—Held: that book was of such a public nature that a certified copy was admissible in evidence, & such certified copy proved the time at which the affidavit was filed, as well as the time at which the bill of sale was filed.—GRINDELL v.

e. Within five days—Sunday intervening.]—A chattel mtge. was duly executed on July 12, & filed on the 18th, the 17th having been Sunday:—Held: such registration was too late, R. S. 491. Schedule lost—Copy registered with bill.]

—The schedule to a bill of sale, being written on separate paper, became disannexed from the bill of sale & lost, & a copy of the schedule was registered with the original bill of sale:—Held: the registration of the copy with the bill of sale complied with 1854 Act.—GREEN v. 492. Whether true copy must be exact copy—Clerical errors not calculated to mislead—Name of grantee misspelt.]—In a bill of sale given to Gardnor, such name was correctly spelt, but in the filed copy it was erroneously spelt as Gardner:—Held: the error being merely clerical, & not calculated to mislead, it was immaterial, & did not vitiate the registration of the bill of sale.—GARDNOR v. SHAW (1871), 24 L. T. 319; 19 W. R. 753.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Hewer, Ex p. Kahen (1882), 21 Ch. D. 871.

493. ——— Error in amount in one part of copy.]—Where £1,000 was written by mistake for £100 in one part of the copy of a bill of sale registered in the Ct. of Queen's Bench:—Held: it did not invalidate the bill of sale.—ELLIOTT v. FREEMAN (1863), 1 New Rep. 328; 7 L. T. 715.

Annotation:—Refd. Re Hewer, Ex p. Kahen (1882), 21 Ch. D. 871.

494. ——— Date for payment of instalments omitted.]—A true copy of a bill of sale within 1878 Act, s. 10 (2), need not necessarily be an exact copy, so long as any errors or omissions in the copy filed are merely clerical & of such a nature that no one could be thereby misled.

In a copy bill of sale filed on registration the words "third day of each month" in the proviso was not possible to send the instrument to T. & have it returned for filing with the registrar with the affidavit of bona fides within the five days required by Bills of Sale Act, 1905:—Held: in the order granting an extension of time for filing the instrument there should be a provision protecting intervening rights.—Re ELLIS (W. P.) & Co. (1908), 7 W. L. R. 371; 13 B. C. R. 271.—CAN.

k. ——— Registration at wrong place—No evidence of mala fides.]—Where a bank, in the ordinary course of business obtained a chattel mtge. from a co. indebted to it, but without the knowledge of other creditors, & registered such mtge. in the county ct. instead of with the registrar of joint stock cos., the bank was granted an extension of time within which to register, & an action to set aside the mtge., was dismissed, there being no evidence of mala fides or dissimulation on the part of the bank.—MORRISON THOMPSON HARDWARE CO. v. WEST-BANK TRADING CO. (1911), 16 B. C. R. 314.—CAN.

l. ——— Order granting extension—Sunday intervening.]—A bill of sale, through inadvertence, not being registered within the time limited by 1879 Act, leave was given on the ex p. application of the grantee to register within three days; & the bill of sale was registered on the fourth day from the order, reckoning an intervening Sunday:—Held: (1) Sunday was not to be counted in the three days limited by the order for registration, & that for repayment were omitted:—Held: it was a true copy within 1878 Act, s. 10 (2).—Re HEWER, Ex p. KAHEN (1882), 21 Ch. D. 871; 51 L. J. Ch. 904; 46 L. T. 856; 30 W. R. 954.

495. ——— Blank as to amount.]—In a copy of a bill of sale, the amount of the debt was duly stated in the operative part, but was, by a clerical omission, referred to in the power of sale, & also in the covenant for quiet enjoyment until default, as "the sum of . . ." though the blanks did not occur in the original:—Held: the copy was a true copy.—SHARP v. MCHENRY, SHARP v. BROWN (1887), 38 Ch. D. 427; 57 L. J. Ch. 961; 57 L. T. 606; 3 T. L. R. 847.

496. ——— Blank as to date.]—A bill of sale is not void because the copy filed leaves the date of the execution of the bill of sale in blank, if the date is truly stated in the original bill of sale, & in the affidavit.—THOMAS v. ROBERTS, [1898] 1 Q. B. 657; 67 L. J. Q. B. 478; 78 L. T. 712; 14 T. L. R. 309; 42 Sol. Jo. 365; 5 Mans. 70, D. C. Annotation:—Refd. Coates v. Moore, [1903] 2 K. B. 140.

Clerical errors in affidavit.]—See cases in Subsect. 4, A. & B., post.

497. Whether defect capable of being supplied from affidavit—Signatures of grantor & of attesting witness omitted.]—The copy of a bill of sale filed on registration omitted the signature of the grantor & the signature, address, & description of the attesting witness. The affidavit filed with the copy stated that the bill of sale was duly executed by the grantor, & that the execution thereof was witnessed by the attesting witness, & gave the name, address, & description of the attesting witness:—Held: the bill of sale was not rendered invalid by the omissions in the filed copy, as they might be supplied by reference to the affidavit.—COATES v. MOORE, [1903] 2 K. B. 140; 72 L. J. K. B. 539; 89 L. T. 8; 51 W. R. 648; 10 Mans. 271, C. A.

498. Words "per annum" omitted.]—By a bill of sale the grantor assigned to the grantees certain chattels by way of security for payment of £250 " & interest thereon at the rate of 55 per cent. per annum." The bill of sale was in a printed form, & in the print the interest was stated to be at the rate of "one shilling in the pound per month," but in the bill of sale as executed the words "one shilling in the pound per month" were struck out, & "fifty-five per cent. per annum" were written in above them. The filed copy of the bill of sale was in a similar form, but in the statement of the rate of interest the words "per annum" were omitted:—Held: the bill of sale was void on the ground that the copy filed was not a true copy, by reason of the omission of the words "per annum" therefore the registration had been effected within the time prescribed by that order; (2) the validity of the order could only be questioned in the ct. by which it was made.—Re PARKE (1884), 13 L. R. Ir. 85.—IR.

PART V. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 3.

492 i. Whether true copy must be exact copy—Misleading variations.]—A document is not a true copy of an instrument within Chattel Securities Act, 1880, s. 42, if it varies from the original in such a way that, although it might not mislead a lawyer, it would be unintelligible to the general public.—OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. COLONIAL BANK OF NEW ZEALAND (1887), 5 N. Z. L. R. 456.—N.Z.

Sect. 5.—Registration: Sub-sects. 3 & 4, in the statement of the interest, there being nothing in the rest of the document to supply the omission.—BURCHELL v. THOMPSON, [1920] 2 K. B. 80; 89 L. J. K. B. 533; 122 L. T. 758; 36 T. L. R. 257; 64 Sol. Jo. 307; [1920] B. & C. R. 7, C. A.

499. Truth of copy—How proved—Burden of proof.]—It is incumbent on claimant, under a bill of sale, to show that the document filed is a true copy of the original instrument. A certificate of the registration of a bill of sale, without production of an authenticated or office copy of the bill of sale certified to have been registered, is not sufficient.—EMMOTT v. MARCHANT (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 555; 38 L. T. 508; sub nom. HALKETT v. EMMOTT, 47 L. J. Q. B. 436; 26 W. R. 632, D. C.

SUB-SECT. 4.—THE AFFIDAVIT.

See 1878 Act, ss. 10 (2), 17.

A. Making and Swearing of Affidavit.

500. Who may make—Attesting witness.]—The affidavit for registration of a bill of sale need not be made by an attesting witness.—CRAWCOUR

n. Necessity for affidavit.]—A chattel mtge., registered without an affidavit of execution, is void as against creditors of the mtgor.—PETINATO v. SWIFT CANADIAN CO., LTD. (1919), 46 O. L. R. 247.—CAN.

o. — Bill to secure debt.]—A bill of sale was given as security for an advance of money made by defts. to insolvents to enable them to pay debts:—Held: the bill of sale was security for a debt, not being verified by the affidavit of bona fides as required by Bills of Sale Act, s. 7 (8), was void.—WINTER v. GAULT BROTHERS, LTD. (1913), 25 W. L. R. 210; 13 D. L. R. 176.—CAN.

p. When made.]—Affidavits under 13 & 14 Vict. c. 62, need not be made on the day the mtge. is executed.—PERRY v. RUTTAN (1853), 10 U. C. R. 637.—CAN.

before mortgage executed.]—Where the affidavit of bona fides to a chattel mtge. was sworn to before the execution of the mtge., the mtge. was held invalid.—BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCN. v. BETZNER, 10 C. L. T. Occ. N. 112.—CAN.

500 i. Who may make—Attesting witness.]—The Bills of Sale Ordinance requires an affidavit of bona fides to be made by a witness to the execution of the bill of sale, but as attestation is not essential to the validity of the instrument, its execution can be proved by any competent witness.—EMERSON v. BANNERMAN (1891), 19 S. C. R. 1.—CAN.

500 ii. — — — Whether essential.]—Held: under 12 Vict. c. 74, it was not essential that the affidavit of execution should be of a subscribing witness & where the original had no subscribing witness, but in the copy filed the name of the person who made the affidavit was inserted as a witness, the variance was not material.—ARMSTRONG v. AUSMAN (1854), 11 U. C. R. 498.—CAN.

r. — Mortgagee — In fiduciary position.]—A chattel mtge. to secure a debt was made to a nominee of the creditor, as trustee for him. It was contended that the mtge. was invalid because the mtge. could not properly make the usual affidavit of bona fides, as there was no debt due to him:—Held: notwithstanding there was nothing on the face of the mtge. to show the fiduciary position of the mtgee. the mtge. was valid.—LIGHT v. HAWLEY (1897), 29 O. R. 25.—CAN.

s. — — Not agent.]—13 & 14 Vict. c. 62, requires that the mtgee. himself shall make the affidavit; therefore a mtge. filed upon an affidavit of his agent was held void.—HOLMES v. VANCAMP (1853), 10 U. C. R. 510.—CAN.

t. — — Antenuptial settlement.]—By an antenuptial settlement, made between J. C. of the first part, M. H. (pltf.) his intended wife of the second part & one M. of the third part, in consideration of the intended marriage certain lands & goods were conveyed & assigned to M. to hold to the use of J. C. until the marriage, & thereafter to the use of pltf., her heirs, exors., etc. The assignment was duly registered as a bill of sale. The affidavit of bona fides was made by pltf. after the marriage, she being described therein as the bargainee:—Held: pltf. was a person who, as bargainee, might properly make the affidavit of bona fides.—CONNELL v. HICKOCK (1888), 15 A. R. 518.—CAN.

a. — One of several mortgages.]—It is sufficient if one of several mtgees. make the affidavit required by R. S. O. 1877 (c. 119), s. 2.—TIDEY v. CRAIB (1883), 4 O. R. 696.—CAN.

b. — — —.]—An affidavit made by one of several bargainees or assignees of goods:—Held: sufficient.—HEWARD v. MITCHELL (1854), 11 U. C. R. 625.—CAN.

c. S. P. BALKWELL v. BEDDOME (1858), 16 U. C. R. 203.—CAN.

d. — One of two joint mortgages—Separate debts.]—Where a bill of sale was made to two jointly, & filed on an affidavit of bona fides made by one, but the evidence showed that the consideration was made up of two debts, due to the vendees separately:—Held: sufficient.—MCLEOD v. FORTUNE (1859), 19 U. C. R. 100.—CAN.

e. — — — Mortgages not connected in business.]—F. owed pltf. & M. $200 & $100 respectively for goods supplied by them, & had given a chattel mtge. on his property to A. for $600. Being pressed by A. he applied to pltf. & M. for the money, offering them a chattel mtge. therefor as well as for what he already owed them, which they agreed to, but not having the money at the time they borrowed it from J., giving him their note indorsed by F., & A. was paid off & his mtge. discharged. F. gave pltf. & M. the mtge. in question, the expressed consideration being $900. The affidavit of bona fides was made by pltf. alone, & stated that the mtgor. was justly & truly indebted to him & M. as the mtgees. therein named in the sum of $900 mentioned therein, etc.; & on the renewal of the mtge. the affidavit was made by pltf. in like manner. Pltf. & M. were not connected in business:—Held: the fact of part of the consideration of the mtge. consisting of separate debts to pltf. & M. did not prevent pltf. making the affidavit of bona fides, Chattel Mortgage Act, s. 1, not being limited to cases of joint mtgees. connected in business.—SEVERN v. CLARKE (1879), 30 C. P. 363.—CAN.

f. S. P. CORBY v. CLARKE (1879), 30 C. P. 368.—CAN.

g. — Two joint mortgagees — Not severally sworn.]—The affidavit of bona fides on a chattel mtge. is sufficient, although it purports to be the joint affidavit of two mtgees., & the jurat does not show that they were

h. — Partner.]—One partner can make the affidavit of bona fides.—ROSS v. DUNN (1889), 16 A. R. 552.—CAN.

i. — — — Advances by firm.]—Where an arrangement had been entered into between partners of a firm whereby, although money was to be advanced by the firm, the securities therefor were to be taken in the individual name of each partner according as each was willing to accept the security of the person seeking to borrow:—Held: the mtgee. could properly make the affidavit of bona fides.—HOBBS HARDWARE CO. v. KITCHEN (1889), 17 O. R. 363.—CAN.

j. — Company taking mortgage—President or other principal officer—Without written authority.]—The president or other principal officer of a corp'n. taking a mtge. for & in the name of the corp'n. does not act as its agent, but as principal in the exercise of its corporate powers & may therefore make the affidavit of bona fides under C. S. U. C., c. 45, without authority in writing.—BANK OF TORONTO v. McDUGGALL (1865), 15 C. P. 475.—CAN.

k. — — —.]—Under Bills of Sale & Chattel Mortgage Act, s. 10, the affidavit of bona fides, where the mtgees. are an incorporated co. if made by the president, vice-president, manager, assistant manager, secretary, or treasurer of the co., need not state that the deponent is authorised by resolution of the directors in that behalf, nor that he is aware of the circumstances connected with the mtge. & has personal knowledge of the facts deposed to, the words "officer or agent" being confined in their application to an officer or agent who is not one of the principal officers above enumerated.—UNIVERSAL SKIRT MANUFACTURING CO. v. GORMLEY (1908), 17 O. L. R. 114; 11 O. W. R. 1110.—CAN.

l. — — — Manager — Written authority necessary.]—The affidavit of bona fides of a chattel mtge. was made by the manager of a loan society, no written authority to him being filed with the mtge., nor any statement contained in the affidavit as to his knowledge of the circumstances:—Held:—insufficient.—FREKHOLD LOAN & SAVINGS CO. v. BANK OF COMMERCE (1879), 44 U. C. R. 284.—CAN.

m. — — — Secretary-treasurer — Written authority necessary.]—Where the affidavit of bona fides of a chattel mtge. to an incorporated trading co. was made by the secretary-treasurer, who was also a shareholder in the co. & had an important share in the management of its affairs, there being, however, a president & vice-president:—Held: the affiant was to be regarded not as one of the mtgees., but as an agent, & as no written authority to him was registered, as required by R. S. O. 1887 (c. 125), s. 1, the mtge.

501. Before whom sworn—Commissioner for taking affidavits—Presumption of due performance.]

—An affidavit filed with a bill of sale was properly instituted as in the Queen's Bench, but the jurat appeared to have been sworn before a comr. of the Ct. of Exch.:—Held: the affidavit was not thereby invalidated, it being consistent therewith that the comr. had jurisdiction, & jurisdiction would be presumed, on the principle that omnia presumuntur rite esse acta.—CHENEY v. COURTOIS (1863), 13 O. B. N. S. 634; 1 New Rep. 322; 32 L. J. C. P. 116; 7 L. T. 680; 9 Jur. N. S. 1057; 143 E. R. 252.

was invalid as against creditors.—GREENE & SONS CO. v. CASTLEMEN (1894), 25 O. R. 113.—CAN.

p. ——— Agent—Styled “vice-president.”]—The affidavit of bona fides may be made by the agent or manager of any mtgee. being an incorporated co.—that the person making the affidavit is therein styled “vice-president” does not preclude the co. from asserting that he was its agent.—NEWLANDS v. HIGGINS (1907), 7 W. L. R. 59.—CAN.

q. ——— Assistant secretary—Insufficient evidence of authority.]—Where the affidavit of bona fides was made by one who was not an officer permitted by R. S. O. 1914 (c. 135), s. 12 (2), to make the authorisation by resolution of the directors & where what purported to be an authority to the assistant secretary of pltf., was written on the bill of sale & signed by the secretary-treasurer of the co. with the seal of pltf. co. attached & where no evidence was offered to show that the indorsement was made as the result of any resolution of the directors authorising the assistant secretary to make the affidavit:—Held: this defect rendered the bill of sale null & void against debts.—CLIFF PAPER CO. v. AUGER (1917), 13 O. W. N. 150.—CAN.

r. Signatures to affidavit—Omission of grantor to sign.]—The affidavit attached to a bill of sale purported to be sworn before a Justice of the Peace & was signed by the Justice, but not by the grantor. The bill of sale having been executed under the 1883 Acts:—Held: it was not avoided by reason of defects in the affidavit or by want of an affidavit.—SLOCOMB v. MORSE (1887), 20 N. S. R. (8 R. & G.) 60.—CAN.

501 i. Before whom sworn—Commissioner for taking affidavits.]—An affidavit of bona fides in a chattel mtge. sworn before a person who is in fact a comr. authorised to take affidavits in & for the high ct., but who places after his signature in the jurat only the words “A Comr., etc.,” is good.—CANADA PERMANENT LOAN & SAVINGS CO. v. TODD (1895), 22 A. R. 515.—CAN.

501 ii. ——— Who is also mortgagee.]—Under R. S. M., c. 10, a mtge. is not rendered invalid or void by reason of the affidavit of execution being sworn before the mtgee. himself, he being a comr., for taking affidavits in the Queen's Bench.—INCH v. SIMON (1897), 12 Man. L. R. 1.—CAN.

502 i. ——— Solicitor acting for both parties.]—Affidavits of execution & bona fides may be sworn before a solr. for both parties to the mtge.—BARTHELS SHEWAN & CO., LTD. v. WINNIPEG CIGAR CO. (1910), 10 W. L. R. 263.—CAN.

502 ii. ———.]—A chattel mtge. filed in the county ct. is void where the affidavit of due execution is sworn before the common solr. of both mtgees. & mtgor.—COLUMBIA BITULITHIC v. VANCOUVER LUMBER CO. (1915), 20 D. L. R. 954; 7 W. W. R. 286; affd. 30 W. L. R. 753; 8 W. W. R. 132; 21 D. L. R. 91.—CAN.

a. ——— Solicitor drafting instrument.]—A person who prepared the assignment may take an affidavit as comr.—NOELL v. PELL (1861), 7 L. C. L. J. 322.—CAN.

b. ———.]—Held: the affidavit to the bill of sale was not bad because it had been sworn before the solr. by whom the bill of sale was prepared.—MOSHER v. O'BRIEN (1905), 37 N. S. R. 286.—CAN.

c. ——— Solicitor employed in office of mortgagee's solicitors.]—An affidavit of bona fides may be made before a solr. employed in the office of the mtgee.'s solrs.—CANADA PERMANENT LOAN & SAVINGS CO. v. TODD (1895), 22 A. R. 515.—CAN.

d. ——— Mayor of foreign town.]—An affidavit of execution sworn before the mayor of a foreign town is useless.—DE FORREST v. BUNNELL (1858), 15 U. C. R. 370.—CAN.

505 i. Errors in jurat—Omission—Of status of person before whom sworn.]—The affidavit of bona fides in a chattel mtge. purported to be sworn before “T. B. F.” without any addition. The affidavit of execution was sworn before the same comr., his name being followed by the words, “A Comr. in B. R., etc.”:—Held: no objection to the affidavit of bona fides.—HAMILTON v. HARRISON (1881), 46 U. C. R. 127.—CAN.

506 i. ——— Of commissioner's name.]—Where the signature of the comr. to the affidavit of bona fides to a chattel mtge. was omitted through inadvertence, the instrument was held invalid as against a subsequent execution creditor, although it was satisfactorily proved that the oath was in fact administered.—NISBET v. COCK (1879), 4 A. R. 200.—CAN.

502. Solicitor acting for both parties.]

An affidavit filed with an absolute bill of sale is good, though sworn before a solr. acting for grantor & grantee of the bill.—VERNON v. COOKE (1880), 49 L. J. Q. B. 767, C. A.

Annotations:—Expld. & Distd. Baker v. Ambrose, [1896] 2 Q. B. 372. The effect of Vernon v. Cooke must be regarded as done away with by R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 16 (WRIGHT, J.). Distd. Re Bagley, [1911] 1 K. B. 317.

503. ——— Grantee's solicitor—R. S. C., Ord. 38, r. 16.]—The above rule applies to affidavits of execution of bills of sale, & if an affidavit of execution be sworn before the solr. acting for the grantee in the preparation of the bill, the bill of sale will be void.—BAKER v. AMBROSE, [1896] 2 Q. B. 372; 65 L. J. Q. B. 589; 12 T. L. R. 603.

Annotation:—Folld. Re Bagley, [1911] 1 K. B. 317.

504. Errors in jurat.]—The jurat of the affidavit of execution of a bill of sale purported to have been sworn on Jan. 10, 1860, instead of on Jan. 10, 1861:—Held: that was a mere clerical error, which might be amended if material.

506 ii. ——— Of place where sworn.]—In the form, & also in the affidavit filed with chattel mtge., no mention was made in the jurat of the place of swearing the affidavit:—Held: the affidavit was sufficient under C. S. B. C. 1888 (c. 8), s. 3.—BROWN & ERR v. JOWETT (1895), 4 B. C. R. 44.—CAN.

506 iii. ———.]—The registration of a chattel mtge. is not rendered void by the omission from the jurat of the place in the N. W. Territories where the affidavit was sworn.—COMMERCIAL BANK OF MANITOBA v. FEBRENBACH (1900), 4 Terr. L. R. 335.—CAN.

506 iv. ——— Of county where sworn.]—Held: where the jurat to an affidavit was “sworn to at Middleton this July 6, 1891,” etc., without naming the county, the mtge. was void, notwithstanding the affidavit was headed “in the county of Annapolis.”—MORSE v. PHINNEY (1894), 22 S. C. R. 563.—CAN.

506 v. ——— Of date & words “before me.”]—The omission of the date & words “before me” from the jurat of an affidavit accompanying a bill of sale under Nova Scotia Bills of Sale Act, s. 4, makes such affidavit void & the defect cannot be supplied by parol evidence in proceedings by a creditor of the assignor against the mortgaged goods.—ARCHIBALD v. HUBLEY (1890), 18 S. C. R. 116.—CAN.

506 vi. ——— Misdescription—Of place where sworn.]—The jurat to an affidavit on a chattel mtge. was as follows: “Sworn before me at the Brantford of ——— in the ——— county of Brantford, this Oct. 13, 1855: G. W. Malloch, a comr. for taking affidavits in the Queen's Bench, in & for the said county of Brant.”:—Held: sufficient.—DE FORREST v. BUNNELL (1858), 15 U. C. R. 370.—CAN.

506 vii. ——— “Sworn” instead of “affirmed.”]—The fact that it is stated in the jurat that the affidavit has been “sworn,” whereas the deponents affirmed, is not a fatal objection, as by Interpretation Act the expressions “swear” & “sworn” respectively include “affirm solemnly” & “affirmed solemnly.”—GRAEWING (1907), 17 Man. L. R. 158.—CAN.

506 viii. ——— Insufficient statement—“Sworn & affirmed”—Two deponents.]—The words “sworn & affirmed,” without saying which of the two deponents swore, & which affirmed, & omitting the word “severally” in the affidavit to a mtge.:—Held: sufficient.—MOYER v. DAVIDSON (1858), 7 C. P. 521.—CAN.

1. Due attestation & execution—Form of affidavit—General rule.]—Affidavits of the execution of a chattel mtge. will not be treated with the same particularity as affidavits used in proceedings before the ct.—MOYER v. DAVIDSON (1858), 7 C. P. 521.—CAN.

2. Small inaccuracy.]—Where a witness to a mtge. by two swears that he saw both execute, when in fact he only saw one, & the mtge. has been registered on such affidavit, it is sufficient.—DE FORREST v. BUNNELL (1858), 15 U. C. R. 370.—CAN.

h. — Necessity for statement—Of day when mortgage executed.]—Where the affidavit of execution of a chattel mtge. does not state the day of the month upon which the mtge. was executed, as required by R. S. O. 1914 (c. 135), s. 5, the mtge. is invalid as against the assignee for benefit of creditors of the mtgor.—MARTIN v. SHAPIRO (1914), 32 O. L. R. 640; 20 D. L. R. 574.—CAN.

k. —]—The affidavit of execution need not state the date of the bill of sale or on what day it was executed.—MCLEOD v. FORTUNE (1859), 19 U. C. R. 100.—CAN.

509 i. — Truth of attestation clause of bill must be sworn to—Not truth of copy.]—The affidavit of the attesting witness to the execution of a bill of sale did not swear to the truth of the attestation clause of the bill of sale where the description was given, but only to the "truth of the copy" of the attestation clause quoted in the affidavit:—Held: the affidavit did not give either in itself or by reference to the attestation clause the information on oath required by Act No. 141, s. 2, & the bill of sale was void as against a person entitled to impeach it.—McCULLOUGH v. HARFOOT (1863), 2 W. & W. 267.—AUS.

l. Affidavit of bona fides—Form of—Avoidance of technicalities.]—It is not necessary in affidavits sworn under a statute to conform to the technicalities required by rules of ct.—MOYER v. DAVIDSON (1858), 7 C. P. 521.—CAN.

m. S. P. DE FORREST v. BUNNELL (1858), 15 U. C. R. 370.—CAN.

n. — Must be in form prescribed.]—An affidavit that the "bill of sale was executed in good faith & for good consideration," instead of "that the sale is bona fide & for good consideration":—Held: insufficient.—BOYNTON v. BOYD (1862), 12 C. P. 334.—CAN.

o. — Slight variation immaterial.]—Where an affidavit of bona fides to a bill of sale stated that the sale was not made for the purpose of holding or enabling the bargainee to hold the goods mentioned therein against the creditors of the bargainor, while the form given in the Act used the words "against any creditors of the bargainor":—Held: such violation did not avoid the bill of sale as against execution creditors, the two expressions being substantially the same.—EMERSON v. BANNERMAN (1891), 19 S. C. R. 1.—CAN.

p. —]—An affidavit stated that it was made "for the purposes & trusts therein set forth," & not for the purpose of holding, etc., "the estate & effects mentioned therein," instead of "the goods," as in the statute:—Held: sufficient.—MASON v. THOMAS (1864), 23 U. C. R. 305.—CAN.

q. —]—The affidavit of bona fides made by the mtgee. in respect of a chattel mtge. given to secure him against his indorsement of certain promissory notes for the mtgor., contained the expression, "& truly states the extent of the liability intended to be created by such agreement & covered by such mtge.," instead of the statutory words, "& truly states the extent of the liability intended to be created & covered by such mtge." It also contained this clause: "& for the express purpose of securing me, the said mtgee. therein named, against the payment of the amount of such notes indorsing liability for the said mtgor.," instead of the words, "& for the express purpose of securing the mtgee. against the payment of the amount of his liability for the mtgor.":—Held: the mtge. was not void as against creditors by reason of these variations from the statutory form.—ROGERS v. CARROLL (1899), 30 O. R. 328.—CAN.

B. Contents of Affidavit.

507. Due attestation & execution—Necessity for statement—Of explanation to grantor.]—The affidavit of the solr. attesting the execution of a bill of sale, stating that he saw the grantor sign & execute the bill of sale is sufficient within 1878 Act, s. 10 (2), although such affidavit does not contain a statement that the deponent read over & explained the bill of sale to the grantor before his execution of same.—Re THREAPPLETON, Ex p. CARTER (1879), 12 Ch. D. 908; 41 L. T. 37; 27 W. R. 943.

508. —]—It is not necessary that the affidavit filed on the registration of a bill of sale should state that the solr. who attested the execution of the deed explained the effect of it to the grantor before he executed it.—Re Roper, Ex p. BOLLAND (1882), 21 Ch. D. 543; 52 L. J. Ch. 113; 47 L. T. 488; 31 W. R. 102, C. A.

509. — That attesting witnesses present.]—The affidavit of the due execution & attestation of a bill of sale is not sufficient, unless it contains a statement that the attesting witnesses were present affidavit of the mtgee. stated that he had indorsed the promissory note in the mtge. named: "that the said mtge. was executed in good faith, & for the express purpose of securing the due payment of the said promissory note, & security & indemnity to me against the said indorsement or any loss thereby, & not for the purpose of protecting the goods & chattels mentioned in the said mtge. against the creditors of the said mtgors. therein named, or preventing the creditors of such mtgors. from obtaining payment of any claim against the said mtgors.":—Held: the affidavit was sufficient, though not in the exact words of the statute.—O'DONOHUE v. WILSON (1877), 42 U. C. R. 329.—CAN.

s. —]—That a mtge. by two was not executed to secure the goods against the creditors of the mtgors., nor to prevent such creditors from recovering, etc., is sufficient, without adding "or either of them," as regards the mtgors., or "or any or either of them" as regards the creditors.—FRASER v. BANK OF TORONTO (1860), 19 U. C. R. 381.—CAN.

t. —]—The affidavit of bona fides stated that the mtge. was not made for the purpose of protecting the goods against the creditors of M. & D., not adding, "or either of them," or preventing the creditors obtaining their claims against him, instead of "them":—Held: sufficient.—BERTRAM v. FENDRY (1877), 27 C. P. 371.—CAN.

u. — Additional words treated as surplusage.]—A chattel mtge. was made to secure pltf. as indorser of a promissory note of the mtgor. A recital in the instrument stated that it had been given "as security to the mtgee. against his indorsement of said note, or any renewal thereof that shall not extend the liability of the mtgee. beyond one year from the date thereof; & against any loss that may be sustained by him by reason of such indorsement of said note, or any renewal thereof." The affidavit stated it was made "for the express purpose of securing the mtgee. against the payment of such his liability for the said mtgor. by reason of the promissory note therein recited,

Annotation:—Reid. Greenham v. Child (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 29.

510. — Mere verification of signature not sufficient.—The affidavit of due execution & attestation must state that the bill of sale was duly attested by the attesting solr., i.e. that he was present & witnessed the due execution, & an affidavit merely verifying his signature to the attestation clause, & describing his residence & occupation, is defective, & will invalidate the registration.—SHARPE v. BIRCH (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 111; 51 L. J. Q. B. 64; 45 L. T. 760; 46 J. P. 246; 30 W. R. 428, D. C.

or any future note or notes which he may indorse for the accommodation of the mtgor., whether as renewals of the said note or otherwise":—Held: as the affidavit covered all that is required by the Act, that part of the affidavit from "or any future note" to the end was unnecessary, & could not vitiate the security.—DRISCOLL v. GREEN (1883), 8 A. R. 366.—CAN.

b. ——The affidavit of bona fides in a bill of sale, which the evidence showed was taken in satisfaction of a previous loan from the bargainee to the bargainor, stated that the sale was bona fide & for good consideration, namely, $830 (which was the consideration expressed in the bill of sale), advanced by the bargainee by way of a loan:—Held: the affidavit substantially complied with R. S. O. 1887 (c. 125), s. 5, & the addition of the words "advanced, etc., by way of a loan," did not render the affidavit defective.—ORMSBY v. JARVIS, CHAPMAN v. JARVIS (1892), 22 O. R. 11.—CAN.

c. — Substantial variations.—The affidavit to a bill of sale contained the words: "I am the rightful owner & possessor of said personal property as mentioned in the accompanying bill of sale," instead of the words: "I am the grantor mentioned in the accompanying bill of sale," as in 5th R. S., c. 92, Form A. In the second paragraph the words "the said H. B. Ward," were used instead of the word "grantor" in the clause setting out that the bill of sale was executed in good faith & not for the purpose of protecting the property mentioned therein against the creditors of the grantor. & in the next clause, "or of preventing the creditors of such grantor from obtaining payment, etc.," the words "of such grantor" were omitted:—Held: the affidavit was not in compliance with the statute, & was bad as against the sheriff levying on the property in question.—KILCUP v. BELCHER (1891), 23 N. S. R. 462.—CAN.

d. ——A bill of sale was given by P. to pltf. (1) for the purpose of securing repayment of a debt of $50; (2) for the purpose of securing pltf. against liability as indorser on two promissory notes. The affidavit was framed to cover both transactions, but was not in accordance with the requirements of the Act with respect to the debt intended to be secured, & could be made to apply to the liability as indorser, against which it was intended to protect pltf., only by striking out certain words, & treating them as surplusage, & by making other alterations:—Held: (1) the affidavit was not "as nearly as may be" in accordance with the forms prescribed by 5th R. S., c. 92, ss. 4, 5, 11; (2) the ct. had no power to strike out words, or make other alterations, with the view of making the affidavit effective as to the liability as indorser; (3) the necessity for an affidavit was

511. ——The affidavit which is filed on the registration of a bill of sale must show that the solr., whose name appears as the attesting witness to the deed, did in fact attest it, i.e. was present when it was executed by the grantor. The affidavit is not sufficient if it only verifies the signature of the solr. to the attestation clause.—FORD v. KETTLE (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 139; 51 L. J. Q. B. 558; 46 L. T. 666; 30 W. R. 741, C. 512. — In express terms—Inference of attestation sufficient.—The affidavit of an attesting not dispensed with by the fact that the instrument was not intended exclusively for the purposes mentioned in s. 4 or s. 5, but combined them both.—LANTZ v. MORSE (1896), 28 N. S. R. 535.—CAN.

e. ——A mtge. was given to secure both a present & future indebtedness, & was accompanied by a single affidavit combining the main features of both forms:—Held: this affidavit was not "as nearly as may be" in the form prescribed, & the mtge. was void.—REID v. CREIGHTON (1895), 24 S. C. R. 69.—CAN.

f. ——N. cuted a mtge. of certain goods for securing the repayment of money due by him to pltf. & also for securing pltf. against several promissory notes which pltf. had indorsed for N. but which had not yet accrued due. The accompanying affidavit of the mtgee. did not set out the agreement entered into by the parties, the extent of the liability intended to be created by the agreement & covered by the mtge., nor that the mtge. was executed in good faith for securing the mtgee. against the payment of the amount of his liability for the mtgor.:—Held: the mtge. was void as the affidavit was defective, not being in compliance with 1893 Act, s. 6.—LEVASSEUR v. BEAULIEU (1896), 33 N. B. R. 569.—CAN.

g. ——A. mortgaged to B. for a debt due by C., & C., to secure A., gave him a chattel mtge. conditioned to be void on his paying the amount of the debt either to A. or B., or indemnifying A. against his suretyship. This was registered under 13 & 14 Vict. c. 62, on an affidavit in the form prescribed, that C. was "justly & truly indebted to A." in the amount of the mtge. It was objected that such mtge. was void as against pltf., a creditor of C., because the affidavit could not have been made consistently with the facts:—Held: (1) A. could properly make the affidavit; (2) if he could not, then the mtge., not being within the statute, would not have required registration at all.—BALDWIN v. BENJAMIN (1857), 16 U. C. R. 52.—CAN.

h. ——An affidavit that the mtgor. was justly & truly indebted to the mtgee. in the sum of £800, or thereabouts, as fully set forth in the mtge.; that the mtge. was executed in good faith, & for the express purpose of securing the payment of the money so justly due as aforesaid, & of securing the mtgee. for his said indorsement, & not for the purpose of protecting the goods against the creditors of the mtgor.:—Held: sufficient.—VALENTINE v. SMITH (1859), 9 C. P. 59.—CAN.

k. ——An affidavit that the mtge. was executed in good faith, & not for the purpose of protecting the goods & chattels mentioned in the said mtge., or preventing the creditors of the said L. (the mtgor.), from obtaining payment of any claim against him:—Held: insufficient, for not stating that it was not made to protect the goods "against the creditors of the mtgor." as required by 20 Vict. c. 3.—BOULTON v. SMITH (1860), 17 U. C. R. 400; 18 U. C. R. 458.—CAN.

l. ——An affidavit setting forth that "the recitals contained in said assignment were, at the time said assignment was executed true & correct, & the consideration therefor & therein mentioned was truly & honestly stated in said assignment, & same was executed in good faith for the purpose therein mentioned, & not for the purpose of protecting the property, etc.," but omitting to verify the preferred debts, was an insufficient compliance with R. S. (5th Ser.), c. 92, s. 4.—KIRK v. CHISHOLM, MCPHEE v. CHISHOLM (1896), 28 N. S. R. 111; 26 S. C. R. 111.—CAN.

m. ——An affidavit that the mtge. was not executed for the purpose of preventing the creditors of such mtgor. from obtaining payment of any claim against — not saying against whom:—Held: not a compliance with Chattel Mortgage Act.—Re ANDREWS (1877), 2 A. R. 24.—CAN.

n. ——The omission of the word "him," at the conclusion of the affidavit of bona fides registered with a chattel mtge., has the effect of destroying the security as against an execution creditor who has seized while the goods remained in statu quo, but does not impair the instrument as between the parties.—DAVIS v. WICKSON (1882), 1 O. R. 369.—CAN.

o. ——An affidavit stated that an assignment for the benefit of creditors was made "bona fide," omitting the words, "for good consideration":—Held: bad.—MASON v. THOMAS (1864), 23 U. C. R. 305.—CAN.

p. ——Where the affidavit of bona fides did not contain a clear & categorical affirmation that the grantors were justly & truly indebted to the grantees in the sum mentioned, the affidavit was held not to comply with the statute, & consequently the bill of sale was void.—WINTER v. GAULT BROTHERS, LTD. (1913), 18 B. C. R. 487; 49 S. C. R. 541.—CAN.

q. — Clerical errors in—Effect of.—Held: an affidavit which stated that the conveyance was not for the purpose of enabling "the bargainee to hold," etc., there being two bargainees did not vitiate the instrument.—TYAS v. MCMASTER (1859), 8 C. P. 446.—CAN.

r. ——The affidavit stated that the mtgo. was not witness to a bill of sale under 1878 Act need not state in so many words that he did attest the bill of sale. It is sufficient if this can be inferred from the affidavit.—YATES v. ASHCROFT (1882), 47 L. T. 337; 31 W. R. 156, D. C.

513. ————.]—The affidavit of attestation & execution of a bill of sale did not, in terms, state that the attesting solr. was present when the deed was executed, but it did state that the deponent was present, that it was duly attested, & that the deponent & the attesting solr. were the only attesting witnesses:—Held: the affidavit in effect stated that the attesting solr. was present when the deed was executed, & it was in compliance with 1878 Act, s. 10.—COOPER v. ZEFFERT (1883), 32 W. R. 402, C. A.

granted for the purpose of protecting the goods & chattels against the creditors of the two mtgors., naming them, or preventing the creditors of the said mtgor. from obtaining payment for any claim against him, the said mtgor.:—Held: sufficient, for that the word "mtgor." would mean each of the mtgors. previously mentioned.—FARLINGER v. McDONALD (1880), 45 U. C. R. 233.—CAN.

s. ————.]—That the mtge. was not made to prevent "the creditor," (instead of creditors) "of such mtgor. obtaining payment of any claims against him":—Held: insufficient.—HARDING v. KNOWLSON (1859), 17 U. C. R. 564.—CAN.

t. ————.]—H. & I. being indebted to a bank, gave to T., the agent of the branch at H., & to the other pltf., their general manager, as trustees, a mtge. to secure the debt. T. had no express power to take this security, the other pltf. was absent, & the bank on hearing of the transaction repudiated it. The mtgo., made by H., I., & S., of the first part, recited that they were indebted to the mtgees., & had agreed to secure payment of their indebtedness, but H. alone assigned the goods, & there was a proviso that the mtge. should be void if they should pay. The affidavit was that H., I., & S., "the mtgors.," were indebted, that the instrument was not executed for the purpose of protecting the goods against the creditors of the said H., I., & S., "mtgors. therein named, or preventing the creditors of the said mtgors.," etc.:—Held: describing the three as mtgors., when only H. conveyed anything, was not a fatal objection.—TAYLOR v. AINSLIE (1868), 19 C. P. 78.—CAN.

a. ————.]—The affidavit of bona fides in a chattel mtge. taken to secure the mtgee. against his indorsement of two promissory notes, which were referred to in a recital, stated that the mtge. "was executed in good faith & for the express purpose of securing me, the said mtgee. therein named, against his indorsement of a certain promissory note for (sic) or any renewal of the said recited promissory notes":—Held: "his indorsement" might be read "my indorsement," as this was clearly a clerical error, but even with this correction, the clause remained vague & incomplete, & the affidavit was therefore fatally defective.—BOLDRICK v. RYAN (1890), 17 A. R. 253.—CAN.

b. ————.]—A chattel mtge. used by the Royal Trust Co. was one printed for the "Ranchmen's Trust Co., Ltd." The latter words were struck out of the mtge. & Royal Trust Co." substituted, except in the affidavit of bona fides, which read as follows:—"(1) I am the manager of the Royal Trust Co. the mtgee., an incorporated co., (2) that C. S., the mtgor. in the foregoing chattel mtge. named, is justly & truly indebted to the Ranchmen's Trust Co., Ltd., etc.":—Held: the use of the words "Ranchmen's Trust Co., Ltd." in the affidavit was a mere clerical error which did not affect the validity of the mtge.—ROYAL TRUST CO. v. CASTOR TOWN, [1917] 3 W. W. R. 5; 37 D. L. R. 277.—CAN.

c. ————.]—An affidavit that the mtge. was made to secure the mtgee. against the payment of such liability "of," instead of "for," the mtgor. by reason of the notes to secure against the indorsement of which it was given:—Held: sufficient.—MATHERS v. LYNCH (1869), 28 U. C. R. 354.—CAN.

d. ————.]—An affidavit that the deed was not made to enable the assignor (instead of the assignee) to hold the goods against creditors:—Held: bad.—OLMSTEAD v. SMITH (1858), 15 U. C. R. 421.—CAN.

e. ———— Statement of indebtedness in—Erroneous statement.]—The affidavit of bona fides attached to a chattel mtge., duly executed & filed, stated that the mtgor. was justly & truly indebted to the mtgee. in a named sum. A loan was made in good faith upon the security of the chattel mtge., but the money was not paid over for five days after the affidavit was made.—MARTIN v. SAMPSON (1896), 24 A. R. 1.—CAN.

f. ————.]—In the statement of the indebtedness in the affidavit of bona fides sworn to by pltf. & attached to the chattel mtge. was not, in the absence of fraud, fatal to its validity.—BERNHART v. MCCUTCHEON (1899), 12 Man. L. R. 394.—CAN.

g. ———— Omission to state mortgage "justly & truly indebted."]—A mtgee. under a chattel mtge. to secure an existing indebtedness made the affidavit of bona fides required by R. S. O. 1887 (c. 125), s. 6, for a mtge. to secure future advances instead of the affidavit required by s. 2:—Held: the affidavit was defective in not stating "that the mtgor. was justly & truly indebted to the mtgee.," & the mtge. could not be looked at to aid the affidavit in this requirement.—MIDLAND LOAN & SAVINGS CO. v. COWIRSON (1891), 20 O. R. 583.—CAN.

h. ———— Amount due & owing.]—An affidavit of bona fides is bad where the amount set forth as consideration for a bill of sale was not due & owing when the affidavit was made.—MCCURDY v. GRANT (1900), 32 N. S. R. 520.—CAN.

k. ———— "Due or accruing due."] That the mtge. was executed for the purpose of securing the payment of the money so justly "due or accruing due":—Held: sufficient, being in the terms of the Act.—SQUAIR v. FORTUNE (1859), 18 U. C. R. 547.—CAN.

514. Clerical errors—As to date of execution.]—The affidavit filed with a bill of sale, under 1854 Act, stated that the bill of sale was executed "on the day of which same bears date," & in another part, stated the day with a clerical error, substituting 1806 for 1876:—Held: a sufficient affidavit of the time of execution.—LAMB v. BRUCE, DUGGAN v. BRUCE, COOPER v. BRUCE (1876), 45 L. J. Q. B. 538; 35 L. T. 425; 24 W. R. 645, D. C.

m. ———— Sufficiency of statement.]—The consideration mentioned in the bill of sale included two promissory notes not yet matured. The affidavit alleged that the consideration was "justly & honestly owing," omitting the word "due" as in the form annexed to the stat., R. S., c. 92:—Held: (1) the affidavit was, under the circumstances of the case, "as nearly as may be" in accordance with the form; (2) the substitution in the affidavit of the word "securing" for the word "protecting," as in the form, was not a departure from the form, but a mere verbal difference.—*PHINNEY v. The instrument, which was on a printed form intended to be signed by one person, stated that the two brothers were thereafter called "the grantors," but in many places, & (inter alia), in the covenant to repay, it referred to the grantor in the singular number:—Held: the instrument ought to be read throughout as if the plural number had been used where necessary.—*ANDREWS v. BILLS OF SALE.

Sect. 5.—Registration :

B. Name and Residence.

524. Name—Son bearing same name as father.]
—Held: there was nothing in 1854 Act which required a son bearing the same name as his father, & being the grantor of a bill of sale, to describe himself as “A. the younger” in the bill of sale & affidavit.—FOULGER v. TAYLOR (1859), 1 L. T. 57.

525. — Real name used—Party known by assumed name.]—In the affidavit filed with a copy of a bill of sale, the grantor was described as J. W. The grantor's real name was J. W., but he had assumed, & was generally known by the name of J. A. W.:—Held: the description was sufficient.

[1854] Act says nothing about the name of the grantor, & scarcely anybody ever dreams of looking at the Christian name of a person for whom he is searching in the register (JAMES, L.J.).—*Re WOOD, Ex p. 526. — Assumed or trade name used.]—A bill of sale was given in the name of D., that being the name in which the grantor carried on business:—Held: the objection that the bill of sale was not given in the true name failed, as the grantor was carrying on business under the name given.—COCHRANE v. DIXON (1887), 3 T. L. R. 717, D. C.

527. — — —.]—A bill of sale was given by the grantor under an assumed name, the only name by which the grantees knew him, & that assumed name was the name by which the grantor was known in the neighbourhood, & under which he had carried on business, & the bill of sale was registered in the assumed name:—Held: the bill of sale was duly registered & was valid, as it was registered in the name by which the grantor was known & recognised at the time, & 1878 Act, s. 10 (2), did not necessarily require a bill of sale to be executed & registered in the real name of the grantor.—CENTRAL BANK OF LONDON v. HAWKINS (1890), 62 L. T. 901; 6 T. L. R. 181, D. C.

Annotation:—Fold. Stokes v. Spencer, [1900] 2 Q. B. 483.

528. — — —.]—An unmarried woman of the name of O., about 1879, went to live with a man as his mistress & took the name of Mrs. S., by which name alone she was thenceforward known. In 1893 the man made a settlement upon her, & in that settlement she was described by her true name of O. In 1899 she executed an absolute deed of assignment of certain personal chattels to the trustees of the settlement, by whom it was registered, & in that deed of assignment & the registration of it she was described by the name of O. alone, no reference being made to the name of S. The chattels comprised in the deed were seized in execution of a judgment, & it was contended by the execution creditor that the deed, not having been registered in the name of S., was invalid:—Held: 1878 Act did not require the name of the grantor to be stated at all, & the insertion in the register of a name other than that by which alone the grantor was known would not invalidate the registration, even though the effect of it was to deprive persons searching the register of all means of ascertaining therefrom whether the grantor was the true owner or not of the chattels which were in her possession.—STOKES v. SPENCER, [1900] 2 Q. B. 483; 69 L. J. Q. B. 792; 83 L. T. 199; 49 W. R. 13; 16 T. L. R. 446; 7 Mans. 402, D. C.

— — — By grantee.]—See Nos. 284–286, ante.

529. — False name purposely used.]—In a bill of sale given by husband & wife, & in the affidavit filed on registration, the grantors' names were described as “A. S. & E. O. S., wife of A. S.” The husband's true name was G. H. A. S., & the misdescriptions were purposely made by both the grantors in order to conceal the fact that they had given a bill of sale:—Held: the registration of the bill of sale was not thereby rendered invalid.—DOWNS v. SALMON (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 775; 57 L. J. Q. B. 454; 59 L. T. 374; 36 W. R. 810; 4 T. L. R. 488, D. C.

532. — — —.]—The execution of a bill of sale was attested by a witness who signed as “C., clerk to B. & R., solrs., Temple.” It was in due time filed with an affidavit, which commenced “I. C., of King's Bench Walk, Inner Temple, in the city of London, clerk to B. & R. of the same place, solrs., make oath & say.” In the body of the affidavit it was stated that the bill of sale was executed in the presence of the deponent, but there was no further description of the residence of the attesting witness. It was proved that C. was clerk to the solrs. whose office was in King's Bench Walk, that all his business hours were passed there, & that it was the place where he would be most readily heard of, but that he took his meals & slept elsewhere:—Held: the description of the residence was sufficient.—*BLACKWELL v. He also owned another public-house, called the Golden Anchor, the business of which was carried on for him by his father, in whose name the licence was taken out. The bill of sale comprised only property in the Three Cups. On the registration of the deed he was described as a licensed victualler but only as of the Three Cups, no reference being made to the Golden Anchor. He having become bkpt. it was urged that the deed was void as against the trustee on the ground that the grantor ought to have been described as of the Golden Anchor as well as of the Three Cups:—Held: 1878 Act, s. 10, had been literally complied with.—*Ex p. 552. — Rejection of surplusage.]—A bill of sale & the affidavit filed on its registration described the grantors, father & son, by their true addresses, & added that they were mantle manufacturers carrying on business together under a specified firm. They had in fact formerly carried on the business of mantle manufacturers in partnership, but, at the time when the bill of sale was executed, the partnership had been dissolved, & the business was being carried on by the father alone, the son being in his employment as a clerk. The property comprised in the deed in fact belonged to the father alone, though both father & son joined in the assignment. The father alone filed a liquidation petition:—Held: there was no misdescription of the grantors such as to affect the validity of the registration, because (1), the son not being bkpt., any misdescription of him was immaterial, & (2) as to the father, the statement that he was carrying on business with the son was mere surplusage, & was not misleading.—*Re STOREY, Ex p. 553. Person having occupation—Described as "gentleman"—Clerk in public department.]—The object of 1854 Act is to give the assignee & creditor a true idea of the position in life of the assignor, & a misdescription or absence of due description in regard to his occupation is substantial, & invalidates the transaction.

Under that Act it is not a sufficient description of the occupation of the assignor, if he have any office or occupation, to term him simply "gentleman."

In the case of a clerk in a public department, e.g., the Audit Office, he should be described as "clerk in the Audit Office." Semble: even were he at the head of a department, he should be so described.—*ALLEN v. 554. — Solicitor's clerk.]—Under 1854 Act it is necessary that the occupation of the attesting witness, as well as that of the assignor, should duly be described in the affidavit on registry, & an attorney or an attorney's clerk, long known as such, is not duly described merely by the term "gentleman" without the mention of his profession.—*TUTON v. 573. Person having casual or temporary occupation—Described as "gentleman"—Surgeon's assistant.]—Though where a person has any fixed profession, or business, or avocation by which he gains his living it must be mentioned in such description, it is not necessary to insert a description of an occupation which he has only casually & temporarily followed; & where the assignor was a medical student who had for some short time acted as surgeon's assistant, but for six months

p. ——— Described as "trader"—Spirit retailer.]—Held: description of the grantor, a spirit retailer or publican, as "trader" was too general.—JAMES v. MACKEN, Re CAMPBELL (1878), 12 L. T. 161.—IR.

q. ——— Described as "merchant"

—Commission agent.]—Held: the settlor was sufficiently described in the deed & in the affidavit as a merchant, although in fact he was a commission agent only & it was sufficient to mention the street in which he lived, without adding the number of his house.

574. Person not actively pursuing occupation—Described as of such occupation.—The object of 1878 Act, s. 10 (2), in requiring that a bill of sale shall describe the “occupation” of the grantor, as well as his residence, is to identify him, & if the description gives a true indication of his profession, business, or calling in life by which he can be identified, although he may not be actively carrying on such profession, business, or calling at the date of the bill of sale, that is a sufficient compliance with the sub-section.

Where a bill of sale described the grantor as a “contractor & financial agent,” a proper description of his calling in life, though, in consequence of his time & attention having been taken up by litigation with a foreign railway co. to whom he had acted for some years as financial agent in England, he had ceased, for five years prior to the date of the bill of sale, actively to carry on business :—Held : his occupation was sufficiently described.—SHARP v. MCHENRY, SHARP v. BROWN (1887), 38 Ch. D. 427; 57 L. J. Ch. 961; 57 L. T. 606; 3 T. L. R. 847.

575. Person having ceased to follow occupation—Described as “gentleman”—Formerly coal agent.—In a bill of sale & affidavit of registration A. was described as a “gentleman.” He had been formerly a coal agent, but having been dismissed, he was at the time of the bill of sale out of employment :—Held : there was no such misdescription as affected the validity of the bill of sale.—MOREWOOD v. SOUTH YORKSHIRE RY. & RIVER DUN CO. (1858), 3 H. & N. 798; 28 L. J. Ex. 114; 157 E. R. 690.

576. Formerly proctor’s clerk.—The attesting witness to a bill of sale was described in the affidavit as “gentleman.” He had been a proctor’s managing clerk, but had ceased to be so for six years. Since that time he had lived on an allowance from his mother, & had, on a few occasions, collected debts & written letters for other persons, & had drawn four bills of sale, but he had no regular occupation :—Held : the description “gentleman” was sufficient.—SMITH v. CHEESE (1875), 1 C. P. D. 60; 45 L. J. Q. B. 156; 33 L. T. 670; 40 J. P. 359; 24 W. R. 368.

577. Described as “widow”—Intention to resume former occupation of publican.—A

a. Person having ceased to follow occupation—Described as “gentleman”—Of late occupation.—The affidavit for registration stated that the grantor “is a gentleman, lately soda-water manufacturer” :—Held : sufficient.—SMITH v. WHITE (1869), 5 L. T. 74.—IR.

t. — Described as “now in no occupation”—Witness formerly in J.—VOL. VII.

militia.]—A bill of sale, & affidavit, described the attesting witness as “now in no occupation.” The witness had been in the militia, but, at the time of the execution of the bill of sale, had no occupation :—Held : a sufficient description to satisfy 1854 Act, s. 1.—TROUSDALE v. SHEPPARD (1862), 14 L. C. L. R. 370; 14 Ir. Jur. 275.—IR.

a. Person having several occupa- widow who, at the time of giving a bill of sale, had actually ceased to carry on her former occupation of a publican, but who intended shortly to, & did afterwards, resume such occupation :—Held : to be sufficiently described in the bill of sale as “widow” only.—Re DAVEY, Ex p. CHAPMAN (1881), 45 L. T. 268, C. A.

578. — Described as of former occupation—“Commercial clerk.”—The grantor of a bill of sale was described as a “commercial clerk.” He had been employed as such, but for about three weeks before the bill was given was out of employment :—Held : the description was correct.—MARTINSON v. CONSOLIDATED CO., LTD. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 353, C. A.

579. Person changing occupation—Described as of former occupation—Former sole owner of business employed as manager.—In the affidavit filed on the registration of a bill of sale, the grantor was described as “carrying on business as a wine & spirit merchant & dealer in provisions & goods, at 4A, D. Street, Liverpool, under the style of the L. & W. Supply Assocn., E. R., general manager.” The grantor had formerly carried on the business as sole owner, but prior to the execution of the bill of sale he had ceased to be the owner or to have any share in it, but was a paid manager under the new owner :—Held : the occupation of the grantor was untruly stated, & the bill of sale was void against an execution creditor.—COOPER v. DAVIS (1884), 32 W. R. 329, C. A.

580. — — ——The grantor was described in a bill of sale as an auctioneer & valuer. He had ceased to hold an auctioneer’s licence & to carry on the business about a month before the bill of sale was given, & from that time carried on a different business :—Held : the description was misleading.—PROCTOR v. LUCIUS (1903), 19 T. L. R. 458, D. C.

581. Person having several occupations—Described as “merchant”—Ship broker & coal merchant.—The assignor of chattels under a deed, who carried on business as a ship broker, & also as a coal merchant, was described as a “merchant” :—Held : the description was sufficient.—GUGEN v. SAMPSON (1866), 4 F. & F. 974, N. P.

Annotations :—Mentd. Mason v. Wood (1875), 1 C. P. D. 63. Emmott v. Marchant (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 555.

582. — Described as “tailor’s cutter”—Wife also keeping school & taking lodgers.—The grantor of a bill of sale carried on the business of a “tailor’s cutter,” his wife keeping a school & taking lodgers :—Held : a description of the occupation of the grantor as that of a “tailor’s cutter” was sufficient, that being his substantive occupation.—Re WILLS, Ex p. NATIONAL DEPOSIT BANK (1878), 26 W. R. 624, C. A.

583. — Described as “farmer”—Farmer accustomed to discount bills.—The occupation of the grantor of a bill of sale is sufficiently described in the affidavit if the substantial occupation is stated, so that if a farmer has been in the habit of discounting bills he is sufficiently described as “farmer,” & it is not necessary to add “bill-discounter” to his description.—Re HAYNES, Ex p. NATIONAL MERCANTILE BANK (1880), 15

tions—Described as “widow & farmer”—Farmer, grocer & licensed vintner.—The grantor, a widow, at the time of the execution, of a bill of sale, besides being possessed of a farm, carried on the business of a grocer & licensed vintner. She was described in the affidavit of the attesting witness as “widow & farmer” :—Held : an insufficient description.—Re FITZPATRICK (1886) 19 L. R. Ir. 206.—IR.

584. — Described as “grocer” — Grocer & greengrocer.]—Where the grantor of a bill of sale is otherwise rightly described, the omission of some other description, which was not intended nor calculated to deceive, & did not in fact deceive, does not invalidate the bill of sale.

The onus of proof of the omission being intended or calculated to deceive is upon the person who impugns the validity of the bill of sale on such ground.

The grantor of a bill of sale was described in the bill of sale & attesting affidavit as W. F. of 57, H. Road, Upper Holloway, grocer. In fact he carried on at that address the two trades of grocer & greengrocer:—Held: the description not having been shown to be misleading or intended to mislead, was sufficient.—THROSSELL v. Annotation:—Refd. Barron v. Potter, Potter v. Berry (1914), 84 L. J. K. B. 751.

585. — Described as “Baptist minister” — Minister & company director.]—In the affidavit filed with a bill of sale the grantor was described as a “Baptist minister.” He lived in Essex & was a qualified Baptist minister. Until four or five years before the making of the bill of sale he had been in regular occupation as a pastor, but had held no pastorate since. In the interval he had preached, lectured, & visited the poor, but not in connection with any particular church. Since making the bill of sale he had preached on several occasions in Chelmsford. He was a director of three or four cos., & with the assistance of a secretary, conducted his business in connection with them from an address in London:—Held: he was not properly described as a “Baptist minister.”—BARRON v. POTTER, [1915] 3 K. B. 593; 84 L. J. K. B. 2008; 113 L. T. 800; 59 Sol. Jo. 650, C. A.

D. Discrepancy between Bill of Sale and Affidavit.

595. Name.—A variation in one of the christian names of the grantor of a bill of sale between the bill itself & the accompanying affidavit, which could not mislead:—Held: to be immaterial.—CORBETT v. ROWE (1876), 25 W. R. 59.

596. Residence.—The grantor of a bill of sale was therein correctly described as of “No. 37, M. Road, Deptford, in the county of Kent,” & the attesting witness to such bill of sale was therein also correctly stated to be of “2, S. Terrace, H. P. Road, New Cross.” In the affidavit the residence of the grantor was described as “No. 73, M. Road, Deptford, in the county of Kent,” & the residence of the attesting witness was described as “3, S. Terrace, H. P. Road, New Cross”:—Held: there was not a true description of residence of the grantor & attesting witness thereto filed as required by 1854 Act.—MURRAY v. MACKENZIE (1875), L. 597.—A grantor was described in a bill of sale as “of” 28 G. Street, a club of which he was a member. He resided elsewhere & carried on business at yet another address. In the affidavit of attestation he was described, not as of 28 G. Street, but as of his actual residence as well as of his place of business. There was no intention to mislead, & no one was misled:—Held: the bill of sale was not invalid, nor its registration defective.—

PART V. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 5. —D.

595 i. Name.—The grantor's name was Catip; in the affidavit her name was spelt Katip, & the name was entered in the register under the letter K. The name was by an alteration made at time of execution correctly stated in the original & copy bill of sale:—Held: this did not invalidate the bill of sale against the official assignee of the grantor.—Re CATIP (1912), 12 S. 596 i. Residence.—Qu.: whether a bill of sale can be referred to, in order to supplement the descriptions of the residences given in the affidavit, where they contradict those given in the bill of sale.—Re CAMPBELL, JAMES v. MACKEN (1878), 66 L. T. Jo. 139.—IR.

596 ii.—In a bill of sale the grantor was described as being of Burnley Street, Richmond, near Melbourne in the colony of Victoria; in the affidavit she was described as residing at Drummond Street, Coulton:—Held: the variation made the filing of the bill of sale bad.—ANDERSON v. WATSON (1891), 17 V. L. R. 263.—AUS.

599 i. Occupation.—A bill of sale described the occupation of the grantor as being a “spirit retailer,” but the affidavit filed on registration stated that he was a “trader”:—Held: the description in the affidavit might be supplemented by reference to the description in the bill of sale.—JAMES v. MACKEN, Re CAMPBELL (1878), 12 L. L. T. 161.—IR.

599 ii.—In a bill of sale the occupation of the grantor was described as married woman, carrier, & in the affidavit of due execution she was described as being of no occupation, but about to enter into business as a carrier:—Held: such a variation made the filing of the bill of sale bad.—ANDERSON v. PART V. SECT. 5, SUB-SECT. 5. —E.

600 i. From affidavit.—The want of deponent's addition is no objection to an affidavit made for registration of a chattel mtge.—BRODIE v. RUTAN (1858), 16 U. C. R. 207.—CAN.

600 ii.—The omission of the occupation of deponent from the body of the affidavit accompanying a bill of

DOLCINI v. DOLCINI, [1895] 1 Q. B. 898; 64 L. J. Q. B. 427; 43 W. R. 542; 11 T. L. R. 344; 15 R. 408, D. C.

598.—In a bill of sale the grantors were described as W. D. of 25, B. F. Road, L.D., of 93, B. F. Road, & K. of 94, W. Road. In the affidavit the addresses were 23, B. F. Road; 23, B. F. Road; 24, W. Road:—Held: the bill of sale was void for misdescription.—MARKS v. DERRICK (1899), 80 L. T. 60, D. C.

599. Occupation.—A bill of sale was duly given & attested by “J. W., clerk to Mr. T., solr., of,” etc. The affidavit of the attesting witness described him as “gentleman” not as an attorney's clerk; but the affidavit proceeded to state that he was the witness attesting the execution:—Held: the affidavit was insufficient.—DRYDEN v. HOPE (1860), 3 L. T. 280; 9 W. R. 18.

E. Omission of Description.

600. From affidavit—Description in bill.—A bill of sale, which was filed, contained a description of the residence & occupation, but the affidavit, which was filed with it, did not contain such description:—Held: the bill of sale was void.—HATTON v. ENGLISH (1857), 7 E. & B. 94; 26 L. J. Q. B. 161; 28 L. T. O. S. 231; 119 E. R. 1183; sub nom. WALTON v. ENGLISH, 3 Jur. N. S. 294.

601.—The attestation of the execution of a bill of sale purported to be by “I. S., clerk to F. L.” The affidavit filed with it, commencing, “I, I. S., clerk to F. L., of,” etc., stated that he was present, & saw the bill of sale executed, & was signed “I. S.”:—Held: by reasonable inference, the attesting witness to the execution of the bill of sale & deponent were the same person, & the affidavit contained a description of the residence & occupation of the attesting witness as required by 1854 Act, s. 1.—ROUTH v. ROUBLOT (1859), 1 E. & E. 850; 28 L. J. Q. B. 240; 120 E. R. 1129; sub nom. ROUBLOT v. BOUTELL, 33 L. T. O. S. 121; 5 Jur. N. S. 548; sub nom. BOUTILL v. ROUBLET, 7 W. R. 444.

sale is not a fatal defect, the affidavit being made out of ct.—CUNNINGHAM v. MORSE (1887), 20 N. S. R. 110.—CAN.

600 iii.—An affidavit under 1854 Act, s. 1, omitted the description of the residence & occupation of one of the attesting witnesses to the bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale was, by reason of such omission, rendered void as against an execution creditor.—FONBLANQUE v. LEE (1858), 7 L. C. L. R. 550; 10 Ir. Jur. 224.—IR.

600 iv.—Description in bill.—An affidavit filed under Act No. 141, s. 2, did not on the face of it describe the residence or occupation of an attesting witness & contained no reference to the addition or description subscribed in the bill of sale. In the heading of the affidavit the witness gave his addition as “gentleman” & his residence as “Melbourne”:—Held: the bill of sale was void as against an execution under process of law.—NATHAN v. NAYLOR (1863), 2 W. & W. 263.—AUS.

600 v.—The affidavit omitted to state the occupation of the grantor:—Held: as the affidavit referred in terms to the instrument

602. ———.]—The affidavit accompanying a bill of sale under 1854 Act must contain, in itself or by reference, a description of the residence & occupation of the grantor, & it is not enough to state that he is the person mentioned in the bill of sale, unless it is averred that he is truly described therein.—PICKARD v. BRETZ (1859), 5 H. & N. 9; 29 L. J. Ex. 18; 157 E. R. 1079; sub nom. PICARDS v. BRETZ, 1 L. T. 45; 5 Jur. N. S. 1131; 8 W. R. 90.

603. ———.]—An affidavit of an attesting witness of a bill of sale in the following form: "The paper writing hereunto annexed is a true copy of a bill of sale, bearing date, etc., & made between W. T., of, etc., of the one part, & G. S., of, etc., of the other part," following the description in the bill of sale, is a sufficient description by deponent of the residence, etc., of the parties.—WILCOXON v. SEARBY, FOULGER v. TAYLOR (1860), 5 H. & N. 202; 29 L. J. Ex. 154; 1 L. T. 481; 24 J. P. 167; 8 W. R. 279; 157 E. R. 1157.

Annotation:—Mentd. Hughes v. Smallwood (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 306.

604. ———.]—The attesting witness to an instrument within 1854 Act was clerk to an attorney at the time of its execution, & was described as such in the attestation clause. The affidavit filed with the bill of sale on registration was made by the attesting witness, & after verifying his signature to the bill of sale as attesting witness, described him as a gentleman residing at No. 3, B. Road, Brixton:—Held: the affidavit was insufficient, inasmuch as it did not, either directly or indirectly, by reference to the bill of sale, contain a description of the occupation of the attesting witness, & the bill of sale was void as against an execution creditor.—BRODRICK v. SCALE (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 98; 40 L. J. C. P. 130; 23 L. T. 864; 19 W. R. 386.

605. ———.]—In the affidavit filed with a copy of a bill of sale, deponent stated "that the paper writing hereunto annexed is a true copy of a bill of sale made by I. A.," & "that I. A. resides at D. Lodge, & is an auctioneer." By the copy of the bill of sale annexed to the affidavit, I. A. was described as "of D. Lodge, in the parish of Llanarthney, in the county of Carmarthen, auctioneer," which was the true residence:—Held: the description in the affidavit of the residence was not sufficient, but the copy of the bill of sale, in which the situation of the residence was stated with particularity enough to guide any inquiry as to the identity of the individual, might be referred to, in order to explain & supplement the description given by the affidavit.—*JONES v. 607. ———.]—The execution by the grantor of a bill of sale, which required registration, was attested by two witnesses, & contained a description of the residence & occupation of each witness. The affidavit filed with the bill contained a description of the residence & occupation of only one of the attesting witnesses:—Held: the affidavit was not sufficient, since it did not contain a description of the residence & occupation of "every attesting witness."—PICKARD v. MARRIAGE (1876), 1 Ex. D. 364; 45 L. J. Q. B. 594; 35 L. T. 343; 24 W. R. 886.

608. ———.]—The grantor of a bill of sale lived & carried on business at A., & had two other places of business. There were goods comprised in the bill of sale at all three places, & the three addresses were stated in the bill of sale. The affidavit filed with the bill of sale stated that the grantor resided at A., but did not mention the other two places of business:—Held: the description of the grantor's residence in the affidavit was sufficient.—GREENHAM v. CHILD (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 29; 59 L. J. Q. B. 27; 61 L. T. 563; 38 W. R. 94, D. C.

609. From body of affidavit—Description in introductory part.]—The affidavit filed on registration of a bill of sale contained in the introductory part describing deponent an accurate description of his residence. The body of the affidavit contained the following statements: "I (deponent) was present & saw the grantor of the bill of sale duly execute the bill of sale on Dec. 15, 1881. The name subscribed to the bill of sale as that of the witness attesting the due execution thereof is in the proper handwriting of this deponent. I am a solr. of the Supreme Ct., & reside at ———"; there being thus no description of the residence of the attesting witness in the body of the affidavit:—Held: the affidavit was sufficient in respect of the description of the residence of the attesting witness, as (1) the body of the affidavit sufficiently incorporated by reference the description of the residence of the attesting witness contained in the introductory part, & (2) it was sufficient that the description of the occupation & residence of the attesting witness should be found in the introductory part of the affidavit.—BLAIBERG v. PARKE a bill of sale did not in its swearing part contain a description of the occupation of the witness but did in its heading give such description:—Held: the affidavit did not give either in itself or by reference to the attestation clause the information or oath required by the Act & the bill of sale was void as against a person entitled to impeach it.—*McCULLOUGH v. 610. Omission of registrar to transmit abstract of bill to county court—Whether bill avoided.]—The omission of the registrar of bills of sale to transmit an abstract of a registered bill of sale to the registrar of the county ct. within the district of which the chattels enumerated in the bill are situated, does not avoid the bill.—*TRINDER v. l. Necessity for renewal—Possession taken on default.]—Where possession has been taken under default in the mtge. within a year from its filing, re-filing is not necessary.—ROSS v. ELLIOTT (1861), 11 C. P. 221.—CAN.

m. — Satisfaction of mortgage.]—B., the customer of a bank, executed a chattel mtge. on his household effects, by way of collateral security, in favour of the bank, which was allowed to run into default, whereupon the mtgees. proceeded to a sale, & appointed W. their bailiff for that purpose, who had the property appraised & sold it to pltf., a creditor of B., by private sale for $900, & executed a bill of sale thereof. Pltf. swore that B. owed him about $1,000 & he thought there was ample security for the $900 & also additional security for B.'s indebtedness to himself, & that the goods seemed to be worth about $5,000; & without disturbing in any way the possession of B., pltf. rented the property to him, & he remained, as he had theretofore been, in possession. In order effectually to carry out the proposed arrangement with B., the bank by special power appointed their local manager agent to accept the chattel mtge. & as such agent to make the affidavits required to be made by mtgees.:—Held: in the circumstances the chattel mtge. was satisfied quoad the goods, the mtge. could not properly be re-filed; & notwithstanding the continued possession of the mtgor. it was not necessary for pltf. to file a bill of sale from the bank to himself in order to preserve his rights as against execution creditors of, or bond fide purchasers from, the mtgor.—CARLISLE v. TAIT (1882), 7 A. R. 10.—CAN.

Act.—The bill of sale having been made & filed prior to 1899 Act:—Held: it was validly filed subject to the special clause as to the filing of a renewal statement, & the time prescribed for the filing of a renewal statement not having elapsed, that the bill of sale was in no way affected by

q. — Absolute assignment—Delivery of possession.]—A husband executed a post-nuptial deed of gift of chattels in favour of his wife, which was registered under 55 Vict. No. 23, s. 3, but the registration was not renewed within twelve months. The gift was followed by delivery of possession:—Held: being an absolute assignment, & not a security for money, renewal was not required by the Act.—Re DUNSTAN (1895), 6 Q. L. J. 182.—AUS.

r. Affidavit on renewal—Necessity for.]—The affidavit of execution need not be repeated, or any copy of it filed, on re-filing, a mtge.—BEATY v. FOWLER (1852), 10 U. C. R. 382.—CAN.

613. By whom—Assignee from grantee.]—Held: 1866 Act, s. 4, was equally imperative when the grantee, before the period for renewal, assigned his interest under the bill of sale to a third person, & the assignee, if the registration was not renewed, had no title as against an execution creditor.—KARJET v. KOSHER MEAT SUPPLY ASSOCN. (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 361; 46 L. J. Q. B. 548; 36 L. T. 694; 25 W. R. 691.

614. Affidavit on renewal—Statement of date of original registration—Sufficiency.]—Affidavits presented at the office of the masters of the Queen's Bench Ct., for obtaining a renewal of the registration of two bills of sale under 1866 Act, stated the original registration to have been respectively "on or about Apr. 6, 1858," & "on July 31, 1861." The former was registered on Apr. 7, 1858, & the latter on July 30, 1861. Qu.: whether the

b. — — Principal officer of company—Statement of authority & knowledge.]—Under Bills of Sale & Chattel Mortgage Act, s. 10, as enacted by 3 Edw. VII., c. 7, s. 30, the affidavit required upon the renewal of a chattel mtge., where the mtgees. are an incorporated co., if made by the president, vice-president, manager, assistant manager, secretary, or treasurer of the co., need not state that the deponent is authorised by resolution of the directors in that behalf, nor that he is aware of the circumstances connected with the mtge. & has personal knowledge of the facts deposed to; the words "officer or agent" being confined in their application to an officer or agent who is not one of the principal officers above enumerated.—UNIVERSAL SKIRT MANUFACTURING Co. v. GORMLEY (1908), 17 O. L. R. 114; 11 O. W. R. 1110.—CAN.

c. — Amount due incorrectly stated in.]—Where a bill of sale has been duly filed, but the subsequent annual affidavit of the amount due upon it, required by Act No. 557, s. 13, states the amount incorrectly, the bill of sale becomes absolutely void.—BLACK v. ZEVENBOOM (1880), 6 V. L. R. 473.—AUS.

d. — Failure to file—Effect of.]—Though a bill of sale is made null & void by failure to file the prescribed affidavit of renewal, the grantee may recover the debt from the grantor, upon an independent covenant to pay contained in the same deed.—*TIDYMAN v. f. — — —.]—Held: on the renewal of a chattel mtge. the statement & affidavit may when they refer to each other & are meant to be read together, be so read; & that if together they contain the particulars required by the statute the renewal is sufficient.—BARBER v. MAUGHAN (1877), 42 U. C. R. 134.—CAN.

g. — — —.]—Where the statement & affidavit filed upon renewal of a chattel mtge., when read together, give all the information required by R. S. O. 1877 (c. 119), s. 10, the renewal is sufficient.

The statement was that "the interest of the mtgee. in the goods described in the mtge., of which the annexed is a true copy, & made by C., & dated Mar. 13, 1876, is as follows: The amount still due to me, S., on said mtge. for principal is $200." The mtgee.'s affidavit stated that the above statement was correct & true, that the mtge. had not been assigned by him, & was not kept on foot for any fraudulent purpose:—Held: sufficient.

The copy filed gave the date of the mtge. as Mar. 13, 1877, instead of 1876:—Held: immaterial, as the mistake could have misled no one.—SLOAN v. MAUGHAN (1878), 3 A. R. 222.—CAN.

h. — — —.]—The objection taken to the validity of a chattel mtge. was, that the renewals were not sufficient, in that (1) they were not signed by the mtgee., & (2) were not upon their face sufficiently explicit in regard to the payments made. On the back of each statement was an affidavit, signed by the mtgee. & sworn by him, referring to the statement upon which it was indorsed:—Held: this might be read as part of the statement & being so read showed the statement to be that of the mtgee., which was all that R. S. O. 1897 (c. 148), s. 18, required.—CHRISTIN v. CHRISTIN (1899), 1 O. L. R. 634.—CAN.

k. — As to identification of mortgage.]—It is immaterial that a renewal statement does not contain the surname of the mtgee. or the additions of the mtgor. & mtgee. so long as the mtge. referred to in it can be identified.—ROGERS LUMBER CO. v. DUNLOP (1914), 30 W. L. R. 209; 7 W. W. R. 975; 20 D. L. R. 154.—CAN.

l. — By assignee for benefit of creditors.]—A renewal statement, in itself in proper form, alleging title through the assignment for the benefit of creditors, is sufficient.—FLEMING v. RYAN (1893), 21 A. R. 39.—CAN.

m. — Inclusion of improper charge.]—The statement contained an item of $2.25, as paid for re-filing, which the mtgee. had no right to charge:—Held: the re-filing was not thereby avoided.—WALKER v. NILES (1871), 18 Gr. 210.—CAN.

n. — As to payments made & amount due.]—A renewal statement was as follows: "H. the only authorised agent of F. & C. mtgee.'s named in the chattel mtge. of which the hereunto annexed copy of chattel mtgeo. is, I verily believe a true copy as hereby state, that I am well acquainted with all the circumstances connected with the said original chattel mtge., & that the said F. & C. claim interest in the property claimed & described in said chattel mtge. as mtgees. thereof, that the whole principal sum of £— named in said mtge. is still due to said mtgees. & unpaid together with £— for interest making in all £— the said mtgor. has made no payment on account of either principal & interest:—Held: a sufficient compliance with Con. Stat. U. C. (c. 48), s. 10.—SAULTER v. CARRUTHERS (1863), 9 U. C. L. J. O. S. 158.—CAN.

o. — — —.]—The statement of payments made did not set forth in detail the date & amount of each payment made, but only the total sum paid. It went on to state "that no payments have been made upon the said mtge.": but it clearly showed that payment of a certain sum had been made on account of the interest & no other payments:—Held: sufficient under R. S. O. 1897 (c. 148).—CHRISTIN v. CHRISTIN (1899), 1 O. L. R. 634.—CAN.

632. ———.]—An absolute bill of sale was made on May 15, 1915, & on May 18 the chattels comprised therein were seized in execution by the sheriff. The bill of sale was not registered at any time. The county ct. judge found as a fact that the chattels were in the apparent possession of the grantor of the bill of sale. On appeal to the Divisional Ct. it was contended, the point had not been taken in the county ct., that the seizure of the chattels in execution prevented them being in the apparent possession of the grantor of the bill of sale, & that, under 1878 Act, s. 8, inasmuch as the execution was put in before the expiration of the seven days allowed for registration, the bill of sale, though unregistered, was not void as against the execution creditor. The Divisional Ct. decided that, notwithstanding the execution, the chattels comprised in the bill of sale were in the apparent possession of the grantor, & the bill of sale, being unregistered, was void against the execution creditor:—Held: the point, not having been raised in the county ct., could not be taken on appeal, but there being evidence on which the county ct. judge could find as a fact that the chattels were in the apparent possession of the grantor, his finding could not be disturbed.—*SALES AGENCY, LTD. v. The mtgor. subsequently filed a declaration of insolvency, & the mtgee. put a man in possession of the machinery, but the mtgor. continued in possession of the premises up to the time of his bkpcy.:—Held: the premises must be considered to have been in the actual occupation of bkpt. & the memorandum not having been filed the movable machinery & effects were in the apparent possession of bkpt. at the time of his bkpcy.—*Re POLLACK, Ex p. with a copy of the bill, which he was directed to show to any person claiming the furniture, or interfering with his possession. The assignor, who was tenant of the house, continued as before, to reside there, & to have the use of the furniture subject to the possession of the agent. Shortly after the agent's entry the assignor was adjudicated bkpt. The transaction being assumed to be bonâ fide:—Held: (1) nothing had been done to change, in the view of the outer world, that appearance of ownership with which the assignor was invested, & the chattels were in his apparent possession within 1854 Act, & passed to the assignee in bkpcy., the bill of sale not having been duly registered; (2) the definition "apparent possession" in the interpretation clause of that Act applied to cases where more than merely formal possession had been taken by or given to another person.—*Re VINING, Ex p. On Dec. 19 placards were posted in the neighbourhood of the house announcing a sale of the furniture on the 28th, but, with the exception of a reference to a firm of solrs. for particulars, there was nothing in the placards from which it could be inferred that the sale was not made by H. himself. On the 23rd H. committed an act of bkpcy., & was adjudged bkpt. on the following day:—Held: the goods belonged to the trustee in bkpcy., as being in the apparent possession of bkpt., for the possession taken by the broker's man was merely "formal possession," within 1854 Act, & the placards could not take the furniture out of bkpt.'s apparent possession, as they did not show that the sale was to be made under a bill of sale.—*Re HENDERSON, Ex p. 654. — Removal by grantee

A mtgee. under an unregistered bill of sale, sent two men on Feb. 10 to take possession of the goods. They remained in the house, but allowed debtors to use the goods as usual till Feb. 14. On Feb. 11 debtors executed another bill of sale, which comprised substantially all their property, to another creditor, to secure an antecedent debt. Early in the morning of Feb. 14 the first mtgee. sent vans to the house, & the men in possession commenced to pack the furniture & load the vans. At half-past twelve on the same day debtors filed a petition for liquidation. The furniture & live stock at the house were carried away by the first mtgee. before the evening:—Held: the furniture & live stock were in the apparent possession of debtors until the morning of Feb. 14, but ceased to be so when the men in possession began to pack the goods & put them in the vans.—Re BLANKHORN, *Ex p. 657 i. Business conducted by grantee.—The grantee under an unregistered bill of sale took possession of the goods covered thereby, consisting of a bakery stock, & employed a person to take charge, & instructed him to let no one else in the place. Pltf. gave no written notice of change of ownership, but informed some of the creditors that he was in possession. Pltf. carried on baking, & delivered the product in his own name, but debtor's name was not removed from the door of the premises:—Held: the goods were not in the apparent possession of the debtor.—BRACKMAN v. McLAUCHLIN (1894), 3 B. C. R. 265.—CAN.

657 ii. — Hotel licence obtained by grantee in own name.—The lessees of hotel premises sold the business to pltf.:—Held: the handing over of the keys of a building, giving the combination of the safe & the former proprietors going out of possession, the securing by pltf. of a license in his own name, & the conduct of the business by him thereafter, were all acts of a notorious character such as to constitute an immediate delivery & continued change of possession.—MUNRO v. FERGUSON (1907), 6 W. L. R. 755.—CAN.

657 iii. — Grantor employed as grantee's clerk.—The purchaser of the stock of a trader, where the change of ownership is open & notorious, may employ the former owner as a clerk in carrying on the business, & notwithstanding such hiring there may still be an actual & continued change of possession.—KINLOCH v. SCRIBNER (1886), 14 S. C. R. 77; sub nom. SCRIBNER v. McLAREN (1883), 2 O. R. 265; sub nom. SCRIBNER v. KINLOCH (1885), 12 A. R. 367.—CAN.

657 iv. — Grantor's clerk employed as grantee's agent.—Name not altered. Pltfs., assignees for the benefit of creditors, proved a delivery of the goods, but they had employed the assignor's clerk as their agent to keep & sell the goods in the shop, & he had in some instances, without their knowledge, permitted the proceeds to be applied in payment of some small claims against the assignor, & once had paid money into the bank to the credit of the assignor, that he might draw a cheque for it immediately, to pay a privileged claim, but pltfs. knew nothing of the deposit in the bank, or of the drawing the cheque. Their agent took no steps to give public intimation of the change of possession, either directly or by removing the assignor's name as the party carrying on the business, though he made weekly returns of sales to the assignees, & that had been done at the solicitation of the assignor, who represented that he hoped to make arrangements again to resume the business. The fact of any change having been made was generally unknown in the neighbourhood:—Held: it was properly left to the jury to say whether there was an actual & continued change of possession, & they were warranted in finding that there was.—FOSTER v. possession of the goods comprised in it by the grantee. 657. Business conducted by grantee.—Pltfs. joined with A., an insolvent trader, as his sureties in giving promissory notes for payment of his composition, on condition that they were secured, & A. executed a bill of sale to them of all his personal chattels as such agreed security, & pltfs. immediately put an agent of their own in possession to carry on the business for them. A. left the place on the execution of the bill of sale, but his daughter remained in the house, & his name continued over the shop door. All was done publicly, & without any secrecy. The goods having been seized in execution at the suit of debt., a creditor of A.:—Held: the transaction operated as a complete change of possession & ownership.—DAVIES v. JONES (1862), 7 L. 658. Business conducted by grantor—Key taken by grantee—Change of possession common knowledge.—Applts., holders of an unregistered bill of sale of stock-in-trade from debtor, at about two o'clock p.m. on Saturday, May 14, put a man into possession, who remained in possession until a receiver of the ct. entered at about six o'clock p.m. on Tuesday, the 17th, on which day debtor had filed a liquidation petition. Applts. deposed that the deputy of the man in possession locked up the premises every night, & took away the keys, omitting by inadvertence, on Saturday night only, to lock the door of a passage leading from the house of debtor's son to the shop, that

k. Agent sent by grantee to carry on business—Inventory of chattels handed to agent—Grantor remaining in possession.—Under assignments by partners to trustees for the benefit of creditors an agent of the trustees was sent out to obtain possession of the property assigned & to carry on the business. One of the partners farmed land & he also assigned to the trustees his personal estate. His son made an inventory and handed it to the agent, but the father remained in possession until an execution was levied:—Held: there was not an actual & continued change of possession.—HEWARD v. On the other hand, it was deposed that the bailiff's man never or seldom appeared in the shop, but remained in a warehouse on the premises, out of sight of the customers, that the business appeared to go on as usual & no notification was made to the public:—Held: on the facts there never was any apparent possession by debtor after the seizure on the 14th, & the mtgees. were entitled to the produce of the stock sold.—Re BASHAM, Ex p. MORTLOCK, [1881] W. N. 161.

659. — Name altered & customers informed.]

—H. assigned, by an unregistered bill of sale, on Mar. 4, 1885, the goodwill & stock-in-trade of a business carried on by him, but continued to manage the business on behalf of the grantee, residing in the house where the business was carried on, & using the furniture. At the date of the assignment a circular was sent to all the customers notifying the change of ownership, & an advertisement signed by H., as manager, was inserted upon three different occasions in a local newspaper, stating that the business would thenceforward be carried on by "H. & Co." The goods comprised in the bill of sale having been taken in execution in May, 1885, to satisfy a judgment debt due from H.:—Held: the goods were not in the apparent possession of the grantor, & debt. was not entitled to them as against the grantee.—GIBBONS v. HICKSON (1885), 55 L. J. Q. B. 119; 53 L. T. 910; 34 W. R. 140, D. C.

660. The doors were kept locked, & the trade & business stopped, the key being kept by pltf.'s men in possession.

possession that could be apparent to others than the parties concerned, & the bill of sale was not filed:—Held: not sufficient change of possession.—McLEOD v. HAMILTON (1857), 15 U. C. R. 111.—CAN.

659 i. — Name not altered & customers not informed—Bailiff in shop.]—Deft., holder of an unregistered bill of sale over the stock-in-trade of H., sent a bailiff to H.'s shop to take possession. The bailiff took possession and remained all day in the shop, but the business was carried on as usual by the shopman, & nothing was said to the customers, & H.'s name was allowed to remain up outside. In the afternoon H. filed a petition in bkpcy. & his estate was sequestrated next day. On the day of sequestration bills were posted on the shop windows announcing a sale of the goods under the bill of sale. The official assignee of H. brought an action to recover the proceeds of the sale:—Held: the jury were right in finding that nothing had occurred to take the apparent possession out of H.—STEPHEN v. ISRAEL (1889), 10 N. S. W. L. R. 135.—AUS.

661 i. Sale advertised as under bill of sale.]—Where an assignment was made by the director of a joint stock co. of all the property of the co. to trustees for the benefit of creditors, & the property was formally handed over by the directors to the trustees, who took possession & advertised & sold the property under the deed of assignment:—Held: there was an actual & continued change of possession.—HOVEY v. WHITING (1887), 14 S. C. R. 515.—CAN.

m. — Chattels bought by grantee & left on grantor's premises.]—A father mortgaged chattels to his son, who advertised them for sale under the mtge., & bought them all in himself, but did not remove them from the place on which both he & his father were living at the time:—Held: there had been no actual change of possession.—GOODYEAR v. GOODYEAR (1902), 1 O. W. R. 405.—CAN.

662 i. Premises locked up—Chattels not removed.]—Where goods in a shop or other unoccupied building under lock & key are sold by the owner, & the key delivered to the purchaser, who goes to the place & examines & checks over the goods, & then locks up the place again, this constitutes an actual & continued change of possession

On May 17 notices announcing a sale by auction of the goods were posted up outside the house, & in places about the neighbourhood, & the catalogue stated that the sale would take place under a bill of sale on May 24. Y., who was an infirm old man, was allowed, though against the wish of pltf.'s man in possession, to remain on in the house, on the plea that he could not get lodgings elsewhere. Between the 17th & the 24th of May debt.'s execution was put in, the bailiff procuring admission by knocking at the door, & when it was opened forcing his way in. The verdict, at the trial of an interpleader issue to determine the right to the goods, having been entered for debt.:—Held: (1) the necessary inference from the facts was, that more was done than the taking of merely formal possession, & actual & real possession & control were in fact taken & kept by pltf.; (2) public notice thereof was given by the catalogues announcing the sale, & the verdict must be entered for pltf.—*SMITH v. n. — Grantor procuring key & obtaining access by back entrance.]—W. made an assignment of goods at S. to his brother, who lived sixty or seventy miles away. His brother went to S., locked up the building where the goods were, and returned home, leaving the key of the premises with the postmaster at S. W. got possession of the key, & had constant access to the shop by a back entrance, though the street door was kept fastened:—Held: no sufficient change of possession.—WILSON v. KERR (1858), 17 U. o. Timber in shipbuilder's yard—Possession taken by grantee's foreman.]—M., a shipbuilder, carried on his business in a yard leased from A. Pltf. sent two vessels there to be repaired, & it was agreed that pltf. should furnish the materials, & he purchased from M. some oak timber then in the yard. Pltf.'s foreman took possession of it, & a portion had been worked up by pltf.'s & M.'s men, when A. distrained it for rent:—Held: there had been a sufficient change of possession of the timber.—*GILDERALEVE v. Timber on private & public wharves—Key of private wharf handed to grantor.]—E., by an agreement in writing, sold timber lying partly on his private wharf, & partly on a public wharf, to G. for £300, E. agreeing to pay all rent & other charges upon the timber for six months, within which time G. was to remove it. G. took possession of the key of the private wharf & sold some of the timber lying there, but he did nothing with reference to the timber on the public wharf, the key of which remained in the hands of the wharfinger, except taking persons to look at it with a view to its sale:—Held: there was no possession or apparent possession of the timber either at the public or private wharf within 1854 Act, so as to render them liable to a seizure under an execution against E.—GOUGH v. EVERARD (1863), 2 H. & C. 1; 2 New Rep. 169; 32 L. J. Ex. 210; 8 L. T. 363; 11 W. R. 702; 159 E. R. 1.

Furniture in grantor's house—Not used by grantor after date of sale.]—E., by a written agreement, sold to G. for £50 some furniture lying in a house, the property of E., & part of which house E. had previously used as an office & occasionally slept in, but of which apartments E. had the use. By the agreement G. out of the £50 was to pay the wages due to E.'s servant, who remained in the house, & the rates & taxes. E. did not use the house after the agreement:—Held: there was no possession or apparent possession of the furniture, by E. within 1854 Act, so as to render them liable to a seizure under an execution against livery.]—H. agreed to get out logs for plffs. A large number were got out during the winter by H., & while on the ice he marked 1,040 logs with plffs.' mark. When the ice broke up, all were floated down together & became mixed. Plffs. accepted & paid £200 on account, & afterwards a delivery was made by H. to them of 1,040 logs, by delivering some in the name of that number out of the whole, which were still together:—Held: Chattel Mortgage Act would not have applied, even if the jury had not found, as they did, that there was an actual & continued change of possession.—*MIDDLEBROOK v. q. — Hauled out & placed at place agreed to by parties.]—Deft. entered into a verbal contract with R., who was then engaged in cutting cordwood on a certain limit, by which the latter was to deliver about 85 cords of wood on the station grounds at M., at a point indicated by deft., in payment of a debt. During the following month R. hauled out & piled about 85 cords of the wood in the place indicated & notified deft. thereof. He also hauled out & piled in different parts of the same grounds about 1,500 cords besides. Plff. afterwards obtained from R. a chattel mtgc. covering the wood delivered for deft. & a large quantity of other wood piled at the same station.

Subsequently deft. went to M., accepted the 85 cords, & had it shipped away:—Held: the facts did not warrant the conclusion that there had been the actual change of possession necessary to satisfy R. S. M., c. 10.—BERNHART v. McCURCHEON (1899), 12 Man. L. R. 394.—CAN.

r. — Not set apart—Agreement by grantee to bear loss by fire.]—B. agreed to deliver to deft., at C., 195 cords of wood to be taken out of two piles of wood containing 200 cords lying at another railway station, & received the consideration therefor. Before anything was done towards delivery of the wood or setting apart the 195 cords from the rest of the wood, B. assigned to plff., for the benefit of his creditors:—Held: (1) R. S. M. 1902 (c. 11), s. 3, had not been complied with; (2) deft.'s agreement to bear the loss, if the wood should be burned, was not sufficient to vest the title in him in the face of the other facts.—*HAVERSON v. 665. Chattels in rooms tenanted by grantor—Key handed to grantee.]—Goods comprised in an unregistered bill of sale were deposited in rooms rented by the grantor, & the keys of the premises demanded & given up to the grantee in consequence of non-compliance by the grantor with the conditions of the bill of sale. The grantor never returned to the premises, but the grantee entered, marked the goods, & kept the keys:—Held: (1) the premises were not occupied by the grantor, & the goods were not in his apparent possession within 1854 Act, ss. 1, 7; (2) the occupation spoken of in s. 7 meant a de facto occupation.—ROBINSON v. BRIGGS (1870), L. R. 6 Exch. 1; 40 L. J. Ex. 17; 23 L. T. 395.

666. Possession demanded but not obtained—Chattels with bailee.]—Under the terms of an unregistered bill of sale of goods, given to secure a debt, the grantor was to be allowed to remain in possession of the goods until default in payment of the debt after demand. Default having been made, the grantee demanded the goods from the owner of a house in which the grantor had placed them, & threatened to take them by force. The grantor remained in possession of the goods until she filed a petition for liquidation:—Held: (1) the fact that the grantee was entitled to & demanded possession did not take the goods out of the grantor's possession within 1854 Act, & the trustee in liquidation was entitled to the goods as against the grantee; (2) if the grantor had bailed the goods to a bailee to hold on account of the grantor, the goods would still have been in the possession of the grantor within the Act, & would not have been taken out of the grantor's possession by the fact that the grantee was entitled

t. Sheep on grantor's land—Marking & removal from other sheep of grantor.]—Plff., a butcher, bought from R. a number of sheep, & marked the sheep with red paint as his property, & they were then placed apart from the rest of R.'s sheep in a separate field on the latter's farm, where they were to remain until required by plff. It was the custom among butchers to leave with farmers stock purchased from them until convenient to remove it:—Held: the mere marking of the sheep, or the removal of them from one field of the seller to another, did not constitute a sufficient delivery or change of possession under C. S. U. C., c. 45, s. 4.—DOYLE v. LASHIER (1866), 16 C. P. 263.—CAN.

v. Horses in grantor's stables—Grantee in actual possession by servant.]—On Oct. 2, 1894, a verbal sale of horses was made to A., & part of the purchase money was then paid. For the convenience of A., & at his request, deft. continued in actual possession of the horses until Nov. 12 following, when he called upon A. & told him that he was going away, but had left everything all right, & that a boy who had been in his employment could take care of everything, & thereafter A., by his servants, remained in actual possession of the horses:—Held: there

667. Grantee's man unable to obtain access to chattels—But remaining on premises.]—The holder of a bill of sale, which was not registered, sent a man to take possession of the goods & prevent the grantor retaining them. The man entered the premises in which the goods were, but could not get into the room in which they were, but kept watch outside the door of such room, the grantor being absent. The jury having found that the man intended bonâ fide to take possession:—Held: there was evidence to justify such finding, & a verdict found for the holder of the bill of sale against an execution creditor, whose execution was put in after such taking of possession, was rightly found.—FURBER v. 668. Wrongful possession.]—Actual possession taken by the grantee of an unregistered bill of sale, even though taken wrongfully, may exclude the operation of 1854 Act. But, though when possession is taken rightfully the possession will be extended by construction of law beyond the actual physical possession, this will not be done in the case of a wrongdoer. His possession will not be constructively extended beyond the articles of which he has obtained actual physical possession.—

a. Stack of hay on grantor's premises—Allowed to remain there on grantor vacating premises.]—H., owing money to G. on a note, the note was given up in exchange for a stack of hay & $5 in cash. The stack was on H.'s premises, where it remained. H. shortly afterwards vacated the premises & G. alleged that he obtained permission for the stack to remain where it was:—Held: the sale was not accompanied by an immediate delivery followed by an actual & continued change of possession, & was void under Bills of Sale & Chattel Mortgage Act.—CONN v. b. Chattels left in grantor's shop—After reasonable time for removal.]—Pltf., on May 31, 1861, purchased & paid for a carriage from F., a carriage maker, for $175, but did not remove it from the shop. Shortly after, pltf.'s wife saw another carriage in the course of building which she preferred, & it was agreed that pltf. should have it, if he chose, upon payment of an additional sum, the one first purchased to be his if he did not take the other:—Held: pltf., having left the carriage in the vendor's hands more than a reasonable time for the removal thereof, the sale came within C. S. U. C., c. 45, & there being no delivery, followed by an actual & continued change of possession, nor any bill of sale filed, in accordance with that Act, the property remained in F.'s hands liable to seizure.—CARRUTHERS v. REYNOLDS (1862), 12 C. P. 596.—CAN.

c. Attempt to take possession.]—Defts. seized goods in the possession of L. under an execution against him, & pltf. claimed the goods as assignees under an unregistered bill of sale given by L. to F. There was no change of possession. Afterwards L. agreed with pltf. to hold the goods as tenant at will at a rental, & subsequently they made an ineffectual attempt to take possession:—Held: that attempt to take possession of the goods was not sufficient to satisfy R. S. O. 1877 (c. 119).—MCKELLAR v. MCGIBBON (1885), 12 A. R. 221.—CAN.

e. Possession after assignment for benefit of creditors.]—On Dec. 28, 1891, N. made a bill of sale to pltf., which was filed on Dec. 29. On Jan. 1, 1892, N. made a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors to C., covering the same property, & parting with all his interest in it. On Jan. 9, N. delivered possession of the property to pltf. The bill of sale was intended to be a security under 5th R. S., c. 92, ss. 4, 5, being made both to secure a debt due, & to secure the grantees against their indorsements for the accommodation of the grantor:—Held: there was no delivery to the mtgees. under the mtge. which transferred to them the possession of the goods.—REID v. CREIGHTON (1895), 27 N. S. R. 90; 24 S. C. R. 69.—CAN.

668 i. Wrongful possession.]—Held: (1) the rights of a mtgee. of chattels are not taken away by his failure to register the instrument unless the goods remain in the possession or apparent possession of the mtgor.; (2) As in the present case the chattels had been effectually though illegally taken out of the mtgor.'s possession and into the possession of deft., the

—The grantee, under an unregistered bill of sale, took possession of the property comprised in it before the filing of a liquidation petition by the grantor. The day before possession was taken, the grantor had committed an act of bkpcy. of which the grantee had no notice:—Held: the "time of such bkpcy.," in 1854 Act, s. 1, meant the time of the act of bkpcy., & the title of the grantee was defeated by virtue of the relation back of the title of the trustee in the liquidation to the earlier act of bkpcy.—*Re TURNER, Ex p. 670. Third party already in possession—Sale stopped & third party ejected.]—Pltf., the holder of an unregistered bill of sale, prior to an act of bkpcy. committed by the grantor of the bill obtained an order of the ct. restraining a sale of the goods already advertised & appointing him receiver. On the day fixed for the sale pltf. entered the premises where the goods were, but found a man in possession, whom he ordered to retire, but pltf. allowed him to remain pending instructions from his employer. Pltf. took possession of the goods & stopped the sale. The act of bkpcy. took place at about two o'clock p.m. & the man was not withdrawn till three o'clock p.m.:—Held: sufficient possession had been taken by seizure was valid as to the chattels sufficiently described in it the bill of sale.—JOHNS v. MULINDER, [1915] N. Z. L. R. 422.—N.Z.

f. Chattels with bailee—Verbal statement by solicitor that he was acting for grantee—Bill blank as to name of grantee.]—A concrete mixer, owned by A. & Co. was stored with T., who had complete possession of it & held it for the owners. R., a solr., having a claim against A. & Co. for costs, on Nov. 20, 1914, procured them to execute a bill of sale of the mixer, leaving the name of the bargainee blank. In Dec., 1914, R. told T. he was the owner or was acting for the owner. Subsequently, the name of L. was inserted in the bill of sale. The bill of sale was never fully completed or registered.—Held: there was no immediate delivery to R. or L. followed by an actual continued change of possession.—MISSISQUOI LAUTZ CORPN. v. g. — Verbal instructions by grantor to hold chattels for grantee—Authority to grantee to sell.]—A. agreed to make for R. an iron fence for which R. furnished him with the iron, & paid a certain sum on account of the work. Being unable to pay the balance, G. advanced the money, taking R.'s note, & the fence, which was then in A.'s yard, was delivered by R. to him to hold for G. until payment of the note, but there was no written agreement. When the note fell due R. authorised G. to sell the fence, but it remained until it was seized under an execution against R.:—Held: the execution could not prevail against G.'s claim.—GURNEY v. h. — Substitution of chattels—Statement of chattels in bailee's hands demanded by grantee.]—S. & Co. used to transmit linens to B. & Co. to be bleached. On Nov. 23, 1874, B. & Co. holding a quantity of such goods pltf. to take the goods out of the apparent possession of the grantor.—BURROUGHS v. WILLIAMS (1878), 13 L. J. N. C. 127.

671. Possession taken for purpose of cataloguing.]—Goods were assigned by an absolute bill of sale to a firm of auctioneers. The grantor arranged to leave the premises on which the goods were & to allow the grantees to sell them by auction on the premises. On the agreed day the auctioneers sent a man to take possession of the goods & to lot & catalogue them for sale:—Held: (1) the bill of sale required registration, as 1878 Act, s. 8, was not repealed as to absolute bills of sale; (2) the goods were not in the apparent possession of the grantor.—ROBINSON v. TUCKER (1883), Cab. & El. 173.

672. Assignment by husband to wife—Chattels at matrimonial domicile.]—A wife, who was living in the same house with her husband, agreed to buy from him the furniture & plate in the house, & she paid him a fair price for the goods, & he gave her a receipt & an acknowledgment that the goods were the absolute property of his wife:—Semble: if the receipt had been a bill of sale the goods would not have been in the apparent possession of the husband, because, the fact that the goods remained in the house being consistent with the possession of either husband or wife, the possession must be attributed to the person, viz., the wife, who had the legal title to them.—RAMSAY v. subject to a lien to a bank for advances made to S. & Co. as against those goods, a deed was executed to the bank by the several members of the two firms, by which S. & Co. transferred all the goods then with B. & Co. to secure all money for the time being to be due to the bank by S. & Co., & B. & Co. covenanted that they held those goods & would hold any other goods which might be substituted by S. & Co. therefor from time to time with the concurrence of the bank, for the bank, & that they would at all times retain goods which should in the gross be equal in value to those which they should part with in substitution, & that the bank might enter & take the goods for the time being, subject to their lien. The deed, which gave the bank power to sell the goods in default of payment of their advances, was not registered. The bank continued to make advances in the ordinary course of trade, the goods were withdrawn by S. & Co., & other goods sent by them to B. & Co. in substitution for them. S. & Co. became bkpts., but before they committed any act of bkpcy. the bank required from B. & Co. a statement of the goods then in their possession, which was delivered by B. & Co. with the consent of S. & Co., & B. & Co. again undertook to hold the goods subject to the bank's lien:—Held: even though no authority was given by the bank for the substitution, the transaction which took place previously to the bkpcy. of S. & Co., constituted novus actus binding the goods then in the possession of B. & Co. in favour of the bank to secure their advances, & took the goods out of the possession or apparent possession of S. & Co. so as to prevent the operation of Bills of Sale Act.—MERCHANT BANKING CO. 672 i. Assignment by husband to wife—Chattels in matrimonial domicile.]—In Aug., 1899, N., the husband of pltf. bought plants from the deft. N., intending to trade in the plants, placed them on land, of which he was lessee. N. in Oct. assigned the lease, furniture & plants to pltf. Pltf. having claimed under the assignment:—Held: the goods did not remain in the possession or apparent possession of N., & the assignment did not require registration as a bill of sale.—NICHOLSON v. Nothing was done to carry out the covenants in the marriage settlement for nearly two years, when the husband executed a bill of sale of the furniture:—Held: as the furniture had been, since the marriage, in the house occupied by the wife & her husband, the possession must be presumed to have been his & not hers, & there was no change of possession at the marriage.—BROWN v. The deed was registered under 1878 Act, s. 10, but was not re-registered under s. 11. Under a separation deed made in 1892 the wife leased the house & furniture to A. In 1894 part of the furniture was taken in execution to satisfy a judgment debt of A.'s. The wife claimed the furniture so taken in execution:—Held: the wife was entitled as she acquired the entire interest in the furniture under the deed of gift, & after the lease A. held as lessee, & the furniture was not in his apparent possession when the execution was levied.—WITHERS v. Grantor & grantee living in same house.]—In 1893, deft., by an absolute bill of sale, assigned the furniture in the house in which he resided, & of which he was the tenant, to a person who also resided in the same house:—Held: it would require cogent evidence to rebut the inference of actual possession by the grantee from the fact that he was living all along in the house in which the goods were, though the grantor lived there also.—ANTONIADI v. After the sale the grantor continued to reside in the same place, & for about a fortnight thereafter he assisted in the store & instructed the man hired by the grantee how to run the business. When the bill of sale is registered, one of the circumstances always relied on to show fraud, viz., the secrecy of the transaction, is wanting.—SHIRREFF v. MCKEEN (1883), 23 N. B. R. 184.—CAN.

After the filing of the bill of sale, the property was allowed to remain in the possession of the grantor:—Held: the fact of the property remaining in the possession of the grantor was not a fraud in itself, but a matter for the consideration of the judge, & he having found that the amount named as the consideration was due from the grantor to the grantee, & that the transaction was not tainted with fraud, & the amount of property transferred not being excessive, there was no reason for disturbing his finding.—FRASER v. The county ct. judge found as a fact that the chattels were in the apparent possession of the grantor of the bill of sale. On appeal to the Div. Ct. it was contended that the seizure of the chattels in execution prevented them being in the apparent possession of the grantor of the bill of sale, but the Div. Ct. decided that, notwithstanding the execution, the chattels comprised in the bill of sale were in the apparent possession of the grantor, & the bill of sale, being unregistered, was void against the execution creditor:—Held: there being evidence on which the county ct. judge could find as a fact that the chattels were in the apparent possession of the grantor, his finding could not be disturbed.—SALES AGENCY, LTD. v. ELITE THEATRES, [1917] 2 K. B. 164; 86 L. J. K. B. 1060; 117 L. T. 8; [1917] H. B. R. 163, C. A.

681. Chattels in hands of police—Taken from grantor on arrest.—A., being in custody upon a criminal charge, executed a bill of sale of certain jewels, of which the police inspector had taken possession. The bill of sale was never registered. A. having been subsequently adjudicated bkpt., the trustee under an order of the ct. obtained possession of the jewels from the police inspector:—Held: the bill of sale was void for want of registration as against the claim of the trustee, who was entitled to the jewels as being in the apparent possession of the grantor at the date of the adjudication.—Re WOOD, Ex p. NEWSHAM (1879), 40 L. T. 104.

682. Chattels handed to auctioneer—For sale.—P., a trader, being in want of capital sold to plffs. certain agricultural machinery, including a steam engine & thrashing machine, with their appurtenances, for £700, & signed a sale or receipt note for same. Plffs. thereupon, by an agreement in writing, let the machinery on hire to P. for a term of three years at or for £882, payable by quarterly instalments of £73 10s., & the agreement provided that in case of default being made by P. in payment of the £882 or the quarterly instalments or any part thereof, or if P. during the term became bkpt., or assigned, or parted with possession of the machinery or any part thereof, without the consent of plffs., it should be lawful for them to resume & take absolute possession of the machinery. Neither the sale note nor the agreement was registered under 1854 Act, & P. paid two instalments of £73 10s. due under the agreement & no more. P., without the consent or knowledge of plffs., & after he had made default in payment of the instalments, parted with the possession of the steam engine & thrashing machine, with their appurtenances, & delivered same to deft., who had no notice of the above agreement, for the purpose of having them sold by auction, & deft. advanced £100 to P. on them, & also incurred expenses in attempting to sell them. P. then committed an act of bkpcy. by absconding, & plffs. demanded possession of the steam engine & thrashing machine, with their appurtenances, from deft., who claimed a lien upon them in respect of his commission & charges as auctioneer in such attempted sale, & also in respect of the advance of £100 which had not been repaid to him by P.

k. —.— What jury must consider.—In considering whether a sufficient change of possession has taken place, regard must be had to the nature & purposes of the assignment, & the circumstances of the case. When an assignment is made by a merchant for the benefit of his creditors, it is not to be expected that the assignee should remove the goods or take exclusive possession, as in the case of an ordinary sale, & the assignor may continue upon the premises & assist in disposing of the goods, without vitiating the assignment in law, but it is a fact for the jury as evidence to show that the transfer was colourable.—MAULSON v. COMMERCIAL BANK (1859), 17 U. C. R. 30.—CAN.

— What amounts to change of possession.—See Sect. 3, sub-sect. 1, A., ante.

l. —.— Whether finding of jury inconsistent.—P. under an unregistered bill of sale put a bailiff in possession of A.'s goods, & shortly afterwards A. became a bkpt. The goods were claimed by the Official Assignee, & the issue was tried by a jury, one question put to them being whether the goods at the commencement of the bkpcy. were in the apparent possession of A., which they answered: "Apparent, but in the actual possession of P." It was contended that that was an inconsistent finding:—Held: the finding of the jury was not inconsistent, & it was impossible to say that the jury were wrong.—Re ANDERSON (1890), 11 N. S. W. L. R. 51.—AUS.

m. Chattels in hands of bailee.—Where the grantor of an unregistered bill of sale becomes bkpt., & a chattel comprised in the bill of sale is, at the date of the act of bkpcy. to which the bkpcy. relates back, in the actual possession neither of the grantor nor of the grantee, but of some third person, then, if such third person be the simple bailee of the grantor, such as a bailee for safe custody, such possession is constructively the possession of the grantor, & the chattel will be deemed to be in the apparent possession of the grantor within Chattels Transfer Act, 1889, s. 25, but otherwise if the bailee be a pledgee of the grantor, & the fact that the grantor had no right, as against the grantee of the bill of sale, to make such a pledge will for this purpose make no difference.—SOUTH PACIFIC LOAN & INVESTMENT CO. v. WRIGHT'S OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE (1898), 17 N. Z. L. R. 492.—N.Z.

n. Mortgaged stock in possession of mortgagor.—Semble: Instruments & Securities Act enacting that the possession of the mortgaged stock by the mtgor. shall be to all intents & purposes in law the possession of the mtgee., notwithstanding the subsequent insolvency of the mtgor. is restricted to the case of the insolvency of the mtgor.—CAVE v. BEVERIDGE (1877), 3 V. L. R. 302.—AUS.

682 i. Chattels handed to auctioneer—For sale.—B., a dry goods dealer, consigned his stock-in-trade to S. & Co., auctioneers, for sale, the proceeds to be applied in payment of $800 advanced to B. by S. & Co., & of $250 advanced by M. & Co. After the goods had reached the warehouse of S. & Co. B. gave other orders on the proceeds, which they accepted conditionally:—Held: the consignment to S. & Co. was as complete & continuous a change of possession as in the circumstances it was possible to effect, & no necessity existed under Chattel Mortgage Act for registering the orders.—MCMASTER v. GARLAND (1883), 31 C. P. 320; 8 A. R. 1.—CAN.

o. Effect of grantee taking actual possession—Bankruptcy of grantor.—Where the goods are not in the apparent possession of bkpt. the bkpcy. of mtgor. does not avoid an unregistered bill of sale.—POWELL v. HARCOURT (1884), 2 N. Z. L. R. C. A. 303.—N.Z.

p. —.— Of part only of chattels.—Held: although the deed, for want of registration, could have no effect with respect to the furniture, of which there had been no sufficient change of possession, yet it was not thereby avoided as to those goods which went into & remained in possession of the assignees.—TAYLOR v. WHITTEMORE (1853), 10 U. C. R. 440.—CAN.

Sect. 3.—As regards what chattels: Sub-sect. 1, B.; sub-sect. 2, A.]

In an action to recover the steam engine & machinery, with their appurtenances or their value & damages for their detention:—Held: plffs. were entitled to judgment, on the ground that the steam engine & machinery, whether the agreement amounted to a bill of sale or not, were not in the possession or apparent possession of P. at the time of his bkpcy., within 1854 Act, s. 1.—LINCOLN WAGGON & ENGINE CO. v. MUMFORD (1879), 41 L. T. 655.

683. Chattels let by grantor—Grantee receiving part of rent.]—The mtgor. of a house & furniture let same to a tenant for six months with the consent of the mtgee. to whom, by arrangement between the parties, a certain portion of the rent was paid. The mtge. deed was not registered as a bill of sale. The mtgor. having become bkpt., the mtgee., at the termination of the six months' tenancy, took possession of the furniture & goods in the house, & claimed to retain them as against the trustee in the liquidation:—Held: inasmuch as the furniture & goods comprised in the mtge. deed were not used & enjoyed by bkpt. so as to be in his apparent possession within 1854 Act, the mtgee. was entitled to retain them.—Re WESTRAY, Ex p. MORRISON (1880), 42 L. T. 158; 28 W. R. 524.

684. Bill given by grantee—Chattels in possession of original grantor.]—The grantee of a bill of sale assigned the goods, which were in the original grantor's possession, by an absolute bill of sale:—Held: the goods were not in the apparent possession of the grantee of the first bill of sale.—HALL v. SMITH (1887), 3 T. L. R. 805, C. A.

685. Chattels removed to house of grantor's son—Where grantor lived.]—A voluntary post-nuptial settlement of furniture made by bkpt. for the benefit of his wife, himself, & the children of the marriage was registered as a bill of sale under 1854 Act, but was not registered in accordance with 1866 Act, s. 4. Bkpt. resided in a house taken by his son, to which the furniture comprised in the bill of sale had been removed. After the passing of 1878 Act, the deed was twice registered:—Held: the furniture was in the actual or apparent possession of bkpt. at the date of the filing of the petition, & as the bill of sale could not be effectually registered under 1878 Act, it was void as against the trustee in bkpcy. as regarded the chattels comprised in it.—*Re EMERY, Ex p. Then followed a proviso: "in case A. shall cause to be paid to B. the £518 on Jan. 1, 1845, or at such earlier time as B. shall appoint by notice in writing to A., ten

PART VI. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 2.

686 i. Whether included in bill.]—At law, a bill of sale cannot pass the property in goods which are not in existence, or which do not belong to the grantor at the time the deed is given, though in equity such a contract would operate to transfer to the vendee the beneficial interest in the property as soon as it was required by the grantor, & the grantee might enforce specific performance of the contract.—LLOYD v. EUROPEAN & NORTH AMERICAN RY. CO. (1879), 2 P. & B. 194.—CAN.

686 ii. —.]—Although the rule at law is, that an instrument, intended either to assign or charge chattels of which the assignor has not the possession, is imperfect without some subsequent act of the assignor, the same is not the case in equity, neither does it prevail in insolvency proceedings.

Circumstances in which:—Held: mtgee. entitled to after-acquired property, as against the assignee in insolvency.—Re THIRKELL, PERRIN v. WOOD (1874), 21 Gr. 492.—CAN.

686 iii. —.]—A bill of sale recited that pltf. had furnished W. with a stock of goods to commence business with, on which W. still owed pltf. $14,987, that W. desired pltf. to continue to supply him with goods from time to time, & that W. as well to secure payment of that sum, as also of all further sums which he might owe pltf. for future supplies of goods had agreed to execute an assignment to pltf. by way of mtge. of his present stock-in-trade, goods, etc., & also all such goods & merchandise as he might afterwards purchase or receive into his stock in the store described. The bill of sale then conveyed to pltf. all W.'s stock-in-trade, etc., with authority upon default in payment, after demand, to enter W.'s store & seize, etc.:—Held: the deed showed an intention to convey the after-acquired property to pltf. & not merely to give him a licence to enter & seize it in default of payment by W., & on such default, the equitable right to such goods vested in pltf., & a ct. of equity would enforce performance of the agreement.—VASSIE v. VASSIE (1882), 22 N. B. R. 76.—CAN.

686 iv. —.]—A chattel mtge. conveyed to pltf. the stock-in-trade of mtgor., which purported to be enumerated in a schedule & was described as being on certain named premises. The schedule after setting out the goods proceeded: "& all goods which at any time may be owned by mtgor. & kept in the store for sale & whether now in stock or hereafter to be purchased & placed in stock":—Held: after-acquired stock brought into the business in the ordinary course thereof, became subject to the chattel mtge. as against execution creditors of the mtgor., notwithstanding their writs were in the hands of the sheriff at the time when such stock was brought into the business, the equitable right of the mtgee. under such agreement attaching immediately on the goods reaching the premises.—COYNE v. LEE (1887), 14 A. R. 503.—CAN.

686 v. —.]—F., the husband of pltf., in 1895 gave to C. a chattel mtge. upon a livery stable stock described as eight horses & harnesses now in livery stable owned by F., six waggons in storehouse, four pungs, coach harness, buffaloes, & robes now in stable, & upon property which might be substituted for or added to such stock. In Mar., 1886, F. gave pltf. a chattel mtge., in which the property conveyed was described in almost the same words as in the mtge. to C., but the schedule, after enumerating specifically a number of articles, concluded as follows: "Also all other goods now or hereafter during the continuance of these presents used in connection with the livery stable, & all property hereafter acquired therein." In July, 1886, C. assigned his mtge. to deft. but the assignment was silent as to the after-acquired property:—Held: (1) the mtge. to pltf. was sufficient to cover after-acquired property; (2) the mtge. to C. & the assignment thereof to deft. were insufficient to cover after-acquired property.—FRASER v. MACPHERSON (1899), 34 N. B. R. 417.—CAN.

686 vi. —.]—A bill of sale by an unmarried woman assigned all present & after-acquired property that might days before the time in such notice appointed for payment, & shall, in the meantime, pay to B. interest thereon half-yearly, then these presents, etc., shall be absolutely void." A. remained in possession for a year, & then, in Jan., 1884, gave formal possession to B. of all the goods then on his premises. No notice in writing was given to A. requiring payment of the principal & interest:—Held: this was a present conveyance, by which the property of all goods on the premises, at the time of its execution, passed to B., but goods brought upon the premises by A. after the execution of the bill of sale did not pass under it.—GALE v. BURNELL (1845), 7 Q. B. 850; 14 L. J. Q. B. 340; 10 Jur. 198; 115 E. R. 708.

689. —.]—Although after-acquired chattels may be assigned in equity, & a contract to assign may in equity operate as an actual assignment, yet in order that a mere contract may amount to an actual assignment, it must purport to confer an interest in the future chattels immediately by its own force, & without the necessity of any further act on the part of the assignee upon the future chattels coming into existence, & an assignment of existing chattels, coupled with words which amount to a mere licence to seize after-acquired property, will not be construed as an equitable assignment of the latter.

The lessee of a brickfield executed to G. a bill of sale of the bricks, plant, etc., then in & upon the premises, to secure £3,000 with interest, to be repaid on a specified day, with a proviso that the lessee should have the use & enjoyment until default, or the expiration of one day after notice in writing by G. requiring possession should be given, & the bill contained a power of entry & sale, & the lessee gave & granted to G., his exors., administrators & assigns, or his or their agents or servants, licence at all times during the continuance of the security to enter on the premises, & there remain, & seize & hold possession of the property then on the premises, as if same formed part of the chattels thereby assigned. The lessee subsequently executed other bills of sale to R. in a similar form. G., who assisted the lessee in the management of his business, deposited his bill of sale & the papers relating to the brickfield with his private bankers by way of equitable mtge. Subsequently the lessee fell into difficulties & R. took possession, & shortly afterwards, G. having become bkpt., the assignee in bkpcy. of G. also took possession by the messenger & refused to withdraw. The bankers had omitted to give notice to the lessee, who swore that he was not, until G.'s bkpcy., aware of the deposit having been made:—Held: the bill of sale to G. operated as an assignment only of the property then on the brickfield, with a licence to seize future property.

A receiver having been appointed & put into possession by the Ct. of Ch., & the exercise of the licences to seize having been thus prevented: Semble: the rights of the mtgees. in reference to after-acquired property must be determined by reference to what they might have done under their powers to seize at the time when the ct. interfered.—REEVE v. WHITMORE, MARTIN v. WHITMORE (1863), 4 De G. J. & Sm. 1; 3 New Rep.

be brought upon the premises & contained a license to seize & sell such property:—Held: as the bill of sale not only contained a license to seize after-acquired property, but absolutely assigned it, the mtgee. had an equitable interest in such property as soon as it was brought upon the premises, which was not destroyed by the subsequent marriage of the grantor.—WEBB v. NATIONAL BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, 3 J. R. N. S. 114.—N.Z.

686 vii. —.]—Where the stock-in-trade of a business was mortgaged as security for a loan, & a list of the specific articles of which it consisted was attached to the mtge. deed:—Held: the mtge. did not include stock acquired after the date of the mtge. to replace that which had been sold.—*ANDERSON v. they would keep an account of such goods, substituted or otherwise, & that it should at all times be lawful for the bank to enter on their premises & take the goods subject to the deed, it being provided that on default of payment by S. & Co. the bank should have power to sell the goods, & S. & Co. covenanting with the bank to do whatever might be expedient or necessary for the purpose of perfecting the title of the bank to the goods:—Held: the deed created a valid mtge. of the future-acquired goods.—*MERCHANT BANKING CO. A quantity of iron was purchased for the railway, the vendors stipulating "these rails to be laid down upon the B. & O. Railway Co. of Canada," to which the vendees, by their agent, assented. The iron was shipped to the vendees, who indorsed the bills of lading to the municipality of Lanark & Renfrew, who paid the shipping charges & freight out of moneys which formed part of the advances secured by the mtge. of Mar. 7, 1854, & the municipality having the iron in their possession at Brockville ready to be placed on the railway, it was seized under an execution against the railway co.:—Held: (1) as the mtges. covered chattel as well as real property, the words "other property" in them were not restricted to real property, for the Act placed a legislative & different construction on the mtge.; (2) under the indorsement of the bill of lading to the municipality, who obtained possession of the iron by such indorsement, together with the stipulation of the vendors, & the assent thereto of the vendees, plffs. acquired the possession & the property in the said iron, & it became a part of the property mortgaged.—*LANARK & RENFREW CORPN. v. 690. —.]—Pltf., a contractor for carrying the mails from A., in Essex, to B., in Suffolk, & back, owing £30 to deft., executed in Oct., 1871, a bill of sale as a security for the debt, whereby he granted to deft. "all & every the household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, live & dead stock, horses, & other cattle, carts & carriages, corn & hay, & all other the goods, chattels, personal estate & effects, whatsoever & wheresoever, of him pltf., & which now or at any time hereafter, may be in, about, or upon the dwelling-house & premises of pltf., at A. aforesaid, or elsewhere, with a proviso making void the indenture on payment by pltf. of the principal & interest on a day therein mentioned. It was provided that in default in payment of the principal & interest at the time therein mentioned, deft. should, & might, enter upon the messuage & premises of pltf., where any of his goods, chattels, & personal estate were deposited, & take possession of same, & for that purpose, if necessary, to break open any doors or other obstructions, & sell & dispose of the goods & effects, & receive the money arising from the sale thereof, & apply same in manner in the said bill of sale mentioned. On May 18, 1875, pltf. drove the mail cart from A. to B., as usual, & put up his horse & cart at the inn stables there, where also was standing at the time a second horse belonging to him, two horses being necessary for working the mail. He then went away on business, & during his absence deft. came to the stables & seized & carried away pltf.'s two horses, & afterwards sold them, & applied the proceeds in payment of £13 9s. 4d., balance of pltf.'s debt of £30, which then remained due under the bill of sale. In an action of trespass by pltf. against deft. for so seizing his horses:—Held: there must be a verdict for pltf. for £30, the value as found by the jury, of the horses seized, as there was not in the bill of sale any assignment of future property nor any assignment of property "elsewhere" than on pltf.'s premises.—*GREENBIRT v. 692 i. — Possession taken by grantee.—]—By indenture of Apr. 17, 1860, D. assigned the live stock on a station & his interest in the station to A., B. & C. in mtge. to secure a loan & repayment on Aug. 11, 1860. He covenanted that on default it should be lawful for the mtgees. "at any time or times to seize & take possession of" all the live stock for the time being found in the station & "absolutely to sell & dispose of" what should be so taken possession of "whether hereinbefore assigned or hereby authorised to be seized." He also covenanted for further assurance of the live stock "so expressed to be hereby respectively assigned," & the chattels "hereby authorised to be seized & sold," & he agreed that any added or substituted live stock thereafter depasturing or used upon the station during the continuance of the security should be "deemed to be included in this security & to be hereby assigned." Default was made, & subsequently in Oct., 1860, the mtgor. bought 350 head of cattle & put them on the station. On May 18, 1861, the mtgees. entered on the station & took possession of all the live stock, including the 350 cattle added after default. No assignment of the 350 cattle was ever made to the mtgees. or required by them:—Held: the seizure completely divested the title of the mtgor. & rendered that of the mtgees. valid as against all the world.—*GOODMAN v. 692 ii. —.]—M., the lessee of a hotel, gave a bill of sale over his furniture in the hotel, & all after-acquired furniture, goods, & chattels which might be brought upon the premises, to S. Subsequently a co., to enable M. to sell beer on the "quick

M. disposed of his lease to B., & S., exercising his power under his registered bill of sale, & with the approval of M., assigned all the furniture, etc., to B. The co. sued B., who claimed that the fittings passed to S. under the after-acquired property clause of the bill of sale:—Held: S. had never acquired any title to the fittings.—*BANNAN v. Afterwards, default having been made, he took possession & began selling off by auction:—Held: in an action by the assignee & creditors of the sons to restrain the sale, the legal operation of the instrument of sale was to confer upon the vendor an equitable title in the stock to be afterwards acquired, & to give him the right to take possession for default in payment.—*BANKS v. Goods were supplied from time to time under the agreement. In 1905, the business not being conducted to pltf.'s satisfaction, & M. & S. being insolvent, pltf. entered the store by force & took possession of all the stock & effects on the premises, & of the books of account:—Held: as to goods supplied by pltf., the property therein did not pass to M. & S.—*GAULT BROTHERS CO. v. 695. ———.]—T. was the owner of certain machinery in a mill ; it was purchased by H., but not removed, & T. continued in possession. T. executed a deed, which was duly registered, by which it was declared that the machinery was the property of H., that T. desired to repurchase it for £5,000, but had not the money to pay for it, wherefore it was conveyed to B. in trust when T. should pay the money to transfer it to him, & if he did not pay the money to hold it absolutely for H. The deed contained a covenant by T. to insure the machinery, & another covenant that all the machinery which, during the continuance of same were used in addition to, substitution for, or in connection with the premises thereby assigned, or expressed & intended so to be, or otherwise. It was expressly agreed by the bill of sale that the security should extend to & comprise, not only the mortgaged property therein before particularly set out, but also all further businesses, leases, goodwills, etc., & all other property whatsoever which G. might thereafter acquire or become possessed of, or entitled to during the subsistence of the security, whether same might be used either in addition to, or in substitution for, or in connection with the mortgaged property therein before set out or otherwise. G. at the time of his death he was carrying on business at the shop T., but he resided in another house, the property of his wife. Before his death he had been accustomed to import chemicals from England, & to store them at his private residence, taking them thence & using them at the shop as required. Certain of the chemicals acquired after the date of the bill of sale were stored at the private house at the time of G.'s death, & there was also in or about his private residence certain household furniture & effects acquired by G. before his death :—Held : the bill of sale included the chemicals stored at G.'s residence, & also such of the furniture as he had acquired after the execution of the bill of sale.—Re GOODRICH, ELLIOTT BROTHERS, LTD. v. 694 v. ——— Chattels at two places of business.—Persons carrying on business as manufacturers of hoops & staves at their factory at B., & also as general storekeepers at L., in the same county, made a chattel mtge. conveying their goods & chattels to deft., as set forth in two schedules annexed thereto. Schedule A. covered the machinery & other goods & chattels in the factory, &, after describing them, extended to all other goods & chattels thereafter purchased or manufactured or brought on the premises, whether for the business of stave manufacturing or not, or into or upon any other premises thereafter to be occupied by the mtgors., or either of them, it being understood that all logs, staves & bolts manufactured & timber brought on the mtgors.' premises or not, after the execution of the mtge., should be covered thereby. Schedule B. covered the goods & chattels in the general store, & extended to goods & chattels thereafter brought into the store premises:—Held: the provision in schedule B, as to after-acquired goods referred only to goods brought into the store in which the business was then being carried on, & not to goods brought into the store at B., to which that business had been subsequently removed, & the provision as to after-acquired goods in schedule A. did not apply to the after-acquired goods brought into the store at B., for the reference thereto was only to goods of the character referred to in that schedule.—*MILLIGAN v. 694 vi. — — — Mortgage of live stock.—In Instruments Act, 1890 (No. 1103), ss. 169, 170, the words "other chattels" include all things which are reasonably necessary for the working of a station of the description mentioned in the mtge., & furniture in the house of the person managing the station is included in the term "other chattels" in s. 170.

Where the judgment debtor has assigned all after-acquired property brought on the premises, such assignment becomes complete in equity upon the property coming into existence, & the equitable mtee. thereof can restrain the sheriff from selling such property at the instance of an execution creditor, who has seized without notice of such assignment.—ANDERSON v. CARTER (1894), 20 V. L. R. 246.—AUS.

694 vii. — Future crops on land specified in schedule.]—J. assigned to S. & L. by bill of sale "the crops, horses, cattle, & chattels mentioned" in a schedule annexed; also "all new or other horses, crops, cattle, or chattels" to be thereafter "owned, planted, grown, purchased, or used by J. for the purpose of the business of contractor & farmer, or for any other purpose, & which should from time to time be added to or substituted for the crops, cattle, horses, & chattels, set forth in" the schedule. The schedule specified crops growing and to be grown on certain described lands:—Held: the bill of sale did not comprise crops which were afterwards grown by J. on other lands farmed by him, but not specified in the schedule, & which had not been stored or stacked on the specified lands.—ASHCROFT v. TROY, 1 J. R. 55.—N.Z.

the deed should be placed in the mill in addition to, or substitution for, the original machinery, should be subject to the same trusts. T. sold some of the original machinery, purchased new machinery, & sent to H. accounts of such sales & purchases, but nothing was done by or on behalf of H. to take possession of the newly purchased machinery. On Apr. 2, 1860, H. served T. with notice of a demand for payment of the £5,000. An execution against T. was afterwards put in by a creditor:—Held: though there had been no novus actus interveniens, the title of H. was preferable to that of the execution creditor, as to the new as well as the old machinery.—*HOLROYD v. 700 iii. ———.]—M. conveyed horses & colts to pltf. by bill of sale as security for an alleged debt. Pltf. ex-

that it should be lawful for pltf. at any time to seize & take possession of the crops & other effects thereby bargained & sold, & all such crops & other effects which should or might from time to time be substituted in lieu of the crops thereby assigned, or which should from time to time be found on or about the farm, & to sell & dispose of them, & out of the proceeds pay all costs & retain all money due to pltf. On Feb. 21, 1849, £1,297 18s. 7d. being then due to him, pltf. seized some crops of grain then growing on the farm, which had been sown by S. subsequently to the execution of the indenture. In Trinity term, 1848, deft. recovered a judgment against S., & on Feb. 22, 1849, a writ of fi. fa. indorsed to levy £310 19s. 3d., was issued on such judgment & delivered to the sheriff for execution, who on the same day seized the crops. On Mar. 8, 1849, S. petitioned the Insolvent Ct. under Execution Act, 1844 (c. 96). The official assignee in the first instance claimed the crops, & a bill was filed by him in the Ct. of Ch. to restrain pltf. from selling them, which bill was dismissed upon terms agreed on between pltf. & the assignee, & the latter then abandoned all claim to the crops. The sheriff afterwards sold the crops for £294, which came to the hands of deft., & pltf. sued deft. for same:—Held: supposing debtor had not petitioned the Insolvent Ct., pltf. had a right to recover, for though the power to seize future crops, if unexecuted, would have been of no avail against deft.'s execution, since it gave no legal or equitable title to any specific crops, yet when the power was executed to the extent of pltf.'s taking possession of the then growing crops he was in the same situation as if debtor himself had delivered them to him, & his title would prevail against that of deft.—*CONGREVE v. his premises, upon trust to permit R. to remain in possession & carry on his trade until a specified event, & on that happening, to stand possessed of the premises upon trust to enter & take possession of all the premises, including all substituted consumable stores, pursuant to the declaration thereafter contained & to sell same. There was also a clause that, when any of the dye wares, etc., thereby assigned & specified in the schedule should be consumed & others substituted for them in the ordinary way of business, the substituted dye wares, etc., should belong to deft., upon the trusts before declared, & should be considered as included in the assignment, in like manner as if they were then the property of R., & were included in the schedule so that the security might at all times be of an adequate value. R. continued in possession until the specified event, & during that time, substituted dye wares, etc., for others consumed in the way of business. After the event happened, deft. took possession of all the dye wares, etc., then on the premises, including those which had been substituted by R., & several months after sold the same dye wares, etc. R. had become bkpt. after the seizure, & before the sale, & his assignees sued in trover for the substituted dye wares:—Held: the property in the substituted dye wares vested in deft. when he took possession under the deed, either by a transfer of them made valid by a new act subsequently done by the grantor, or by virtue of the express authority to take possession of them completed by possession being actually taken.—*HOPE v. c. ———.]—Live stock.—The object & result of Stock Mortgage Act (No. 313), s. 6, is to introduce into every stock mtge. duly registered, unless the contrary is expressed therein, a most stringent form of the clauses commonly inserted in such mtges. respecting stock afterwards brought upon any station occupied by the mtgor. & named in the mtge. It is indifferent whether the stations, on which the stock expressed to be assigned are stated to be depastured or intended to be depastured, are mortgaged or not, or whether the stock afterwards brought thereon during the continuance of the security are of the same kind as those expressly assigned. All are to be covered by the mtge., unless the mtgor. at the time of entering into the security distinctly stipulates for some other terms. Semble: the effect of the enactment in s. 6 that a registered mtge. of stock shall be deemed to include after-acquired stock, is no greater than that of an assignment of after-acquired stock contained in the mtge. itself, which creates only an equitable interest, which would give a complete title to the mtgee. as against the mtgor., or any one purchasing from him with notice of the mtgee.'s interest, but not as against an innocent purchaser.—*GROOM v. f. ———.]—P., having obtained an advance of £500 from G., executed a bill of sale by way of mtge. in his favour over all his farming stock & implements then being on his farm at W. The bill of sale contained provisions making all after-acquired live stock, whatever & wheresoever, of P. liable to the mtge. P. remained in possession of the farm, & from time to time made sales of stock with the permission of G., & purchased other stock in lieu of that sold. P. obtained sheep from pltf. for his farm, and they advanced him money to buy cattle. They pressed P. for payment of a debt due by him, & it was agreed that they should take his bill of exchange for the amount due, upon the condition that he should hold the sheep which he had obtained from them, & certain cattle which he had bought with their assistance, on their behalf until the bill had been retired, & it was also agreed that the cattle & sheep should be placed in pltf.'s hands for sale as a security

705. — Future book debts—Assignment of premises with goodwill & goods—Grantor to carry on business.]—H. was in business as a tobacconist, & B. lent him £2,500 on security of an unregistered bill of sale, by the provisions of which a share in the profits was to be paid to B. in lieu of interest, & the leasehold premises on which the business was carried on were mortgaged to B. to secure his loan, together with the goodwill " & all the goods, wares, merchandise, stock-in-trade, fixtures, furniture, articles, effects, & things belonging to " H., in for the due payment of the bill. G. having subsequently seized all the live stock upon P.'s farm:—Held: (1) cattle & sheep brought upon P.'s farm were sufficiently specific to pass under the assignment of after-acquired live stock; (2) G. having obtained possession of the after-acquired property under the mtge., plffs. were not entitled to insist upon a fulfilment of the agreement made with them by P.—DRIVER v. PITT, Mac. 872.—N.Z.

g. — Covenant to brand.]—In order that a chattel security may affect after-acquired stock there must be a covenant to brand or mark the stock with a specified or indicated brand, & a provision in an instrument that subsequently acquired stock is to be subject to the instrument will not give a right to the stock against the official assignee of a bkpt. mtgor., at any rate, if the stock was in the possession of bkpt. at the time of the act of bkpt. The abbreviated covenant in "will brand" will be read as a covenant to brand after-acquired sheep with the brand mentioned in the schedule as the brand of the specified sheep.—Re CHRISTIE (1901), 19 N. Instrument by way of security under 1889 Act, over certain stock charged all the real & personal estate, both present & future, of mtgor. with the payment of all money secured thereby, & also contained a covenant providing that mtgor. "will brand with the brand of mtgor. or a brand to be named by mtgees., & when and where directed by mtgees.":—Held: the effect of the covenant to brand was to impose on mtgor. the obligation of branding all stock, including after-acquired stock, with his own brand, or, if required to do so by mtgees., with a brand to be named by them, & so to make after-acquired stock subject to the security.—Re BILBY BARKER (1910), 30 N. The timber made after the mtge. was marked as it was got out, with plffs.' mark, but remained in C.'s possession, & was seized by an execution creditor:—Held: plffs. could not recover it under their mtge.—CUMMINGS v. m. — .]—Plff. & W. made an agreement, by which plff. was to make advances to W. to enable him to draw out & to make & get to market a quantity of timber. It was agreed that the timber then made, & all thereafter made, should be delivered to plff. as security, & in proof of such delivery should be marked as specified, & that it should be rafted to market under W.'s directions. The timber was seized by debt. as sheriff under an execution against W.:—Held: that W. could not be looked upon merely as agent of plff., & the timber regarded as plff.'s from the first, for that would be inconsistent with the deed:—Held: the deed operated to pass only the timber made & capable of delivery at the time of its execution, & such as, being made afterwards, was delivered to plff. & marked for him.—SHORT v. respect of the business, & it was declared "that all fixtures, furniture, goods, wares, merchandise, articles, & things" which should during the continuance of the security, "be brought upon the premises" or "be in any other place or places in the actual or constructive possession of H." should be included in the security. The deed also provided that the property should remain in the possession of H. until B. should take possession, for its insurance, & for the keeping of proper books of account, in which entries were to be made "of all the money, goods, wares, merchandise, debts, & other effects belonging or owing to" H. in respect of the business. H. sold some of the goods on credit, but did not receive the price. B. took possession of the premises under the powers contained in the deed, & gave notice to the persons who had bought goods on credit to pay the price to him. Shortly afterwards H. presented a liquidation petition. The trustee in liquidation & B. both claimed the book debts:—Held: as the book debts were not "things," & could not be in a "place" or "in the actual or constructive possession" of H., they were not within the words of the assignment & did not pass to B.—BROWN v. FRYER (1882), 46 L. T. 636, C. A.

706. — .]—A bill of sale assigned all the book debts due & owing, or which might during the continuance of the security become due & owing to the mtgor.:—Held: the assignment of future book debts, though not limited to book debts in any particular business, was sufficiently defined & passed the equitable interest in book debts incurred after the assignment, whether in the business carried on by the mtgor. at the time of the assignment or in any other business.—

book debts created subsequent to the bill of sale were included, & also the books in which the debts were entered.—LONDON CHARTERED BANK OF AUSTRALIA v. FISCHER (1890), 11 N. S. W. Eq. 193.—AUS.

r. Whether grantor true owner—Brother.—A chattel mtge. was made by W. H. at a time when he knew that J. H., his brother, who carried on business as J. H. & Co., was insolvent. There was no evidence that the grantee knew the goods were the goods of J. H.:—Held: the mtge. could not be set aside at the instance of the assignee of J. s. — Consignee — Sale rescinded.—On July 14, 1886, pltf. forwarded hides to L., at P., to whom he had been in the habit of making sales. The hides were not ordered by L., but were shipped on the presumption that he would receive them as on previous occasions, subject to inspection & approval. On Aug. 5, some days after the arrival of the hides at

P., one of the servants of L., finding them at the landing, & without any special instructions to that effect, conveyed them to the tannery. L. being in financial difficulties at the time, ordered the hides to be placed in a warehouse belonging to D., to be held for the benefit of the consignor. At the same time he telegraphed pltf. as follows: "In trouble; have stored hides; appoint some one to take charge of them." Pltf. proceeded to P. & saw L., who told him that he might make himself easy about the hides, that he had placed them in D.'s store for him, & that he would get them. On Aug. 12, L. executed a bill of sale to defts., covering all the hides, etc., "owned by L., or stored by him in any building, warehouse or store-room of D., or in his keeping":—Held: the contract of sale between L. & pltf. was rescinded by the action of L. in handing the goods over to D., with directions to hold them for the consignor, who acquiesced & adopted the act of L., & there was no title to the goods in L., when the bill of sale was made to defts.—PICTOU BANK v. t. — Two grantors—Separate property.—Two brothers, one of whom owned a horse & the other of whom owned a horse & dray, & who were not in partnership, executed a bill of sale over the two horses & the dray to secure a loan. 710. — Married woman—Separate estate.—Upon a judgment against a husband & wife jointly, certain household furniture was taken in execution at the house where they resided. On an interpleader issue to try the title to such furniture as between the execution creditors & claimants, it appeared that before the marriage the husband had executed a deed declaring that the goods, which then belonged to the wife, should after the marriage continue to belong to her for her sole & separate use. The wife assigned the goods to claimants by a bill of sale made prior to the execution & duly registered under 1878 & 1882 Acts, to which the husband was no party:—Held: the bill of sale executed by the wife was valid under the above Acts, & claimants were entitled to the goods as against the execution creditors.—WALROND v. two brothers were thereafter called "the grantors," but in many places, & in the covenant to repay, it referred to the grantor in the singular number:—Held: such an instrument would pass the individual ownership of each of the grantors in the chattels mtgd., & 1908 Act, s. 21, would not render it invalid.—ANDREWS v. FAN TU (1909), 28 N. Z. L. R. 1042.—N.Z.

The cos. were intended by the parties to, & actually did, continue to carry on their respective business, & in the ordinary course of business disposed of some of their assets, & appropriated the proceeds to their own purposes:—Held: the security was void, even as against the grantor, as to chattels of which the cos. were not the true owners at the time of the execution of the instrument.—BANK OF NEW ZEALAND v. In Apr., 1888, he executed a bill of sale of the same furniture as security for a loan. That bill was registered. In July, 1888, the husband died:—Held: at the time of the execution of the second bill of sale the grantor was not the true owner of the chattels therein comprised.—*TUCK v. In 1885 bkpts. commenced to carry on business in partnership, & in 1888 a bill of sale was executed by the elder partner, with the consent of the younger, of partnership property, as security for an advance for partnership purposes. The bill of sale was set aside by the county ct. judge on the ground that the grantor was not the true owner of either the whole of a moiety of the goods specified in the schedule, within the above sect.; & an order was made directing the bill of sale holder to repay the value of the goods to the trustee in bkpcy.:—Held: the county ct. judge was wrong in ordering the bill of sale holder to pay back the whole of the money, as the grantor was, to the extent of his share in the partnership goods assigned by the bill of sale, true owner within the sect., & the bill of sale holder was entitled to retain one half of the money realised.—*Re TAMPLIN & SON, Ex p. 724. Money paid into court by grantee—Chattels seized second time—Under same execution.]—Goods, which had been taken in execution of the judgment of a county ct., were claimed by a person, who under County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), s. 156, deposited the value of the goods with the bailiff to abide the decision of the judge upon the claim. On the trial of an interpleader issue the claim was not established, & the money deposited was paid out to the judgment creditor. The money so paid out being insufficient to satisfy the judgment, the judgment creditor caused the goods to be seized again for the purpose of realising the balance of his judgment. Claimant again claimed them & deposited their value with the bailiff. Upon a second interpleader issue between the same parties:—Held: by taking out of ct. the money deposited by claimant on the first occasion, the judgment creditor accepted the money in lieu of the goods, & thereby estopped himself in respect of the same judgment from denying that as against himself claimant was the owner of the goods, & claimant was entitled to judgment on the issue.—*HADDOW v. 726. ——— Failure to prove title to chattels.]—Goods, which had been taken in execution upon a county ct. judgment, were claimed by claimants, the grantees of a bill of sale upon them, who deposited under County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), s. 156, a sum of money as representing the value of the goods. The high bailiff of the county ct. thereupon withdrew from possession of the goods, & issued an interpleader summons in the county ct. with regard to the money in ct. Subsequently D. & Co. gave notice to the high bailiff of a claim to part of the goods, as having been let by them to the execution debtor on a hire-purchase agreement, & claimants gave notice to the high bailiff that they withdrew their claim to those goods. The high bailiff gave notice of the claim of D. & Co., to the execution creditor, who thereupon gave notice to the high bailiff that he admitted their title to those goods. Upon the hearing of the interpleader summons the county ct. judge found that the above-mentioned bill of sale was invalid, & he ordered that part of the money in ct. proportionate to the value of the goods which had not been claimed by D. & Co. should be paid out to the execution creditor, but that the remainder of the money should be paid back to claimants:—Held: the execution creditor, upon the failure of claimants to prove a title to any of the goods, was entitled to the whole of the money in ct.—*WELLS v. The goods were claimed by the grantee of a bill of sale, as security for a debt due to him from the judgment debtor. The debt was payable, with interest at a high rate per cent., by instalments extending over a period of several months, the greater part of which had not expired. The sheriff interpleaded, & a judge at chambers, on the application of the judgment creditor, under R. S. C., Ord. 57, r. 12, ordered the sale of the goods, & the payment to claimant of the balance of his debt with interest at the agreed rate, but only up to the time of such payment:—Held: the power of the judge to make an order as to the application of the proceeds of the sale upon such terms as might be just was not limited by the practice of the Cts. of Equity in suits for redemption, & the judge had power to make the order, & the order was just.—*FORSTER v. Bill cancelled—For purpose of granting fresh security—Whether property revested in grantor.]—Pltf. having advanced to F. two sums of money, received as a security two bills of sale of goods, by way of mtge., dated Mar. & May, 1841. The sums advanced having afterwards been incorporated with a debt of £1,100, due from F. to pltf., & secured by an assignment of a policy of assurance on F.'s life, dated June, 1841, the bills of sale were thereupon cancelled. The goods had always remained in the possession of F., the mortgagor:—Held: the effect of the cancellation was not to release the debt, & revest the interest of the goods in F., but it was for the jury to say, with what intent the cancellation was made, & pltf. ought not to be nonsuited.—*GUMMER v. Defts. levied under a fi. fa. on Jan. 4, & the third bill of sale was registered on the 10th:—Held: the property in the goods passed from A. by the execution of the first bill of sale, & the execution of the other bills of sale was but the exercise of his right of redemption, & the granting a fresh security, & the third bill having been registered within the twenty-one days allowed by 1854 Act was good as against the execution creditor.—*HOLLINGSWORTH v. The bill of sale was not registered, but, before the expiration of the twenty-one days allowed by 1854 Act for registration, a second bill of sale was substituted for it, & the same operation was from time to time repeated down to July 15, 1872, P. continuing all the time in possession & dealing with the goods as his own, & the £20 being still a subsisting debt. The last bill of sale, which alone was stamped, & the consideration for which was stated to be a present advance of £20, was duly registered on Aug. 1, 1872:—Held: the property passed under the last bill of sale, & the bill of sale so registered was available against the claim of an execution creditor of P., & there was a sufficient consideration for it.—*SMALE v. 734. ———.]—W. owing £500 to E., & being pressed to give security, an agreement was come to between them & pltf. that W. should give pltf. a bill of sale of the furniture in W.'s house, that the bill should be kept renewed for twelve months, & neither the original bill nor the renewals should be registered unless W. should get into difficulties. W. executed a bill of sale on Mar. 8, 1872, by which he assigned all the furniture to pltf., with a proviso for redemption if the £500 were paid on Mar. 8, 1873, or on any earlier day after twenty-four hours' demand in writing, & it was agreed that after default in payment pltf. might take possession & sell, but in the meantime the goods should remain in W.'s possession. A second bill of sale in similar terms was executed on Mar. 27, 1872, but the first bill remained in pltf.'s possession uncanceled. On Apr. 13 pltf. demanded payment; on Apr. 15 W. was in difficulties, & the bill of sale was duly registered on that day under 1854 Act. The goods were afterwards taken in execution at the suit of deft., a judgment creditor of W.:—Held: the substitution of the second bill of sale for the first amounted to a transfer of the goods from pltf. to W., & from him to pltf. again, so that the property passed by the second bill, which, being registered, was good against deft.—*RAMSDEN v. 735. ——— Trustee in bankruptcy.]—S., a trader, in May, 1870, being in want of money, borrowed of C. £55 on the security of two bills of sale, by which he assigned the whole of his property, worth about £600, to C. It was agreed verbally between S. & C. that the bills of sale should be given up within the period limited for registration, & new bills of sale from time to time substituted for them. That was done twice. The last bills of sale were given on July 20, 1870. No fresh advance was made on the occasion of the renewal. On Aug. 9, 1870, S. filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement, & on the next day the bills of sale of July 20 were registered. The trustee under the liquidation took possession of the goods comprised in the bills of sale, & the mtgee. brought an action of trover against him to recover possession of the goods:—Held: the bills of sale were void as against the trustee under the liquidation.—*Re SPARKE, Ex p. Within sixty days, the mtgor. made an assignment for the benefit of creditors:—Held: executions in the sheriff's hands before the second mtge. was filed, but subsequent to the prior mtge., did not gain priority over the second, & the statutory presumption that the latter was made with intent to prefer was rebutted by the circumstances.—*ROGERS v. A few days after the due date bkpt. repaid the loan with interest, but immediately afterwards the mtgee. lent him the money again for the same period on his executing a new mtge. over the same chattels & subject to the same condition as to registration as before. That process was repeated on three other occasions, & after the last of the securities had been registered the mtgor. became bkpt. with the money still owing. On three occasions bkpt. had obtained the money for repayment of the loan from a man for whom he was building a house under contract; on the fourth he had borrowed it from a friend, to whom he said that he only wanted the money for an hour:—Held: the subsisting security was void against the official assignee under 1908 Act, s. 30. Seemle: the other securities in the series were also void.—Re JENSEN, [1918] N. The affidavit of attestation & execution did not, in terms, state that the attesting solr. was present when the deed was executed, but it did state that deponent was present, that it was duly attested, & that deponent & the attesting solr. were the only attesting witnesses. Subsequently G., in respect of the same goods & debt, executed, in favour of pltf., a second bill of sale, which recited that it had been executed because doubts had arisen whether the first affidavit was sufficient:—Held: the second bill of sale was intended to be effective only in the event of the first being invalid, & did not cancel the bill of sale, which was properly registered.—*COOPER v. On Nov. 25, 1896, there were three instruments in existence. H., at the request of M. & Co., executed an instrument in their favour over the unsold sheep included in the above instruments, to secure the balance then owing on such instruments. No new liability was incurred by H., nor was any additional property included in the instrument of Nov. 25, but the previous instruments were retained by M. & Co.:—Held: the last instrument was void under Bankruptcy Act, 1892, s. 79 (2), but its execution did not cancel the three previous instruments, as there was no intention to do so.—*Re HILL, OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. SECT. 1.—RIGHTS OF GRANTOR.

SUB-SECT. 1.—TO RESTRAIN REMOVAL AND SALE.

See 1882 Act, s. 7.

743. Under 1882 Act, s. 7—Application refused—Failure to repay rent paid by grantee.]—On an application for an order under the above sect., that the grantee should be restrained from removing or selling the chattels contained in the bill of sale, the grantee's affidavit admitted that all the instalments under the bill of sale that had become due had been paid, but alleged that £106 10s. & interest was due to him, such sum having been paid by him at the grantor's request to her landlord, who had distrained for rent upon the furniture included in the bill of sale:—Held: if the grantor had repaid the grantee the rent that he had paid to her landlord, relief would have been granted under the sect., but in the circumstances the application was entirely groundless.—COWLEY v. TYLER, Re BILL OF SALE (1884), Bitt. Rep. in Ch. 189.

744. — Application granted—On what terms.]—A bill of sale was executed to secure £200. The sum advanced was £121 10s., £3 10s. being retained for costs & £75 being "capitalised interest," the £200 to be paid off by monthly instalments of £7 10s., & on default of payment of one instalment the principal sum secured was to become due. The grantor, wishing to pay off the sum advanced, purposely made default in payment of the first instalment & the grantee entered for the whole amount. The grantor thereupon took out a summons under the above sect., calling on the grantee to show cause why upon payment of the principal sum of £125 & £10 for interest & costs, or such other sum as the judge might direct, the grantee should not withdraw & deliver up the bill of sale to be cancelled:—Held: on payment of the instalment of £7 10s. & £5 to include all costs & expenses, the grantee should withdraw.—Re GRAVES & UNION DEPOSIT BANK (1883), 27 Sol. Jo. 215.

745. — Bill registered before Act.]—The above sect. applies to goods seized after the date of the commencement of the Act under a bill of sale executed & registered before such date.

Where, after goods had been seized under a bill of sale for default in payment of instalments due thereunder, the grantor offered to pay the amount due, but the grantee refused to receive same:—

dated in Aug., 1877, reciting the previous bill of sale, & that $14,987 was then due from W. to pltf. for goods supplied thereunder, that payment of that sum had been demanded, & it not being convenient for W. to pay, pltf. had agreed to extend the time for payment on certain conditions, it was witnessed that W. agreed to pay that sum with interest in weekly payments of $150 each, that the bill of sale of May, 1873, should continue as a valid & subsisting security as well on the stock-in-trade then in the store as upon any goods, etc., which might at any time afterwards be therein, till the $14,987 was paid. It then authorised pltf. in case of default in payment of any of the weekly instalments, to enter

W.'s store & seize the goods, etc., whether acquired before or after the date of the bill of sale, & to dispose of same. This deed was not filed:—Held: the deed of May, 1873, was continued in force by the deed of Aug., 1877, which created no new debt, nor gave pltf. any additional security, & his right to seize the goods arose under the deed of May, 1873, & was not affected by the non-registration of the second deed.—VASSIE v. VASSIE (1882), 22 N. B. R. 76.—CAN.

w. — Registration of second bill defective—Right to rely on first bill.]—Chattels seized in execution were claimed by pltf. as chattel mtgee. Pltf. had indorsed for the grantor's Held: the ct. had power, under the above sect., to make an order restraining the grantee from selling the goods on condition that the amount due was paid.—Ex p. COTTON (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 301; 49 L. T. 52; 47 J. P. 599; 32 W. R. 58, D. C. Annotation:—Apld. Ex p. Wickens, [1898] 1 Q. B. 543.

746. — Measure of relief—Seizure to realise security.]—Five days after the execution of a bill of sale by which chattels were assigned to secure repayment of a loan at the expiration of one year, & payment of interest thereon by monthly instalments, the grantee demanded in writing that the grantor's rent receipt for the previous quarter should be sent to him by post. The receipt was not sent, & eight days later the grantee seized the assigned chattels, demanding the principal sum lent with the full interest for one year & costs of levy. The grantor applied at chambers for relief under the above sect. The rent, the receipt for which was demanded, was thirty-two days overdue at the time of the seizure, & it did not appear that the landlord had asked for payment of it:—Held: (1) as the grantee had seized for the purpose of realising his security the judge at chambers had jurisdiction to order the bill of sale to be given up on payment of the principal with interest to the date of seizure; (2) as the grantee had not shown that the failure of the grantor to produce her last receipt for rent was without reasonable excuse, the seizure was wrongful, & the judge was right in refusing to allow the grantee the costs of levy.—Ex p. WICKENS, [1898] 1 Q. B. 543; 67 L. J. Q. B. 397; 46 W. R. 385; 5 Mans. 55; sub nom. WICKENS v. SHUCKBURN, 78 L. T. 213, C. A.

Annotation:—Distd. Ex p. Ellis, [1898] 2 Q. B. 79.

747. — Seizure to maintain security.]—Under a bill of sale the principal sum thereby secured was payable at the end of two years, & in the meantime a certain sum was payable monthly as interest. One of the monthly payments of interest being in arrear, the grantee of the bill of sale took possession of the goods thereby assigned for the purpose of holding same until payment of the interest due, but not for the purpose of realising the security by sale of the goods:—Held: in the above circumstances, an order could not be made under the above Act, that upon payment of the principal, interest up to date, & costs, the grantee of the bill of sale accommodation four promissory notes, securing himself by a chattel mtge. dated Jan. 30, 1889. On Apr. 9 three of the notes having been consolidated into a new note, pltf. took a new chattel mtge., but the affidavit of bona fides was defective in a material particular. Upon an interpleader summons pltf. rested his claim on the latter mtge., making no mention of the first one, but at the trial both mtges. were proved & relied on:—Held: pltf. was entitled to fall back on the previous mtge., there being evidence that when the later mtge. was taken it was not intended to abandon the earlier one.—BOLDRICK v. RYAN (1890), 17 A. R. 253.—CAN.

748. Otherwise than under 1882 Act, s. 7—Application refused.]—When at the time of the filing of a liquidation petition the grantee of a bill of sale given by debtor is in actual uncontrolled possession of the property comprised in the deed, the ct. ought not to interfere by injunction with the exercise of the grantee's legal rights, upon the mere suggestion that, if an injunction is granted, it is possible that the trustee in the liquidation, when appointed, may be able to raise a case for impeaching the validity of the deed. In order to justify such an interference appct. for the injunction must at least swear to his belief of some facts which, if established, would render the deed invalid as against the trustee in the liquidation.—Re HART, Ex p. BAYLY (1880), 15 Ch. D. 223; 43 L. T. 181; 29 W. R. 28, C. A.

749. — Application granted.]—Pltf. borrowed £300 from deft., a money-lender, in consideration of a premium of £140. The repayment of the loan & premium by quarterly instalments of £50 was secured by a bill of sale, which provided that if pltf. made default in payment of any instalment or failed to pay the rent of the premises where the goods were on the days when same respectively became due, deft. might immediately enter & sell the goods & that the whole £300 together with the premium should at once become due. The first instalment under the bill of sale became due on Sept. 22 & was actually paid on the following day, deft.'s clerk giving a receipt, "Account of Bill of Sale." On Sept. 23 deft. took possession of the goods comprised in the bill of sale & claimed to exercise his power of sale on the ground that pltf. had made default of rent & of the instalment due on Sept. 22. Pltf.'s rent was due on Aug. 6, but it was usual to pay it at the landlord's rent dinner in Oct. Deft. had written to pltf. that the production of the last receipt for rent would be satisfactory:—Held: (1) however oppressive such a transaction might be pltf.'s motion to restrain deft. from selling or removing the goods must be refused, unless it could be granted consistently with the established principles of law or equity; (2) as deft.'s conduct was such as to mislead pltf. the injunction should be granted.—LONGDEN v. SHEFFIELD DEPOSIT BANK (1888), 24 Sol. Jo. 913.

750. — On what terms.]—On an interlocutory application by the grantor of a bill of sale for an injunction to restrain the grantee, who has taken possession under it, from selling or continuing in possession, unless the bill of sale is clearly invalid the only relief which will be granted is, that on the grantor bringing into ct. the amount which the grantee swears is due, the grantee will be restrained from making away with the mortgaged property.—*HILL v. Pltf. contended that the bill of sale was void as having been obtained by fraud & misrepresentation, & offered to pay £100 into ct.:—Held: (1) the bill of sale could only be vacated by payment into ct. of the whole £151, & the motion must be treated as a redemption action; (2) prima facie it was a good bill of sale as it stood, & the issue of fraud could not be tried on affidavit.—PEARCE v. KIRKWOOD (1898), 105 L. T. Jo. 424.

752. — — — — —.]—The general rule is that a sale by a grantee of an unregistered bill of sale will be restrained, only on the payment into ct. by the grantor of the amount which the grantee swears to be due to him, but this does not apply where the ct. can see on the terms of the deed that this amount cannot be due on the security.—*HICKSON v. Survives right to restrain removal.]—Mtgees. put up stock-in-trade of a premises for sale under their mtge. bid it in & took possession with the assent of the mtgor., paid off arrears of wages & rent, & carried on the business with mtgor. in their employ for some months. In an action by the mtgor. to avoid the sale:—Held: (1) it was void & the property could be redeemed; (2) in the taking of the accounts mtgor. could not be charged with arrears of wages paid by the mtgee., this payment having not been previously expressly assented to by the mtgor.; (3) a sum stated by the mtgees. to be the value of the goodwill 748 i. Application refused—Admissibility of extrinsic evidence—Absence of fraud.]—On a motion for an injunction to restrain a mtgee. from selling certain mortgaged premises, of which he had taken possession for breach of covenants contained in a mtge. & a bill of sale, extrinsic evidence was tendered to show the nature of the transaction:—Held: in the absence of fraud such evidence was not admissible to interpret the deeds, & by strict interpretation it must be assumed that the advance was made as alleged, & as the liability of the mtgors. had not been discharged, the motion should be refused.—MISKIN v. MEIKLEJOHN (1870), 2 Q. S. C. Il. 59.—AUS.

750 i. Application granted—On what terms—Payment into court.]—In suit by mtgor. to set aside a bill of sale an interim injunction to restrain a sale by mtgee. was granted, upon condition of mtgor. paying into ct. the amount due mtgee. The bill of sale was collateral security for promissory notes, some of which had been indorsed over for value:—Held: the amount to be paid into ct. should not be reduced by amount of such notes.—PETROPOULOS v. WILLIAMS (P. E.) & Co. (1906), 26 C. L. T. 468; 3 N. B. Eq. Rep. 267.—CAN.

a. Payments in nature of penalty—Relief in equity.]—Semble: a provision in a bill of sale, in consideration of a loan of £200, to pay £300 by one hundred & four instalments, the whole to become due on default in payment of any one instalment, is in the nature of a penalty against which a ct. of security for payment of money, seized the goods on default by the grantor in payment of an instalment due under the deed. At the expiration of five days from the seizure the grantee began to remove the goods, & the grantor then tendered the amount due for debt, interest, & expenses. The grantee refused to accept the tender, & the grantor brought an action, claiming in trespass for damages for removal of the goods, & for injury to them in the course of removal, & further, claiming to redeem:—Held: the action of trespass would not lie, as at the time of the removal of the goods the property in & the right to possession of the goods were in the grantee, & the grantor was only entitled to redeem on payment of the debt, interest, & expenses, & the costs arising from the claim to redeem.—JOHNSON v. DIPROSE, [1893] 1 Q. B. 512; 62 L. J. Q. B. 291; 68 L. T. 485; 57 J. P. 517; 41 W. R. 371; 9 T. L. R. 266; 37 Sol. Jo. 267; 4 R. 291, C. A.

for the purposes of an amalgamation scheme between them & another co., could not be charged against them in the accounts.—VAN VOLKENBURG v. WESTERN CANADIAN RANCHING CO. (1898), 6 B. C. R. 284.—CAN.

b. Time for redemption.—Tender before time fixed for sale.—To impeach a sale under powers in a chattel mtge., on the ground that an offer to redeem was made prior to the time fixed by the notice of sale, the person entitled to redeem is obliged to show that the amount due under the mtge. was actually tendered, or that the mtgee. was distinctly informed that the mtgor. was then & there ready & willing to pay what was so due, & being thus informed of the intention to redeem, that the mtgee. refused to accept payment.—BRITISH COLUMBIA LAND & INVESTMENT AGENCY v. ISHITAKA (1911), 20 W. L. R. 308; 1 W. W. R. 549; 45 S. C. R. 302.—CAN.

c. Extension of time for redemption.—Granted on terms.—Deft. gave pltf. a chattel mtge. over certain pictures for $4,500 with interest at 10 per cent. repayable in three months; a power of sale on default was contained in the mtge. Deft. having been in default for nine months an order was made for foreclosure in four months; unless $1,000 was paid in three months & $4,372.45 in four months. Deft. paid the $1,000 in three months, but applied for a further extension for three months to pay the $4,372.45 on the ground that he had been disappointed in selling certain other property & that he would suffer irreparable loss if foreclosure took place according to the order:—Held: the time for redemption should be extended for three months, deft. to pay costs of the motion, $1,000 in one month & another $1,000 in two months. If necessary a new account to be taken to ascertain the amount due allowing for storage charges & insurance.—MITCHELL v. KOWALSKY (1909), 14 O. W. R. 792; 1 O. W. N. 95.—CAN.

d. Amount payable on redemption.—Mortgage demanding larger amount than due.—Effect of.—Where a bill of sale contained a power of sale upon default in the payment, on demand, of the amount payable thereunder, a demand of a larger sum than the amount justly payable does not vitiate the sale; & the mtgor. can protect himself by tendering the true sum, or by bringing an action against the mtgees. for demanding & selling for a larger amount.—HUMPHREY v. ROBERTS (1866), 5 N. S. W. S. C. R. 376.—AUS.

f. Refusal of redemption.—Effect of.—Where the grantee seized goods covered by the mtge., prematurely, & sold them, refusing to allow the grantor to redeem:—Held: the sale was illegal.—COCHRANE v. BOUCHER (1883), 3 O. R. 462.—CAN.

g. ———.—A creditor who, holding collateral security, refuses to accept the amount due him, duly tendered by debtor, & proceeds to collect or realise on the security, is liable for the damage thereby caused debtor.—DESGROSEILLERS v. ANDERSON (1909), Q. R. 36 S. C. 234.—CAN.

k. Wrongful seizure.—Damages for.—A bill of sale "in consideration of the sum of £50, now paid to B. by M.," assigned to M. certain goods & chattels therein specifically described, by way of security for payment of £50 & interest thereon. No sum of £50 was at the execution of the bill of sale paid to B.; the only money which passed was a sum of £10 solr.'s costs, but there had been previous money transactions between the parties, in which B. was indebted to M. for over £50. B. having made default in payment of the sum secured, M. seized the goods & chattels under the bill of sale. B. brought an action against M. claiming £50 damages for trespass & trover:—Held: the bill of sale was entirely void, & the seizure being a trespass, pltf. was entitled to a decree for £50 & costs.—WHELAN v. WALSH (1890), 24 I. L. T. 75.—IR.

m. ———.—Sale of part of goods.—A mtge. being in default, the mtgee., deft., seized the mortgaged chattels & sold a part. Pltf., the mtgor., in order to redeem the remainder, paid, under protest, the sum demanded by deft., & sued deft. for treble the amounts charged by deft. for seizure, mileage, & man in charge, under Distress for Rent & Extra-judicial Seizure Ordinance, & for damages for wrongful detention:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover the excess of the amount paid by him under protest over what was properly due, but was not entitled to damages for wrongful detention.—COLLINS v. EATON (1911), 19 W. L. R. 608; 1 W. W. R. 45.—CAN.

On what terms exercisable.—By trustee in bankruptcy.—Where a bill of sale is given to secure an advance with interest, & the principal sum & interest is made payable by a fixed number of instalments, & the grantor of the bill becomes bkpt. before repayment, his trustee in bkpcy. cannot redeem except upon payment of the full amount of the future instalments.—*Re DAVIES, Ex p. p. ———.—Held: (1) pltf. were entitled to damages for the trespass committed by defts., in seizing & selling mortgaged stock-in-trade, to the possession of which pltf. were entitled; (2) the damages assessed could be set-off against the amount due to defts. under their counterclaim; (3) defts. were entitled to judgment under their counter-claim for the balance found due.—*CLAY v. r. ———.—Pltf. agreed with the firm of B. & V., of which deft. was a partner, for the cutting of some logs. Certain advances were made to pltf. & he attended at deft.'s office to make his mark to a document which he thought was a written contract. The document being a chattel mtge. deft. seized certain of pltf.'s goods. In an action for damages for wrongful seizure:—Held: pltf. was entitled to damages, but deft. could set-off the amount of the advances made to pltf.—MORIN v. VALOIS (1908), 12 O. W. R. 923.—CAN.

756 i. ———.—Measure of damages.—H., in consideration of his relieving C. from executions against him, procured from C. & his wife, pltf., a promissory note for the amount thereof, & also a chattel mtge. on the goods of both as collateral security. He discounted the note at a bank & with the proceeds paid off the executions. Before the maturity of the note, claiming there was a breach of the mtge. by the removal of certain goods which was disproved, & refusing to allow the mtgors. to redeem, he took the goods thereunder & sold them, selling goods beyond the amount required to satisfy the mtge., including pltf.'s own goods to the amount of $137.50.

his household goods, with a proviso making the deed void if pltf. should pay to defts. £370 on May 23, 1851, or at such earlier day as defts. should appoint for payment thereof, by a notice in writing, to be given twenty-four hours before the day so to be appointed for payment, & should in the meantime pay interest on the sum, & it was declared, that until default in payment of the principal & interest, & until notice, pltf. should remain in possession. Before the day named for payment, & without a twenty-four hours' notice, defts. entered the house of pltf., & seized the goods:—Held: pltf. might maintain trespass for taking the goods, but the proper measure of damages was the injury which pltf.'s limited interest in the goods had sustained, & not the value of the goods.—BRIERLY v. KENDALL (1852), 17 Q. B. 937; 21 L. J. Q. B. 161; 18 L. T. O. S. 254; 16 Jur. 449; 117 E. R. 1540.

damage thereby sustained the jury gave $275:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover for even if the sale was merely irregular in selling for a supposed breach, pltf. was entitled to recover the value of the excess of the goods sold, & other damages beyond nominal for her interest in the goods and the verdict was therefore not excessive.—*COCHRANE v. If he did not immediately on such demand pay the money the instrument authorised defts. to break & enter pltf.'s house, & seize & sell the goods conveyed, but until default in payment on such written demand pltf. was to use & enjoy the goods as his own. By defts.' directions, their attorney wrote a paper demanding from pltf. immediate payment of the sum & interest, not stating the amount of interest, & gave it to J. to give it to pltf., & the attorney authorised J. to receive the money. J. gave the paper to pltf., but did not tell him that he had authority to receive payment. Defts., by their agent, seized pltf.'s goods before reasonable time had been allowed pltf. to pay the money to defts. or to their attorney:—Held: as there had been no default in payment on the part of pltf., a reasonable time for making payment not having expired before his goods were seized, pltf. was entitled to maintain an action for taking his goods, but the measure of damages should be, not the value of the goods, but the value of pltf.'s interest in them at the time of seizure.—*TOMS v. In an action by pltf. for wrongful conversion, it appeared on the evidence, that pltf. was utterly unable to pay the debt. The jury awarded pltf. substantial damages:—Held: nominal damages only should have been given.—PETERS v. JOSEPH, 3 J. R. N. S. 142.—N.Z.

756 viii. Directions to jury.]—Even if an action will lie, at the suit of the mtgor. of chattels against the mtgee., for seizure of the chattels before default in payment, where there is no proviso in the mtge. for possession by the mtgor. until default, the jury should be told that pltf. can recover only to the extent of his interest in the goods & for the damage done to such interest, instead of their full value, as in the case of a wrongdoer.—*MCAULAY v. pay to him a weekly sum of £3, & £100 to each of his three children at his death. W. gave way to habits of intoxication. G. seeing that the security was becoming depreciated prevailed upon W. to execute a formal surrender; G. then re-entered. W. thereupon sequestered his estate & the present action was brought by his official assignee:—Held: the measure of damages to which pltf. was entitled for the wrongful seizure was the value of the goods on the premises when the security was executed, less the value of the annuity.

After the premises, etc., had been so surrendered to G. he, in pursuance of a clause therein, received debts due to W.:—Held: pltf. was entitled to sums of money so received as they could only have been received by G. as agent for W. & consequently as agent for his official assignee.—*MACKENZIE v. Pltf. had repeatedly applied to deft. in vain for accounts of his claim, & there was no satisfactory evidence as to whether the original debt was subsisting, & the sale included many things which deft. must have known were not in the bill of sale at all, & there were circumstances of great aggravation:—Held: (1) it was rightly left to the jury whether they believed the debt to be due, & whether it was due to the assignor as extrix., & that if not they should find for pltf., & that it was a proper case for vindictive damages; (2) the jury having given beyond the full value of the stock seized, more than double that value by way of damages, the ct. were reluctant to interfere, although they thought the amount excessive, but would recommend a compromise.—THOMAS v. HARRIS (1858), 27 L. J. Ex. 353.

761. — Whether right of action passes—To trustee in bankruptcy.—An action was brought for trespass & conversion of pltf.'s goods which had been given as security for a bill of sale, & damages were claimed in addition for the personal annoyance caused thereby to pltf. After the action was entered for trial pltf. became bkpt. His trustee in bkpcy. ceased to prosecute the action, but pltf. brought on the action for trial, when all proceedings were stayed, on the ground that all causes of action were vested in the trustee in bkpcy. The damage to pltf.'s land & goods was merely nominal, & if substantial damages could be recovered at all it would be for the annoyance & personal inconvenience caused to pltf.:—Held: the action was one in which the primary personal injury to pltf. was the principal & essential cause of action, & though the facts made vindictive damages in the popular sense improbable, the ct. would not be justified in interfering with pltf.'s right to have the stay removed if the cause of action was in point of law was, pltf.'s claim being based on N.'s agency for deft.:—Held: on the evidence pltf. had failed to establish that the filly at the time of the accident was under the control of deft. without the consent of pltf. so that if N. was guilty of negligence deft. was not chargeable as N. was agent of both pltf. & deft. & not of deft. alone.—*MCCULLOUGH v. At the expiration of five days from the seizure the grantee began to remove the goods, & the grantor then tendered the amount due for debt, interest, & expenses. The grantee refused to accept the tender, & the grantor brought an action for injury to the goods in the course of removal, & further, claiming to redeem:—Held: the grantor was only entitled to redeem on payment of the debt, interest, & expenses, & the costs arising from the claim to redeem, but was entitled to set off any damages arising from injury done to the goods through the negligence of the grantee in the course of removal.—*JOHNSON v. money advanced, the present & future stock, etc., of pltf. were assigned to deft., subject to a proviso that if the money were repaid at the end of ten years, or at such earlier day or time as deft. should appoint by notice in writing, sent by post, or delivered to pltf., or left at his house or last place of abode, the deed should cease & be void, provided that if default should be made in payment contrary to the proviso, then & immediately thereupon it should be lawful for deft. to enter upon pltf.'s premises & seize & sell the goods, etc. Deft. served a notice on pltf. at noon to pay the money due at half-past twelve o'clock p.m. of the same day, & then, on default, seized & sold the goods on pltf.'s premises:—Held: the notice, under the deed, must be a reasonable notice, & half-an-hour's notice was not reasonable.—*BRIGHTY v. 766. ————.]—By a bill of sale pltf. covenanted to pay to defts. the sum secured, with interest, immediately on demand in writing being made to him or left at his place of abode. If he did not immediately on such demand pay the money the instrument authorised defts. to break & enter pltf.'s house, & seize & sell the goods conveyed, but until default in payment on such written demand pltf. was to use & enjoy the goods as his own. By defts.' directions, their attorney wrote a paper demanding from pltf. immediate payment of the sum & interest, not stating the amount of interest, & gave it to J. to give it to pltf., & the attorney authorised J. to receive the money. J. gave the paper to pltf., but did not tell him that he had authority to receive payment. Defts., by their agent, seized pltf.'s goods before reasonable time had been allowed pltf. to pay the money to defts. or to their attorney:—Held: there had been a due demand of payment, but there had been no default in payment on the part of pltf., as a reasonable time for making payment had not expired before his goods were seized.—*TOMS v. b. ————.]—Pltf. gave deft. a chattel mtge. over all her stock-in-trade, fixtures & goods at her store as collateral security for her liability on certain promissory notes & for a further indebtedness. The mtge. was not repaid on the date mentioned in the deed but was renewed by a renewal statement under the Act. Deft. having complained of the smallness of the remittances, pltf.'s husband who managed pltf.'s business, had an interview with deft. at which it was arranged that an employee of deft. should be placed in charge as manager & that pltf.'s husband should assist in the management at a salary. A warrant was issued to deft.'s employee authorising him to seize under the mtge. on which he entered & advertised the stock-in-trade for sale. The goods were sold realising a much smaller amount than the amount of the mtge. In an action by pltf. for damages for conversion & illegal proceedings, pltf. contended that deft. had made no demand for the money due under the mtge., had not advertised the sale & had sold the goods

—.]—A bill of sale contained a provision that it should be void in case the mtgor. should pay the principal money thereby secured "upon demand, if & when the mtgee. should so require by a notice in writing," & until payment of the principal should pay interest thereon half-yearly, & also a proportionate part thereof "to the expiration of the notice, when same shall be given"; & in default of payment power was given to the mtgee. to seize & sell the property comprised in the deed. Semble: the mtgee. was not entitled to seize on the same day on which he made a demand for payment, the demand not being at once complied with.—R. BURGHARDT, Ex p. TREVOR (1875), 1 Ch. D. 297; 45 L. J. Bcy. 27; 33 L. T. 756; 24 W. R. 301.

768. ———— Demand on grantor's wife.]—By a bill of sale debtor assigned goods & chattels to deft., to secure payment of a debt, which debtor thereby covenanted to pay "on demand being made for same," & the deed empowered deft., in default of payment, "upon demand being made as aforesaid," to enter upon any premises in debtor's occupation, & to distrain the goods & chattels there found. Deft. went to the premises, & in the absence of debtor from home, made a demand of payment upon debtor's wife, which was not complied with, & he thereupon seized & sold certain goods & chattels of debtor. Debtor having become bkpt., an action was brought by his assignees against deft. for conversion of bkpt.'s goods:—Held: the demand on the wife was not a compliance with the terms of the power, which required a personal demand on debtor, & there having been no demand, the power to seize never became exercisable.—*BELDING v. 769. ————.]—By the terms of a mtge. deed pltfs. were to remain in possession on their own account, & manage the mortgaged property until they should make default in payment of the mtge. money upon demand in writing in manner specified: such demand was made on the wife of one of pltfs. during pltfs.' absence by a person who represented himself as deft.'s agent, & upon non-payment deft. forthwith entered upon possession below their market price:—Held: (1) pltf.'s husband having been a consenting party & the mtge. being overdue, deft. was entitled to enter & seize the goods; (2) no demand was necessary under R. S. O. 1897 (c. 75) s. 15 on account of the arrangement entered into by pltf.'s husband with deft.—GORMLEY v. BROPHY CAINS, LTD. (1907), 10 O. W. R. 913.—CAN.

c. ———— Waiver.]—The material parts of a bill of sale read:—"It is provided that if the mtgor. shall make default in payment of the sum of £130 or of any one instalment thereof as they shall fall due on the respective dates, then the whole of the sum of £130 shall immediately thereafter & without any demand being necessary, become due & payable, & in case default shall be made, it shall be lawful for the mtgee. to receive & take into his absolute possession all the goods, chattels, etc."

Pltf. made default in the payment of some of the instalments. Deft. did & seized the mortgaged property. In an action of trespass against the mtgee. :—Held : such non-payment before pltf. had had any opportunity to inquire into the truth of the alleged agency did not constitute default, & deft. was liable to the mtgors. in substantial damages.—MOORE v. SHELLEY (1883), 8 App. Cas. 285 ; 52 L. J. P. C. 35 ; 48 L. T. 918, P. C.

770. — Demand on grantor's son.]—To secure a floating balance, pltf. conveyed to defts. by bill of sale the machinery, etc., in & upon pltf.'s mill. The bill of sale contained a proviso for redemption if pltf. should instantly on demand, & without delay on any pretence whatsoever, pay the sum due, & it provided that the demand might be made personally on pltf., or by giving or leaving verbal or written notice to or for him at his place of business, etc., so nevertheless that a demand be in fact made, that on default of payment defts. might enter, & seize, & sell, but that until default pltf. should remain in possession. In pltf.'s absence from his place of business, a demand was made there by defts. upon his son, who stated his inability to meet it, & defts. immediately seized :—Held : the notice required by the deed in case of pltf.'s absence was such a notice as might be reasonably supposed to reach pltf., & to give him an opportunity of complying with it within a reasonable time, & the seizure was not justified.—MASSEY v. SLADEN (1868), L. R. 4 Exch. 13 ; 38 L. J. Ex. 34.

771. — Demand on grantor's wife & son—Grantor's whereabouts unknown.]—By a bill of sale dated Apr. 15, 1873, pltf. assigned all his goods, etc., to deft. to secure £100, upon the express condition that if pltf. did not "immediately upon demand thereof in writing," delivered to pltf., or left for him at his home, pay the money due, it should be lawful for deft. to seize & sell the goods comprised in the bill of sale. On Apr. 22 deft. went with bailiffs to pltf.'s house & there saw pltf.'s wife & son, who told him that pltf. was from home, they knew not where, & that he might be gone to America for aught they knew. Deft. then read & delivered to the wife & son a written demand for payment, which not being complied with, he at once put the bailiffs in possession, & after an interval of eight days sold the goods. Pltf. returned to his home on May 8, & said he had started with the £100 to go to S. on business, but had gone to R., had got drunk, & remained away on a spree. In an action against deft. for so seizing & selling pltf.'s

Soon afterwards, & before pltf. had succeeded in affecting a sale, deft. seized & sold under his bill of sale :—Held : (1) no demand for payment was necessary before seizure ; (2) the fact of the mtgee. suggesting to the mtgor. that she should sell her business was no waiver.—TAGRESS v. SEELIGSON (1899), 1 W. A. L. R. 94.—AUS.

d. — Bill continued in force by unregistered deed—Mortgagor in possession.]—A bill of sale, dated May, 1873, conveyed to pltf. all W.'s stock-in-trade, etc., & for more effectually securing payment of the sum of $14,987, & what might become due to pltf. for further supplies of goods, he was authorised upon default in payment, after demand, to enter W.'s store, & seize & take possession of the goods & merchandise therein ; but until default in payment W. might use & enjoy the goods, etc., without interference by pltf. This bill of sale was filed in June, 1875, under C. S., c. 75. By a further deed, dated Aug., 1877, reciting the previous bill of sale, & that $14,987 was then due from W. to pltf. for goods supplied thereunder, that payment of that sum had been demanded, & it not being convenient for W. to pay, pltf. had agreed to extend the time for payment on certain conditions ; it was witnessed that W. agreed to pay that sum with interest in weekly payments of $150 each ; that the bill of sale of May, 1873, should continue as a valid & subsisting security till $14,987 was paid. It then authorised pltf., in case of default in payment of any of the weekly instalments, to enter W.'s store & seize the goods, etc. This deed was not filed under Bills of Sale Act :—Held : (1) the deed contemplated that

772. — Verbal promise to give time—Effect of.]—Pltf., in order to secure repayment of a sum of money lent to him by defts., assigned by a bill of sale all his household furniture, etc., subject to a proviso for redemption if the sum was paid by weekly instalments, provided that if pltf. should "make default in payment" of the sum or any part thereof when it should become due, the whole of the money secured should be then immediately due, & payable, & it should be lawful for defts. to take possession of the goods & sell them. Pltf. being unable to pay one of the instalments went to the offices of defts., & saw their secretary, who consented to wait till a later day, but before that day possession of the goods was taken, & on a subsequent day, after the tender of a sum which pltf. had been told would be sufficient to cover all claims, the goods were removed & sold. In an action to recover damages for the seizure & sale :—Held : (1) parol evidence of the time having been enlarged for payment of the money was admissible, & showed that there had been no default within the deed ; (2) the word "default" imported something wrongful, the omission to do some act which, as between the parties, ought to have been done by one of them.—*ALBERT v. It was also agreed that pltf. might at any time after the execution of the bill of sale take possession of the property therein comprised & retain possession thereof, until all the money payable should be fully paid, & further that if default should be made by pltf. in payment of any of the instalments on the days on which such should become due, the whole amount which at the time of such default should be unpaid should at once become due, & deft. was empowered thereon to sell the property & to receive the money arising from such sale. The previous instalments having been paid by pltf., he failed to pay the

W. should have the right to sell the goods in the store in the ordinary course of his business, & that such rights would continue till pltf. exercised his right of entry under the deed ; (2) the deed of May, 1873, was continued in force by the deed of Aug., 1877, which created no new debt, nor gave pltf. any additional security, & his right to seize the goods arose under the deed of May, 1873, & was not affected by the non-registry of the second deed.—*VASSIE v. fourteenth instalment, due on Oct. 14, & he saw deft. on Oct. 16, & asked for time. Deft. replied that he "would not look to a week." On pltf.'s returning home on Oct. 17 he found that the goods had been seized & sold. In an action for conversion & for an improper sale, the jury found for pltf., on the ground that deft. had induced him to believe that he would not seize the goods:—Held: there must be a new trial, for deft. was entitled by the provisions of the bill of sale to seize on default, & there had been a default & he had not in any way induced pltf. to alter his position.—WILLIAMS v. STERN (1879), 5 Q. B. D. 409; 49 L. J. Q. B. 663; 42 L. T. 719; 28 W. R. 901, C. A.

—A bill of sale of chattels, made to secure repayment of an advance by instalments, empowered the grantee to take possession after default should be made in payment of any instalment on the appointed day, or in case (inter alia) the grantor should become embarrassed in his affairs, or in case any action at law or other legal process should be commenced against him. There was a subsequent proviso in the bill of sale that, until default should be made in payment according to the covenant & proviso therein contained, it should be lawful for the grantor to retain possession:—Held: the subsequent proviso did not override the clause empowering the grantee to take possession on the happening of one of the specified events, &, on the grantor becoming embarrassed in his affairs, the grantee was entitled to take possession, although no default in payment had been made by the grantor.—*Re FRANCIS, Ex p. g. — Mortgagor attempting to sell.]

—Pltf. sued for damages for wrongful seizure & conversion of horses. Deft. alleged that the horses were seized under a chattel mtge. made by pltf. to him, deft. The mtge. contained a clause enabling deft. to seize if he felt insecure. Deft. alleged that at the date of the seizure, Oct. 14, 1908, the payments under the chattel mtge. were overdue, & also that pltf. had attempted to sell the horses, & that he (deft.) felt insecure. The amount of the chattel mtge. was by its terms, to be repaid in two instalments, on Aug. 1, 1907, & Feb. 1, 1908. Deft. counterclaimed for the balance due under the chattel mtge. after crediting the proceeds of the sale of the horses, & also for expenses incurred for pltf. at his request in defending an action, & also for damages for breach of an agreement whereby pltf. agreed to deliver cordwood to deft. In reply pltf. alleged the chattel mtge. was given as security for the wood agreement, under which pltf. was to deliver the wood before Apr. 1, 1908; that he did deliver large quantities of wood, until, on Jan. 30, 1908, deft. requested him to postpone delivery of the residue until the following winter, & that he, pltf., had always been willing & ready to complete. Pltf. also asked that the chattel mtge. should be rectified so as to conform to the agreement:—Held: (1) even if the mtge. were rectified, pltf. would still be in default, as on Apr. 1, 1908, he admittedly had not wholly repaid deft. either in wood or money; & upon the evidence, pltf. had not established that deft. had requested him to delay delivery of the rest of the wood; (2) on the evidence, pltf. was not entitled to succeed upon his counterclaim.—*MAYER v. l. — Absence of fraud.]—Deft. justified the seizure of the stallion C. under the mtge. on the ground of the removal of another stallion F. to another county contrary to the provisions of the mtge.:—Held: in view of the fact that F. was of no value & his removal not fraudulent, pltf. should be relieved from the seizure on assigning all his accounts from the services of C. & returning F. to the proper county & paying the cost of keeping C. since the seizure.—HORTON v. SMITH (1908), 12 O. W. R. 910.—CAN.

m. Breach of agreement not to sell or dispose of goods.]—Pltf. mortgaged to deft., with a proviso for redemption on payment of £125 on Oct. 20, & an agreement that pltf. should account to deft. for the price of any of the goods sold by him in the course of business before that day, & that on default, or in case pltf. should attempt to sell or dispose of the goods without deft.'s consent in writing, deft. might enter & take said goods. On the same day deft. gave pltf. a writing authorising him to proceed to sell the goods that day mortgaged to him, "& to continue selling same until further notice in writing, subject nevertheless to the proviso of the said bill of sale in other respects." Pltf. mortgaged the same goods to one C. to secure a debt:—Held: a violation of the agreement between pltf. & deft., & deft. was entitled to enter & take possession of the goods.—CLOSTER v. HEADLEY (1855), 12 U. C. R. 364.—CAN.

n. — Verbal assent of grantee.]—Pltf. mortgaged to H. certain goods, the mtge. containing a covenant for entry in case the mtgor. should sell, etc., the goods or any of them without the mtgee.'s written assent. The usual statement as to putting the mtgee. in possession was struck out. H. assigned to deft. Subsequently pltf., claiming to have deft.'s verbal assent, which deft. wholly denied, sold some of the goods to H., whereupon deft. took the goods & removed them off the premises, but they were forcibly brought back by pltf., & seized by his landlord for rent. Deft. then replevied the goods & sold them by auction. Pltf. having sued deft. for the taking & conversion, the jury found that deft. verbally consented to the sale:—Held: (1) deft. was entitled to take the goods; for even if in equity a verbal assent would be sufficient if admitted or clearly proved to have been given & acted upon, the evidence here failed to establish such assent; (2) even if pltf. could recover it would only be to the extent of his interest in the goods.—BUNKER v. EMMANY (1878), 28 C. P. 438.—CAN.

o. — —.]—A chattel mtge. contained a proviso that in case the mtgor. should attempt to sell, etc., the mortgaged goods, or any of them, without the mtgee.'s written consent, the mtgee. might enter & take the goods. The mtgor., without such written consent, sold a pair of horses, part of the mortgaged goods, to pltf., when deft., the mtgee., entered & took them, & after keeping them for four days returned them to pltf., who was not subsequently disturbed in his possession. Pltf. having sued deft. for the taking:—Held: (1) he was entitled to recover, for that the evidence, as set out in the case, showed that deft. either verbally consented to the sale or acted in such a manner as estopped him from denying that the property passed to pltf.; (2) pltf. could only recover damages for the four days' detention, & not for the value of the horses in addition.—LOUCKS v. MCSLOY (1878), 29 C. P. 54.—CAN.

p. — No default in payment.]—In an action against the sheriff for goods seized, pltf. claimed under a mtge. of Nov. 12, 1857, & deft. under an execution of the 18th. The time for payment had not arrived, but the mtge. provided that if the mtgor. should sell any of the goods, the mtgee. might take possession; & pltf. who were in possession at the seizure, claimed to have taken the goods under this condition, though the breach of it & pltf.'s entry therefor were not proved:—Held: pltf. need not prove the consideration for their mtge. in the first instance, but it must be presumed until impeached.—SQUAIR v. FORTUNE (1859), 18 U. C. R. 547.—CAN.

q. — —.]—A chattel mtge. contained a clause that the mtgee. might take the goods if the mtgor. attempted to sell, dispose of, or part with the possession of the goods:—

ment. An instalment being in arrear, the grantee, after demand of payment, seized the goods. A receiving order was afterwards made against the grantor, & the goods sold. A county ct. judge having refused to order that the proceeds of sale should be paid to the grantee:—Held: the seizure was rightful, as the grantee, in consequence of the default in payment of one instalment, became entitled to possession of the whole of the goods, & an order for payment to him of the proceeds of sale must be made.—Re WOOD, Ex p. WOOLFE, [1894] 1 Q. B. 605; 63 L. J. Q. B. 352; 70 L. T. 282; 1 Mans. 87; 10 R. 157, D. C. Annotation:—Reid, Parsons v. Equitable Investment Co. (1916), 85 L. J. Ch. 761.

776. Non-production of receipts.—A mtgee. is entitled to enter into possession under a bill of sale, if the mtgor. fails to produce his rent receipt after a reasonable demand on the part of the mtgee.—NUNN v. KIRKWOOD (1883), 75 L. T. Jo. 134.

777. — Reasonable excuse—Payment not demanded by landlord.—In Oct., 1882, C. granted a bill of sale over his furniture, etc., to secure an advance made by applt. The bill of sale was duly registered under 1878 Act before Nov. 1, 1882. One of the terms of the bill of sale was to the effect that, if the grantor should "fail to deposit with the grantee a receipt for rent due in respect of the premises" the grantee might enter & seize. Certain instalments became due & were unpaid. Two days before the first of the unpaid instalments became due a sum became due from the grantor for rent, but it did not appear that the landlord had asked for payment. The grantee wrote to the grantor requiring payment of the instalments, stating that if they were not paid he should enter & seize, & in the same letter he also required the grantor to produce the receipt for the rent last due. The grantor did not pay the instalments or produce the required receipt, & the grantee entered & seized:—Held: in the circumstances, the grantor had not "without reasonable excuse" failed to produce his last receipt for rent, & so constituted a cause of seizure under 1882 Act, s. 7 (4).—Ex p. COTTON (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 301; 49 L. T. 52; 47 J. P. 599; 32 W. R. 58, D. C. Annotation:—Apprvd. Ex p. Wickens, [1898] 1 Q. B. 543.

Held: the mtgee. had the right to take the goods, although default in payment had not been made.—WHIMSELL v. GIFFARD (1883), 3 O. R.

r. — Security endangered.—Action to restrain deft. from dealing with goods described in a chattel mtge. to secure $2,200 which was made by plfts. to S. & was duly registered. The principal was to be paid in four years without interest & in default an extension for a year was to be given. If plft. failed to observe & perform certain covenants in the mtge. the principal would become due at an earlier date. S. assigned the mtge. to deft. In the duplicate mtge. in S.'s hand's the proviso for payment had been altered & it was made to appear that the principal became due in two years & that the rate of interest was 7 per cent. In the assignment it was recited that the interest was 7 per cent. & that the time of maturity was two years. Pltf. alleged that the mtge. was so materially altered as to make it void:—Held: (1) what was assigned was a mtge. duly filed & the erroneous reference to the date of maturity & the rate of interest did not invalidate it; (2) pltf. had committed a breach of a covenant in the deed in selling some of the mortgaged goods, & deft., feeling unsafe as a consequence, was justified in making the seizure complained of.—WOODBECK v. WALLER (1917), 11 O. W. N. 386.—CAN.

s. — Mortgagors absconding.—On the mtgors. absconding, defts. took possession under a clause in the mtge. which allowed them to do so in case the mtgors. "should attempt to sell, dispose of, or in any way part with the possession of said goods," & removed them to their own warehouse. The mtge. also contained a redemise clause. Semble: defts. were justified in taking possession when the mtgors. absconded, leaving no one in charge of the goods.—ROBINS v. CLARK (1880), 45 U. C. R. 362.—CAN.

t. Issue of writ for money demand against mortgagor—Writ issued by mortgagee.—Held: a provision entitling deft. to take possession upon issue of a writ of summons for a money demand against plft., did not entitle deft. to seize the chattels upon the issue at his own suit of a writ to enforce payment of the same money demand as the chattel mtge. was given to secure, the object of the provision being to protect deft. if a claim other than his own was pressed by issue of a writ against plft.—STEVENS v. DALY (1902), 1 O. W. R. 621.—CAN.

v. Seizure under execution—For debt secured by mortgage.—The mtgee. of the chattels, seized the mortgaged goods under an execution in a suit for the debt secured by the mtge. The execution was set aside as being against good faith. In an action for the wrongful seizure & conversion of the goods:—Held: the mtgee. could not justify the seizure under the mtge.—DEDRICK v. ASHDOWN (1888), 15 S. C. R. 227.—CAN.

w. Breach of agreement as to maintenance of security.—A. was lessee & licensee of a hotel, in which he had been placed by his father, deft. In 1916 A. gave a bill of sale over the lease, license, goodwill, stock-in-trade, etc., in favour of deft. A term of the mtge. deed provided that if the mtgor. abandoned the hotel or did not continue to manage it, or did or neglected to do any act or thing whereby the license for the hotel might become liable to cancellation, the mtgee. could take possession of the mortgaged property, & could sell it. In Dec., 1916, A. abandoned possession to B., his sister, who was acting as his manageress, & A. went to Sydney. B. continued to manage the hotel for A. until Mar., 1917. A. in writing consented to deft. taking possession of the mortgaged property & realising same. In Mar. B. obtained a transfer of the license to herself. Transfer of the lease from A. to deft. was registered in May, 1917. In Mar., 1917, deft. took possession of the hotel, & entered into an agreement for the sale thereof to B. under which the property was not to pass until the performance of certain conditions, & B. continued in possession under the agreement until the sale of the property to C. The conditions of the agreement were not carried out. A. was adjudicated insolvent in Feb., 1918. In Mar. deft. sold the property to C. for its full value, who thereafter carried on the business. The proceeds of the sale did not however cover the mtge. debt:—Held: (1) the facts established a default in compliance with the terms of the mtge. & which entitled the mtgee. to take possession; (2) such default was a failure on the part of the mtgor. to perform obligations which he had agreed to perform & which were proper & necessary for the preservation of the security, & the mtgee. had a right to enter peaceably into possession, damages not being recoverable for his so doing.—MCGRATH (TRUSTEE) v. MCGRATH (1919), 12 Q. S. R. 228.—AUS.

x. Drunkenness of mortgago

Construction of proviso.—The due payment of the sums secured by a bill of sale over property, containing the following proviso: "Provided also, if any act, deed, matter or thing, shall be done, or knowingly or willingly permitted or suffered by the mtgor., or by or through his means or instrumentality, whereby or by reason or means whereof this present security shall, in the opinion of the mtgee become deteriorated or lessened in value . . . it shall be lawful for the mtgee. to re-enter, etc., etc."

The mtgor. gave way to habits of intoxication, & the mtgee., seeing that the security was becoming depreciated, re-entered:—Held: the words of the proviso did not comprehend "drunkenness" as an "act, deed, matter, or thing whereby, etc."—MACKENZIE v. WILLIAMS (1872), 11 N. S. W. S. C. R. 178, 193.—AUS.

y. Absence of re-demise clause—Whether mortgagee entitled to immediate possession.—When a chattel mtge. contains no re-demise, the mtgee. may take immediate possession.—PATERSON v. MAUGHAN (1876), 39 U. C. R. 371.—CAN.

z. — Before default in payment.—Held: an action will not lie by a mtgor. of chattels against the mtgee., for seizure thereof before default in payment, where there is no re-demise clause.—SAMUEL v. COULTER (1877), 28 C. P. 240.—CAN.

a. being no re-demise clause or proviso in the mtge. whereby the mtgor. might have remained in possession until default, the mtgees. were entitled to immediate possession of the property granted thereby, & might if they had pleased, at any time have exercised their right to sell thereunder without the mtgor.'s intervention or consent.—MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA v. R. (1881), 1 Exch. C. R. 1.—CAN.

b. — — — — ——A chattel mtge. contained no re-demise clause. It was provided, however, that on default of payment, etc., or in case of the mtgor. attempting to sell or part with the possession of the goods without the mtgee.'s consent in writing, etc., the mtgee. might enter & take the goods, & sell same; & also on default of payment the mtgee. might distrain; & further, that it should not be incumbent on the mtgee. to sell & dispose of the goods, but in case of such default should peaceably & quietly have, hold, & occupy the said goods without the let, etc., of the mtgor. Before any default was made

778. Demand for receipt to be sent by post.]—The grantee of a bill of sale gave the grantor notice in writing to send by post the last quarter's receipt for rent. The rent had not been paid, the landlord not having demanded it. No receipt having been sent, the grantee seized, & claimed the sum advanced, the whole of the interest secured by the bill of sale, & the costs of the levy:—Held: (1) the grantor had not "without reasonable excuse" failed to produce his last receipt for rent, within 1882 Act, s. 7 (4); (2) a demand that the last receipt should be sent to the grantee by post was not a demand to produce the receipt to him within the sub-sect.—Ex p. WICKENS, [1898] 1 Q. B. 543; 67 L. J. Q. B. 397; 46 W. R. 385; 5 Mans. 55; sub nom. WICKENS v. SHUCKBURGH, 78 L. T. 213, C. A.

B. Limitations on Right of Seizure.

779. Bill of exchange taken as collateral security.]—Goods were assigned by S. to debt. by a bill of sale under seal in consideration of £50 advanced by debt., with a proviso that if S. paid the £50 upon demand in writing given to him, or left at his last place of abode, the deed should be void, but in default of payment contrary to the proviso, "then at any time thereafter" it was to be lawful for debt. to take possession of the goods, which were to remain in S.'s possession until default. At the same time S. accepted & gave debt. a bill of exchange at four months for £50 to secure the same debt, & debt. at once indorsed it the mtgee. entered & seized & sold the goods, for which the mtgor. brought an action, the first & second counts being in trespass & trover, & the third count being for seizing & selling the goods without pltf.'s consent before default made, whereby pltf. was deprived of his right to redeem, etc.:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover on the third count, pltf. being entitled to the restitution of his property on the performance of the condition on which he mortgaged it, which the mtgee. by his wrongful act had prevented from being accomplished.—BINGHAM v. BETTINSON (1879), 30 O. P. 438.—CAN.

c. ——— Intention of parties.]—Held: the fact that the chattel mtge. was collateral to a mtge. or real estate, & the nature & purpose for which the chattels were employed, showed that it was intended that the mtgor. should retain possession till default, & debt. could not rely on the absence of the re-demise clause as entitling him to take possession without default.—STEVENS v. DALY (1902), 1 O. W. R. 621.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2. —B.

d. Chattel mortgage given as collateral security—Principal security outstanding.]—H., in consideration of relieving C. from executions against him, procured from C. & his wife, pltf., a promissory note for the amount thereof, & also a chattel mtge. on the goods of both as collateral security. He discounted the note at a bank, & with the proceeds paid off the executions. Afterwards, but before the maturity of the note, & while it was in the bank's hands, claiming that there was a breach of the mtge. by the removal of certain goods which was disproved, & refusing to allow the mtgors. to redeem, he took the goods thereunder & sold them:—Held: the note being the principal security, & the chattel mtge. merely collateral, H. could not proceed on the mtge. while the note was thus outstanding.—COCHRANE v. BOUCHER (1883), 3 O. R. 462.—CAN.

781 i. Bankruptcy of grantor—Chattels in possession of—Trustee in bankruptcy.]—L. being indebted to L. gave him a chattel mtge. & confession of judgment, & after the mtge. became due made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to W. & S., who took possession of the goods. L. then put a writ of fi. fa. in the sheriff's hands, directing him to levy and make the amount of his debt out of the goods of R.:—Held: the fact of L. having put an execution in the sheriff's hands at his suit, directing to levy of the goods mortgaged to him as the goods of R., did not estop him from setting up his title under the chattel mtge.—WAKEFIELD v. LYNN (1856), 5 C. P. 410.—CAN.

781 ii. —.]—By an agreement pltf. sold to M. their interest in a certain timber berth for $19,000 payable by instalments. It made use of language implying the transfer of the property in the logs as soon as cut, but contained this proviso, "that during the currency of this agreement all logs, etc., shall be deemed to be the property of the vendors unless & until the purchaser shall have paid all arrears of principal & interest which may be due hereunder & the purchaser hereby covenants with the vendors not to sell, assign, or transfer any such logs, etc., until all arrears are fully paid & satisfied."

Pursuant to another clause in the agreement, pltf. on Feb. 4, 1908, gave notice terminating the agreement, & forfeiting M.'s payments previously

780. Bankruptcy of grantor—Chattels in possession of—Receiver under liquidation.]—A farmer filed his petition for liquidation, & a receiver was appointed & took possession at once. Five days after, on Mar. 23, the holder of a registered bill of sale of live & dead stock forcibly took some horses of debtor's out of the possession of the receiver:—Held: however good the title of the holder of the bill of sale might have been, he had no right to remove the horses from the possession of the receiver without leave of the ct. Semble: the position of a receiver in bkpcy. did not differ from that of a receiver in Ch.—Re MEAD, Ex p. COCHRANE (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 282; 44 L. J. Bcy. 87; 32 L. T. 508; 23 W. R. 726.

781. ——— Trustee in bankruptcy.]—The grantee of a bill of sale & the trustee in bkpcy. of the grantor were in concurrent possession of the property comprised in it. The grantee had taken possession first. The trustee impeached the validity of the bill of sale. Before the question of its validity had been decided, the grantee forcibly removed part of the property:—Held: notwithstanding the fact that the grantee had taken possession first, the removal was an unlawful act, & the grantee must pay the trustee's costs of a motion, which had been refused in the county ct., to compel the restoration into the joint possession made for default in payment of the instalment due on Jan. 1, 1908. Logs had been cut before that date & removed from the limit by M.'s assignees who on Mar. 31, 1908, gave debts. a security under Bank Act, s. 88, for advances:—Held: the logs having been in the possession & ownership of M.'s assignees until May 1, 1908, when pltf. first attempted to take possession of them, the Bills of Sale & Chattel Mortgage Act prevented pltf. from acquiring any title to them by virtue of the agreement as against the claim of debts.—MUTCHENBACKER v. DOMINION BANK (1911), 21 Man. L. R. 320.—CAN.

781 iii. Liquidator.]—On application of the mtgee. a liquidator was directed to deliver up plant & chattels mentioned in appct.'s mtge. If parties cannot agree as to the specific chattels, the mtgee. may bring an action or an issue will be directed.—SHORTREED v. RAVEN LAKE PORTLAND CEMENT CO. (1909), 13 O. W. R. 720.—CAN.

f. Mortgage given by agent—Principal dead at time of execution.]—T. K. & Co., gas fitters & plumbers, contracted verbally with D., a hotel-keeper, to supply a new hotel he was erecting with various articles in the way of their trade, which were to be paid for as the work progressed. D. afterwards left this Province on account of ill-health, having previously executed a power of attorney to S., authorising him to carry on his business during his absence. T. K. & Co. having discovered that D.'s estate was greatly involved, refused to proceed with their contract unless secured for their work & materials; whereupon S., with a view of inducing them to complete their contract, in pursuance of a previous arrangement, executed as such attorney a chattel mtge. of the goods furnished by them, securing of the property which had been removed.—Re FIELDS, Ex p. ANDREWS (1876), 4 Ch. D. 509; 46 L. J. Bcy. 23; 36 L. T. 38; 25 W. R. 382.

C. Effect of Wrongful Seizure.

782. Premature seizure—Whether validity of bill affected.]—Goods were assigned by S. to deft. by a bill of sale under seal in consideration of £50 advanced by deft., with a proviso that if S. paid the £50 upon demand in writing given to him, or left at his last place of abode, the deed should be void, but in default of payment contrary to the proviso, "then at any time thereafter" it was to be lawful for deft. to take possession of the goods, which were to remain in S.'s possession until default. At the same time S. accepted & gave deft. a bill of exchange at four months for £50 to secure the same debt, & deft. at once indorsed it over for value. On Feb. 16, the bill being still current, deft., knowing S. to be in gaol under a ca. sa., left a demand in writing at his house, & took possession of the goods the same evening. S. was adjudicated a bkpt. on Feb. 23:—Held: assuming Feb. 23 to be the material date, on that day the goods were not in the order & disposition of bkpt. with the consent of deft., the true owner, for, if deft. had been premature in taking the goods the same day as the demand, yet that did not prevent his taking possession in proper time before the 23rd.—BRAMWELL v. EGLINTON (1864), 5 B. & S. 39; 4 New Rep. 56; 33 L. J. Q. B. 130; 10 L. T. 295; 10 Jur. N. S. 583; 12 W. R. 551; 122 E. R. 747; affd. on another point (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 494, Ex. Ch.

783. ———.]—An illegal seizure does not affect the validity of a bill of sale in respect of payments becoming due under it after the date of the seizure.—MONSON v. MILNER (1892), 8 T. L. R. 447.

784. ——— Sale affirmed by grantor—Position of trustee in bankruptcy.]—On Nov. 2, 1870, B. & H. executed a bill of sale of their machinery & plant, etc., to R. for securing repayment of a certain sum advanced by him. The bill of sale contained a proviso for entry & seizure by R. in case default should be made in payment for the space of twenty-four hours after demand. R.

demand payment on May 3, 1871, by a notice which was served on B. at 2.30 o'clock p.m. & on H. at 5 o'clock p.m. R. took possession at 9.30 o'clock on the following morning. On May 6 B. & H., having previously surrendered the keys to R., filed their petition for liquidation, & N. was appointed receiver & took possession. The workmen were paid off by N. on the morning of May 9. The person put in possession by R. continued in possession until May 19. N. was subsequently appointed trustee under the liquidation. It was contended on behalf of the trustee under the liquidation that the possession of R. having been taken before the expiration of twenty-four hours after demand was illegal & that R. could not set up a title through an illegal act:—Held: as no objection had been taken by debtors to the possession taken by R., the title of R. must prevail over that of the trustee.—Re BALL & HEATH, Ex p. REDFERN (1871), 19 W. R. 1058.

785. Seizure under void bill—Whether sale affirmed by grantor.]—In an action for damages for the alleged wrongful sale & conversion of goods comprised in a bill of sale given to deft. by pltf., as security for a loan of £1,300, it was conceded that the bill of sale was void as not being in accordance with the statutory form, but the defence was that pltf. had by her acts affirmed & adopted the sale. At the trial the judge decided that pltf. had not adopted the sale, & he directed an inquiry to be conducted before an official referee, as to the damages occasioned by the sale. On the inquiry the official referee reported that there were no damages which he could assess, as he considered that there was no evidence of any improper or negligent conduct in the sale, & no evidence that the grantee had gone beyond the rights given by the bill of sale, & he adjourned the inquiry as to the value of the goods. Pltf. then applied to the ct. that directions might be given to the referee as to the principle on which the damages ought to be assessed, whereupon the judge remitted the action to the referee with a direction that regard was to be had to the fact that the bill of sale was admitted to be void, but he declined to exclude from the consideration of the referee any evidence showing that the sale was made at the request, or with the consent, of pltf.:—Held: (1) the facts did not establish adoption to them payment of their demand. At the time of the execution of this instrument D. was dead, but this fact was not known to the parties until some time after the completion of the work:—Held: T. K. & Co. were not under this mtgo. entitled to remove any of the fittings put in the hotel, their remedy being for the price of their work & material under their contract with D.—MCQUESTON v. THOMPSON (1862), 2 E. & A. 167.—CAN.

g. Mortgagor bailee of first mortgage—Rights of second mortgagee.]—The first mtgo. on certain chattels provided that the mtgor. should hold them as bailee for the mtgee.:—Held: notwithstanding this clause a second mtgee. might have a right of seizure, subject to the rights of the first mtgee.—GREAT WEST LIQUOR CO. v. COLQUHOUN (1914), 17 D. L. R. 568.—CAN.

h. Necessity to obtain leave of court—Mortgages Extension Acts.]—Before the passing of Mortgages Extension Act, 1914, M. executed in favour of deft. a bill of sale over certain chattels therein sufficiently described for the purposes of Chattels Transfer Act, 1908, s. 20, & over other chattels which were not sufficiently so described. The instrument was not registered under the last-mentioned Act. After the passing of Mortgages Extension Amendment Acts, 1914, 1915, an agreement in writing was executed by M. & deft. whereby it was agreed that Mortgages Extension Act, 1914, should not apply to the bill of sale. M. having subsequently made default under the bill of sale, deft. seized certain of the chattels comprised in the bill of sale. On the following day M. executed an assignment of his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors:—Held: deft. had committed a breach of Mortgages Extension Acts in seizing the chattels without the leave of the Supreme Ct.—JOHNS v. MULINDER, [1915] N. Z. L. R. 422.—N.Z.

784 i. Premature seizure—Concurrence of grantor.]—Where the events in which a chattel mtgee. is by the mtge. permitted to seize have not arisen but nevertheless the grantor concurs in his seizure the seizure is lawful.—ADAMS v. HUTCHINGS (1893), 3 Terr. L. R. 206.—CAN.

785 i. Seizure under void bill—Rights of trustee in bankruptcy.]—The grantees of a bill of sale (which is in fact invalid as against the official assignee of the grantor), before the commencement of the grantor's bkpey., took possession of the goods comprised in it:—Held: this did not oust the operation of Bills of Sale Act, 1898, s. 5, & the official assignee of the grantor was entitled to the goods comprised in such bill of sale.—Re CATIP (1912), 12 S. R. N. S. W. 552.—AUS.

k. Extra-judicial seizure—Subsequent sale—Rights of purchaser.]—A purchaser of goods from one who has bought them from a bailiff who sold them under a chattel mtge. as authorised by the terms of the warrant issued by the mtgee. to the sheriff, but without obtaining the order required by 1914 Statutes, c. 4, s. 4, has as against such mtgee. a right to the goods & may recover damages against such mtgee. & the sheriff & bailiff for any interference with his possession.—*LIPSEY v. 786. Goods seized in public street—Removal to grantee's premises—Sale after five days.]—A horse & carriage were seized, under a bill of sale, in a public street & at once removed to premises of the grantee, & after five days were sold by him:—Held: the seizure in the street was lawful, & in the absence of actual damage arising from the removal within the five days, no action would by her for the price of furniture, to carry on a boarding house, & executed to debt. a chattel mtge. under seal in her own name on the furniture. The rent being in arrear & part of the mtge. money overdue, the landlord distrained & debt. enforced his mtge., pltf.'s wife assenting, the balance after payment of rent & mtge. being handed to her. Pltf. sued debt. in trespass & trover:—Semle: the wife standing by & permitting the sale, was some evidence under the plea of leave & license.—HALPENNY v. PENNOCK (1873), 33 U. C. R. 229.—CAN.

m. — Mutual mistake of fact—Acquiescence.]—When a mtgee., in seizing the goods over which he holds security, takes goods pointed out to him by the mtgor., which the latter believes to be, though in fact they are not, included in the security, it is a mutual mistake of fact, & does not amount to leave & licence by the mtgor. A subsequent purchase by the mtgor. from the mtgee. of part of the goods improperly seized indicates no more than a continued ignorance by the mtgor. of his rights, not an acquiescence in the seizure.—HURREY v. BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES (1882), 1 N. Z. L. R. C. A. 115.—N.Z.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.

n. Right of entry—For removal of goods mortgaged.]—The grantees, under a bill of sale, after default, may enter upon the premises of the grantor for the purpose of removing the property covered by the bill of sale.

Where the grantor occupies a lease, the grantees are entitled, for the purposes of entry, to all the rights that the grantor enjoyed.—BOSTON MARINE INSURANCE CO. v. LONGARD (1894), 26 N. S. R. 387.—CAN.

o. Removal of live stock—Duties of mortgagee.]—Where a chattel mtgee. of live stock knows at the time he makes a seizure under his mtge. that he will require to obtain the permission of the sheriff to sell the chattels, he should not remove them when the owner has feed for them, but should put a man in possession until he obtains such permission, & he will not be allowed the additional costs of removing the chattels & keeping them in a livery stable. In this case:—Held: the mtgee. was only entitled to the costs of twenty-one days' possession although nearly three months had elapsed between seizure & sale owing to the necessity for obtaining the sheriff's permission to sell.—MARSHALL

v. SIGER (1916), 34 W. L. R. 803; 10 W. W. R. 918.—CAN.

p. Seizure condition precedent to sale.]—Defts. gave pltf. a bill of sale over certain personal property to secure a sum of money advanced to debts. by pltf. The bill of sale contained a condition that in case of default it should be lawful for pltf. to enter & seize & take possession of the property secured by the bill of sale & sell same. Pltf. exercised his power of sale, but owing to no fault of pltf. the sale went off. Pltf. then sued debts. on bonds given by them as collateral security for repayment of the amount secured by the bill of sale. At the trial there was no finding as to whether pltf. had seized before sale, & in the absence of this finding debts., appealed against a decision giving judgment for pltf.:—Held: in order to make good the alleged sale, seizure in accordance with the conditions of the bill of sale was indispensable, & as there was no proof that the provision as to seizure before sale had been complied with, there must be a new trial.—WILLIAMSON v. TAIT (1893), 19 V. L. R. 3.—AUS.

r. Exercise of power of sale—Duty of mortgagee to use due care & diligence—To prevent sale at undervalue.]—If for want of due care & diligence the mtgee. does not realise on a sale of the property what might have been received on it, he is liable for the full value of the property sold.

A chattel mtgee. acting under his powers seized & sold to his father, goods mortgaged to him. The sale was effected privately & unknown to the mtgor.:—Held: the purported sale was a collusive arrangement & the mtgor. was entitled to recover damages.—GRIMES v. GAUTHIER (1908), 7 W. L. R. 485; 1 Sask. L. R. 54.—CAN.

s. — — — — —.]—Deft. having seized under his chattel mtge., sold two days after seizure. The speed was caused by the fact that rent would be due on the day following sale:—Held: the mtgee. standing in a fiduciary character should have taken all reasonable means to prevent a sacrifice, & there should have been at least five days' notice of sale.—WOOD v. DETLOR (1909), 14 O. W. R. 192.—CAN.

t. — — — — —.]—In of his power of sale, a mtgee. of chattels is bound merely to act in good faith & avoid conducting the sale proceedings in a manner so recklessly improvident as to sacrifice the goods by sale at an undervalue.—BRITISH COLUMBIA LAND & INVESTMENT AGENCY

787. Removal within five days—With grantor's consent.]—1882 Act, s. 13, is for the benefit of grantors only; & where goods are seized & removed by the grantee, with the grantor's consent, within such period of five days, the grantor's landlord has no right of action against the grantee owing to such removal.—LANE v. CONSOLIDATED CREDIT & MORTGAGE CORPN.

v. — — — — —.]—A mtgee. in possession who sells mortgaged goods in a reckless & improvident manner is liable to account not only for what he actually receives, but for what he might have obtained had he acted with proper regard for the interests of the mtgor.—RENNIE v. BLOCK (1896), 26 S. C. R. 356.—CAN.

w. — — — — — Expenses of realization.]—It is the duty of a mtgee. when realising the mortgaged property by sale to behave in conducting such realisation as "reasonable man would behave in the realisation of his own property, so that the mtgor. might receive credit for the fair value of the property sold. But such a doctrine recognises as a necessary corollary the right of the mtgee. to treat the reasonable expenses of such realisation as a deduction from the amount realised, & unless that is done the sale price does not truly represent the value of the property sold because it is a sum which the owner could not have obtained for it without paying the necessary costs of realisation.—McHUGH (FELIX A.) v. UNION BANK OF CANADA, McHUGH (THOMAS P.) v. UNION BANK OF CANADA, [1913] A. C. 299; 29 T. L. R. 305, P. C.—CAN.

x. — — — — — Whether advertisement of sale adequate.]—Pltf. who was a tenant of debt. executed two chattel mtges. in favour of debt. as security for the rent of his farm & for advances made by the firm of A. & R. of which debt. was a partner. Pltf. not being able to repay the amount due, debt. seized & sold the goods comprised in the chattel mtges. In an action to recover damages for conversion of the goods pltf. contended that the amount due to debt. was trifling compared with the value of the goods sold, & that the sale was not adequately advertised:—Held: debt. was justified in selling the goods, but pltf. was entitled to damages by reason of the sale not having been adequately advertised.—NEAL v. ROGERS (1911), 19 O. W. R. 873; 2 O. W. N. 1482.—CAN.

y. — — — — —.]—Pltf., a chattel mtgor., sued for damages, alleging the sale by the mtgee. had been improvident & not adequately advertised:—Held: debt. was not liable as the sale had been duly advertised in three local papers & carried out by an experienced firm of auctioneers.—*O'NEIL v. z. Sale by auction on instructions from mortgagor—Mortgagee acting as auctioneer—Fraudulent bidding.]—A sale of mortgaged chattels by the mtgee., acting as auctioneer under instructions from the mtgor., is a sale by the mtgee. at the request of the mtgor., & if articles are knocked down at such sale to the mtgor., then, whether he pays cash or is given credit for the price, the property reverts in him as purchaser.

If the mtgor.'s bid is, to the knowledge of the mtgee., a sham for the purpose of buying in, then, the sale being without reserve, there is a fraud on other bidders. The mtgee. cannot contend that there was no real sale, as that would be setting up his own fraud.—Re CHRISTIE (1901), 19 N. Z. L. R. 615.—N.Z.

a. Mortgagees bidding in at sale—Payment of arrears & wages on taking possession—Rights of mortgagor.]—Mtgees. put up stock-in-trade of a business for sale under their mtge., bid it in & took possession with the assent of the mtgor., paid off arrears of wages & rent, & carried on the business with the mtgor. in their employ for some months. In an action by the mtgor. to avoid the sale:—Held: (1) it was void & the property could be redeemed; (2) in the taking of accounts the mtgor. could not be charged with arrears of wages paid by the mtgees., this payment having not been previously expressly assented to by the mtgor.; (3) a sum stated by the mtgees. to be the value of the goodwill for the purposes of an amalgamation scheme between them & another co., could not be charged against them in the accounts.—VAN VOLKENBURG v. WESTERN CANADIAN RANCHING CO. (1898), 6 B. C. R. 284.—CAN.

b. Who may restrain sale—Simple contract creditor.]—Pltf. moved to continue, till the trial, an interim injunction restraining debts from seizing & selling under a chattel mtge. the goods of a firm alleged to be indebted to pltf. Pltf. sued on behalf of himself & all other creditors of the firm, & did not allege insolvency, but grounded his action upon the allegation that the proposed seizure & sale would create an unjust preference:—Held: a simple contract creditor, even suing in a class action, cannot invoke the aid of the ct. to restrain a chattel mtgee. from realising upon his security, unless alleging more than this pltf. alleged without satisfying the ct. that the circumstances indicated some infraction of the statutes relating to preferences; & the ct. will not, upon such an application, take the account, nor restrain realisation by a solvent creditor upon his mtge., except upon at least prima facie proof of invalidity.—BASSI v. SULLIVAN (1914), 32 O. L. R. 14; 18 D. L. R. 452; 7 O. W. N. 38; 26 O. W. R. 813.—CAN.

c. — Second mortgage—Debt of first mortgage satisfied.]—(On Aug. 29, 1905, B. mortgaged to S. the goods & chattels set out in the mtge. which also provided that all goods & chattels which might thereafter be taken & brought into stock or possession of the mtgor. during the currency of the mtge., or any renewal thereof, should at once become mortgaged without any fresh instrument being executed for that purpose, to secure to S. an amount for future advances not to exceed $4,000. On Aug. 28, 1905, B. mortgaged to pltf. the same goods & chattels to secure the sum of $6,650, but, by agreement between the parties, the mtge. to deft. S. was to be considered a first charge to the extent of $4,000. From Aug. 29, 1905, until Jan. 7, 1907, deft. B. paid to deft. S. all the money he received daily from the sales of the mortgaged goods, averaging about $4,000 per month, without any special appropriation being made of such payments, & the amount so paid would be more than sufficient to satisfy the mtge. debt. Pltf. applied to continue injunction restraining S. from selling goods of B., referred to in the chattel mtge., until the trial:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the relief asked for.—McDONALD v. SCARCE (1907), 5 W. L. R. 324.—CAN.

See, further, Sect. 1, sub-sect. 1, ante.

d. Loss of right to sell—Repudiation of mortgage.]—H. & I. being indebted to a bank, arranged with pltf. T., the bank's agent at H., where the debt arose, that in order to secure same a mtge. should be given to him & the other pltf., the bank's general manager in Canada. T. had no express power to bind the bank to take this security, & his co-pltf. was at the time absent from the country, & ignorant of the transaction. A mtge. was accordingly drawn up, dated June 22, 1867, & purported to be made between H., I., and S., of the first part, & pltf.s., as trustees for the bank, of the second part, reciting that the parties of the first part were indebted to the bank in certain bills of exchange, & witnessing that H. in consideration, etc., assigned to pltf.s. the household furniture in his residence, bill, & in spite of a notice of A.'s claim sold the goods. Between the seizure & the sale, debtor committed an act of bkpcy., & was adjudicated bkpt.:—Held: P. had not acquired any priority over A. since A.'s legal title to the goods was complete as against P. without taking possession.—Re MIDDLETON, Ex p. ALLEN, Ex p. PAGE (1870), L. R. 11 Eq. 209; 40 L. J. Bcy. 17; 19 W. R. 274.

790. Goods sold by grantor—Claim by grantee before time for payment.]—A., by deed, dated Sept. 28, 1845, conveyed goods to B. absolutely, subject to a proviso that if he should pay to B. the sum secured on Mar. 22, 1850, or any earlier day, after receiving from B. fourteen days' notice, & should pay the interest meanwhile half-yearly, then the conveyance should be void. By the deed it was also agreed that, until default in payment of the principal as before specified or of the interest after notice to pay, A. should be allowed to hold & enjoy the goods. No notice for earlier payment was given, nor any notice for payment of the interest, & A. continued in possession of the goods with a proviso that the mtge. was to be void on payment by parties of the first part of the bills of exchange. On the ct. of directors in England being apprised of the transaction both by T. & his co-pltf., they at once repudiated it, & on Aug. 22 following wrote T. distinctly to that effect; & when their letter reached him, on Sept. 5, the goods were still in H.'s possession, & nothing had been done under the mtge. beyond recording it. On Sept. 7 T. resigned his position in the bank, & on Sept. 16 deft.'s execution against the goods of H. & I. was placed in the sheriff's hands. In the following Oct. the bank instructed T.'s successor to realise the security:—Held: the bank by their repudiation of the mtge. had let in deft.'s execution, & their subsequent ratification of T.'s acts & adoption of the security could not defeat the writ.—TAYLOR v. AINSLIE (1868), 19 C. P. 78.—CAN.

790 i. Goods sold by grantor—Grantor in apparent possession—Purchaser without notice.]—A farmer conveyed his growing crops by an absolute deed. After harvest, he, being in possession as apparent owner, sold a portion to a purchaser ignorant of the previous conveyance:—Held: the second sale passed no title as against the grantees under the deed.—MUELLER v. WHITE (1877), 3 V. L. R. 92.—AUS.

790 ii. — Not in ordinary course of business—To pay out distress for rent.]—A bill of sale of stock-in-trade on the premises was executed by W. in favour of A. to secure repayment of a loan. The bill of sale was dated July 4, 1876, & duly registered. On Nov. 17 the grantor's landlord distrained for rent, & seized the stock. Applt., at the request of the grantor, agreed to advance the amount of the landlord's claim in consideration of the sale to him of a chattel then on the premises forming part of the stock. A sale note was given & the chattel marked with applt.'s initials, who thereupon paid the landlord's claim. On Nov. 22 the mtgee. A. assigned the bill of sale to resp.; on the 23rd applt. demanded the chattel from a bailiff, who had taken possession for resp. under the bill of sale; this was twice refused, & he gave notice to resp. that the chattel was his property, & cautioned him against selling it. He did sell it. No demand had been made on the mtgor. by resp. for the amount

Sect. 2.—Rights of grantee: Sub-sect. 4, A. (a) & (b).] until Dec. 13, 1849, when he became bkpt., & defts., his assignees, then took possession of the goods & sold them on Feb. 19, 1850. B. had previously assigned the goods to pltf. :—Held: although the right to the possession of the goods was vested in A. until Mar. 22, 1850, defeasible by non-payment of the principal & interest according to the provisions of the deed, yet the sale of the goods before that day put an end to the term, & the assignees had thereby been guilty of a conversion for which pltf. were entitled to maintain trover.—*FENN v. 791. Bankruptcy of grantor—Before claim by grantee—Under bill of sale given by way of indemnity.]—A. by indenture, reciting that B. had mortgaged to C. certain premises to secure a sum of £400 advanced by C. to A. & that A. had agreed with B. to execute an effectual indemnity against the payment of that sum & interest, did grant, bargain, sell, & assign to B. a certain messuage, & also, secondly, certain household furniture, goods, & chattels specified therein, to have, hold, receive, & take the furniture & other effects unto B. for her own use, subject to the trusts & provisions, & with the powers thereafter contained; the trusts were, that the effects should be a protection, defence, & indemnity to B. against the payment of the £400; & that for that purpose, in case B. should at any time be called upon to pay that sum, or any part thereof, etc. then it should be lawful for B. immediately to enter & take possession & sell the effects. Before B. had been called upon to pay any part of the £400 A. became bkpt., & his assignees took possession of the goods & sold them:—Held: A. was entitled to recover their value in an action of trover.—LETTS v. WHITMORE (1852), 18 L. T. O. S. 254.

792. Unregistered bill—Followed by registered bill to third party—Goods seized by holder of first bill.]—A., in consideration of an advance of £650 made to him by B. & C., by deed in the form of a mtge. assigned to them all the goods, chattels, & effects upon his farm & premises, to secure repayment of the advance, with power to the mtgees., on default, to sell at their discretion & to pay over the surplus to A. B. & C. took possession under the deed, which was not registered, & sold the goods by auction. D. after B. & C. had taken possession entered under a subsequent bill of sale, duly registered, & paid out a claim of the landlord for rent:—Held: (1) B. & C. having perfected their title by taking possession under their mtge., had a right to sell, & they were not responsible to D. for any default in the mode of conducting the sale; (2) D. could not recover against B. & C. the sum paid by him to the landlord, as money paid to their use.—*MAUGHAM v. 795. ——— Followed by bankruptcy.]—A., by an unregistered bill of sale, assigned all his property to C. By a subsequent registered bill of sale he assigned the same property to B. A. filed his petition for liquidation, & a trustee was ap-due under the bill of sale:—Held: as the property in the chattel was in resp. by virtue of the bill of sale, & the sale to applt. was not in the ordinary way of trade, & as no facts were disclosed which would estop resp. from setting up his right of property as against applt., resp. was entitled to judgment.—*HUNT v. 790 iii. ——— Assignment on swearing out of jail.]—Pltf. held a bill of sale of a pair of oxen from M., the owner, who continued in possession, the bill of sale being duly recorded & upheld as valid by the jury. After making the bill of sale, M. was arrested at the suit of deft., & on swearing out of jail, assigned the oxen to deft., who sold them at auction to W.; whereupon pltf., under a writ of replevin against deft., took the oxen out of the possession of W., who was no party to the suit. pointed. B. then claimed the goods under his registered bill of sale from the trustee, but the county ct. judge decided that as between C. & B. all the property in the goods passed to C. by his prior security, & as nothing passed to B. under his bill of sale, & as C.'s bill of sale was void against the trustee, the trustee was entitled:—Held: after the petition C.'s security was gone, & B. having a good bill of sale was entitled against the trustee.—*Re BARRAND, Ex p. On the following day, C. took possession under his bill of sale & advertised the property for sale. After the seizure, but before the sale, A. filed a petition in bkpcy., & a trustee was appointed. C. sold the goods, & after satisfying his own claim, paid over the balance to the trustee. B. brought an action for illegal seizure & sale of goods assigned to him against C., & claimed the amount owing to him by A.:—Held: C.'s seizure was illegal & gave B. a good cause of action against him, which A.'s bkpcy. did not take away.—*PAYNE v. Before the execution of such last bill, but after that of pltf.'s previous bills, defts. had, without pltf.'s knowledge, obtained & registered another bill of sale from A. 802 i. Sale by grantor—In ordinary course of business—Question of fact.]—Deft., a farmer, executed a chattel mtge. to M., whereby he assigned all the goods, chattels, & property mentioned in a schedule, & also any & all the property that might thereafter be bought to keep up same, in lieu thereof & in addition thereto, either by exchange or purchase. The instrument also contained a proviso that deft. should remain in possession of the mortgaged property until default, with power to use same in the ordinary way while so in possession, but with full power, right, & authority to M. to enter & take possession of the property in case of default of payment, or on the death of deft., or in the event of the seizure of the property at the suit of any creditor, or in the event of deft. disposing of or attempting to dispose of or make away with said property or of any part thereof without the written consent of M. Included in the property mortgaged was a stallion, which a few months after the execution of the mtge. & before any default on the part of deft., but without the written consent of M., he exchanged with pltf. for a horse belonging to him. After the exchange pltf., having discovered that the stallion was covered by the mtge., attempted to avoid the transaction sending the stallion back to deft. & demanding the return of his own horse, which deft. refused to deliver:—Held: (1) as the mtge. must be taken to contain the whole contract entered into between deft. & M., effect could not be given to a mere verbal license, which preceded the mtge. & was not in harmony with many of its provisions; (2) it was a condition of the mtge., & the intention of the parties thereto, that deft. should be allowed to sell or exchange the mortgaged property provided such sale or exchange was in the ordinary course of deft.'s business, & as whether this exchange had been in the ordinary course of deft.'s business or not was a question of fact which had not been passed upon by the ct. below, there should be a new trial to have that point determined.—MCPHERSON v. MOODY (1900), 35 N. B. R. 51.—CAN.

802 ii. ———— Purchaser with notice.]—A farmer who mortgages some 50 or 60 horses may be classed as a dealer in horses & under the implied licence for the mtgor. to continue the business he may sell any number of the horses to bona fide purchasers for value.

Prior bill to third party—Set up by execution creditor—To defeat valid bill to claimant.]—In an interpleader issue, to try whether certain goods were, at the time of the seizure thereof by the sheriff under a writ of execution, the goods of claimant, claimant proved a valid bill of sale to him of the goods:—Held: it was competent for the execution creditor to defeat claimant's title by proving a prior bill of sale to a third party.—*GADSDEN v. Grantee of unregistered bill—Right to set up later bill to third party—Against trustee in bankruptcy.]—In trover by assignees of bkpt., deft., who claimed under an invalid bill of sale, was not allowed to set up a subsequent bill of sale to a third party, who himself had not set it up, & who, even if he were the true owner, would be defeated by bkpt.'s reputed ownership.—*NICHOLSON v. 801. Consolidation—Bill of sale & security over other property of grantor.]—The doctrine of consolidation of mtges. does not enable the grantee by a registered bill of sale of goods seized under a fi. fa. to tack a prior mtge. of other property of the grantor, & claim that the surplus proceeds of the goods, after discharging the sum secured by the bill of sale, shall be applied in satisfaction of the prior mtge., so as to defeat the right of the execution creditor to such surplus.—*CHESWORTH v. the property in them, & that he sold same to deft., who bought them in the ordinary course of business, & without any notice that they did not belong to S., that S. was suffered by pltf. to carry on his business as a farmer & dealer in grain at the time of the sale, & it was the ordinary course of business of S. in such business to make such sales:—Held: the defence was good, for the bill of sale by implication conferred a licence on the grantor to carry on his business & dispose of the goods so as to give a valid title to purchasers.—*NATIONAL MERCANTILE BANK v. 803. ———.]—The grantor of a bill of sale, described in the instrument as an innkeeper & horse-dealer, in consideration of a loan of £100 assigned to pltf. by the bill all his personal property, including an "entire horse called F., a cob called C., a pony called N." The bill of sale contained a covenant that so long as the money should remain owing the grantor would not remove any of the premises from the messuage without the consent of pltf., & provided that until default in payment the grantor should hold, make use of & possess the premises thereby assigned. Subsequently, & without the consent of pltf., the grantor sold the three horses, F., C. & N., at a public

k. ——— Subject to lien of unpaid vendors.—Claimants sold a co. a machine upon an order signed by the co., the conditions of which were that the co. should pay a part of the price in cash & the balance in instalments, with interest on such instalments payable with the last of them, & that the title should not pass to the co. until the moneys payable by them under the order, as well as under any other orders which might be given by the co. to claimants, should be paid. At the time of the commencement of the winding-up of the co., one instalment, the interest, & a further sum for goods ordered after the first order, remained unpaid. The liquidator came into possession of the machine, & sold it to H., subject to an alleged lien in favour of claimants for the amount of the unpaid instalment only:—Held: the rights of claimants under the contract still existed, & were not affected by Bills of Sale & Chattel Mortgage Act, nor by the liquidator's sale to H., & they were entitled to recover the full amount due under the terms of the order out of the estate.—*Re CANADIAN CAMERA & OPTICAL CO., WILLIAMS (A. l. ——— Prior unregistered hire-purchase agreement.—Resps. delivered to T. an agricultural implement under a hire-purchase agreement, under which T. was entitled to determine his liability at any time after the payment of the first instalment due thereunder. Before payment of the last instalment T. sold the implement to applt.

In an action by resps. to recover the implement or the amount of the last instalment applt. contended that resps. were estopped under Sale of Goods Act, 1908, s. 23 (1), from denying T.'s authority to sell, as the instrument was not registered, & as they had allowed T. to remain in possession of instruments under two other bailments after default entitling them to recover possession of the same:—Held: resps. had done nothing amounting to an estoppel, & were entitled to judgment, the sole effect of non-registration of an instrument being that specially provided in Chattels Transfer Act, 1908.—GALYER v. MASSEY-HARRIS CO., LTD. (1914), 33 N. Z. L. R. 1392.—N.Z.

n. ——— Prior registered mortgage—Purchaser without notice—Damages for detention.—The owner of goods, having executed a chattel mtge., which was duly recorded in the proper registration district in the province of S., afterwards fraudulently removed them to the province of A., where he sold them to a bond fide purchaser for value without notice of the mortgage:—Seem: in an action by the mtgee. for a return of the goods & damages for detention, the goods having been returned, the measure of damages was the amount of the interest on the price paid by deft. for the goods.—JONES v. TWOHEY (1908), 8 W. L. R. 295; 1 Alta. L. R. 267.—CAN.

auction, where one of them, the cob, was purchased by deft. In an action of detinue brought by pltf. to recover the cob or its value from deft.:—Held: the object of the bill of sale being to enable the grantor to carry on his business, the sale of the horses, which must be taken to have been sold in the ordinary course of his business, was not a breach of the covenant, & the action was not maintainable.—*WALKER v. B. afterwards sold the goods to defts. by private contract, & absconded. The jury found that "B. sold the goods fraudulently, & not in the ordinary course of his business," but defts. did not know that, & bought the goods bond fide:—Held: upon the above finding, the verdict was properly entered for pltf., the right of the grantor to deal with the goods being subject to the implied condition that the dealing should be only in the ordinary course of his business.—TAYLOR v. M'KEAND (1880), 5 C. P. D. 358; 49 L. J. Q. B. 563; 42 L. T. 833; 44 J. P. 784; 28 W. R. 628, D. C.

Where the consideration was not truly expressed in accordance with the Act:—Held: the bill was void against a subsequent purchaser for value without notice.—PALMER v. MAY (1911), 18 W. L. R. 676; 5 Sask. L. R. 20.—CAN.

After-acquired property—Property disposed of by grantor when acquired—By pledge.—By a bill of sale a jeweller, for a valuable consideration, assigned to pltf. his after-acquired stock-in-trade subject to a proviso for redemption. Before pltf. took possession of the after-acquired stock-in-trade, the jeweller pledged a portion of it with deft., who had no notice of pltf.'s bill of sale :—Held : deft. was entitled to retain the stock-in-trade pledged with him as against pltf., & no action of detinue of conversion would lie.—*JOSEPH v. bona fides mtge., unregistered, is void as against a subsequent mtgee. in good faith. Where a chattel mtge. was expressed to be an absolute conveyance from mtgor. to mtgee., then a defeasance on a certain event, then a provision that the mtgor. would forever warrant & defend the goods unto the mtgee., then a declaration that the mtgor. doth put the mtgee. in possession of the goods by delivery of some kind :—Held : (1) possession followed the property conveyed & the mtgee., though no fault had been made, was entitled to assume possession at any time; (2) he was entitled to compel a mtgee. who had seized & sold the goods under a prior unregistered mtge., to account.—*STEWART SHEAF LOADER v. a. Unregistered agreement—Subsequent unregistered mortgage to third party—Possession taken by holders of agreement.—W. & Co. sold a piano to W. under the terms of a memorandum in writing by which W. agreed to pay the purchase price within twelve months from date, the property in the meantime to remain in W. & Co. W. & Co. failed to register the agreement, as required by R. S. N. S. 1900 (c. 142), & W. transferred the piano by chattel mtge. to pltf., who also failed to file his mtge. until after W. & Co., the original owners, had regained possession by paying to G., who had caused the piano to be distrained for rent, the amount due him for rent & expenses of the distress, & by taking an assignment of the debt due to G. :—Held : (1) as between W. & Co. & pltf., the agreement entered into between W. & Co. & W., not having been filed, was null & void under the Act; (2) the legal title having passed from W. to pltf. upon the execution of the chattel mtge., W. & Co. were neither purchasers nor creditors within the Act, as against whom the instrument would only take effect & have priority from the time of filing; (3) while W. & Co. had a right to be subrogated to the claim of the landlord as against the tenant, the right could not be enforced as against pltf. who in addition to having the legal title, had equities equal to those of W. & Co.—LAPIERRE v. McDONALD (1906), 39 N. S. R. 24; 1 E. L. R. 41.—CAN.

b. Void mortgage—Chattel left in possession of hotel-keeper—Lien.—R., who had mortgaged a vehicle to applt., made default in payment, & left the vehicle in the possession of resp., a hotel-keeper, who claimed a lien over it as against R. Applt. saw it in resp.'s yard, & producing the mtge. which was void, under Chattel Mortgage Act, 1889, s. 26, claimed delivery of it to himself. Resp. did not deliver it, & applt. sued him for the detention, & sought to rely on a verbal contract between himself & R. :—Held : applt. having produced the void document, as the basis of his demand upon resp., could not be allowed to set up an entirely different claim in the action against resp.—WRIGHT v. CARMODY (1897), 16 N. Z. L. R. 155.—N.Z.

c. Fraudulent bill—Subsequent unregistered lien note to third party—Possession taken by holder of lien note.—In an action for conversion, pltf. claimed title under a registered bill of sale which the jury found was made without consideration, & in fraud of creditors. Deft. justified the taking under an unregistered lien note given subsequent to the bill of sale :—Held : the verdict was properly entered for deft.—POITRAS v. PELLETIER (1907), 2 E. L. R. 463; 38 N. B. R. 63.—CAN.

d. — Subsequent bill to third party—For debt bona fide due.—The owner of a horse made a fraudulent bill of sale of it to his son, deft., for the purpose of protecting it from the claims of creditors. Deft. took delivery of the horse & afterwards sold it. Subsequently to the conveyance to deft., but before the sale, the father conveyed the horse, by a bill of sale, to pltf., for a debt bona fide due from him to pltf. In an action of trover by pltf. against the son for the alleged conversion of the horse :—Held : although the first conveyance was fraudulently made to defeat the rights of creditors & was void as against them, under 13 Eliz., c. 5, the grantor could not impart any title to pltf., who could only appropriate it to the satisfaction of her claim by virtue of some legal process, & pltf. could not attack the conveyance under 27 Eliz., c. 4, as that did not apply to personal property.—*MOORE v. 1. Invalid lien note—Subsequent mortgage—Mortgage without notice.—On Dec. 10, 1903, pltf. sold to C., three head of cattle; he swore that C. agreed at the time to give him a lien on the cattle; the reason it was not given at the date of the sale was that he had no form of lien note at the house; he procured one & had it signed by C. on Dec. 31. Besides the cattle, the lien note included a gray horse; pltf. stated that, when he presented the note to C. for signature, the latter wanted to put in the horse, & it was done. He never owned the horse & did not claim it. On Jan. 21, 1904, C., who was indebted to deft., gave him a chattel mtge. covering the cattle, horse, & other chattels which was duly registered. On Mar. 29 pltf., having heard that C. had left the province, went to see deft. & ascertained that he held the chattel mtge., but had not yet taken possession of the cattle. They were in the stable of one P., to whom it was stated C. had sold them. Pltf. made a warrant of distress under his lien note & tried to seize the cattle, but during the night deft. had taken possession of them under his chattel mtge. & prevented pltf. from taking them :—Held : deft. having obtained the chattel mtge. from C. in good faith & without notice of any lien or other right of the original owner, came within R. S. M. 1902 (c. 152), s. 26 (a), & was entitled to claim the goods under the chattel mtge.—COLLOM v. McGRATH (1904), 24 C. L. T. 376; 15 Man. L. R. 96.—CAN.

810. — By bill of sale.—By a bill of sale executed in 1875, R. granted to M. the after-acquired chattels which should be upon certain premises of R. The title of M. under the bill of sale ultimately vested in deft. R. brought upon the premises chattels acquired by him after 1875, & before the coming into operation of 1882 Act, by a bill of sale granted to pltf. the after-acquired chattels. Pltf. had no notice of the bill of sale in favour of M. In Jan., 1884, deft. seized the after-acquired chattels then upon the premises of R. Pltf. having demanded possession of them from deft., who refused to give them up :—Held : pltf. was entitled to recover from deft. the value of the goods, for the grant of the after-acquired chattels to M. carried only an equitable interest, while pltf. by the grant to him took the legal interest without notice of the prior equitable interest vested in M. & had a better title than deft.—HALLAS v. ROBINSON (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 288; 54 L. J. Q. B. 364; 33 W. R. 426; 1 T. L. R. 309, C. A.

g. Lien for advances—Subsequent unregistered mortgage to third party—Innocent mortgagee for value.—Pltf. sued for conversion of certain "withes lying on the island in the mouth of the river Moira," claimed by him under a written instrument, whereby A., the owner, assumed to assign the withes to pltf., as security for money lent. Defts. asserted a lien on the withes for advances to A., & also alleged that there had been an actual delivery thereof to them, under which they had taken possession prior to pltf.'s mtge. :—Held : (1) the mortgage was not void for want of registration as against defts. claiming under the alleged prior delivery; (2) the alleged lien for advances could not be enforced against pltf., who was an innocent mtgee. for value.—HALL v. COLLINS BAY RAFTING & FORWARDING CO. (1884), 12 A. R. 65.—CAN.

After-acquired property—Property disposed of by grantor when acquired—By unregistered bill of sale.—M., the lessee of a hotel, gave a bill of sale over his furniture in the hotel, & "all after-acquired furniture, goods & chattels which might be brought upon the premises," to S. Subsequently the S. B. Co., to enable M. to sell beer on the "quick lunch" system put up certain fittings in the hotel, & took from M. a bill of sale over them, which was not registered. In Apr., 1888, he executed a bill of sale of the same furniture as security for a loan. That bill was registered. In July, 1888, the husband died:—Held: (1) the assignment to the wife was a bill of sale, & ought to have been registered under 1878 Act; (2) at the time of the execution of the second bill of sale the grantor was not the true owner of the chattels therein comprised, & under 1882 Act, s. 5, it was void as against everyone except the grantor, & the grantor's widow was entitled to the furniture, & not the grantee of the second bill of sale.—*TUCK v. bill of sale, & with the approval of M., assigned all the furniture, etc., to B. The S. B. Co. thereupon sued B. for the return of the fittings or their value. B. claimed that the fittings had been acquired by M. after the execution of the bill of sale held by S., & that they passed to S. under the "after-acquired property" clause of the bill of sale, & that in purchasing from S. he acquired a good title, & that in any event the fittings had been the constructive property of M., & that the S. B. Co. were debarred by Bills of Sale Act, 1899, s. 27, from setting up their title:—Held: S. had never acquired, & could not therefore have given any title to the fittings, & the S. B. Co. were not debarred by s. 27, from asserting their title.—BANNAN v. SWAN BREWERY CO. (1909), 11 W. A. L. R. 15.—AUS.

k. — *Property assigned to trustee for benefit of creditors.]—*In May, 1880, D., being indebted to M., gave a chattel mtge. on all his stock-in-trade, chattels & effects then being in his store on G. st., in Halifax; & agreed to convey to M. all stock which during the continuance of the indebtedness he might purchase for the purpose of substituting in place of stock then owned by him in connection with his said business. These goods were never so conveyed. By the terms of the mtge. the debt was to be paid in three years, in twelve equal instalments at specified times, & if any instalment should be unpaid for fifteen days after becoming due, the whole to become immediately payable, & M. could take possession of & sell the mortgaged goods. It was further agreed that to save the business credit of D. the mtge. was not to be filed & was to be kept secret; & it was not filed until Dec. 12, 1881. On Dec. 13, 1881, D. assigned to F. in trust for the benefit of creditors, by trust deed executed by D., F., & one of D.'s creditors, & subsequently by a number of other creditors. At the time F. had no notice of the mtge. to M., & took possession of the goods in the store on G. st., & refused to deliver them to M. on demand, default having been made in payments under the mtge., & a suit was brought for recovery of the goods & an account. Previous to the suit F. delivered a small portion of the goods in the store to M., which, as he alleged, were all that remained of the stock on the premises in May, 1880:—Held: the legal title to the property vested in F. must prevail, pltf.'s title being merely equitable & the equities between the parties being equal.—MCALLISTER v. FORSYTH (1885), 12 S. C. R. 1.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.

1. Distress by landlord—Exercise of power.]—In exercising his right of distress a landlord's right is subordinate to that of the mtgee. On a distress being made a specific lien upon the goods is created. This lien must be enforced with due regard to the rights of the chattel mtgee. If the usual procedure following upon distress would be an undue interference with the mtgee.'s rights other appropriate proceedings must be invoked.—CALGARY BREWING & MALTING CO. & MIQUELON v. MARTIN & CO. (1915), 33 W. L. R. 68; 9 W. W. R. 563; 25 D. L. R. 859.—CAN.

m. — *Measure of damages.]—*D. conveyed two horses to pltf. by a bill of sale conditioned to become void on the return by D. of a quantity of grain, etc., loaned him by pltf., & on payment of a sum of money, D. retained possession of the horses. During the continuance of the security deft. took the horses under an alleged distress for rent against D.:—Held: (1) the property being in pltf., he was not bound

B. Grantor's Landlord.

813. Distress by landlord—Bankruptcy of grantor—Marshalling.]—In 1844, a person mortgaged some household furniture, fixtures, stock-in-trade, & personal chattels, but was permitted by the mtgee. to remain in possession of them. In Aug., 1847, all the property in the mtgor.'s house, consisting partly of property included in the mtge., & partly of property belonging to the mtgor. absolutely, was under the plea of not guilty to show a right to present possession; (2) no demand of possession was necessary; (3) it was not a misdirection to tell the jury that they might find as damages the full value of the horses.—COATES v. GOSLIN (1880), 20 N. B. R. 323.—CAN.

813 i. — Bankruptcy of grantor—Grantee not entitled to possession.]—Held: according to 5 Vict. No. 17, s. 41, the prohibition of "distress for rent" after sequestration of the tenant's estate only applies to a distress on goods which form part of an insolvent estate to be administered as assets, & does not authorise the holder of a bill of sale to take his goods the subject of such bill out of the hands of the landlord's bailiff in possession thereof under such distress.—RAILTON v. WOOD (1890), 15 App. Cas. 363, P. C.—AUS.

n. — *Chattels left on premises in mortgagor's possession—Whether liable to seizure by mortgagee.]—*A bailiff seized certain goods under a landlord's warrant, for rent in arrear, but did not remain in possession, or take any further steps to execute it, except that, as the jury found, the tenant was constituted the landlord's agent to take possession of the goods for him under the warrant. After more than a month, a person having a mtge. on the goods took possession under it, & removed the goods, for which the landlord replevied:—Held: the action could not be maintained.—ROE v. ROOPER (1873), 23 C. P. 76.—CAN.

o. — Where the goods of a tenant, which had been mortgaged by him, were distrained for rent & impounded, & were left on the premises in his charge for over three weeks by agreement between him & the bailiff, when on being advertised for sale under the distress they were seized & taken away by the mtgee.:—Held: as regards the mtgee., that the goods were no longer in custodia legis, & that in taking them he had not committed a breach of the pound within 2 Wm. & M. sess. 1, c. 5.—LANGTRY v. CLARK (1896), 27 O. R. 280.—CAN.

p. — Where the goods seized are left by the landlord's bailiff upon the demised premises, in the possession of the tenant, the taking of a bond from the tenant to the bailiff to produce & keep & deliver the chattels & crops & not to remove or allow them to be removed from the premises & to hold them for the bailiff, is not evidence of an abandonment of distrained by the direction of his landlord. The mtgee. thereupon directed the bailiff to hold the goods included in the mtge. as his bailiff. Part of the goods so distrained was sold, & satisfied the landlord's claim. After the sale the mtgor. became bkpt. :—Held: the mtgor. was entitled as against the assignees to the benefit of the doctrine of marshalling, so as to throw the landlord's debt exclusively on the property not subject to the mtge.—Re STEPHENSON, Ex p. STEPHENSON (1847), De G. 586; 17 L. J. Bcy. 5; 10 L. T. O. S. 310; 12 Jur. 6.

814. Chattels sold by landlord—After notice of bill of sale—Duty to hand surplus to grantee.]—A. gave a bill of sale on his furniture to pltf., but remained in possession. Deft. was a broker, & on the authority of the landlord distrained on the goods for rent, & the goods were removed to an auction room for sale, & after the landlord's claim & expenses were satisfied the remainder were taken back to the premises & a small surplus in cash was paid to A., notwithstanding a notice by pltf.'s attorney not to do so :—Held: there was no evidence to go to the jury of a conversion, or of money had & received to pltf.'s use.—EVANS v. WRIGHT (1857), 2 H. & N. 527; 27 L. J. Ex. 50; 30 L. T. O. S. 104; 157 E. R. 217.

815. Chattels seized by grantee & left on premises—Landlord paid out by grantee—Whether money recoverable from grantor.]—Pltf. under a bill of sale seized goods on deft.'s premises, & with his knowledge, but without any express request, allowed them to remain there until rent became due. The landlord having distrained them, pltf. paid the rent & expenses :—Held: there was not a compulsory payment by pltf. of a debt of deft., for his benefit or at his implied request.—ENGLAND v. MARSDEN (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 529; Har. & Ruth. 560; 35 L. J. C. P. 259; 14 L. T. 405; 12 Jur. N. S. 706; 14 W. R. 650.

816. — Expiration of tenancy.]—Where, after the seizure, but the contrary. Pending the distress, the goods taken are in the custody of the law, & not liable to seizure under a chattel mtge., so long as no fraud is on foot & no intention or contrivance exists to prejudice the mtgee.—ANDERSON v. HENRY (1898), 29 O. R. 719.—CAN.

q. — Abandonment of—Mortgagee entitled to possession.]—A landlady seized a piano for rent due, but later released possession of the piano, taking a bond providing that she might repossess if the amount claimed for rent, costs, etc., was not paid in a few days. The tenant could not meet the amount when due & arranged to have the bailiff take the piano in storage & hold it until he could pay it all up. The piano was subject to a chattel mtge. to pltf., who brought action to recover possession. Deft. contended that he was holding the piano under the distress warrant :—Held: so soon as the piano, in accordance with the arrangement, was removed from the demised premises, the distress was abandoned, the landlady's lien ceased, & the mtgee. was entitled to possession of the piano.—GOSNELL v. MCTAMNEY (1910), 16 O. W. R. 176.—CAN.

r. — Breach of agreement not to sell or remove goods—Evidence as to goods seized.]—The mtge. contained a proviso, that in case the mtgor. should attempt to sell or part with the possession of or to remove out of the county the goods, or any of them, the mtgee. might take possession of & sell them, etc. The mtgee., claiming under this proviso, brought trover for the goods, which deft. had seized under a distress for rent. It appeared that the goods were seized in Oct. in the house mentioned in the mtge., which had been executed in the previous Aug., & were of the same kind & description as those set out in the mtge. :—Held: sufficient evidence that they were the same goods as those mortgaged.—NATTRASS v. PHAIR (1875), 37 U. C. R. 153.—CAN.

814 i. Chattels sold by landlord—After insufficient distress.]—Pltf. was mtgee. of certain goods of F., a tenant of his father, deft. C. The landlord on Feb. 17, 1883, went to the house of the tenant, & declared that he seized everything for rent. He touched nothing & made no inventory. On Feb. 24 he went again & told the tenant's wife that the property had been seized for rent & to let no one take anything away, when she promised to do her best for him. On Mar. 5 pltf., hearing that the goods were going to be seized for rent, took possession under his mtge. & removed the goods. A bailiff went the next day for taxes in arrear, & the landlord gave him a distress warrant to take goods for rent. The bailiff then took the goods which had been removed, & on the tenant waiving an inventory, advertising, etc., sold them within two days to a nephew of the expiration of a tenancy for years, the holder of a bill of sale of the furniture of the late tenant put & continued a man in possession of the furniture upon the premises under a power in his security :—Held: the landlord was entitled to treat the bill of sale holder as a mere trespasser, & in an action against him by the landlord to restrain him from selling the goods on the premises or continuing in possession, an interlocutory injunction should be granted in those terms.—SMITH v. BROWN (1879), 48 L. J. Ch. 694.

817. — Rent payable in advance—Power of landlord to distrain.]—Defts. let a house to a tenant upon a yearly tenancy under an agreement whereby the rent was reserved "payable quarterly on the usual quarter days, & always if required in advance." The tenant granted a bill of sale of his goods in the house to pltf., who, upon default in payment of the amount secured by the bill of sale, took possession of the goods & fixed a day for their sale. On the morning of the sale, which occurred in the middle of a quarter, defts. demanded of the tenant, under threat of immediate distress, the rent for the current quarter in advance. Pltf., to prevent the sale from being interrupted, paid the rent under protest, & then brought an action to recover it back :—Held: under the above agreement defts. were entitled to demand the quarter's rent in advance at any time during the currency of the quarter, & as in the event of non-payment upon such demand they would in the circumstances have been entitled to distrain immediately, the money paid by pltf. could not be recovered back.—LONDON & WESTMINSTER LOAN & DISCOUNT CO. v. LONDON & NORTH WESTERN RY. CO., [1893] 2 Q. B. 49; 62 L. J. Q. B. 370; 69 L. T. 320; 41 W. R. 670; 37 Sol. Jo. 497; 5 R. 425, D. C.

818. Bill of sale of growing crops—Lease surrendered by grantor—Crops cultivated & reaped by landlord.]—B., the tenant of a farm, by bill of sale made in Sept., 1880, assigned to pltf. his stock-in-trade & effects on the farm, together with all the growing & other crops "which at any time thereafter should be in or about same or any other premises" of B. On Apr. 25, 1881, deft., B.'s the landlord :—Held: the landlord's two visits did not amount to a distress.—WHIMSELL v. GIFFARD (1883), 3 O. R. 1.—CAN.

815 i. Chattels seized by grantee & left on premises—Landlord paid out by grantee—Whether money recoverable from assignee of grantor.]—B., leased certain premises to Y., who assigned the lease to P., & sold to him the goods on the premises subject to a chattel mtge. to pltf. & others. P. gave a chattel mtge. to pltf. & others upon these goods to secure to them the purchase money thereof. On Feb. 1 deft. took possession of the premises under an oral agreement with P. that the latter should assign the lease to him, & it was so assigned on June 4 following. There was no evidence as to what bargain there was between P. & deft. as to the goods, but the goods remained on the premises without the request of deft. Pltf. & his co-mtgees. subsequently took possession of the goods under their chattel mtge., but on the same day before they were removed, the landlord seized them for rent, a portion of which was due before deft. took possession. Upon the promise of pltf. to pay the rent, the landlord withdrew. Pltf. having refused to keep his promise the landlord brought an action against him & compelled payment. Pltf. now sued deft. to recover the amount so paid :—Held: (1) there being no privity of contract or estate between landlord of the farm, distrained for rent, & afterwards agreed with B. to withdraw such distress & to forego all claim for rent on B. agreeing to give up possession & surrender the tenancy to deft. on June 24 then next. Deft. withdrew the distress, & on June 24 he took possession of the farm according to the agreement, & afterwards cultivated the crops which were growing there, & when they arrived at maturity he reaped & sold them. Between the time he withdrew the distress & the time he took possession of the farm, viz., on May 19, deft. had notice for the first time of pltf.'s claim under the bill of sale to the growing crops. The amount of rent which would have been due to deft. had the tenancy continued, & the expenses he incurred in cultivating & reaping the crops, exceeded their market value when sold:—Held: assuming pltf. had a right in equity to such crops as against deft., yet such right was subject to the payment of the rent & of the expenses of cultivating & reaping the crops, & as such rent & expenses exceeded the value of the crops pltf. had not been injured, & had no cause of action against deft.—CLEMENTS v. C. Rates and Taxes.

819. Priority for taxes & rates—Recovery by distress warrant—Not by execution.—1882 Act, s. 14, does not apply where the local authority proceeds to recover the rate in default in the county ct. under Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55), s. 261, & not by distress warrant under s. 256.—WIMBLEDON LOCAL BOARD v. 820. — General district rate.—The general deft. & pltf. & the goods not having been originally placed on the premises, at the tenant's request, & having in fact been in the possession of pltf. when seized, deft. was not bound to protect them against seizure for rent, which he was not shown to have been liable for: (2) pltf.'s payment was voluntary so far as concerned deft., & he could not recover.—HERRING v. t. Chattels bought by landlord at auction—With assent of grantor.—The property in goods, under Distress Act, 1885, s. 4, of the tenant or person in possession who has given a bill of sale over them is a limited property, only "for the purposes of distress," & does not give the tenant a right to deal with them outside the distress. Where, a landlord who has distrained buys such goods at auction with the consent of the tenant, no property in the goods passes, & the mtgee. can maintain trover against the landlord.—MANNING v. JONAS, [1894] 14 N. Z. L. R.

819 i. Priority for taxes—Municipality.—A municipality to which arrears of taxes are owing has no greater rights than any other creditor in the goods of its debtor until it actually levies under legal process against particular goods, & until such levy, it is not one of the class of creditors protected by Bills of Sale Ordinance.—ROYAL TRUST CO. v. CASTOR TOWN, [1917] 3 W. W. R. 586; 37 D. L. R. 277.—CAN.

821 ii. — Reversionary estate in mortgagee.—A mtgee. may maintain an action against a person seizing & selling the property mortgaged, the right of possession of the goods at the time of such sale being rightfully in the mtgor., & the reversionary estate in pltf. as mtgee.—MCLEOD v. MERCER (1856), 6 C. P. 197.—CAN.

D. Wrongdoer.

821. Seizure by third party—Right of possession in grantor—Until default.—A., being indebted to B., by a bill of sale executed bonâ fide, conveyed to him all his stock-in-trade, household furniture, etc., absolutely. The bill of sale, which was under seal, contained a covenant by A. to pay the debt on demand, & a proviso for redemption on payment of the debt & interest on demand, & a further proviso that the assignor should continue in possession until default. The goods having been subsequently, & before any demand made by B., seized by the sheriff under a fi. fa. upon a judgment entered up against A. on a warrant of attorney:—Held: B. had not such a right of immediate possession as to entitle him to maintain trover against the sheriff.—BRADLEY v. COPLEY (1845), 1 C. B. 685; 14 L. J. C. P. 222; 5 L. T. O. S. 198; 9 Jur. 599; 135 E. R. 711.

823. — Right to immediate possession in grantee.—Where goods are assigned as security for an advance of money, upon trust to permit furniture & shop fixtures, sold out to one S., taking a mtge. in security, which was duly filed. S. continued to carry on business, bringing in other goods, till he became involved & absconded, when the sheriff under an attachment seized all the property in the store:—Held: the property being distinguishable, the sheriff was liable for trespass.—BOYS v. SMITH (1859), 8 C. P. 248.—CAN.

823 i. — Right to immediate possession in mortgagee.—B. mortgaged to pltf. certain goods, with a covenant that in case of default in payment, or of B.'s attempting to dispose of the goods, pltf. might take possession & sell or retain them for his own use, but there was no clause authorising B. to remain in possession until default:—Held: pltf. had a sufficient right to possession to maintain trespass against the sheriff seizing under a fi. fa. against B., the jury having found the mtge. to be bonâ fide.—PORTER v. FLINTOFF (1857), 6 C. P. 335.—CAN.

the assignor to remain in possession of them until default in payment at the time stipulated, & upon further trust to sell them upon such default being made, the assignee has a sufficient possession to enable him to maintain trespass against a wrongdoer.

Such an assignment, though void as against creditors, is good as between the parties, & as between either party & a stranger; & a bailiff of which contained no redemise clause. F. was a mtgee. of Y.'s land, on which these goods were situate, under a mtge. purporting to be made in pursuance of Short Forms Act. This mtge. contained an attornment clause, the statutory power to distrain for arrears of interest & an express power to distrain for arrears of principal, but no redemise clause, & was not executed by F. F. distrained for both principal & interest.—Held: (1) there was a valid distress prior to the registration of M.'s chattel mtge.; (2) the distress for overdue principal was only valid in so far as it caught goods which were the property of Y., but the goods comprised in M.'s chattel mtge. had, at the time of distress, become the property of M. & so could not be distrained upon by F.—McDERMOTT v. FRASER (1915), 8 W. W. R. 196; 23 D. L. R. 430; 25 Man. L. R. 298.—CAN.

823 iv. ——— Symbolic delivery.]—Pltf. brought replevin against deft., a sheriff, for goods taken on execution, but claimed by pltf. under a registered bill of sale from the party against whom the execution issued, & who was suffered to remain in possession:—Held: pltf., who had had a symbolic delivery, & had a right to immediate possession, had sufficient possession to maintain the action.—McNAB v. SAWYER (1872), 9 N. S. R. 38.—CAN.

823 v. ——— Bill covering after-acquired property.]—Defts. sold a quantity of goods to H. who, previous to receiving delivery, made a bill of sale to pltf., covering after-acquired property. Pltf., after the goods had been delivered, went into possession. The goods were removed by one of defts. without the knowledge of his partner:—Held: both defts. were liable for the wrongful removal.—SHATFORD v. NELSON (1888), 20 N. S. R. (8 R. & G.) 323; 9 C. L. T. 62.—CAN.

823 vi. ——— Damages.]—A mtgee. under a mtge. by a firm, having taken possession of goods, they were seized by the sheriff, under an attachment against one of the partners as an absconding debtor, & afterwards delivered by the sheriff to the assignee in insolvency of such partner:—Held: (1) the sheriff had no right, either as representing the attaching creditor or the assignee in insolvency of one of the partners, to take the goods out of the possession of the mtgee.; (2) he was liable for the full amount of pltf.'s interest in them, his having handed them over to the assignee could form no ground for reducing the damages.—PATERSON v. MAUGHAN (1876), 39 U. C. R. 371.—CAN.

823 vii. ——— Right of mortgagee to repayment.]—Held: (1) goods & chattels in the possession of a mtgee. of them cannot be seized & sold, & the proceeds paid over to a sheriff acting under a writ of attachment in insolvency against the mtgor.; (2) the possession of deft., to whom such goods had been sent by pltf., the mtgee., to be sold, & their proceeds paid over to him, was the possession of the mtgee., & deft. having assented to the seizure by the sheriff, & acting under his directions, sold the goods & paid over the proceeds, was liable to repay them to the mtgee.—WATSON v. HENDERSON (1876), 25 C. P. 562.—CAN.

823 viii. ——— Possession taken by grantees.]—Pltfs. in pursuance of a previous agreement, purchased the business, plant, & stock-in-trade of L. Brothers, subject to their debts & liabilities. One of these was a loan of $4,000 from defts. secured by a chattel mtge. of all the plant & stock-in-trade of L. Brothers. This chattel mtge. contained a provision that it should cover all after-acquired goods & chattels brought upon the premises owned or occupied by pltfs. or used in connection with their business during the currency of the mtge. Pltfs. had been incorporated as a co. prior to the date of the chattel mtge., & L. Brothers were the principal promoters & became the president & vice-president respectively, being in fact the controlling shareholders. $2,104.64 of the money lent by defts. to L. Brothers was handed over to pltfs., & by them applied towards payment of the debts of L. Brothers. Pltfs. paid on instalment of the interest due to defts. on the $4,000 loan:—Held: (1) the provision in the chattel mtge. as after-acquired goods was as binding upon pltfs. as purchasers of the mortgaged property with notice of it as it would be upon the exors. or administrators of the mtgors., & defts. had a good valid lien & charge upon all after-acquired goods brought upon the premises in question by pltfs.; (2) pltfs. were, in the circumstances, estopped from disputing such lien & charge; (3) the mtge. was not void as to the after-acquired goods because of the generality & vagueness of the description.—*IMPERIAL BREWERS, LTD. v. 823 ix. ——— Order for re-delivery.]—A mtgee. having taken possession, as he alleged, under the mtge., the sheriff seized the property under an execution against the mtgor., & the mtgee. then applied for an order, to have it delivered up to him again:—Held: there was no power to make such order.—SMITH v. COBBOURG & PETERBOROUGH RY. CO. (1859), 3 P. R. 113.—CAN.

a. ——— After assignment of mortgage—Goods in possession of assignee.]—M. sold goods to P., & took a mtge. on them for the price, together with P.'s note. Afterwards, M., who was then insolvent, assigned the mtge. to F., & F.'s agent received possession of the goods, most of which had been originally purchased by M. from F., & were still unpaid for. The goods having been seized under an execution against M.:—Held: (1) the assignment of the mtge. to F. was void under 22 Vict. c. 96; (2) M., as mtgee., had no interest which could be sold under execution, & F., having possession, was entitled to hold the goods as against the execution creditor.—*FERRIE v. d. ——— ———.]—The grantor of a bill of sale under Bills of Sale Act, 1885, failed to pay the money secured by it on the due date. There was no registration of & extension or renewal of the bill of sale:—Held: notwithstanding the non-registration of an extension or renewal, the bill of sale was not void under s. 29 of the Act as against an execution creditor who had seized the goods comprised in the bill of sale.—HISLOP v. JUDGE, [1887] 21 S. A. L. R. 16.—AUS.

f. ——— Mortgagee becoming execution creditor.]—Certain goods of deft. seized by a sheriff under pltf.'s execution were claimed by a chattel mtgee., whereupon an interpleader issue was directed. The goods were sold under the interpleader order by the sheriff, who deducted his fees from the proceeds, & by consent retained the residue in his hands pending the result of the issue, entering it in his books as held under Creditors' Relief Act. Claimant never delivered any issue, & abandoned the interpleader proceedings. He obtained judgment against deft., & within thirty days of the entry in the sheriff's books, placed an execution in the sheriff's hands:—Held: claimant was entitled to participate in the proceeds, & was not barred of his rights as an execution creditor because, before he had attained that status, he had asserted a right in a different capacity.—WAIT v. SACER (1891), 14 P. R. 347.—CAN.

g. ——— Injunction to restrain sale—When granted.]—An injunction at the suit of a mtgee. of chattels, against a judgment creditor of the mtgor., to prevent a sale, will not be granted, the rule being universal that the ct. will protect the specific possession of chattels only in case they are of peculiar value.—*GEDDES v. 824. Insurance money—Bill containing covenant to insure—No provision for application of money.]—Defts. assigned machinery by bill of sale to secure a sum of money advanced by pltf. The deed contained a covenant to insure, but no provision for the application of the policy money in case of fire in liquidation of the mtge. debt. The machinery was burnt, & defts. became bkpts. :—Held: pltf. had no claim to the benefit of the policy as against defts.—LEES v. WHITELEY (1866), month by an application to amend. On Oct. 3, 1868, J. gave pltf. a chattel mtge., which was registered Oct. 6, payable a year after date. J., with pltf.'s consent, continued his business, & had sold a large part of the chattels when pltf., in Jan., 1869, came to take possession. Thereupon the sheriff, whose previous action under the fl. fa., if any, did not appear, but who had no authority for the delay, seized & sold the remaining goods, when pltf. brought trover against him, pltf., & deft. In the execution, & another who had joined in indemnifying the sheriff, contending that the delay in executing the fl. fa. gave his chattel mtge. priority. The jury gave a verdict for $1,510 against the sheriff, & in favour of all the other defts. :—Held: the verdict being inconsistent with the facts, & exorbitant, should be set aside.—McGIVERN v. McCAUSLAND (1869), 19 C. P. 460.—CAN.

n. — Right of mortgagor to sue for.]—In an action against a bailiff for selling under execution a horse which pltf. claimed to be exempt, it appeared that at the time of the seizure & sale the horse was included in a chattel mtge. given by pltf. to M. :—Held: deft. could not set up the right of the mtgee. as a defence.—McMARTIN v. HURLBURT (1877), 2 A. R. 146.—CAN.

o. — — —.]—In an action by the assignee of the insolvent mtgors., to restrain a sale of the mortgaged goods seized by the sheriff under execution :—Held: the sheriff could set up the rights of the mtgee. in answer to the action.—ANDERSON v. GLASS (1888), 16 O. R. 592.—CAN.

p. — — —.]—Deft. as sheriff under an execution against A., the father of pltf. seized a horse, which pltf. claimed, & which he also alleged belonged to B. by virtue of a bill of sale to the latter :—Held: the bill of sale was an answer to pltf.'s case.—STEWART v. GATES (1881), 2 P. E. I. 432.—CAN.

q. — — — Administratrix of first mortgagee.]—Pltf. mortgaged his goods to A., of whom deft. was administratrix. The goods came into the possession of deft., but under what circumstances did not appear. The mtge. contained an agreement that on default the mtgee. might take possession, & a statement that delivery of possession was given at the time of executing the mtge. There was no evidence that the mtge. money had been paid. Pltf. afterwards executed three other mtges. of the same goods to other parties, each containing a similar agreement as to default, & a similar statement as to delivery of possession :—Held: pltf. could not recover either in trover or detinue, & deft. might, as against him, set up the right of the other mtgees.—RUTTAN v. BEAMISH (1860), 10 C. P. 90.—CAN.

r. — Waiver of claim by mortgagee.]—Where a sheriff seizes goods under writs of execution, & a mtgee. lays claim to them under a chattel mtge., the fact that he subsequently directs the sheriff to sell under the executions does not necessarily amount to a waiver of his claim under the mtge.—*SEGSWORTH v. PLATING CO. (1882), 3 O. R. 413.—CAN.

s. — Subsequent sale—Measure of damages.]—A chattel mtge. to secure a debt was made to a nominee of the creditor, as trustee for him. In an action by an assignee of the mtge. against the assignee for the general benefit of creditors of the mtgor., for conversion of the mortgaged chattels, it appeared that at the time the goods were taken by deft. out of pltf.'s possession, they were in the hands of the bailiff of the latter for sale under the power contained in the mtge., & when deft. intervened & sold as assignee, the same bailiff conducted the sale, & the amount realised was the same as would have resulted from a sale under the power :—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover as damages for the conversion no more & no less than was realised by the sale.—LIGHT v. HAWLEY (1897), 29 O. R. 25.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 5.

824 i. Insurance money—Chattel mortgage containing covenant to insure—For benefit of mortgagee.]—Promissory notes for the purchase money of goods were secured by a chattel mtge. given on behalf of the purchasers containing a covenant to insure for the benefit of the mtgee., who discounted the notes with pltf. & assigned the chattel mtge. but did not transfer the insurance to them, the loss under which was payable to himself. The policy was afterwards renewed by the purchasers' firm, but it did not appear that the renewal was assigned to the mtgee., or the loss made payable to him. Subsequently a fire occurred & the purchasers' firm assigned the insurance money to pltf., with whom they kept an account, as security for their general indebtedness, & pltf. received & applied it on the notes above mentioned, but afterwards sought to apply it in payment of other indebtedness of the purchasers :—Held: pltf. were bound to apply the insurance money, for the benefit of the mtgee.—WESTERN BANK v. COURTEMANCHE (1896), 27 O. R. 213.—CAN.

824 ii. — Covenant to insure in name of mortgagee—Lien on policy.]—F. & G. insured machinery with defts. Subsequently they added new machinery, mortgaged it, & covenanted to insure the whole in the mtgees.' names in other offices. Insurances in other offices were effected in the names of the mtgees., & the insurance with defts. was noticed & kept alive, but remained in the names of F. & G. The latter became bkpt., & after loss, the official assignee transferred defts.' insurance to the mtgees. without any expressed consideration :—Semble: the mtgees. had a lien on the policy under their bill of sale.—*HOLMES & BELL v. 824 iii. — Amount recoverable—Subsequent advances.]—Where the mtge. was under seal, & the mtgee. insured before default :—Held: he was not entitled to recover on his policy more than the amount appearing on the face of his mtge. at the time of insurance, not being allowed to tack subsequent advances by parol.—*OGDEN v. c. — — —.]—D. held a mtge. with a power to sell upon default, the mtgor. still to be responsible for any balance. Upon default he sold & repurchased some of the goods, which he subsequently exchanged for land. Upon an action for the balance over the amount realised by the original sale, deft. contended that pltf. must be considered a trustee for him in the repurchase, & having sold at an advance must account for the balance :—Held: to obtain relief, application must be made to equity.—ANNES v. DORNAN (1860), 10 C. P. 299.—CAN.

d. — — —.]—Held: as pltf.'s claim was more than paid by a sale of part of the chattels replevied, deft. was entitled, upon her counterclaim, to a refund of the excess & to a return of the unsold chattels, but not to damages.—LAMONT v. OLSON (1911), 18 W. L. R. 200.—CAN.

f. — Mortgage given by partners—Subsequent mortgage by one partner after dissolution.]—M. & C., while carrying on business as partners, gave a chattel mtge. to pltf. as security for goods supplied to them. Subsequently M. retired, leaving the assets of the firm in the hands of C., who gave a further chattel mtge. to pltf., covering the goods included in the former mtge. as well as goods supplied to C. personally after M.'s retirement.

Pltf. seized & sold the articles comprised in both mtges. & credited the whole of the net proceeds to the separate account of C., instead of applying the proceeds of the sale of the goods covered by the first mtge. to the payment of the indebtedness of the firm :—Held: defts. were entitled to have the proceeds of the sale of the goods covered by the first mtge. applied in reduction of the debt for which it was given.—*FISHER v. g. — Bankruptcy of mortgagor—Proceeds less than amount due to mortgagee.]—M. made a bill of sale of personal property, dated July 5, 1876, conditioned for payment of $400 on July 5, 1877, & became insolvent on Apr. 24, 1877. On June 8, 1877, to avoid leaving the property on the premises liable to be distrained for rent, which accrued due on June 12, the insolvent's assignee & the holder of the bill of sale, after each advertising a sale of the property to which the other objected, agreed that it should be sold, reserving the proceeds for the

826. Repayment—Execution paid out—By grantee of unregistered bill.]—The goods of debtor having been seized in execution, & a man left in possession, the holder of an unregistered bill of sale over them paid the debt & costs & took possession himself. On the same day, & before he did so, debtor was adjudicated bkpt.:—Held: the holder was entitled to be paid out of the proceeds of the goods, the amount of the executions, which were good against the trustee.—*Re COLE, Ex p. k. Agreement to give mortgage—Enforcement of, against assignee for benefit of creditors.]—An assignee for the general benefit of creditors is, by virtue of 55 Vict. c. 26, s. 2, entitled to take advantage of irregularities or defects in a chattel mtge. made by the assignor in the same extent as an execution creditor, where such mtge. is by reason of such defect "void against creditors." As against an assignee for benefit of creditors an oral agreement, of which he has notice, by the assignor to give to an indorser a chattel mtge. to secure him against liability, will be enforced.—KERRY v. JAMES (1894), 21 A. R. 338.—CAN.

l. — Mortgage subsequently executed—Right to rely on agreement.]—Where an agreement to give a chattel mtge. is duly made & registered under R. S. O. (c. 148), s. 11, & subsequently a mtge. is made & registered, the giving of such mtge., whereby the legal estate becomes vested in the mtgee., does not revest in debtor the equitable title which the mtgee. had by virtue of the agreement, but it continues to exist as before, & the mtgee. is enabled to rely on it where the legal mtge. is ineffectual for any purpose.—FISHER v. BRADSHAW (1902), 22 O. L. T. Occ. N. 281; 4 O. L. R. 162; 1 O. W. R. 282.—CAN.

m. Covenant to pay sum found due on settlement—Refusal to come to settlement.]—Deft. executed a chattel mtge. to pltf., reciting that he was indebted to them in a large sum of money, the amount whereof had not been ascertained by settlement of accounts between them. The proviso was, that if deft. should pay to pltf. such sum as should be found due on a settlement between them, the instrument should be void; & deft. covenanted to pay to pltf. the said sum of money so to be found due as aforesaid. In an action on this instrument, pltf. alleged in one count that deft. was at the date of the deed indebted to them in $1,000, which would have been found due on a settlement, but that deft., though requested, would not come to a settlement, nor pay the said sum. In another count it was alleged that deft. was indebted to pltf. in $1,000 for goods sold, etc., & deft. by deed acknowledged such indebtedness; & by reason of the non-payment an action had accrued to pltf. to demand the same:—Held: pltf. were entitled to maintain the action.—GATLAND v. McDONALD (1877), 41 U. C. R. 573.—CAN.

n. Liability for wrongful acts of mortgagor—Mortgagee not in possession.]—A mtgee. who has not taken actual possession, is not liable in trespass for an injury occasioned by the goods mortgaged.

M. & Co. having wrongfully placed a quantity of stone on pltf.'s land, afterwards mortgaged it with other property to deft. Default had been made in payment, but deft. had not taken possession, or interfered in any way with the stone; when asked to remove it, however, he had refused, & forbade pltf. doing so himself:—Held: as mtgee. he was not liable to pltf. in trespass for allowing the stone to remain.—CAMPBELL v. REID (1857), 14 U. C. R. 305.—CAN.

o. Mortgagee in possession adding stock to business—After default—Satisfaction of mortgage—Appointment of receiver.]—Pltf., carrying on the business of a druggist, mortgaged his stock-in-trade to deft., the instrument stipulating that deft. should take possession of the stock & premises, to hold for four months in order to secure repayment of money advanced, & power was given to the mtgee. to add new stock so as to keep up the business. Default was made in payment, & thereafter a large amount of stock was added, some of the money being expended by deft. with the assent of pltf.; other money being part of the profits of the business was thus re-invested in new stock; some of the old stock remaining in specie. The matter was referred to the master at Belleville, to take the accounts of the dealings between the parties. Before the master made his report, pltf. applied on petition for the appointment of a receiver, on the ground that the mtge. had been paid in full:—Held: (1) as the new stock belonged to the mtgee. himself & pltf. could therefore have no claim upon it, & as the master had not yet found which party was indebted to the other, his finding would not be anticipated by the appointment of a receiver; (2) although notice of an act of bkpcy. committed by the mtgor., upon which he was afterwards adjudicated a bkpt. The money secured by the deed consisted in parts of a sum paid by the mtgee. in discharge of the claim of the holder of two prior registered bills of sale executed before the act of bkpcy. was committed. The old bills of sale were not transferred to the new mtgee., & satisfaction of them was entered up. The new bill of sale was registered:—Held: the new bill of sale was valid as against the trustee in the bkpcy. to the extent of the sum paid to the prior mtgee.—Re JAMES, Ex p. HARRIS (1874), L. 828. — Distress paid off—To relieve cattle lent by third party.]—A distress for rent was levied upon certain property, & cattle lent for hire by pltf. to the tenant were seized. Deft., the holder of a bill of sale upon the goods & chattels of the tenant, then paid off the distress, & seized the cattle under his bill of sale. In an action for trover & wrongful conversion:—Held: deft. was not entitled to set off & counterclaim the amount deft.'s right on default was to sell the original stock en bloc after notice, still deft. was at liberty to add further capital & stock to the business, but not to the prejudice of the mtgor. so as to improve him out of his estate, & so long as pltf. chose to allow the business to go on under deft.'s control, he had the right so to conduct it, subject to being called on to account.—*FOSTER v. p. Mortgage over unregistered ferry boat—Boat subsequently registered under new name—Title of mortgagee.]—Deft. being owner of an unregistered ferry boat, gave pltf. a bill of sale of it, by way of mtge. q. Sale under principal security—Whether balance recoverable on collateral mortgage.]—Chattel mtges. were given as collateral to promissory notes given for goods sold by pltf. to deft. Under a condition in the notes pltf. seized & sold the goods & sought to recover upon the mtge. the balance due on the notes:—Held: in the absence of any proviso in the notes permitting pltf. to recover from deft. the balance due after a sale, the sale had put an end to the original agreement, & as pltf. had no right to recover on the notes they had no right of action on the collateral security.—*MASSEY-HARRIS v. r. Recovery of money paid under mistake of fact—Payment by grantee for goods not ordered.]—Deft. sold by a bill of sale to pltf. his goodwill, lease, & certain druggist's stock thereafter to be selected, to the amount of $5,700. P. selected the stock from the stock list for pltf., who paid the $5,700, & by some oversight, a lot of lamp cleaners, of the value of $173, were charged & paid for as part of the $5,700, which, as the jury found, neither P. nor pltf. had ever chosen or accepted. Deft. having refused on application to take away these lamp cleaners or repay the $173:—Held: notwithstanding the bill of sale, pltf. was entitled to recover back the $173 as money paid under a mistake of fact, & without consideration.—*MINGAYE v. In 1874 B.'s exors., without A.'s concurrence, executed a deed of transfer to C. In Nov., 1876, C. took possession, & in the following Dec. A. was adjudicated bkpt. :—Held: the transfer to C. was not within 1854 Act, & did not require registration.—Re SHAW, Ex p. SHAW (1877), 46 L. J. Bcy. 114; 36 L. T. 805; 25 W. R. 686.

831. ——— Debt reduced before transfer.]—A bill of sale of goods, which was duly registered, was given to secure £500 with interest, part of which was at a subsequent date paid off. A deed was afterwards made between the two parties to the bill of sale & pltf., whereby the security was transferred & the goods assigned to him, on his paying off the amount remaining due on the bill of sale & making a further advance to the grantor, the whole amount secured by the deed being £501 15s. 9d., with interest, & the rate of interest & the times of payment being different from those of the former deed :—Held: whether or not the deed was an effectual security, without registration, for the fresh advance, it was, as to the amount which remained due on the former bill of sale, a transfer & valid to that extent without registration, so as to entitle pltf. to the goods.—*HORNE v. 832. ——— Assignment of debt—& of licence to seize.]—An agreement for the hire, & ultimate purchase by the hirer, of specified articles of furniture, provided that, on payment by the hirer of an agreed price, which was to be paid in a fixed number of periodical instalments, the articles should become his property, but that, until the agreed price had been fully paid, they should remain the property of the lender. It was further provided that, if default should be made in the punctual payment of the hire, the lender might immediately enter upon the dwelling-house of the hirer & take possession of, & remove & sell the goods. During the currency of the agreement the lender assigned all his right & interest under the agreement to a person who had lent him money, as security for the advance, authorising him, if default should be made in repayment of the loan as agreed, to exercise all the powers contained in the hiring agreement, until the balance due to him should have been repaid :—Held: (1) the licence to enter & take possession of the goods was not capable of being assigned; (2) the assignment of the instalments which accrued due under the hiring agreement after the commencement of the bkpcy. of the assignor was valid as against the trustee in bkpcy.—*Re DAVIS & Co., Ex p. 833. ——— Securities not expressly assigned.]—P. executed a voluntary settlement, by which he assigned certain personal property, including four debts which were due to him on the security of bills of sale, to trustees, with power to sue for the debts, upon trust to sell & convert into money the trust premises & execute & do such assurances & things as should be expedient, & to apply the proceeds for the benefit of his wife & other relatives. He made no express assignment of the securities for the debts, nor did he give them up to the trustees. The settlor afterwards received payment of the four debts & died intestate. In an action for the administration of his estate & of the trusts of the settlement :—Held: the debts were completely assigned by the voluntary settlement, & the trustees were entitled to prove as creditors against the estate of intestate in respect of the debts received by him.—*Re PATRICK, BILLS v. same day a written agreement was entered into between C. & W. for the letting of the same furniture, specified in a schedule, by C. to W. for two months for £170, to be paid by W. to C. on Sept. 18, or such other time as might be agreed on. In Aug. W. repaid C. £50, part of the £170. The balance of £120 was not paid when it became due on Sept. 18, & C. sent H. to take possession of the goods. Possession was taken, & it was then arranged that H. should pay the £120 to C. C. signed a receipt, indorsed on the hiring agreement of July 18 & dated Sept. 22, for the £120 as "for the absolute sale" to H. of "the goods therein specified," & on the same day an agreement, similar to that of July 18, was entered into between H. & W. for the letting of the furniture to W. for three months at a rent of £145, to be paid in three instalments in Oct., Nov., & Dec. The Oct. instalment was not paid when it became due, & on Nov. 6 H. took formal possession of the goods. The goods remained in the apparent possession of W. until after he had committed an act of bkpcy., on which he was ultimately adjudicated a bkpt. None of the documents were registered:—Held: whether the transaction in Sept. was a transfer to H. of C.'s interest as a mtgee. or an entirely new transaction, H. could stand in no better position than C. did, & the trustee in the bkpcy. was entitled to the goods.—*Re WALDEN, Ex p. 836. Title through holder of unregistered bill.]

—The goods of an execution debtor were assigned by the sheriff by inventory & receipt to O., who assigned them in trust for the separate use of the execution debtor's wife, with power to the trustee to sell. Both assignments were unregistered. The wife granted a bill of sale in her own name, 836 i. Title through holder of unregistered bill.]—An execution debtor made a post-nuptial settlement of chattel property, with a trust for sale on his own request. The trustee of the settlement, by the direction of the execution debtor & his wife, assigned the property included in the settlement to pltf. for valuable consideration. Neither the settlement nor the subsequent assignment was registered under Bills of Sale Registration Act, 1856. The execution debtor was at the time of seizure under the fi. facias issued by the judgment creditor, in apparent possession of the goods, but the trustee of the settlement was in actual possession, as agent for the assignee for valuable consideration:—Held: (1) the execution debtor was the person "by whom or of whose goods" the settlement was executed; (2) were it not for the intermediate assignment the execution creditor could have seized the goods as the goods of debtor for non-registration of the settlement; (3) the assignment for value did not defeat the execution creditor's right, as the assignee's title depended upon the settlement, & that even if the settlement was a sham, the settlement was good as against the settlor & not defeasible by a subsequent sale by him. —WALKER v. CLEVE, Mac. 107.—N.Z.

a. Necessity for notice of assignment—Before demand by assignee.]—A. gave B. a bill of sale of a pair of oxen to secure a debt, with a condition that A. should keep possession of the oxen, but if he undertook to sell them, or allowed them to be taken in execution, the bill of sale was to be absolute. A. afterwards sold the oxen to deft., & B. assigned his interest under the bill of sale to pltf., who demanded the oxen of deft. without informing him of the assignment of the bill of sale:—Held: deft.'s refusal to give up the oxen was no conversion as against pltf.—SHARP v. LAWRENCE (1865), N. B. Dig. 768 (23).—CAN.

b. Assignment subject to equities.]—Pltf. gave a chattel mtge. to H. to secure certain money, with a proviso enabling the mtgee. to take possession & sell in case the goods should be taken in execution by any creditor of the mtgor. The goods were so taken, & deft., to whom the mtge. had been assigned by H., took possession & sold under it, for which pltf. sued, alleging which was duly registered by the grantee. The goods remained throughout in the possession of the execution creditor:—Held (GROVE, J., LOPES, J., diss.): the want of registration of the two first assignments invalidated the title of the grantee of the third assignment, the holder of the registered bill of sale.—CHAPMAN v. KNIGHT (1880), 5 C. P. D. 308; 49 L. J. Q. B. 425; 42 L. T. 538; 44 J. P. 491; 28 W. R. 919.

837. — No person entitled to avoid bill when title acquired—Absolute sale—Bill by purchaser registered.]—In 1873 S. executed a bill of sale of furniture to resp. to secure a loan, with an absolute unconditional power to take possession & sell in case of default of payment upon demand. The bill was duly registered, but never re-registered. In 1883 resp., in order to protect the furniture from S.'s creditors, demanded payment, & on default took possession of the furniture & sold it to C., giving him a receipt for the purchase-money though no money actually passed. At the same time C., not being able to pay, executed a bill of sale of the furniture to resp. to secure the purchase-money. The bill was duly registered, but the receipt was not registered. The transaction with C. was found by the jury to be a bona fide one. The furniture having been afterwards seized under a fi. fa. against S.:—Held: the sale to C. being an absolute & bona fide transfer of the property, the bill of 1873 was spent & satisfied, & 1854, 1866, 1878, & 1882 Acts had no application whatever to it at the time of the execution, whether the furniture was or was not at that time in the apparent possession of S., & resp. was entitled to the furniture.—*COOKSON v. 838. — Assignment by original grantee registered.]—The grantee of goods under an absolute bill of sale assigned the goods by a duly registered bill of sale. At the date of the second bill of sale the first was unregistered:—Held: the second bill of sale conveyed a title valid against all who became execution creditors of the grantor of the first bill of sale after the date of the second.—

that H. verbally agreed to pay these executions, which were made part of the money secured:—Held: deft., as assignee, took subject to such agreement, though without notice of it.—MARTIN v. BEARMAN (1880), 45 U. C. R. 205.—CAN.

c. Assignment after default—Liability of grantee to deliver possession.]—By a bill of sale certain chattels were expressed to be bargained, sold, & delivered to the grantee, subject to a proviso for redemption, but without any stipulation that the grantor might retain possession until default. The grantee after default assigned this security to pltf. by a deed which, reciting that the grantor had bargained, sold, & delivered the chattels to the grantee, assigned to pltf. the chattels comprised in the bill of sale, to hold them for his own benefit as fully as the grantee himself might have held them, subject to the proviso for redemption:—Held: the assignment constituted a sale of the chattels, absolute on default being made by the grantor of the bill of sale, & after such default the grantee was liable to deliver actual possession of the chattels to pltf.

839. — Bill by original grantee not registered.]—In 1903 G., the owner of furniture in a house occupied by him, sold the furniture to a limited co. by an agreement which was not registered as a bill of sale. In 1904 the co. sold the furniture to G.'s mother by a document which was not registered. In 1905 the furniture, which had during the whole time remained in the apparent possession of G., was seized in execution under a judgment obtained against him. His mother having claimed the furniture:—Held: as claimant could show neither a registered title, nor that she had taken possession so as to render registration unnecessary, her title could not prevail against that of the execution creditor.—HOPKINS v. GUDGEON, [1906] 1 K. B. 690; 75 L. J. K. B. 452; 94 L. T. 578; 54 W. R. 419; 50 Sol. Jo. 311; 13 Mans. 363, D. C.

840. Assignment by holder of one bill—Assignor paid off—Goods claimed by holder of another bill.]—A. mortgaged furniture to B. with power of sale on default, & after that mortgaged the same furniture to C. by a second bill of sale. B. entered into possession of the goods on A.'s default in payment, & left his servant in possession. D., without notice of the second bill of sale, agreed with A. to purchase the goods, & B.'s servant delivered possession of them to D. D. then paid the balance due to B., & B. then delivered to D. his bill of sale, & gave him a receipt which purported to sell & assign the goods to D.:—Held: D. had no title to the goods as against C. Semble: if a purchaser buys of the grantor of goods his rights, if any, & then pays off the grantee & takes an assignment of the grantee's interest, he thereby acquires no right to the goods even to the extent of the money paid by him to the grantee, but the whole transaction enures to the benefit of a subsequent incumbrancer.—COOPER v. BRAHAM (1867), 15 L. T. 610.

841. Bill registered at date of transfer—Failure to re-register after five years.]—Held: 1866 Act, s. 4, which required the registration of a bill of sale under 1854 Act to be renewed every five years, in default of which the registration ceased to have

though he had never had it himself.—PERTIT v. WALKER (1882), 8 V. L. R. 72.—AUS.

d. Transfer to bank—Liability for balance due—Mortgage given before insolvency.]—Shortly before G.'s assignment for benefit of his creditors, his bookkeeper transferred to the bank a chattel mtge. given him by G. to secure payment of $800. The assignee in bkpy. was ordered to pay the bank the balance due on the mtge.:—Held: (1) the assignee was not liable to repay the money; (2) the mtge. was not given to secure advances & did not give the bank a first lien on the property; (3) the bank was in the same position as if it had received the mtge. directly from G. when he was notoriously insolvent.—HOUSTON v. MERCHANTS BANK OF HALIFAX (1901), 31 S. C. R. 361.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 4.

842 i. Entry of satisfaction—Jurisdiction of court.]—The jurisdiction to enter a memorandum of satisfaction upon a bill of sale, under 17 & 18 Vict. c. 55, s. 6, is peculiar to the Ct. of Q. B., & a judge of another ct., sitting in the Consolidated Chamber, cannot exercise it.—MARCHBANKS v. FLEMING

(1858), 8 I. C. L. R. App. XXIX.—IR.

842 ii. — Form & contents of affidavit.]—To obtain a judge's order to enter up a memorandum of satisfaction of a bill of sale, the affidavit should conclusively show that the debt has been discharged, & the words of the statute should be followed.—Ex p. CAVE (1857), 9 Ir. Jur. 310.—IR.

843 i. Failure to enter satisfaction—Though bill satisfied—Rights of subsequent mortgagee.]—A grantor had given a prior registered bill of sale to another grantee, which had been paid off, but no memorandum of satisfaction had been entered:—Held: the outstanding bill of sale could not be set up as against claimant.—SMITH v. WHITE (1869), 5 I. L. T. 74.—IR.

844 i. What amounts to satisfaction—Discharge of bankrupt grantor—Release in deed of assignment—Grantee party to deed.]—On Apr. 2, 1891, M. gave a leasehold mtge. to debt., & a bill of any effect, was equally imperative when the grantee, before the period for renewal, assigned his interest under the bill of sale to a third person, & the assignee, if the registration was not renewed, had no title as against an execution creditor.—KARET v. 843. Failure to enter satisfaction—Though bill satisfied—Rights of execution creditor.]—The goods of debtor being seized under an execution, A. set up a claim to them under a bill of sale to secure repayment to him of a sum of money lent to debtor. Under the power given to A. by the bill of sale to sell the goods, & out of the proceeds to reimburse himself and pay the surplus to debtor, A. had sold sufficient to repay the amount of his original loan, & the amount of a distress levied on the farm of debtor & of rent due by him, but A. had not been repaid a further sum advanced by him subsequent to the execution to pay a quarter's rent of the farm falling due on the day after the date of the execution:—Held: A. had paid the last-mentioned sum of his own wrong, and could not, after the bill of sale had been actually satisfied, set up the bare legal property vested in him by it, as against the execution creditor.—WATERTON v. BAKER (1868), 17 L. T. 494.

sale of personal property to secure the payment of $500 & $1,500 respectively. On May 18 following, M. executed a deed of assignment to debt., as party thereto of the second part, for the benefit of her creditors, being parties of the third part. A condition in the deed stipulated that the parties of the second & third parts, in consideration of the sum of one dollar to each of them paid, "did severally remise, release, & discharge the party of the first part from & against all debts, dues claims & demands, actions, suits, damages, & causes & rights of action which they then had or might thereafter have against the party of the first part, for or by reason of any other matter or thing from the beginning of the world up to that date." Debt. & a number of creditors executed the deed. The assignor was not indebted to debt. in any other amount than that secured by the mtge. & bill of sale. In his evidence debt. stated that he executed the deed solely as trustee:—Held: debt. had discharged the mtge. & bill of sale, & it was immaterial that he had no intention of doing so, or that he was ignorant of the legal effect of his act.—MAY v. SLEEVWRIGHT (1893), N. B. Dig. 314 (36).—CAN.

Sect. 4.—Satisfaction and surrender.]

& that the goods were not pltf.'s. By deed of Aug. 18, 1868, executed between pltf. & H., pltf., in consideration of a loan of £200, & for securing payment thereof & interest, assigned to H. all & singular the household furniture, stock-in-trade, goods, chattels, effects, & things which were then or which might during the continuance of the security, by substitution or otherwise, be in & about or belonging to the messuage & premises then occupied by pltf., or in or about any other place or places that same might then or at any future time or times be removed to or placed or deposited in, to hold to H., his exors., administrators, & assigns, as their own property, subject to the proviso for redemption hereinafter contained. The deed provided that in certain events it should be lawful for H. to enter upon any messuage, etc., upon which the property thereinbefore mentioned & thereby assigned, or any part thereof, should be placed or deposited, & to take & remove & sell same, provided that until default should be made upon demand, or until any event as aforesaid should happen, it should be lawful for pltf. to hold possession & enjoy the effects thereinbefore assigned, & pltf. covenanted & agreed that he would, on demand as aforesaid, well & truly pay unto H. the £200 together with interest at 8 per cent. per annum. In Apr., 1869, deft. offered to advance pltf. the £200 at 5 per cent., & deft. paid H. off, & by a deed between H. & deft. of Apr. 26, 1869, in consideration of £200 & interest advanced by deft. H. assigned the premises assigned by the deed of Aug. 18, 1868, & all securities for same, with power to deft. in the name of H. to sue for, receive & give receipts for the premises, subject to the existing equity of redemption under the deed of 1868. By an agreement, in writing of the same date, between pltf. & deft., reciting the deed of 1868, & the deed of Apr., 1869, pltf. agreed to hire the goods, etc., of deft. & to pay deft. £6 5s. per month "until the £200 interest & expenses are paid, or to pay it off whenever he finds he can do so, with the interest then due, & at which time deft. agrees to give up all claim to the goods, chattels, & effects, etc., & that same shall then become the property of pltf.; but upon default being made in payment of the £6 5s., or any part thereof, [def.] agrees that in case of any default to give pltf. a fortnight's notice of his instalment then due, & [pltf.] agrees that all money paid before such default shall be applied by deft. in part payment of the £200 & interest then due, & to the goods, etc., & to which from such default deft. shall have power to sell same without hindrance, & to pay himself the balance with interest and expenses which shall then be due, and hand over the balance, & that pltf. to keep up the stock, & that [pltf.] will not remove the goods, etc., from off his present dwelling without the consent of deft., as [pltf.] hereby declares that the goods, etc., shall remain the property of deft.

*g. — Chattels sold on default—Mortgagor in possession.]—*B., the customer of a bank, executed a chattel mtge. on his household effects, by way of collateral security, in favour of the bank, which was allowed to run into default, whereupon the mtgees. proceeded to a sale, & appointed W. their bailiff for that purpose, who sold it to pltf., a creditor of B., by private sale for $900; & executed a bill of sale thereof. Pltf. swore that B. owed him about $1,000, & he thought there was ample security for the $900 & also additional security for B.'s indebtedness to himself, & that the goods seemed to be worth about $5,000; & pltf. without disturbing in any way the possession of B., rented the property to him, & remained, as he had been, in possession. In order effectually to carry out the proposed arrangement with B., the bank appointed their local agent to accept the chattel mtge., & as such agent to make the affidavits required to be made by mtgees.:—Held: the chattel mtge. was satisfied quoad the goods.—*CARLISLE v. until the £200 with interest shall be fully paid & satisfied. On May 8, 1869, pltf. was adjudged bkpt. under Bkpcy. Act, 1861 (c. 134), deft. some days prior having taken possession of all the goods, etc., on the premises under the bill of sale. Pltf. received his discharge in bkpcy. on July 19; in the meantime deft. after fourteen days possession had withdrawn, leaving everything in pltf.'s possession. Subsequently differences arose, & in Mar. deft. broke open pltf.'s house, seized all the goods on the premises, & sold them. At the trial the judge directed the jury that deft. had no right, under his bill of sale, to seize any property acquired by pltf. since his order of discharge, & the jury found a verdict for pltf. for the value of the after-acquired goods:—Held: a rule for a new trial, on the ground of misdirection, must be discharged.—*COLE v. Agreement to assign.]

Pltf. sued deft. for breaking & entering his premises & converting his goods. Deft. pleaded a deed whereby in consideration for money advanced, pltf. assigned all the furniture & goods upon his premises to deft., provided that upon repayment of the money advanced the deed should be void. It was agreed that deft. might enter & seize, & dispose of the goods assigned upon default of payment by pltf. It was further agreed & declared that if pltf. should at any time thereafter during the continuance of the security become possessed of furniture or goods other than or in addition to the property assigned, same should be in all respects subject to the deed, & might be seized, sold, & disposed of in the same manner to all intents & purposes as if same were then possessed by pltf., & were duly assigned by the deed. The plea proceeded to aver that pltf.'s premises & goods mentioned in the deed were the same as those mentioned in the declaration, that pltf. was in default, & that deft. entered & seized under the deed, which were the alleged trespass & conversion. Pltf. replied, on equitable grounds, that after the execution of the deed, & before the alleged grievances, pltf.'s affairs were liquidated by arrangement under Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (c. 71), & that all conditions were fulfilled to render the liquidation binding upon deft., & that before the alleged grievance the trustee under the liquidation sold the goods to friends of pltf., who thereupon gave pltf. possession thereof, & pltf. then held same freed & discharged from all claims of deft. thereon:—Held: the licence in the deed to seize after-acquired property was merely accessory to the debt secured, & was barred by the liquidation, & the replication was a good answer to the plea.—THOMPSON v. COHEN (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 527; 41 L. J. Q. B. 221; 26 L. T. 693; 36 J. P. 822.

*sheriff in possession—First mortgage satisfied after seizure.]—*On Jan. 9 M. mortgaged goods to R., which on the 19th the sheriff seized under a fi. fa. On Feb. 22, while the sheriff was in possession, M. made a bill of sale to pltf. The mtge. to R. was satisfied after the seizure, & before the sale by the sheriff, but whether before or after the execution of the bill of sale to pltf. did not appear:—Held: the fi. fa. was entitled to prevail over pltf.'s claim.—*TAYLOR v. 846. ————.]—Debtor by bill of sale assigned for value to a creditor certain specified chattels at his place of business, “& all other chattels which might be or at any time thereafter be brought thereon in addition to or in substitution thereof.” Debtor became bkpt., & after his order of discharge brought other chattels upon the premises. The creditor did not prove for his debt in bkpcy.:—Held: the assignment of the after-acquired chattels, although absolute in form, amounted merely to a contract to assign, for the breach of which the assignor incurred a liability provable in his bkpcy., & from which he was released by the order of discharge, & the goods brought on the premises after the order of discharge could not be seized by the creditor under his bill of sale.—*COLLYER v. Surrender of bill—On payment—Stipulation against—Validity of.]—A bill of sale, given as security for payment of money, contained a stipulation that, as soon as the sums secured were satisfied, the grantee would give a receipt in full of all demands & indorse a copy of same on the bill of sale, but the bill of sale & any documents signed by the grantor or any other person in relation to the loan should remain in the custody & be the property of the grantee:—Held: the stipulation was a deviation from the statutory form. & the bill of sale was void.—*WATSON v. 26. —. "I confess to have received & to repay again."—A deed in the following words: "This bill witnesses that I have received of P.

£40 to the use of R. & J., his sister, children of S., deceased, equally to be divided between them, which sum I confess to have received to the uses above said & same to repay again, at such time as shall be thought best for the profit of R. & J.":—Held: to be a good bill obligatory, & to create a several debt of £20 to each.—SHAW v. SHERWOOD (1599), Cro. Eliz. 729; 78 E. R. 962.

Annotations:—Mentd. Gilby v. Copley (1683), 3 Lev. 139; Fisher v. Wigg (1699), 1 Ld. Raym. 622.

27. —. "I do hereby acknowledge I owe you."—Debt on bond, on a writing under seal in the following words: "These are to authorise you to sell my goods to the amount of £9, which I do hereby acknowledge I owe you":—Held: good.—

PART III. SECT. 1.

1. What words sufficient—"Shall repay" without taking objection on demand.]—Deft. passed a document to this effect: "I have this day taken from you in cash R.48 (forty-eight). I have received this amount. I shall repay this money without taking any objection, when you should demand [it.]" Held: the document was a bond.—VENKU v. SITARAM (1905), 1 L. R. 29 Bom. 82.—IND.

PART II. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 2.

16 i. Misnomer—Immaterial variance.]—The obligors contracted with the obligees under the name of "Estevan School Board of Estevan": the contract provided for a bond to be given to the obligees. A bond was given, but the obligees were named as "the Estevan School Board of Estevan," while their proper name was "the Board of trustees for the Estevan School District No. 257 of the N. W.

T.":—Held: the irregularity of describing the obligees by the name of "the Estevan School Board of Estevan" did not invalidate the bond. GREENWOOD v. ESTEVAN SCHOOL TRUSTEES (1910), 15 W. L. R. 568.—CAN.

e. Successors in office—No individual named.]—A bond to the "treasurer of a town & his successors in office":—Held: valid, without naming any individual therein.—JUDD v. READ (1857), 6 C. P. 362.—CAN.

28. Words following solvendum.]—In a bill obligatory, that which comes after the solvendum is no part of the obligation.—WOODWARD v. PARRY (1596), Cro. Eliz. 537; 78 E. R. 784.

29. Bond to stranger.]—A man may bind himself to a stranger to make an annual payment to his wife.—SMITH v. WATSON (1616), 1 Roll. Rep. 334; 81 E. R. 525.

Nature of obligation.]—See Part VI., Sect. 1, post.

SUB-SECT. 1.—REPUGNANCY.

30. Repugnant condition—Obligation to be void.]—If the condition of a bond be in the following form: "the condition of this obligation is such, that if, etc. then the condition of this obligation to be void," the last words are void, & the condition is good without them.—MAULEVERER v. HAWXBY (1670), 2 Saund. 78; 85 E. R. 748; sub nom. MALEVERER v. HAWKSBY, 1 Sid. 456; 2 Keb. 625; sub nom. MALEVERER v. REDSHAW, 1 Vent. 39; 1 Mod. Rep. 35.

31. — Bond single.]—If the condition of a bond be repugnant, the bond is single.—WELLS v. FERGUSON (1708), 11 Mod. Rep. 191, 199; 2 Salk. 463; 88 E. R. 982, 987.

SUB-SECT. 2.—IMPOSSIBILITY OF PERFORMANCE.

See Part VII., Sect. 4, sub-sect. 2,

SUB-SECT. 3.—ILLEGALITY.

32. At origin.]—Where the condition is originally illegal, the bond is void.—ANON. (1489), Y. B. 4 Hen. 7, fo. 3, pl. 7; 5 Nev. & M. K. B. 378, n.

33. Entire condition.]—The condition of a bond was if deft. should procure J. to make reasonable recompense to pltf. for certain beasts which he wrongfully took from pltf. Deft. said that J. had in fact stolen the beasts from pltf., & thereof he was indicted, & so the condition being against the law the obligation was void:—Held: where the condition of an obligation should be said against the law, & the obligation void, the same ought to be intended where the condition was against the law in express words, & not for matter out of the condition, as in the present case, & judgment should be for pltf.—BROOK v. KING (1587), 1 Leon. 73; 74 E. R. 68.

47. —Connection between deed & bond.]—Where a bond was conditioned for payment of money on Dec. 25, & a subsequent deed was made between the same parties, by which the obligee covenanted that if the obligor should pay on Dec. 25 5s. in the pound etc., such payment should be accepted in full discharge & satisfaction of all sums due etc., & might be pleaded & given in evidence etc., & the obligor, to an action on the bond, pleaded a tender & refusal of the 5s. in the pound on Dec. 25:—Held: one deed might amount to a defeasance to another without express words of relation, & the plea was good.—TREVERT v. AGGAS (1738), Willes, 107; 2 Com. 568; 125 E. R. 1079.

48. Omission of words of avoidance.—The condition of a bond for payment of money, though the words of avoidance are omitted, is a good defeasance.—EVERY v. WHITE (1695), 1 Ld. Raym. 38; 91 E. R. 921.

49. Void condition—Must be pleaded.—Deft. cannot take advantage of a void condition in a bond, without praying over & pleading it.—COLTON v. GOODRIDGE (1776), 2 Wm. Bl. 1108; 96 E. R. 655.

SECT. 3.—WHAT BONDS ARE ILLEGAL OR VOID.

SUB-SECT. 1.—BONDS FOR ILLICIT COHABITATION.

See, generally, CONTRACT.

50. Given during cohabitation—Whether relief in equity—Voluntary gift.]—Equity will not relieve against a bond given to a mistress, where on the pleadings it is a free & voluntary gift, without anything of turpis contractus. There is a difference in such a case between a contract executed & executory.—WHALEY v. NORTON (1687), 1 Vern. 483; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 87, pl. 5; 23 E. R. 608.

55. ———.]—A bill was filed for payment of a sum of money & an annuity secured by a bond. Pltf., a young woman of good character, had come to live in the family of deft. as companion to his sister, & she had been seduced by him, & by continuing to live with him occasioned a separation between him & his wife:—Held: the bill ought to be dismissed, but without costs on account of her previous good character.—*PRIEST v. 56. ——— Payment postponed.]—A. having a wife who lived separate from him, afterwards married another woman, who knew nothing of the former wife's being alive, but it being discovered to the second wife, that the former was alive, A. in order to prevail with the second wife to stay with him, some years afterwards gave a bond to a trustee of the second wife, to leave her £1000 at his death, & died, not leaving assets to pay his simple contract debts:—Held: if the bond had been given immediately on the discovery, and they had parted thereupon, it would have been good, but being given in trust for the second wife, after such time as she knew the first wife was living, & to induce her to continue with A. that was worse than a voluntary bond, & the bond must be postponed to all the simple contract debts.—COX'S (LADY) CASE (1734), 3 P. Wms. 339; 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 182, pl. 6; 24 E. R. 1091. Annotations:—Refd. Hill v. Spencer (1767), Amb. 836; Whitaker v. Wright (1843), 2 Hare, 310.

61. ———.]—By deed, made in contemplation of future continuing cohabitation, S. granted to M., with whom he then cohabited, an annuity for life, to commence after his death or marriage, or after he should have withdrawn his protection from M., & another annuity to B., the daughter of M., to commence as therein provided, & he covenanted that, whenever he should be possessed of any sufficient landed property, he would charge same with both annuities. S. at the same time gave a bond, with a warrant of attorney to enter up judgment thereon, conditioned to be void on payment of the annuities according to the trusts of the deed. S. continued to cohabit with M. for some time, & then married. To a bill filed by S. stating the above facts, & that the deed was in the possession of M., & that the pltf. could only set forth its contents from the memorial thereof registered in Ireland, that judgment had been entered up on the bond, & an action brought thereon by M. against S., & praying an injunction & delivery up of the instruments to be cancelled, a general demurrer for want of equity was allowed.—*SMYTH v. 68. — Custody of children.]—B. bound himself to trustees in the penal sum of £8000 to pay an annuity of £200 to them for C., a single woman, with whom he had cohabited, & by whom he had five children, in order to make a provision for her, & also in consideration of her giving up to him the sole custody of the children. The bond was to become void on due payment of the annuity during the life of C., or until she should claim the children:—Held: there was a sufficiently valuable consideration given for the bond to constitute it a specialty debt.—Re PLASKETT'S ESTATE, BRYANT v. KNYVETT (1861), 30 L. J. Ch. 606; 4 L. T. 544; 9 W. R. 628.

69. — Continuance of cohabitation—Evidence of continuance.]—Where a bond was given for past cohabitation to a woman who continued to be maintained & visited by the obligor, but there was no evidence of subsequent cohabitation:—Held: the bond was valid.—HALI v. PALMER (1844), 3 Hare, 532; 13 L. J. Ch. 352; 3 L. T. O. S. 200; 8 Jur. 459; 67 E. R. 491.

70. —.]—Testator six months before his death gave a bond to a woman with whom he had cohabited for more than thirty years, conditioned for the payment to her at the expiration of two years of a sum of money & interest, and he continued to cohabit with her until his death. There was nothing on the face of the bond with reference to the cohabitation, & there was no evidence that it was in fact given to secure the continuance of the cohabitation:—Held: the mere continuance of the cohabitation was not enough to raise the presumption that the bond was given in consideration of future cohabitation, & the bond was good.—Re VALLANCE, VALLANCE v. BLAGDEN (1884), 26 Ch. D. 353; 50 L. T. 171; 48 J. P. 598; 32 W. R. 918.

71. — Molestation.]—A., who had for some years been cohabiting with B. as his wife, executed a deed by which, after reciting that he was desirous of making provision by way of annuity for B. & upon the terms & conditions thereafter expressed, covenanted to pay her an annuity of £150 during her lifetime, but with the proviso that if A. should cease to be on terms of intimacy with B. as therein mentioned, & after such determination she should molest or annoy him by any act or proceeding whatever, the yearly sum should be absolutely forfeited & cease to be payable:—Held: since the true construction of the proviso was that the annuity was to be forfeited not because cohabitation had ceased, but because of the molestation, the deed was good.—Re WOOTTON-ISAACSON, SANDERS v. SMILES (1901), 21 T. L. R. 89; 49 Sol. Jo. 100.

76. — — —.]—A marriage was arranged by a broker, who took bonds from both husband & wife, representing to each that the other had a fortune. That was true of the wife, but untrue of the husband:—Held: the husband's bond was good, but the wife's bond must be delivered up.—GLANVILL v. JENNINGS (1669), 3 Rep. Ch. 31; Nels. 129; 21 E. R. 807.

77. — — —.]—Under a marriage brocage arrangement, whereby a girl of about fifteen, living with her uncle, & entitled to a good fortune, was induced to marry his journeyman, fifty guineas was paid, & a bond given to secure fifty guineas more. Judgment having been obtained on the bond:—Held: in equity the bond should be given up & satisfaction acknowledged on the judgment, & the fifty guineas received be repaid.—*GOLDSMITH v. 78. — — —.]—A bond was given to the wife's father, in order to obtain his consent to the marriage of his daughter, to repay part of the portion if the daughter died without issue. The daughter's portion was given to her not by her father, but by an aunt:—Held: the bond being in the nature of a marriage brocage bond, should be delivered up to be cancelled.—KEAT v. ALLEN (1707), 2 Vern. 588; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 90, pl. 5; 23 E. R. 983; sub nom. ANON. (1708), Prec. Ch. 267; 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 187, pl. 1.

79. — — —.]—On the marriage of A., B., her mother & guardian, insisted on a covenant from the husband in the penalty of £10,000 to give her within a specified time a release in respect of all the mesne profits of A.'s estate:—Held: the covenant was on the same footing as a marriage brocage bond, & must be set aside.—HAMILTON (DUKE) v. MOHUN (LORD) (1710), 1 P. Wms. 118; 1 Salk. 158; 2 Vern. 652; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 90, pl. 6; 24 E. R. 319, L. C.

80. — Action restrained.]—X., about sixty years of age, gave a bond to Y. conditioned to pay Y. a sum of money if X. married A., a young woman with £2,000 portion. Y. procured the marriage, & put the bond in suit:—Held: he should be restrained in equity at the instance of X.—DRURY v. HOOKE (1686), 2 Cas. in Ch. 176; 1 Vern. 412; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 89, pl. 2; 22 E. R. 900, L. C.

81. In restraint of marriage—To marry specified person—Cancellation.]—A bond drawn in common form, for payment of money, was in fact made on an agreement, that pltf. should either marry her servant, or should by way of forfeiture pay him the sum of money mentioned in the condition of the bond:—Held: the bond must be delivered up to be cancelled, it being contrary to the nature & design of marriage, which ought to proceed from a free choice, & not from any compulsion.—KEY v. BRADSHAW (1689), 2 Vern. 102; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 89, pl. 4; 23 E. R. 675.

82. — — —.]—A young woman gave to a man a bond in a penalty of £600 conditioned for her marriage with him, if he were willing, within thirteen months after the decease of her father, or if she were to marry some other person for payment to him of £500. The man gave her a bond of a similar character but in rather different terms. The woman's father was averse to the match, & the bonds were executed in an alehouse, nobody being present except the witnesses, who were two strangers called in for the purpose. Both bonds remained in the custody of the man. The woman's father having died & the thirteen months having expired, she filed a bill to be relieved against her bond:—Held: all the circumstances being taken together, but particularly the encouragement such a transaction might give to disobedience & the fraud on parents, the bond ought to be delivered up to be cancelled.—WOODHOUSE v. SHEPLEY (1743), 2 Atk. 535; 26 E. R. 721, L. C.

83. In fraud of marriage—Cancellation.]—Upon a treaty of marriage between A. & the daughter of B., B. would not consent to the marriage, as A. owed £200 to C. To remove the objection, the brother of A. proposed to get up A.'s bond & to give his own in place of it, but privately A. gave a counter-bond to his brother, the daughter of B. being privy thereto & encouraging it. A. died, & his wife took administration:—Held: (1) the wife should avoid the counter-bond, though party to the fraud; (2) A. himself might have been relieved against the bond.—*REDMAN v. 85. —.]—A. treated for the marriage of his son, & in the settlement on the son there was a power reserved to the father, to jointure any wife whom he should marry in £200 per annum, paying £1000 to the son. The father treating about marrying a second wife, the son agreed with the second wife's relations to release the £1,000, & did release it, but took a private bond from the father for the payment of such £1,000:—Held: equity would not set aside the bond, because it would be injurious to the first marriage, which being prior in time, was to be preferred.—ROBERTS v. ROBERTS (1730), 3 P. Wms. 66; 24 E. R. 971.

88. — Whether relief in equity.—A. presented B. to a vicarage, & took a bond of £500, conditioned to resign after ten years, upon request. The vicarage was £50 per annum. The ten years expired, & the request was made. B. prepared a resignation, & tendered it to the bishop, who refused to accept it, saying such bonds were against conscience, & void, but as that would be no plea in an action brought on the bond, B., having undertaken for a third person, who, as was suggested, was a man of good conversation, exhibited his bill to be relieved against the bond, & to have an injunction:—Held: the ct. would not relieve, unless the patron had made some ill use of the bond, for the law allowed such bonds to be good.—STEEPER v. CARVER (1708), 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 183, pl. 1; 22 E. R. 157.

89. —.]—Deft., a parson, entered into a bond for £500 to pltf., the patron of a church, upon condition that after induction he should at any time on request of pltf. resign the rectory into the hands of the bishop:—Held: such bonds, though to resign generally, were good, & had been so allowed constantly.—TURNER v. HAWKINS (1719), Fortes. Rep. 351; 92 E. R. 886; sub nom. HAWKINS v. TURNER, Prec. Ch. 513.

90. — 31 Eliz. c. 6.—A bond recited that the patron of a rectory had, by an instrument of the same date, presented an incumbent, & that he had agreed to resign upon request of the patron, or the owners of the advowson for the time being, for the purpose of enabling him or them to present one of the two younger brothers of the patron, when capable of holding.—Held: (1) such a bond was simoniacal & void, on the ground that such an agreement was a benefit to the patron, & contrary to the above Act, & semble to the common law; (2) from the recitals of such bond, it must be intended that such presentation was made in consideration of the agreement to resign, & it was not necessary to allege that fact in pleading.—FLETCHER v. SONDES (1827), 1 Bli. N. S. 144; 3 Bing. 501; 4 E. R. 826, II. L.

94. — Against return—Appearance of obligor.—A sheriff brought debt on an obligation taken by him of deft. in his custody, that he would appear at the day, & also save him harmless of the return:—Held: the obligation was void by reason of the statute 23 Hen. 6.—ANON. (1572), Ben. & D. 76 (4); 123 E. R. 286.

95. — Against false return to writ of fi. facias.—A bond to indemnify the obligee of a false return to a writ of fi. fa. is legal & good.—KNIFE v. HOBART (1698), 1 Lut. 593; 125 E. R. 312.

Possession quitted.—Semble: bond to a sheriff, the condition of which was that the sheriff, by virtue of a fi. fa., had seized & taken in execution, of the goods & chattels of R., divers goods & chattels, & that the sheriff, at the request of the obligor, had quitted possession, & agreed to return nulla bona, & then for indemnifying the sheriff for so doing, is illegal.—WRIGHT

PART III. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 6.

k. To sheriff—Against non-execution of writ.—A bond by an execution debtor indemnifying the sheriff “against any loss, damage or liability, which may be incurred by reason of the non-execution of the writ” would be void at common law, as being an indemnity to the sheriff for disobeying the command of the writ.—CORBERT v. HOPKIRK (1852), 9 U. C. R. 479.—CAN.

105 i. Stifling prosecution.]—J. executed a bond to secure a debt of L. to a bank, L. was agent of the bank, & having embezzled the bank funds, the bond was given in consideration of an agreement not to prosecute.—Held: the consideration for the bond was illegal & J. was not liable thereon.—PEOPLES' BANK OF HALIFAX v. JOHNSON (1892), 20 S. C. R. 541;

23 N. S. R. 302.—CAN.

105 ii. ——— Sufficiency of evidence.]—T. had become indebted to pltf. in circumstances exposing him to a criminal prosecution in respect of the debt, & pltf.'s solr. told T. that he was liable to a criminal prosecution; but, outside of this, there was no evidence of a promise or agreement not to prosecute. To induce debts. to give the bond in question, T. told them he was threatened with arrest but for a different offence.—Held: there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a finding that the bond had been given for an agreement not to prosecute.—PEASE v. RANDOLPH (1911), 19 W. 107. ——— Equitable defence.] —Pltfs., trustees of a friendly society, sued deft. on a bond given to them by him to secure the debt due to them by S. Deft. pleaded (1) that S. had been treasurer of the society, that there was a deficiency in his accounts, that pltfs. had caused a warrant to be issued for his arrest with a view to criminal proceedings for an alleged felony in respect of the missing money, that it was agreed between pltfs. & deft. that instead of proceeding criminally against S. pltfs. should accept payment in cash for part of the deficiency & take deft.'s bond as security for the remainder, & that the bond sued on was delivered & accepted by pltfs. in pursuance of that illegal agreement & for no other consideration; (2) on equitable grounds that the prosecution of S. did not cease but continued at the instance of two members of the society, when S. was tried & acquitted, & that deft. was entitled to an injunction to restrain pltfs. as such trustees from suing on the bond:—Held: the pleas were good as showing an illegal agreement to stifle prosecution.—CANNON v. RANDES (1870), 23 L. T. 817; 11 Cox, C. C. 631.

108. Suppression of name in criminal proceedings.]—A. gave B. a bond to secure £3000, the consideration for which was that A. should be free from any legal proceedings or other consequences for having introduced B. to X., through whom B. had lost money, and A. also gave B. a mtge. as a collateral security for the bond. A. afterwards brought an action against B. to set aside the securities, alleging that he had executed them under duress from threats of criminal proceedings, & that the true consideration for them was an illegal one, i.e. the abandonment of such criminal proceedings. B. denied the threat of criminal proceedings, & contended that the consideration was the compromise of a civil liability. The evidence showed that the securities were not executed under threats of criminal proceedings or under undue pressure, but that the consideration for them included stipulations that certain criminal prosecute. To induce debts. to give the bond in question, T. told them he was threatened with arrest but for a different offence.—Held: there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a finding that the bond had been given for an agreement not to prosecute.—PEASE v. RANDOLPH (1911), 19 W. proceedings pending against X. should be conducted in such a way either that A.'s name should not be mentioned, or that if mentioned A. should be exonerated from all blame in connection with the transaction:—Held: the consideration was partly illegal, as containing stipulations with reference to the conduct of the pending criminal proceedings, by which the course of such proceedings might have been affected, & the bond & mtge. were obtained without good & sufficient consideration.—LOUND v. GRIMWADE (1888), 39 Ch. D. 605; 57 L. J. Ch. 725; 59 L. T. 168; 4 T. L. R. 555.

109. Maintenance—Assignment of bond debts.—A bond conditioned to perform the articles of an indenture, whereby deft. agreed to assign certain obligations to pltf. & covenanted that the money should be paid on or within eight days after the several days limited by the bonds, is void for maintenance.—HODSON v. INGRAM (1648), Aleyn, 60; 82 E. R. 915.

110. — Payment of costs—Obligor stranger to suit.—In debt on a bond with condition to pay pltf. all money which he had spent or should spend in a suit inter alios, wherein he was attorney:—Held: (1) judgment ought to be given for pltf., because deft. demurring generally, it could not appear whether the maintenance was lawful or unlawful, & it might be the persons were relatives that might lawfully maintain; (2) performance should be pleaded to the first part of the condition, for it was lawful for an attorney to take security from a stranger for past expenses.—*PIERSON v. 111. Champerty—Actual expenses recoverable.—Pltf. being entitled to succeed to certain copyhold property as customary heir, applied to counsel, who undertook to recover the lands for pltf., but would not proceed unless pltf. would give him a bond in a penalty of £1,000 conditioned to surrender a moiety to him when recovered. A bond having been drawn by the counsel & executed by pltf. accordingly:—Held: the bond ought to secure no more than what the counsel had actually laid out in recovering the estate, & on payment of what should appear due the bond should be delivered up.—SKAPHOLME v. HART (1680), Cas. temp. Finch, 477; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 86, pl. 1; 23 E. R. 257.

112. Part profits of suits—Given by attorney to unqualified person.—A bond given by an attorney conditioned for securing a part of the profits from suits, for the benefit of an unqualified person, is illegal.—CUSSE v. CORFE (1828), 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 140.

113. Appearance at court—Bond to sheriff.—The sheriff on an attachment took a bond that deft. should appear in the Star Chamber, & then

& there should answer:—Held: good.—ANON. (1580), 3 Dyer, 364 a.; 73 E. R. 817.

114. — — ——Pltf., a sheriff, brought an action of debt upon an obligation, the condition of which was that deft. should appear personally in the King's Bench. Deft. had been taken by a latitat by pltf., who had taken the obligation upon his deliverance:—Held: a personal appearance was necessary in the case of a latitat, and the bond was good.—LASSEL'S CASE (1587), Gouldsb. 54, 61; Owen, 90; 3 Dyer, 364, n.; 75 E. R. 990, 995.

115. — Bond by servant for master—Duress.—If a suit be instituted in an inferior ct. against a barge-master, & the bailiff, by process from the ct., attach one of deft.'s barges while his servant is navigating it, & the servant, to release the barge & its cargo, give the bailiff a bond conditioned for his master's appearance at the next ct., it is a legal bond, & cannot be avoided by a plea that the bailiff had no right to take it, or that it was taken by duress.—SUMNER v. FERRYMAN (1709), 11 Mod. Rep. 201; 88 E. R. 989.

116. To take possession of effects of intestate—Delivery of proceeds to administrator.—A bond was given by a servant of the A. co. conditioned to take possession of the effects of persons dying intestate in one of their settlements on the coast of Africa, & sell same & remit the produce to the co. in Europe, to be by them delivered to the lawful administrator:—Held: since it was not intended that the obligor should detain the effects of any person against the rightful administrators but merely that they should be deposited in a place of safe custody until claimed by those who were legally entitled to them, it was a legal bond.—AFRICAN CO. v. TORRANE (1796), 6 Term Rep. 588; 101 E. R. 718.

117. Against costs—To Inclosure Act commissioners.—A bond taken by the comrs., appointed under an inclosure Act to indemnify themselves against the expenses of a suit brought to try the right to an allotment made by them, & in which they are, according to the directions of the Act, made defendants, is not void, though there be a fund provided out of which such expenses may in some cases be satisfied, at least if the comrs. doubt whether the case in question be one of those cases.—ILES v. BOXALL (1800), 2 Bos. & P. 89; 126 E. R. 1173.

SUB-SECT. 7.—BONDS FOR SALE OF PUBLIC OFFICES.

118. Whether within 5 & 6 Edw. 6, c. 16—Sum certain—Auditor.—G. being auditor of Wales appointed A. to exercise the office during his good behaviour, & it was agreed that A. should have the fees & in consideration thereof pay G. £200 per annum, & A. gave a bond for performance of the agreement:—Held: the case was within the above Act, & the bond, being not for payment of a share of the fees but of a sum certain in all events, was void.—GODOLPHIN v. TUDOR (1703), 6 Mod. Rep. 234; 2 Salk. 468;

109 i. Maintenance.—Money was advanced on the security of a bond. The money was applied to carry on a suit by a person claiming a wife's share of her deceased alleged husband's property. The bond was also to stand as security for further money advances for the same purpose: Held: illegal, on the ground of maintenance.—CLARKE v. M'NALLY (1856), 8 Ir. Jur. 225.—IR.

o. To put law in force.—A bond, not required by law, is illegal & void when given in order that a law, which ought to be acted upon without it, may be put in force.—ST. THOMAS CITY CORPN. v. YEARSLEY (1895), 22 A. R. 340.—CAN.

127. Resignation of office—Appointment of obligor—Magistrates' clerk.]—Pltf. in Sept., 1843, being then about to be called to the Bar, proposed to deft. that, in the event of his resigning his office as chief clerk to the magistrates at Guildhall & two other appointments he held in favour of deft., & if deft. should be appointed thereto, he should give his bond for payment of £200 a year for a term of five years. Deft. assented, & an agreement was entered into. Pltf. resigned, & deft. was appointed to the vacant situations, & in June, 1844, gave his bond for payment of the £200 a year. In May, 1846, considerable arrears being due, pltf. commenced an action to recover arrears, & deft. consented to an order for judgment, upon which he was taken in execution, & whilst in custody in 1846 he paid £100 & gave a warrant of attorney for the remainder, & obtained his discharge. Subsequently he was arrested by pltf., upon a judgment signed by the warrant of attorney:—Held : the bond was given solely in respect to deft.'s resigning his practice as an attorney & solicitor & not for the sale of a public office, & there was no ground for deft.'s application to set aside the warrant of attorney.—PAYNE v. TEAGUE (1848), 11 L. T. O. S. 363.

128. ——— Consul.]—Pltf. gave to deft. a bond in the penalty of £5,000, reciting that pltf. had been appointed consul to the State of Tunis on the resignation of C., & conditioned for payment to deft. out of the salary of £200 per annum in trust for C. for his life & for payment of certain other sums:—Held : the ct. would not restrain an action at law on the bond, but it ought to be pleaded in order to bring the question whether the consideration was corrupt.—THRALE v. Ross (1790), 3 Bro. C. C. 57; 29 E. R. 406, L. C.

SUB-SECT. 8.—POST OBIT BONDS.

129. By expectant heir.]—A post obit bond given by an expectant heir is a security of a doubtful nature, which has often been disputed with success.—LUSHINGTON v. WALLER (1788), 1 Hy. Bl. 94; 126 E. R. 58.

130. — Unreasonable terms—Relief on payment with interest.]—V., a young man, in consideration of £100 given him in the lifetime of his father, gave a bond for £600, to be paid within a year after the death of his father, to whom he was heir. The bond being sued, he preferred his bill to be relieved, & was relieved, repaying the £100 & interest.—VARNEES' CASE (1680), Freem. Ch. 63; 22 E. R. 1060, L. C.

—A post obit bond, though not on reasonable terms, may be valid, but on grounds of public policy it is strictly examined.—CURLING v. TOWNSHEND (MARQUIS) (1816), 19 Ves. 628; 34 E. R. 649, L. C.

132. — — —.]—W., formerly a captain in the militia, was entitled expectant on the death of his father to an estate of considerable value in Wales, & being in prison for debt applied to debt., a captain in the army, who was also in prison for debt, for a loan. Debt. made an advance of £300 on a post obit bond conditioned for payment of £600 upon the event of W. surviving his father, but was in any other case to be void. W., who survived his father by the space of about six months only, never disputed the fairness of the transaction, but pltf., his brother & heir, filed a bill for relief against the bond:—Held: the bond ought to be considered only as a security for the money actually advanced with interest at 5 per cent.—EVANS v. CHESSHIRE (1806), Belt's Sup. 300; 28 E. R. 532, L. C.

133. — Subsequent confirmation.]—In May, 1738, debt. paid £5,000 to S., then thirty years old, & the same day took a bond from him in the penalty of £20,000 conditioned for payment of £10,000 to debt., at or within some short time after the death of his grandmother, D., then seventy-eight years old, in case S. should survive her, but not otherwise. D. died in Oct., 1744, & in Dec. following, on debt.'s delivering to S. the bond to be cancelled, he executed a new one in the penalty of £20,000 conditioned for payment to debt. of £10,000 with lawful interest, in the following Apr. next, & at the same time executed a warrant of attorney to empower judgment to be recorded against him for the £20,000. In Dec. 1745, S. paid debt. £1,000 in part, & in Mar. £1,000 more. In June 1746, S. died, & a bill was brought by his exors., to be relieved against the latter bond:—Held: the acts of S. after the death of D. amounted to a confirmation of the original transaction, & relief ought only to be granted against the penalty of the last bond.—CHESTERFIELD (EARL) v. JANSSEN (1750), 1 Atk. 301; 1 Wils. 286; 2 Ves. Sen. 125; 26 E. R. 191.

134. — — —.]—In a case of singular & complicated fraud a number of post obit bonds given by a young man with great expectations, though upon terms of gross inequality, were established on the ground of confirmation, but were ordered to stand only as security for the sums found due upon taking an account between the parties.—*WHARTON v. 135. — — —.]—A. an expectant heir being indebted to B., his friend & father-in-law, & B. being indebted to C., A. gave C. post obit bonds in discharge of his debt to B., & C. gave B. credit in account for half the amount of the bonds. After the death of A.'s father, when the bonds had become payable, A. & B. by deeds deliberately executed acknowledged the fairness of the transaction. A. then filed a bill against C. & B. to set the bonds aside on the ground of imposition & want of consideration, & afterwards dismissed his bill as against B. & examined him as a witness, so that no relief could be had by any party against B. in that cause:—Held: (1) in the above circumstances of acknowledgment, dismissal, & examination of B. as a witness, A. had debarred himself from impeaching the consideration for the bonds, & he could not impeach the securities for fraud or imposition; (2) from the confidential situation of B. with regard to A., & the knowledge which C. had of all their transactions, the bonds ought not to be available as post obit bonds, but only for the sums actually allowed by C. as the consideration for them, with interest from their dates.—BERNAL v. DONEGAL (MARQUIS) (1815), 3 Dow. 133; 3 E. R. 1014, H. L.; subsequent proceedings (1827), 1 Bli. N. S. 594, H. L.

136. — Suspicious circumstances—No proof of imposition.]—A post obit bond was given by A. in 1720 for payment in six months after his father's death, if he survived, otherwise to be void. The father who was then seventy years old, died in 1731, & A. in 1734. The ct. refused relief against the penalty, there being no proof of imposition although there were suspicious circumstances in it.—HILL v. CAILLOVEL (1748), 1 Ves. Sen. 122; 27 E. R. 931, L. C.

137. — Purchased at auction—Relief on payment into court with interest.]—A young man about to raise £40,000 upon post obit bonds payable at the death of his father, put the bonds up for sale by auction without reserve. The particulars of sale disclosed the facts. Debt. purchased a bond at the auction. On a bill for relief:—Held: an injunction ought to be granted until the hearing upon the terms of pltf. bringing into ct. the auction price with interest at 5 per cent. from the time of payment.—FOX v. WRIGHT (1821), 6 Madd. 111; 56 E. R. 1031.

138. Obtained by undue influence—Suppression of facts.]—L. requested her nephew, J. to reside with her, while so doing she altered her will in his favour; she subsequently made several other alterations, & by the last, the greater portion of the property she had power to dispose of was given to J. & his two brothers. The alterations were made by her own solr. After the last of the alterations, she executed a post obit bond for £15,000 in favour of J. & his two brothers. This was done by a solr. unknown to her, who was employed at her request by J. Differences afterwards arose between L. & J., who left her house. L. then sent for her own solr., & without taking any notice of the bond altered her will, & disposed of the whole of her property among other persons, & died leaving insufficient to pay the bond. Her solr., who was one of her exors., upon communicating the decease of testatrix to J., was, for the first time, informed of her having executed the bond. Upon a bill by the exors. to set it aside:—Held: the bond was obtained by undue influence & upon a suppression of facts, & was void, & it must be delivered up to be cancelled, with costs to be paid by J.—COOKE v. LAMOTTE (1851), 15 Beav. 234; 21 L. J. Ch. 371; 51 E. R. 527.

139. Payable on death of obligor.]—A voluntary bond for payment of a sum of money after the death of the obligor in the nature of a legatory disposition, is a valid bond.—RAMSDEN v. JACKSON (1737), 1 Atk. 292; 26 E. R. 187, L. C.

140. Payable on death of named person—Sale of reversionary interest.]—B., for the purposes of a society of which he was the solr., borrowed £600 on the security of a joint bond entered into by himself & C. The bond was conditioned to be void if the obligors, their heirs, exors., or administrators, should within one month after the death of such one as should first depart this life of three persons, named in the bond, pay to the obligee £2,000. The bond also charged the interests to which the obligors might become entitled in any personal estate under the wills of the three persons, with payment of the £2,000. On the death of the last survivor of the three persons the obligors sought to be relieved of their obligation under the bond, on the ground that it had been entered into in circumstances which were inequitable, & that the whole transaction amounted, in fact, to a sale of a reversionary interest for an insufficient consideration:—Held: the bond was good.—GARDINER v. COWPER (1868), 18 L. T. 627.

141. Action to set aside bond—Injunction—On payment into court.]—In a suit to set aside post obit securities, when an injunction is granted upon pltf. paying into ct. the sum advanced by deft. with interest, such sum will be not paid to deft. until the suit is determined.—MARSACK v. FARLOW (1822), Jac. 572; 37 E. R. 966, L. C.

144. Revocation—Arbitrator's authority.]—Debt upon bond conditioned to stand to, abide by & perform an award. Deft. pleaded no award made, & pltf. replied that deft. before the time for making the award revoked the arbitration authority:—Held: by the countermand, the bond was forfeited.—VYNION'S CASE (1609), 8 Co. 145. Submission—By infant—Bond by person of full age.]—A bond given by a person of full age, reciting that an infant has submitted himself to an award, & conditioned for performance of the award by the infant, is void, as an infant cannot bind himself by a submission to arbn., & the submission is wholly void, though the other party be of full age.—RUDSTON & YATES' CASE (1641), March, 111, 141; 82 E. R. 434, 448.

Annotation:—Refd. R. v. Grant (1849), 14 Q. B. 43.

146. — To be made rule of court.]—Upon a motion to make a submission to arbn. a rule of ct. pursuant to Arbn. Act, 1698 (c. 157), it was objected that the agreement to make the submission a rule of ct. was no part of the condition of the bond, but was written beneath it & not signed, but it appearing by affidavit that the subscription was made before the execution of the bond, it was taken by the ct. to be part of the submission as an indorsement by way of defeasance was part of the deed, & the submission was made a rule of ct.—CARTER v. MANSBRIDGE (1736), Barnes, 55; 94 E. R. 803.

SUB-SECT. 10.—BONDS IN RESPECT OF VOID INSTRUMENTS.

147. Promissory note—Illegal consideration—Bond to holder—Without notice.]—If A. for an usurious consideration give his promissory note to B., who transfers it to C. for a valuable consideration without notice of the usury, & afterwards A. gives a bond to C. for the amount, the bond is good.—CUTHBERT v. HAILEY (1799), 8 Term Rep. 390; 3 Esp. 22; 101 E. R. 1450.

148. — — — With notice.]—Deft. employed W. to job for him in the funds; the speculations were unfortunate, & W. took a promissory note for the differences from deft., who was unable to pay the losses. W., after the note became due, indorsed it to pltf. Pltf.

were not then informed of the illegal consideration for which the note was given, but afterwards they were told so, & then they took a bond from debt. for the amount:—Held: the bond was void in law.—AMORY v. MERYWEATHER (1824), 2 B. & C. 573; 4 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 86; 2 L. J. O. S. K. B. 111; 107 E. R. 496.

Annotation:—Mentd. M'Callan v. Mortimer (1842), 11 L. J. Ex. 429.

149. Usurious bond—Counter bond given.]—On an usurious bond, if a counter bond be given to save a surety harmless, & he is damnified, the usury cannot be pleaded in bar to it.—ROBINSON v. MAY (1597), Cro. Eliz. 588; 78 E. R. 831.

150. Bond executed under undue influence—Second bond given.]—A girl, under age, gave a promissory note as surety for her stepfather. Soon after coming of age she executed, under his influence, as the obligee knew, but with knowledge of the invalidity of the promissory note, a bond to secure payment of the same debt six years after date. Shortly after the expiration of the period of six years, & at the age of twenty-nine, she executed another bond to secure the same debt, under threat of legal proceedings. She was afterwards sued on that bond, & thereupon filed a bill to avoid the bonds & to restrain the action:—Held: she was entitled to the relief prayed, although the bill was not filed until nearly seven years after the last bond was executed.—KEMPSON v. ASHBEE (1874), 10 Ch. App. 15; 44 L. J. Ch. 195; 31 L. T. 525; 39 J. P. 164; 23 W. R. 38, L. C. & L. JJ.

SUB-SECT. 11.—BONDS WITHOUT CONSIDERATION.

151. Whether relief in equity—Subsequent judgment at law.]—Several persons were in debt to A. B. bought the debts from A., & upon that B. entered into an obligation of £1,000 to pay £500 at a certain day. B. sued A. in Ch. to be discharged from his bond, because the debts assigned to him could only be released by A. & only be sued in A.'s name, being things in action, & so the bond was given without any valuable consideration:—Held: (1) the bond should be discharged; (2) if after such decree, A. sued B. upon the bond in the Ct. of C. P., & B. pleaded the decree, the ct. would reject such plea; for the common law proceeded upon certain fixed & invariable rules, while equity proceeded at the discretion of a good man.—ANON. (1458), Jenk. 108; 145 E. R. 76.

Annotation:—Mentd. Cochrane v. Moore (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 57.

152. —.]—A bond for £1,000 entered into for no consideration, cancelled.—WRIGHT v. MOORE (1632), Toth. 27; 21 E. R. 113.

153. — After judgment at law.]—Equity will not relieve against a bond given without consideration, after judgment at law has been obtained thereon.—WRIGHT v. MOOR (1646), 1 Rep. Ch. 157; 21 E. R. 536.

154. — Release of part.]—A. bequeathed to B. £700, part of £1,200 which B. owed him on bond. A. afterwards revoked the bequest, but made an indorsement on the bond, by which he forgave B. the £700. A.'s exors. brought an action against B. for the £1,200. B. filed a bill to restrain the action, offering to pay to the exors. the balance of £500:—Held: the injunction must be refused, because B. had given no consideration for the indorsement on the bond.—TUFNELL v. CONSTABLE (1836), 8 Sim. 69; 59 E. R. 28.

See, generally, EQUITY.

155. Proof of consideration—When required.]—In the proof of a bond debt, before the master, it is not the practice to require an affidavit of the consideration, unless a case of suspicion against the bond is raised.—WHITAKER v. WRIGHT (1843), 2 Hare, 310; 12 L. J. Ch. 241; 7 Jur. 320; 67 E. R. 128; subsequent proceedings (1844), 3 Hare, 412.

156. Against sale of wife's clothing.]—Debt on bond conditioned that debt. should not sell his wife's clothing. Semble: a lawful condition.—SMITH v. WATSON (1616), 1 Roll. Rep. 334; 81 E. R. 525.

157. Exclusion of mother from house.]—An heir having had some difference with his mother, the jointress, about the repairs of the mansion house settled the estate on his brother, but first took a bond from him in his sister's name, that the brother should not permit his mother to come into the house:—Held: the bond must be delivered up to be cancelled, it being against the law of nature to prohibit a son to cherish his mother.—TRAITON v. TRAITON (1686), 1 Vern. 413; 23 E. R. 554.

158. Against barring entail—Lands settled upon son in tail.]—A father settled lands on his son in tail, & took a bond from him that he should not dock the entail. On bill to be relieved against the bond:—Held: the bond was good, since if the son would not have given the bond, the father might have made him only tenant for life.—*FREEMAN v. PART III. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 13.

r. Against general policy of law.]—A. suspected of stealing a horse was brought before a magistrate, who dismissed the charge. A. pretended no right to the horse, which was restored to the prosecutor, upon his giving a bond of indemnity:—Held:

such bond was not necessarily void as contrary to the general policy of the law.—BALLARD v. POPE (1847), 3 U. C. R. 317.—CAN.

s. — Against leaving employment—Exorbitant interest on default.]—The obligor bound himself down to daily attendance & manual labour until money was repaid in a certain month, & the bond penalised default with overwhelming interest:—Held: not enforceable, being opposed to public policy.—RAM SARUP BHAGAT v. BANSI MANDAR (1915), I. L. R. 42 Calc. 742.—IND.

t. Against publishing letters.]—A. granted a bond in favour of B. an

159. Against waste—Settled land.]—A father settled land on his daughter in tail, & took a bond from her not to commit waste:—Held: the bond was not binding in equity.—JERVIS v. BRUTON (1691), 2 Vern. 251; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 87, pl. 8; 23 E. R. 762.

160. Removal from particular parish—Prohibition against returning.]—A bond conditioned that the obligor shall remove himself & his family from a particular parish, & not return to live therein as an inhabitant without permission from the obligee, is good.—SHELTON v. SIRE (1719), 11 Mod. Rep. 310; 88 E. R. 1058.

161. — New settlement.]—A bond with condition that if deft. shall hire C. so as to gain him a settlement in S. or anywhere out of the parish of T. is a good bond, the object not being illegal.—WHITING v. PUNCHARD (1770), 3 Wils. 50; 95 E. R. 927.

162. Influence with testator—To dispose of his estate.]—A bond was given as a reward for using influence over testator to induce him to dispose of his estate for the benefit of the obligor:—Held: the bond must be delivered up, but without costs.—DEBENHAM v. OX (1749), 1 Ves. Sen. 276; 27 E. R. 1029.

Annotation:—Distd. Higgins v. Hill (1887), 56 L. T. 426.

163. Obtained by parental influence—Sums advanced during infancy.]—A father having advanced a child in his infancy, upon his coming of age, took a bond from him to a greater amount than the sums advanced:—Held: (1) the bond was obtained by parental influence, & should not stand as a security for the sums advanced, but must be set aside altogether; (2) loose expressions in a letter from the son were not a confirmation.—CARPENTER v. HERIOT (1759), 1 Eden, 338; 2 Keny. 533; 28 E. R. 715.

164. Removal of public nuisance—Bond to private person.]—A private person cannot take a bond conditioned to remove a public nuisance.

The nuisance to the public was not such an injury to a private person as would entitle him to take a bond for its removal. It was a criminal offence, for which the party was answerable to the public & not to the individual (LORD KENYON, C.J.).—FALLOWES v. TAYLOR (1798), 7 Term Rep. 475; *Peake, Add. 165. Annuity to son—On taking Holy Orders—Until possessed of living.]—Bond by a father to secure an annuity to his son, until he should be in possession of a living of a certain value, & an agreement of the same date, reciting the bond, declaring that the son would forthwith enter into Holy Orders & accept such living. Semble: on grounds of public policy by the effect of the agreement the transaction was illegal.—KIRCUDBRIGHT (LORD) v. KIRCUDBRIGHT (LADY) (1802), 8 Ves. 51; 32 E. R. 269, L. C.

166. Substituted bond—On surrender of voluntary bond.]—A voluntary bond, though void against creditors, being valid as between the parties, its surrender is a consideration that will sustain a substituted bond against creditors, unless with a fraudulent design, as by an insolvent to substitute a valid for an invalid security against creditors.—Ex p. BERRY (1812), 19 Ves. 218; 34 E. R. 499, L. C.

167. Contrary to letters patent—Knowledge of grantee.]—No action can be maintained on a bond given to a person in consideration of his doing something contrary to the terms of letters patent, & he is equally incapable of recovering, whether he knew or did not know the terms of the letters patent.—DUVERGIER v. FELLOWES (1832), 1 Cl. & Fin. 39; 6 Bli. N. S. 87; 6 E. R. 831, H. L.

168. Given under corrupt agreement—Fraudulent date in apprenticeship articles.]—In an action on a bond by the administrators of the obligee, it was pleaded that the bond was given in pursuance of a corrupt agreement that the obligee should take the son of the obligor, as his apprentice to learn the profession of surgeon, apothecary, & man-midwife, for two years only, & that the agreement should be antedated so as to make it appear that the apprentice was articulated for five years, in order that by such corrupt contrivance the parties might fraudulently & illegally procure the apprentice to be admitted for the purpose of practising as an apothecary upon serving two years instead of five years, as required by Apothecaries Act, 1815 (c. 194), s. 15. After verdict for deft., it was moved to enter judgment for pltf. non obstante veredicto, upon the ground that no apprenticeship for five years was required for the business of a surgeon, & that deft. could not object to the legality of his own bond:—Held: (1) a rule should be refused; (2) pltf. were not entitled to be relieved from payment of costs under Civil Procedure Act, 1833 (c. 43), s. 31.—PROLE v. WIGGINS (1836), 3 Bing. N. C. 230; 2 Hodg. 204; 3 Scott, 601; 6 L. J. C. P. 2; 132 E. R. 398.

unmarried woman, bearing to be for money lent. Six months afterwards, A. bought a reduction of the bond, alleging that the bond had been fraudulently obtained from him by threats of publishing letters written by him to her:—Held: prevention of publicity by buying the letters was not an illegal matter of bargain.—LISTON v. COWAN (1865), 3 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 1041.—SCOT.

*a. Duress.]—*A bond, to secure the payment of the cost of maintaining at an industrial school a young boy who came within Industrial Schools Act, s. 7, is void, for duress, when given to prevent the boy being sent to a reformatory.—ST. THOMAS CITY CORPN. v. YEARSLEY (1895), 22 A. R. 340.—CAN.

*b. — & fraud.]—*Pltf. sued deft. on a bond. Deft. contended that he did not execute the bond with free consent & that it was obtained from him under pressure of criminal proceedings:—Held: deft. was entitled to resist the claim made against him.—RANGNATH SAKHARAM v. GOVIND NARSING (1904), 1 L. R. 28 Bom. 639.—IND.

*c. For purpose of illegal association.]—*More than twenty persons paid each a sum monthly to a stakeholder. The sum total of the subscriptions was then paid over as a loan free of interest to one of the subscribers chosen by lot, & he was thereupon required to execute a bond obliging him to continue his monthly subscriptions to the end of the period for which the arrangement was agreed to hold good. The bonds were executed in favour of the stakeholder & the subscribers. The business was not registered:—Held: the obligees carried on a business which had for its object the acquisition of gain within Companies Act, 1882, s. 4, & the bond was illegal.—RAMASAMI

169. Indemnity to co-trustee—Against breach of trust—Misappropriation by co-trustee.]—A. being trustee with B. of a legacy of £10,000, applied to B. to be allowed to employ it in his private business, & B. gave his consent, on receiving from A. a bond of indemnity with a condition, that if A., his heirs, executors, etc., should, at all times, save, defend, & keep harmless & indemnified B., his heirs, etc., from all manner of actions, suits, causes of action & suit, proceedings, claims, demands, loss, costs, charges, damages, & expenses whatsoever, which should or might be brought, commenced, prosecuted, or made against them, or which they should bear, pay, suffer, sustain, expend, or be put unto by reason of the legacy, or the interest thereof, or on account of A.'s being permitted to hold same, the obligation was to be void. The legacy not having been accounted for or paid by A. to the cestuis que trust, the latter filed a bill against the exors. of A. & B., & obtained a decree, which declared that A. & B. had become jointly & severally liable to make good the legacy, & ordered them to do so. A charge had been carried in against the estate of B., but no sum had been paid with the exception of £10 for costs of suit:—Held: the bond was not illegal.—WARWICK v. RICHARDSON (1842), 10 M. & W. 284; 11 L. J. Ex. 351; 152 E. R. 477.

170. Executed in France—Formalities not observed.]—To debt on bond deft. pleaded that the bond was executed by him in France, where he was then domiciled, that it was not taken or passed by any public officer authorised by the laws of that kingdom, nor was it written throughout by the hand of deft., that, though deft. signed the bond with his own hand, he did not write thereon with his proper hand the formula styled in the French tongue a "bon" or "approuvé," bearing in words at length the sum secured, nor was deft. at the time a merchant or tradesman, etc., concluding that, "by reason of the premises, the bond, by the laws of France, never was obligatory or binding on deft., but always was of no force, effect, or validity:—"Held: the plea was bad, as being a mere argumentative & inferential statement of the French law, which, being pleadable only as matter of fact, ought to have been distinctly & affirmatively alleged.—BENHAM v. MORNINGTON (EARL) (1846), 3 C. B. 133; 15 L. J. C. P. 221; 7 L. T. O. S. 184; 10 Jur. 618; 136 E. R. 54.

171. To satisfy registered judgment—Purchase of mortgaged property—By discharged insolvent mortgagor.]—An insolvent mtgor., after his discharge from a mtge. debt of £1,000, agreed with the assignees of the mtgee. to give them £200 & a bond for payment of £800, the assignees agreeing to enter satisfaction of a registered judgment, to enable insolvent to dispose of other property. The bond was given & satisfaction entered. In an action on the bond, the jury having found that the arrangement was, that insolvent should purchase pltf.'s interest in the mortgaged premises & so get rid of the registered judgment:—Held: the bond was not void as being a new contract or security for payment of the original debt, within Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), s. 91.—AMBROSE v. COOK (1857), 2 H. & N. 73; 26 L. J. Ex. 278; 5 W. R. 533; 157 E. R. 31.

SECT. 1.—SIGNING, SEALING, TESTIMONIUM CLAUSE, AND PROOF.

172. Signature—Whether necessary—Common money bond.]—Signing, as well as sealing, a common bond for money is unnecessary.—Ex p. HODGKINSON (1815), 19 Ves. 291; Coop. G. 99; 34 E. R. 525, L. C.

173. ——— Erroneous—Bond sealed.]—A bond made by "R. Erlin" was signed "R. Erlwin":—Held: the variance was not material, because the subscribing was no essential part of the deed, sealing being sufficient.—CROMWELL v. GRUMSDEN (1698), 1 Ld. Raym. 335; Comb. 477; Holt, K. B. 502; 2 Salk. 462; 12 Mod. Rep. 193; 91 E. R. 1119; sub nom. CRUMWELL v. GRUNSDALE (1696), 5 Mod. Rep. 281.

174. ——— Of witness—Proof of.]—If the name of a fictitious person be put as a subscribing witness to a bond, proof of the party's handwriting is sufficient.—FASSET v. BROWN (1790), Peake, 33, N. P.

175. ——— ———.]—In debt on bond, if one of the attesting witnesses be dead & the other beyond the process of the ct., it is sufficient to prove the handwriting of the witness that is dead.—ADAM v. KERR (1798), 1 Bos. & P. 360; 126 E. R. 952.

Annotation:—Mentd. Andrew v. Motley (1862), 12 C. B. N. S. 514.

176. ——— After sealing—Presence of obligor.]—It is not necessary that the subscribing witness should see the obligor sign & seal the bond; it is sufficient if, after he has signed & sealed it, the witness is requested to put his name to it, in the presence of the obligor, & it is then stated that the obligor had executed it; & if he does so put his name to it, he is a good witness to prove the execution.—PARKE v. MEARS (1800), 2 Bos. & P. 217; 126 E. R. 1244.

177. Sealing—Wafer seal.]—A bond may be sealed with a wafer.—ANON. (1701), 12 Mod. Rep. 565; 88 E. R. 1523.

178. By party executing bond.]—A bond cannot be represented as sealed until the seal is put to it by the party executing it. Qu. whether, having sealed, he can be heard to say he has not delivered.—Ex p. HODGKINSON (1815), 19 Ves. 291; Coop. G. 99; 34 E. R. 525, L. C.

179. — Proof of.]—A witness to prove the execution of a bond did not recollect whether at the time it was executed it had any seal; & he swore that he did not read the attestation at the time when he witnessed the execution, but there being a seal at the time of the trial, & the bond itself saying "sealed with our seals":—Held: (1) there was sufficient proof; (2) the evidence would not have been sufficient, if there had been no seal on the bond at the time of the trial.—BALL v. TAYLOR (1824), 1 C. & P. 417, N. P.

180. — Presumption of—No mark, wafer, or seal visible.]—The exor. of testatrix discovered amongst her papers after her decease, which occurred in 1891, a bond dated in 1874, under the hand only of the obligor in the sum of £800, in favour of S., one of her nieces, conditioned for the transfer by the obligor in her lifetime, or by her exors. or administrators within six calendar months after her decease, into the name of S., for her separate use, or to her exors., administrators, or assigns, of the sum of £400 three per cent. consols, & the bond contained a proviso that if the obligor should by her will or any codicil thereto bequeath to or in favour of S. a sum of consols equal to or greater than such sum of £400 consols therein mentioned, then such sum should be deemed a satisfaction of the whole or part, as the case might be, of such sum of £400 consols. Although the bond bore the words "sealed with my seal," which preceded the date, & the attestation clause stated that the bond was "signed, sealed, & delivered" by the obligor, it did not appear that a seal had in fact ever been affixed, there being no mark, wafer, or seal visible on the face of the document. The bond was properly stamped. S. claimed to be entitled to enforce the bond against the estate of the obligor, as, the document being properly stamped, & purporting to have been sealed, & the attestation clause being in the usual form, there was prima facie evidence that the document had been duly sealed, & the ct. would presume that it had been sealed:—Held: the ct. could not, in the circumstances, presume that the bond had been sealed, & S., being a volunteer, was not entitled to enforce it.—Re SMITH, OSWELL v. SHEPHERD (1892), 67 L. T. 64, C. A.

181. Testimonium—Omission of—Bond sealed.]—A bond, if sealed, is good, although it wants the formal words "sealed with my seal" or "in witness whereof."—ANON. (1536), 1 Dyer, 19 a; 73 E. R. 41.

Annotation:—Reid. Core's Case (1536), 1 Dyer, 19 b.

182. — Incomplete—Sealing not mentioned.]—The testimonium of a bill obligatory was:—"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand." The obligor had signed & sealed the bill:—Held: the bill was good notwithstanding no mention of sealing was made in the testimonium of the bill.—PETERS v. FIELD (1627), Het. 75; 124 E. R. 354.

183. Filling up blanks.]—In proving the execution of a bond, it is not necessary that the attesting witness should be able to state that the blanks were filled up at the time of execution.—ENGLAND v. ROPER (1816), 1 Stark. 304, N. P.

184. Identity of obligor—Proof of.]—Evidence must be given of identity of the obligor of a bond with the party sued thereon, where the subscribing witness proves that he never saw deft. before or after he saw it executed.—LOGAN v. ALLDER (1832), 3 Tyr. 557, n.

SECT. 2.—DELIVERY.

185. Determines date.]—The date of a bond is the delivery of it.—PULLEIN v. BENSON (1698), 1 Ld. Raym. 349; Holt, K. B. 558; 2 Salk. 627; 12 Mod. Rep. 204; 91 E. R. 1130.

186. As escrow—Question for jury.]—Where a bond, executed with the usual formalities, was delivered, by mutual agreement between the obligor & obligee, into the hands of the subscribing witness, there to remain "until the death of A." who was named in the condition, "& until certain securities were returned to the obligor":—Held: it was for the jury to determine whether the bond was delivered as an escrow or as a deed.

A bond executed with the usual formalities may operate as a deed in presenti, though at the time of execution it is expressly agreed that it shall not take effect until a certain event has happened.—MURRAY v. STAIR (EARL) (1823), 2 B. & C. 82; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 278; 107 E. R. 313.

187. — To obligee.]—A bond cannot be delivered to the obligee as an escrow.—ASHFIELD v. WRENSFORD (1606), Jenk. 327; 145 E. R. 238.

g. — After signature.]—Defts., having signed the bond sued on, left in a hurry, without having it properly sealed, which was afterwards done, but it was clear they knew it to be a bond, & it was stated on its face to be under seal:—Held: the defence was not one to be favoured.—MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE CO. OF PRESCOTT v. PALMER (1861), 20 U. C. R. 441.—CAN.

h. — Question of fact.]—The bond contained the usual attestation clause as to signature & sealing, & deft. had acknowledged several times that he had executed a bond to J., but plff.'s son said he did not think the original which he saw was sealed. The copy from the Registry contained no indications of seal, & deft. denied that he had ever delivered a sealed bond to J. The question as to the sealing was left to the jury:—Held: the question was properly left to the jury.—HAZELL v. DYAS (1876), 2 R. & C. 36.—CAN.

183 i. Filling up blanks.]—A bond, executed in blank & left to be filled in by another who has no authority, is void.—R. v. MOLLOY (1864), 5 Nfld. L. R. 94.—NFLD.

k. Admission of execution—Effect.]—A bond must be produced at trial though execution thereof be admitted.—LESSLIE v. LEAHY (1837), 5 O. S. 482.—CAN.

PART IV. SECT. 2.

185 i. Determines date.]—A bond bore date Oct. 2, 1856, but was not executed until Sept. 6, 1858:—Held: the bond became operative from the day of execution, not from the day of date.—DICKEY v. HANNA (1859), 9 L. C. L. R. 446.—IR.

1. Delivery & sealing—Pleading.]—Sealing & delivery of a bond are put in issue by a plea that deft. "did not make & deliver any such bond," as that declared on.—HAZELL v. DYAS (1876), 2 R. & C. 36.—CAN.

188. Condition to be performed by obligee.]—A writing obligatory may be delivered as an escrow by the obligor to the obligee, to become the deed of the obligor when the obligee has performed the conditions under which the escrow was delivered; & the obligee cannot maintain an action upon it until these conditions are performed.—*HAWKSLAND v. 189. — To third person—Death of obligor before condition performed.]—The devisee for life of a rentcharge out of an estate devised in strict settlement assigned it to creditors as a collateral security. The tenant for life with intent to redeem the rentcharge for the annuitant gave bonds to the creditors on condition of giving up their securities to the annuitant to be cancelled. The exors. of the obligor paid all the bonds but one, which they disputed, because, though delivered by the obligor to a third person for the creditor when he should agree to accept it, it was not accepted till after death of obligor:—Held: the bond must be treated as an escrow to be delivered to the obligee upon the performance of the condition, so that though the obligor was dead before the condition was performed, the bond was good.—GRAHAM v. GRAHAM (1791), 1 Ves. 272; 30 E. R. 339.

190. By joint obligors—At different times.]—If two are bound jointly, & one of them delivers the deed at one time, & the other delivers it at another time, this is a good joint obligation.—ANON. (1486), Plowd. Qrs. 30, pl. 167; 75 E. R. 900.

192. By agent—Refused by obligee.]—A. executed a bond under seal & delivered it to B. to deliver to C. C. declined to accept it, but B. left it with him:—Held: C. could sue on the bond, & A. could not then plead that it was not his deed.—TAW v. BURY (1559), 2 Dyer, 167 a; Ben. & D. 75; 73 E. SECT. 3.—WHO MAY EXECUTE.

193. Joint bond—Executed by one.]—A bond purporting to be a joint obligation, though sealed by only one of the obligors is good against the party who executes it.—ANON. (1724), 11 Mod. Rep. 385; 88 E. R. 1104.

194. Action against one—Proof of execution.]—In an action upon an award, where the declaration averred a mutual submission of several persons by bond, —Held: (1) it was necessary that the execution by all should be proved, though the action was against one only; (2) it would be otherwise if the action were upon the bond, & the bond were joint & several, for then, though the submission might be joint, plffs. might declare upon the several bond, & the declaration would then be satisfied by proof of the execution by deft. alone.—FERRER v. OVEN (1827), 7 B. & C. 427; 1 Man. & Ry. K. B. 222; 6 L. J. O. S. K. B. 28; 108 E. R. 783.

196. Joint & several bond—Executed by one for both—Without authority.]—A. executed a bond as the joint & several bond of himself & B., & signed it "A. & B.," having no authority from B. so to do:—Held: the bond was good as the several bond of A.—*ELLIOT v. Bonds were prepared, but the joint & several bond by R. & J. to the bankers was never executed by R., but R. & Co., executed the bond of indemnity to J.:—Held: J. was not liable to the bankers upon the bond, as it had not been executed by R.—*BONSER v. PART IV. SECT. 3.

193 i. Joint bond—Executed by two.]—A bond, hearing to be granted by A., B. & C., was signed & delivered by B. & C.; A. was present at execution of the deed, but refused to sign it:—Held: B. was not entitled to repudiate the obligation on the ground that A. had not signed the deed.—CRAIG v. PATON (or BROWN) (1865), 4 Macph.

(Ct. of Sess.) 192.—SCOT.

193 ii. — — Pleading.]—Plffs. sued defts. H. & D. as having jointly executed a bond to secure payment of rent by H., it appeared that T. was also named in it as obligor but had not executed. He, at the execution of the bond was not present, & deft. D. told plff. that T. could not conveniently attend, but would sign it at any time. T., on being applied to by plffs., refused to execute, & no objection had been made by D., although aware of the refusal:—Held: non-execution by T. was no defence under a plea of non est factum by H., as showing a variance between the bond declared on & that set out.—SYDNEY ROAD CO. v. HOLMES (1858), 16 U. C. R. 268.—CAN.

Part V.—Interpretation.

SECT. 1.—ACCORDING TO INTENTION AND CIRCUMSTANCES.

199. General rule—Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.—A bond shall not be of no effect, if by any means it may be made good.—VERNON v. AISOP (1663), 1 Lev. 77; 1 Sid. 105; T. Raym. 68; 1 Keb. 356, 451; 83 E. R. 305.

Annotations :—Foll. Wells v. Ferguson (1708), 11 Mod. Rep. 191. Refd. Mills v. Wright (1677), Freem. K. B. 247.

200. Where intention clear.—The conditions of a bond should be interpreted according to the intent of the parties, if it can be made clear.—FERRERS v. NEWTON (1666), 1 Sid. 312; 82 E. R. 1126.

201. How intention ascertained—Recitals & conditions.—The intention of the parties ought to govern the ct. in making their decision, in order to discover which, the ct. must look at the recital of the condition of the bond.—BARCLAY v. LUCAS (1783), 1 Term Rep. 291, n.; 3 Doug. K. B. 321; 99 E. R. 676.

Annotations :—Consd. Dance v. Girdler (1804), 1 Bos. & P. N. R. 34; Weston v. Barton (1812), 4 Taunt. 673. Refd. Barker v. Parker (1786), 1 Term Rep. 287; Metcalf v. Bruin (1810), 12 East, 400. Mentd. Backhouse v. Hall (1865), 6 B. & S. 507.

202. ———.—The intention of the parties in executing a bond is to be ascertained by looking at the recital & condition of the bond, exclusively of the extraneous facts.

The intention of the parties to the instrument is to be the criterion, but that is in general to be ascertained from the words of the instrument. We may indeed look at the circumstances which occurred at the time, in order to understand what the parties were about; but when a bond has an express meaning in the words which it contains, we are not to admit any evidence to diminish or enlarge its meaning (COLERIDGE, J.).—LONDON ASSURANCE CO. v. BOLD (1844), 6 Q. B. 514; 14 L. J. Q. B. 50; 4 L. T. O. S. 112; 8 Jur. 1118; 115 E. R. 192.

Annotations :—Refd. Mills v. Alderbury Union Grdns. (1849), 3 Exch. 590; Montefiore v. Lloyd (1863), 15 C. B. N. S. 203.

203. ——— Surrounding circumstances.—In a bond for £200 the conditions were that if J., the obligor, should happen to die without issue of his body, & by his last will or during his lifetime should convey to W., the obligee, certain lands, or if J. solely or jointly with his wife or heir or heirs should not suffer or permit a recovery by writ of right, etc. of the lands, then the obligation to be void. W. died within the life of J. :—Held : (1) the conditions must receive an interpretation in accordance with the will of the parties to be collected from the surrounding circumstances, & they were not impossible or repugnant; (2) the obligor ought to enfeoff the heir of the obligee.—EATON v. BUTTER (1629), W. Jo. 180; Palm. 552; 81 E. R. 1216.

PART V. SECT. 1.

200 i. Where intention clear.—If the language of a bond read in its ordinary meaning is clear & intelligible the ct. cannot alter the language to give effect to the presumed intention of the parties.—MOORE v. ORFORD (1908), 27 N. Z. L. R. 577.—N.Z.

200 ii. ——— Explanatory evidence inadmissible.—A mtge. contained covenants on the part of A. & B. to repay a loan, & recited a collateral bond executed by them, & a bond executed by C. & D. to secure payment of the interest on the principal sum. In the latter bond, which was of even date with the mtge., the personal covenants in the mtge. were not recited, nor the collateral bond executed by A. & B. but the loan & conveyance were recited, & the bond proceeded in these terms : “Whereas C. & D. agreed to secure punctual payment of the interest thereon, so long as the sum loaned shall remain outstanding. Now, the condition is, that if C. & D. do & shall, so long as the principal, or any part thereof, shall be permitted to remain upon the said security, pay interest for thereon, then the foregoing obligation to be void” :—Held : there was not a latent ambiguity in the latter bond which would render evidence admissible to explain it.—FLEMING v. GREENE (1864), 13 L. T. 103.—IR.

n. Where apparent inconsistency.—The condition of a bond must be construed as a whole, & any apparent repugnance may be reconciled by giving it effect according to the intent apparent on the whole instrument.—NICOLLS v. MADILL (1850), 6 U. C. R. 415.—CAN.

204. ———.—A condition of a bond framed in general terms is to be construed with reference to the circumstances to which the bond is intended to apply.—STOUGHTON v. DAY (1647), Aleyn, 10; Sty. 18; 82 E. R. 887.

205. ——— Ambiguous condition.—Deft. executed a bond as surety to an insurance co. for the fidelity of A., who was appointed an agent of the co. at X., & who was about to & afterwards did enter into partnership, as merchants, with B., also an agent of the co. at that place. The condition of the bond was that, if A., his heirs, exors., etc., should well & truly pay & account for all money received by him, the obligation should be void :—Held : (1) the surrounding or “co-existing” circumstances were admissible for the purpose of explaining what might be ambiguous in the condition; (2) deft. was not responsible under the bond for money received by the firm of A. & B., notwithstanding he was aware at the time he signed the bond that A. was about to become partner with B.—MONTFIORE v. LLOYD (1863), 15 C. B. N. S. 203; 3 New Rep. 82; 143 E. R. 761.

Annotation :—Refd. Leathley v. Spyer (1870), L. R. 5 C. P. 595.

206. Where two constructions possible.—A condition in a bond, not to molest another in his land or goods, on any account whatsoever, shall be liberally construed to intend a tortious molestation only, but not to restrain the obligor from pursuing the obligee for felony or any other just cause, & the condition is not unlawful.—DOBSON v. CREW (1599), Cro. Eliz. 705; 78 E. R. 940.

207. ———.—Where a bond admits of two different constructions, the ct. will take it that way which is most reasonable to make the obligation stand in force.—WENTWORTH v. WENTWORTH (1650), Sty. 242; 82 E. R. 679.

Annotation :—Refd. Johnson v. Muller (1673), 3 Keb. 222.

SECT. 2.—CONSTRUCTION OF OBLIGATORY PART AND CONDITION.

208. Obligation—Construed against obligor—Payment on notice—Obligor to give notice.—A bond was conditioned to pay £50 on Jan. 10 next ensuing, on three months’ warning :—Held : the obligor was to give the warning, as the words must be taken most strongly against the obligor.—LAWSON v. WIDDRINGTON (1662), 1 Lev. 85; 1 Keb. 380, 415; T. Raym. 61; 83 E. R. 310.

209. ———.—The condition on a bond was to pay on May 2 at deft.’s house, giving thirty days’ notice. Deft. pleaded that pltf. did not give thirty days’ notice. Pltf. replied that if notice was necessary, debt. had to give it:—Held: either the provision requiring notice was void for uncertainty, or the obligor must give the notice, & judgment should be for pltf.—JOHNSON v. MULLER (1673), 3 Keb. 222; 84 E. R. 688.

210. — Construed in favour of obligor—Penalty.—The obligation in a bond, or under a covenant involving a penalty, ought to be construed most favourably for the obligor, or covenantor.—CHALONER v. DAVIS (1697), 1 Lut. 565; 125 E. R. 297.

211. Condition—Construed in favour of obligor.—Where an obligation is conditioned for the obligor to account or render himself to prison, the obligor has election.

A condition for the obligor to render himself Nov. 28 upon any action commenced, does not oblige him to render to an action commenced after.—STANLEY v. FEARNE (1683), 3 Lev. 137; 83 E. R. 617.

SECT. 3.—EFFECT OF RECITALS UPON OTHER TERMS.

212. On condition — Limitation.—The condition of a bond recited that the Postmaster-General had deputed T. to be deputy-postmaster for O. from June 24, 1667, for the term of six months following, & provided that if T. during all the time he should continue deputy-postmaster should faithfully execute & perform the duties of the office in accordance with his instructions, the obligation should be void. T. remained deputy-postmaster for more than three years after June 24, 1667. In an action on the bond for a default committed by T. on Sept. 22, 1670:—Held: the terms of the condition were limited by the recital, & the obligor was only bound for the six months.—ARLINGTON (LORD) v. MERRICKE (1672), 2 Saund. 411; 3 Keb. 45, 59; 85 E. R. 1221.

213. Condition general—Recital specific.—A bond, by a receiver of rents, reciting in the condition that he had agreed to collect rents for a certain co. for twelve months, & that the co. having required security for the due performance of the office in manner or to the effect after-mentioned A. had agreed to become surety for him, contained in the condition more general words binding him to faithful service during such time as he should be employed by the co. & their successors:—Held: the recital restrained the operation of the general words of the condition, & it was not forfeited by any breach of duty, after the expiration of twelve months.—LIVERPOOL WATERWORKS Co. v. ATKINSON (1805), 6 East, 507; 2 Smith, K. B. 654; 102 E. R. 1382.

Berwick-upon-Tweed Corp.* (1856), 5 H. L. Cas. 856; Danby v. Coutts (1885), 29 Ch. D. 500.

214. — Indemnity bond.—The extent of the condition of an indemnity bond may be restrained by the recitals, though the words of the condition import a larger liability than the recitals contemplate.—PEARSALL v. SUMMERSETT (1812), 4 Taunt 593; 128 E. R. 463.

Annotation:—Mentd. Britten v. Hughes (1829), 3 Moo. & P. 77.

215. — Bank overdraft.—Deft. as surety for A. & B. gave a bond with a condition, reciting that the obligees were bankers, & A. & B. paper manufacturers, & had overdrawn their account with the obligees £4,822, & in order to enable them to carry on their business, had applied to the obligees to allow them for a time to overdraw such further sums as they should require, so as that same, together with the £4,822, should not exceed in the whole at any one time £5,000, which the obligees had agreed to do, & the condition was for the payment by A. & B., & debt., or any of them, of £4,822, & also such further sums as the obligees should or might thereafter advance to A. & B. in the course of their business, not exceeding in the whole £5,000:—Held: not to be avoided by the obligees having allowed A. & B. to overdraw to an amount, together with the £4,822, exceeding £5,000, for the restrictive words in the recital were not to be construed as conditional that if the obligees exceeded the amount the bond should be void.—PARKER v. WISE (1817), 6 M. & S. 239; 105 E. R. 1232.

216. — Resp. with others gave a joint & several guarantee to applt. bank limited to £2,500 in respect of overdrafts by a customer. Subsequently he with others gave a joint & several bond reciting a desire for advances to the same customer over & above that amount, & securing repayment of the balance of account current. In an action brought both on the guarantee & bond, the former having been held to be invalid:—Held: the condition of the bond,

PART V. SECT. 3.

o. On condition.—A condition will not be restricted by the recital, unless the intention of the parties as apparent on the whole instrument requires it.—CANADA PERMANENT BUILDING & SAVINGS SOCIETY v. LEWIS (1859), 8 C. P. 352.—CAN.

214 i. — Limitation—Indemnity bond.—Pltf., as sheriff, sued debts. on a joint & several bond of indemnity given by them to indemnify him against all losses, etc., incurred in respect of the sale of property taken under a writ of execution, issued on a judgment recovered by debts. against W., the property having been claimed by D. under a bill of sale.

The bond of indemnity recited a "bill of sale, dated — day of Aug., 1883"; while judgment was recovered on a "bill of sale dated Aug. 1, 1881, or, in the alternative, under an assignment dated Jan. 12, 1883."

The condition of the bond bound debts. "from time to time & at all times hereafter, well & sufficiently, to save harmless & keep indemnified the sheriff . . . from & against all losses, costs, charges, damages & expenses . . . by reason of selling the said property so seized . . . & also from & against all actions . . . or any procedure at law or in equity, which now, or shall or may at any time be brought, commenced or prosecuted rightfully or wrongfully against the sheriff . . . for or by reason or means of the selling of the said property":—Held: the words of the condition were not controlled by the recital in such way as to limit the liability of debts. to a claim under the particular bill of sale therein mentioned.—BONNETT v. RITCHIE (1887), 20 N. S. R. (8 R. & G.) 228; 8 C. L. T. 396.—CAN.

being plainly to secure repayment of all money advanced by the bank & not merely those in excess of the £2,500, could not be controlled by any recital not plainly inconsistent therewith.—AUSTRALIAN JOINT STOCK BANK v. BAILEY, [1899] A. C. 396; 68 L. J. P. C. 95, P. C.

217. — Whether obligor excluded.]—The condition of a bond, after reciting that A. had filed a bill in Ch. against several persons, naming them, & debt., was, that debt. should pay all such costs as the Ct. of Ch. should award to all debts. to the bill:—Held: the construction of the condition was that debt. should pay the costs awarded to all or any of debts. except himself.—VESEY v. MANTELL (1842), 9 M. & W. 323; 11 L. J. Ex. 99; 152 E. R. 137.

218. — Change in mode of remuneration.]—Deft. as surety executed a bond to a railway co., which, after reciting that the co. had agreed to appoint L. as their clerk or agent, for the purpose of selling coal, at a yearly salary of £100, was conditioned for the due accounting by L. of all money received by him for the use of the co. Subsequently it was agreed between L. & the co. to substitute for such salary a commission of 6d. per ton on all coal for which he should obtain orders. L. having failed to pay to the co. sums which he had received:—Held: the condition of the bond was restrained by the recital, so that debt. as surety only undertook to be responsible for the faithful conduct of L. whilst he continued clerk at such fixed salary, & debt. was not liable after the change in the mode of remuneration.—NORTH WESTERN RY. Co. v. WHINRAY (1854), 10 Exch. 77; 23 L. J. Ex. 261; 23 L. T. O. S. 163; 2 C. L. R. 1207; 156 E. R. 363; sub nom. LONDON & NORTH WESTERN RY. Co. v. WHINRAY, 2 W. R. 523.

219. — Whether inconsistent—Rent merged in possession.]—Where pltf. sued on a bond conditioned that debt. should pay to pltf. £10, "which is for a rent of" certain lands:—Held: it was no defence that pltf. had entered upon the land and so suspended the rent, for this was but a recital that it was for rent, & was not material.—SAINT-JOHN v. DIGGS (1613), Hob. 130; 80 E. R. 279.

220. — Survivor of persons named.]—The condition of a bond, after reciting that A., B., & C. had filed a bill in equity against D. & E., was that the obligor would pay all such costs as the Ct. of Ch. should award "to defendants," on the hearing of the cause:—Held: the death of E., before any costs awarded, could not be pleaded in discharge of the bond, the intention being that the obligor should pay all such costs as should be awarded to those who at the hearing filled the character of debts.—KIPLING v. TURNER (1821), 5 B. & Ald. 261; 106 E. R. 1188.

221. — Seised in tail or for life only—Vesting in fee.]—A., & B., & C., his sureties, executed a mtge. bond, which recited that A. was seised in tail of certain premises, & was conditioned that a recovery should be suffered, so as & in such manner as that under & by virtue thereof, & of a release to make a tenant to the praecipe, also recited, a fee should be vested in D.:—Held: the legal effect of the bond was, that D. should have a fee, & A., being seised for life only, the bond was forfeited.—EDWARDS v. BROWN (1831), 1 Cr. & J. 307; 1 Tyr. 182; 9 L. J. O. S. Ex. 84; 148 E. R. 1436.

222. On obligation—Indemnity bond.]—The recital in the condition of an indemnity bond, professing to state the agreement between the parties, does not confine the responsibility of the sureties to the limits therein specified.—SANSOM v. BELL (1809), 2 Camp. 39, N. P.

223. — Obligation general—Recital specific.]—In construing an agreement in the form of a bond, in which a surety becomes liable for the due fulfilment of an agent's duties which are particularly enumerated, a general clause in the obligatory part of the bond must be interpreted strictly, & controlled by reference to the prior clauses specifying the extent of the agency.—NAPIER v. BRUCE (1842), 8 Cl. & Fin. 470; 8 E. R. 184, H. L.

224. On penalty—Limitation.]—Deft., with two others, entered into a bond in the penal sum of £1,000 conditioned for the payment of rent, observance of covenants, etc.; the bond recited (inter alia) that pltf. & debt. had agreed to execute a bond in the penalty of £500, for the payment of rent, observance of covenants, etc. Upon action on the bond first mentioned, & verdict for pltf. for £750 due for rent, upon motion to reduce the verdict to £500, the penalty in the second bond agreed to be executed:—Held: the penalty of the bond, on which pltf. sued, could not be cut down or restricted by the penalty of the bond to which the recital was alleged to refer.—INGLEBY v. SWIFT (1833), 10 Bing. 84; 3 Moo. & S. 488; 2 L. J. C. P. 261; 131 E. R. 837.

SECT. 4.—TRANSPOSAL AND REJECTION OF WORDS AND SUPPLY OF ACCIDENTAL OMISSIONS.

225. Words transposed—Condition unintelligible.]—The condition of a bond was to pay £7 by 2s. a week until all was paid, & if there was failure in payment of the 2s. on any of the days it ought to be paid, the obligation to be void, or

222 i. On obligation.]—The condition of a bond recited a demise of premises by articles of Oct. 5 from A. to C. to hold for one year at a weekly rent payable "during said term," & the condition was, that if C. should keep all the covenants, etc., on his part, "in said articles of agreement above recited," the bond to be void. The articles referred to, varied in some respects from those recited in the condition of the bond. Breaches were assigned in the non-payment of rent for many weeks after the term expired:—Held: (1) the case was not to be considered upon the articles, but upon the recital of them in the condition of the bond; (2) upon the condition & recital C. was not answerable for breaches committed after the first year.—MANDERS v. LAWLER (1826), Batt. 191.—IR.

223 i. — Obligation general—Recitals specific.]—A bond given as security for costs, under Election Petitions Act, 1880, s. 4 (5), was prepared in a form to meet the case of a petition by more than one person. The recitals were altered before execution so as to refer to a petition by one petitioner only, whose name was given; but the condition was left in the form that if the petitioners, or any of them, should pay all costs in respect of the petition signed by them, then the obligation should be void, but otherwise should remain in full force:—Held: this was a mere blunder which could not prevent the enforcement of the bond.—WAIRARAPA ELECTION PETITION, [1897] 15 N. Z. L. R. 471.—N.Z.

PART V. SECT. 4.

225 i. Words transposed—Or rejected—Insensible words.]—In order to support the condition of a bond, the ct.

else to remain in full force :—Held : the condition should be taken distributively by referring particulars to particulars, viz., if he paid the £7 the obligation should be void, but if he failed to pay 2s. at any of the days, it should be in full force.—*VERNON v. 227. Words rejected — Condition unintelligible.]—The condition of a bond was that it should be void, if the obligor did not pay, & performance being pleaded on the ground of the literal expression :—Held : the palpable mistake of a word should not defeat the true intention of the parties.—ANON. (undated), cited in 1 Doug. K. B. at p. 384; 99 E. R. 247.

228. ———.]—The condition of a bond was as follows :—“That whereas the above bounden, etc., shall & will, etc., where same should have been, if the above bounden, etc., shall & will, etc.” :—Held : this was a void condition, the same being altogether insensible, & not compulsory, as the same ought to be, & so the obligation was single, & without condition.—MARKER v. HARDMAN (1602), Cro. Eliz. 886; 78 E. R. 111.

233. ———.]—The condition of a bond was as follows :—“The condition of this obligation is such that if the above-bounden W. be, etc., then the condition of this obligation to be void & of none effect, or else same to be in full power & virtue :—Held : the words “the condition of” might be rejected as repugnant.—MAULEVERER v.

235. Words supplied—Omission in obligation.]—The condition of a bond recited that A. was indebted to B. in various sums of money, which were all stated in pounds sterling, & money of a smaller denomination, & that the bond was given to secure payment of those sums. In the obligatory part of the bond the word pounds was omitted; it merely stated that the obligor became bound in 7,700, without stating what description of money :—Held : from the condition the intent manifestly was, that the obligor should become bound in 7,700 pounds, & the word pounds might be supplied.—*COLES v. SECT. 6.—EFFECT OF INDORSEMENT OR COLLATERAL MEMORANDUM.

261. Indorsement—Of condition—After execution.—A memorandum by way of condition indorsed on a bond after sealing & delivery is not part of his bond; for if anything may be part of the condition it ought to be written before the sealing & delivery, but it is no condition if it be written after.

Even if the indorsement had been written before the sealing & the delivery, it would have been no good condition.—TAYLOR'S CASE (1627), 11 Ct. 136; 124 E. R. 404.

262. — Limiting condition—Made before sealing.—The condition of a bond was to save harmless certain lands from all incumbrances made by the obligor, & on the back of the bond there was also a memorandum written that the condition did not extend to an extent on a statute made by the obligor to a certain person. The extent having been enforced, the obligee brought an action of debt on the bond:—Held: the memorandum was part of the condition joined to it, as an exception indorsed on the bond before sealing by way of explanation of the intention of the parties.—BROKE v. SMITH (1602), Moore, K. B. 679; 72 E. R. 835.

263. — Right to sue—Before execution.—

—A bond was conditioned that the obligor should indemnify the obligee from all the sums the latter should pay, or be liable to pay, on the obligor's account, & before the execution of the bond a memorandum was thereon indorsed, that the obligee "has given an undertaking not to sue upon the bond until after the obligor's death":—Held: the memorandum was to be taken as part of the condition, & made the bond in effect payable only by the representatives of the obligor after his death.—BURGH v. PRESTON (1800), 8 Term Rep. 483; 101 E. R. 1503.

264. — Extending condition—Time for award—Submission rule of court.—

Two parties submitted to arbn. by bond, & agreed therein that the submission to the award should be made a rule of ct. Afterwards, by a memorandum indorsed on the bond, after the time of making the award had expired, they agreed that the time for an umpire to make his umpirage should be extended to a future day, but without expressly mentioning that such new submission should be made a rule of ct.:—Held: the memorandum was a virtual incorporation of all the terms of the bond not inconsistent therewith, & must be taken as containing an agreement to make the submission a rule of ct., under Arbitration Act, 1698 (c. 15).—EVANS v. THOMSON (1804), 5 East, 189; 1 Smith, K. B. 380; 102 E. R. 1042.

266. — Qualifying obligation—Payment of interest.—A son, being indebted to his father upon a bond for £1,000 & interest, subsequently joined his father, as surety, in a bond for £500 & interest, given by the father to a third party, & a memorandum was then indorsed upon the bond for £1,000, by which it was agreed between the father & son that the son should not be called on to pay the within-mentioned £1,000 until the father should have paid all principal money & interest due on the bond for £500:—Held: the indorsement did not affect the interest accruing due upon the bond for £1,000, & after the deaths of the father & son, the personal representative of the father might file a bill against the real & personal representatives of the son, praying for immediate payment of the interest on the bond for £1,000, & for payment of the principal when the principal & interest on the bond for £500 should have been paid.—REED v. NORRIS (1837), 2 My. & Cr. 361; 40 E. R. 678, L. C.

267. Collateral memorandum—Letter of obligee—Time of payment—Payment of interest.]—At the time of executing a bond to secure a sum of money the obligors procured a letter from the obligee, stating his intention not to call in the money within a specified period, if the interest were regularly paid:—Held: the letter was a binding undertaking.—NORTON v. WOOD (1830), 1 Russ. & M. 178; 39 E. R. 69

268. — Letter of obligee's agent—Implied authority.]—S., the commander of one of the East India Coy.'s ships, on his arrival at Madras in 1832, reported his arrival to the Govt. Board, & that Board, by their secretary, desired him to place himself under the orders of the Marine Board. The Marine Board entered into a treaty with him for the sale to him of a quantity of cotton, the property of the Govt. Board, & he made a proposal to the Marine Board for the purchase of it, which proposal was communicated by the Marine Board, through their secretary, to the Govt. Board. The Govt. Board, by a letter of their secretary to the Marine Board, accepted the proposal with the additional term, that the cotton might occupy the tonnage of the ship, or such part of it as S. might please, "he holding himself subject to the payment of such freight as the coy. shall see fit to demand, for which he must be required to enter into a sufficient agreement." This was communicated to S. by the secretary of the Marine Board, when S. immediately objected to the latter term, & said "that he would not take the cotton if he was to pay any freight for it." Some days then elapsed, when a bond was presented to him for execution, binding him (inter alia) to pay freight for the cotton according to the letter of the Govt. Board. He objected to sign the bond, although the secretary of the Marine Board told him that the clause as to freight was inserted as a matter of form only, & that it would not be enforced against him, stating also, that he should have an official letter to that effect. Accordingly the Marine Board, by their secretary, wrote a letter, inclosing the bond for execution, & containing the following clause: "You will be allowed the usual privilege tonnage, & no freight will be charged on the cotton purchased by you from the Govt., as it will be laden in a portion of the co.'s three-fifths, nearly the whole of which is unoccupied." S. thereupon executed the bond:—Held: (1) S. was justified in presuming that the Marine Board had the authority of the Govt. Board for writing that letter, & of considering himself safe from the legal effect of the bond; (2) the bond should be controlled by that letter.—SMITH v. EAST INDIA CO. (1848), 16 Sim. 76; 17 L. 269. — As to bank overdraft & interest.]—The condition of a bond executed by C. & deft. recited that C. had opened, & then kept & proposed to continue to keep, an account with a banking co., of which pltf. was the registered officer, & that for the security of the bank it had been arranged that C. & deft. should execute the bond. The condition was for payment by C. & deft., or one of them, on demand, etc., of all such sums not exceeding in the whole £1,000, as should from time to time be due & owing on account of cash & bills, etc., & for payment of charges & advances for interest, etc., as usually charged by bankers. At the time of execution of the bond by deft., the balance due from C. was £978 4s. 11d., & that sum formed the commencement of the account secured by the bond, & was continued for several years. When deft. received the bond from the bank she objected that it might make her liable beyond the £1,000, & thereupon it was suggested, by the bank, that if the balance exceeded £1,000 at their half-yearly accounts they should require it to be reduced, or that the amount should be limited to £950, which would leave a sufficient margin for interest, etc. In consequence of deft. still refusing to execute the bond, a memorandum was given her, & annexed to the bond, to the following effect: "C.'s advance to be limited to £950, & [deft.] to be informed if the amount, with interest, shall reach £1,000 & not be reduced within a month." Upon the faith of that, deft. signed the bond. On many occasions the limit of £950 was exceeded; on three occasions the amount of £1,000 was exceeded, without deft. having been informed of it, though it was not reduced within a month, & on one occasion at the half-yearly account, the amount was £1,004 10s. 1d., but was within two days reduced to £1,000. An action having been brought upon the bond to recover from deft. £996 12s. 11d., together with interest & commission usually charged by bankers:—Held: (1) the bond did not become inoperative by reason of an advance beyond the stipulated sum, & the words "not exceeding," etc., did not raise any condition or restriction against the bank giving C. a larger credit; (2) the meaning of the memorandum was, that £950 should be substituted for £1,000, as the sum which deft. was bound to pay as principal money under the bond; (3) the above facts could not be relied upon as raising an equitable defence to the action.—GORDON v. RAE (1858), 8 E. & B. 1065; 27 L. J. Q. B. 185; 31 L. T. O. S. 55; 4 Jur. N. S. 530; 120 E. R. 396. Annotation:—Mentd. Price v. Kirkham (1864), 3 H. & C. 437.

SUB-SECT. 1.—PAYMENT.

270. Time—Omission of "annually."]—The condition of a bond was that the obligor should pay the obligee 100 marks during the seven years next ensuing at certain feasts in equal portions. The obligor paid 100 marks during the seven years:—Held: although the intention was that the obligor should pay 100 marks each year, yet the want of the word "annually" freed him from paying more than 100 marks altogether.—ANON. (1549), Berl. 6; 73 E. R. 935.

PART V. SECT. 6.

r. Collateral memorandum—Varying condition.]—To an action on a bond deft. cannot set up as a defence a separate agreement not under seal, varying the condition from that which the bond itself imports, & alleged to have been entered into at the same time with the making of the bond.—CRAMER v. HODGSON (1846), 3 U. C. R.

174.—CAN.

a. Verbal agreement—Before execution—Varying construction.]—A bond recited that D. had been appointed agent of A. The condition of the bond was that D. should from time to time & at all times thereafter, faithfully execute the office of agent to A. & pay over all moneys, etc. There was a verbal agreement between

A. & D. before making the bond that the latter's appointment was to be for a year. In an action on the bond:—Held: the verbal agreement, that the agency was to be for a year, was at variance with the construction of the bond.—CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE CO. v. CALKINS (1884), 24 N. B. R. 276.—CAN.

Sect. 7.—Of particular terms: Sub-sects. 1 & 2.]

271. — “February 29 next following.”]—The condition of a bond was that A. should deliver to B. twenty quarters of corn Feb. 29 next following. The next Feb. had but twenty-eight days:—Held: A. was not bound to deliver the corn until such a year as was leap year.—ANON. (1588), 1 Leon. 101; 74 E. R. 94.

272. — Day & month “next ensuing.”]—A bond dated Oct. 13, 1589, to pay £20, of “lawful English money which shall be in 1599, in & upon Oct. 13 next ensuing the date hereof” must be construed to mean Oct. 13 in 1599.—SHARPLUS v. HANKINSON (1595), Cro. Eliz. 420; Gouldsb. 187; 78 E. R. 661.

Annotation:—Refd. Graves v. Ashenhurst (1673), Freom. K. B. 77.

273. — —.]—If a bond bear date May 1, conditioned to pay money on May 15 “next ensuing,” this shall have relation to the day & not to the month.—PRESCOT v. — (1622), Cro. Jac. 646; 79 E. R. 558.

Annotation:—Refd. Buckley v. Guildbank (1623), Cro. Jac. 678.

274. — —.]—A bond dated May 5 was conditioned for the obligor to pay £20 on May 11 “next ensuing”:—Held: the eleventh day of the same May was meant, & not the next May.—ANON. (1622), 2 Roll. Rep. 255; 81 E. R. 783.

275. — —.]—If an agreement be made on May 23, to lend money for a year at legal interest, & the lender take a bond of that date for payment of principal & interest on May 24 “next ensuing,” it shall not be construed usurious, if it appear to be a mere mistake of the scrivener, & not a usurious intention in the parties, for the words “next ensuing” shall refer to the month & not to the day.—BUCKLEY v. GUILDBANK (1623), Cro. Jac. 678; 79 E. R. 587.

Annotation:—Refd. Murray v. Harding (1773), 2 Wm. Bl. 859.

276. — Day & month “next following.”]—In debt on a bond dated Mar. 20, to pay Mar. 28 “then next following,” it shall be intended, after verdict, to mean the current month.—LISTER v. STANLEY (1674), 1 Mod. Rep. 112; 3 Keb. 291; 86 E. R. 771.

277. Annuity—After fixed sum—Limitation of payments.]—The condition of a bond was to pay £15 on Michaelmas Day next following & £15 annually on Michaelmas Day until H., pltf.’s chaplain, were advanced to a benefice. H. was advanced to a benefice before the first Michaelmas Day:—Held: the obligor was bound to pay the first £15, for the limitation, “until he were advanced, etc.” went only to the other subsequent payments.—WARWICK (COUNTESS) v. COVENTRY (BP.) (1596), Cro. Eliz. 549; 2 And. 65; Noy, 64; 78 E. R. 795.

278. — Until induction to living.]—A bond for performance of a covenant to pay an annuity, until a person should be in the enjoyment of a benefice which he might hold during his life of the yearly value of £600:—Held: to be satisfied by his induction to a living of that value, accompanied by a bond to resign in favour of either of two sons of the patron when qualified to take it, but liberty given to take the opinion of a ct. of law.—Ex p. RAINIER, ROWLATT v. ROWLATT (1820), 1 Jac. & W. 280; 37 E. R. 382, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Fletcher v. Sondes (1827), 1 Bl. N. S. 144.

Validity of resignation bonds, see Part III., Sect. 3, sub-sect. 4, ante.

279. — Until sufficiently provided for.]—A grandfather, in consideration of a bond from the father to grant him an annuity of £50 during his life, entered into a counter bond with the father conditioned for payment to the son of a like annuity “in case he was not sufficiently provided for during the life of the grandfather, exclusive of any allowance from his father.” The son obtained, through some other interest, a place in the Ordnance office, with a salary exceeding the amount of the annuity:—Held: that was not a sufficient provision within the bond, being an office only during pleasure, whereas the provision in the contemplation of the parties must have been one of a permanent nature.—PECHE v. SMITH (1817), 3 Mer. 312; 36 E. R. 120.

280. — To mother & children jointly—Death of child.]—The father of two illegitimate children executed a bond conditioned for payment of an annuity of £30 for the support of them & their mother during their joint natural lives or, in case of the death of the children, during the natural life of the mother. One of the children having died:—Held: the exor. of the obligor was liable on the bond for the arrears of the annuity accruing after the death of that child, on the ground that it was the manifest intention that the annuity should be payable at all events during the life of the mother.—JAMES v. TALLENT (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 889; 1 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 548; 106 E. R. 1416.

281. — To wife after death of husband.]—R. executed a bond conditioned for payment of an annuity of £250, in case C., the intended wife of J., should survive him, for her use, provided J. should hold a commission in the army at the time of his death, & there should be issue of the marriage then living. C. & several children survived J., who at the time of his death held a commission as colonel in the army, but received no pay in respect thereof, though he was liable to be called into service:—Held: the annuity was payable to his widow during her life.—GREY v. GREY (1843), 12 L. J. Ch. 458.

282. By instalments—Penalty—Separate obligations.]—A bond to pay by instalments, “& for payment hereof I bind myself in £10 nomine pence”:—Held: two several obligations.—ANON. (1600), Cro. Eliz. 771; 78 E. R. 1002.

283. — — Default.]—The condition in a bond required by a loan society from borrowers of money, to secure repayment, provided that when & so often as the borrower should make default in payment of any of the monthly instalments, he should pay to the society 1s. in the pound for each & every pound of the instalment so left unpaid. The society claimed not only 1s. in the pound, for the month in which default was made, but for all subsequent months during which it remained unpaid, & also 1s. in the pound for every fractional part of a pound:—Held: they were entitled only to 1s. in the pound for the month in which default was made, & they could take nothing on the fraction of a pound.—THREE TOWNS BRITISH MUTUAL DEPOSIT & LOAN SOCIETY LTD. v. DOYLE (1862), 13 C. B. N. S. 290; 1 New Rep. 26; 7 L. T. 276; 11 W. R. 22; 143 E. R. 116.
Amount recoverable generally, see Part VIII., post.

284. To what person—Executors—Includes administrators.]—A bond was conditioned for payment after M.’s death to his exors. M. died without exors.:—Held: “exors.” comprehended “administrators,” & payment must be made to his administrators.—MANNINGHAM’S CASE (1628), Het. 115; 124 E. R. 386.

285. — To daughter if no son—Posthumous son—Relief in equity.]—A. gave a bond to pay

£900 to his daughter in case he should have no son living at the time of his decease, & he died, his wife being great with a son:—Held: in equity the daughter should not have the £900, for although there was no son living at his decease, so that it was not recoverable at law, yet it could not be presumed to be A.'s intention, that if a son were born after his decease the daughter should run away with the estate.—GIBSON v. GIBSON (1698), 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 184; Freem. Ch. 223; 22 E. R. 159. Annotation:—Reid. Villar v. Gilbey, [1907] A. C. 139.

286. "Payments" under lease—Includes rent.]—Debt upon bond to make all payments & perform all covenants & conditions of a lease, to which the bond was collateral. Breach that rent was not paid:—Held: "payments" implied rent, & pltf. was entitled to judgment.—POLSON v. WARREN (1628), Palm. 490; 81 E. R. 1186.

287. Advances on shares.]—In the condition of a bond it was recited that pltfs. were shareholders in the S. co., that 30 per cent. had been paid by instalments upon the shares, that pltfs. had agreed to pay up the remaining instalments forthwith, that M., W., & H. had agreed to purchase the shares, & that the price was to be secured by the joint bond of M. & deft. The condition of the bond was, that M. & deft. should pay pltfs. the amount of the shares, together with interest thereon from the time of the advance or payment thereof by pltfs. Pltfs. being also shareholders & treasurers of the P. co., which co. was indebted to them in £12,000, prevailed on the S. co. to purchase the pipes of the P. co.; & to effect payment for the pipes, pltfs., without any calls having been made, entered up in their books as paid, the remaining 70 per cent. due on the S. co.'s shares, & having made the entry, paid the P. co., deducting & transferring to their own account, enough to discharge the debts due from the P. co. to themselves. In an action against deft. for the sum claimed in respect of the sale of the shares of the S. co., the jury having found for pltfs.:—Held: pltfs. had advanced or paid the money for the shares, within the terms of the condition of the bond, & new trial refused.—EVERETT v. EYRE (1824), 2 Bing. 166; 9 Moore, C. P. 326; 3 L. J. O. S. C. P. 238; 130 E. R. 269.

288. On future event—Option.]—Debt on bond. The condition, after reciting that the obligor was about to marry with A., a widow, & thereby to become possessed of a stock-in-trade, & it was agreed that he should execute a bond to pay to the children of A. by her late husband £300 within twelve months after her death, in the event thereafter specified, was, that "if the obligor should, within twelve months after the decease of A. pay to her children £300, if, upon an account taken, the stock-in-trade & effects in the business, if then carried on by the obligor, should amount to £400, but in case, upon such account to be taken, the stock-in-trade should amount to less than £400, then if the obligor should pay to the children of A. £120, the bond should be void." Plea, that long before the death of A. the obligor retired from & ceased to carry on the trade:—Held: the true construction of the condition of the bond was, that the obligor had an option to continue or discontinue the trade during the life of A., & he having discontinued it, the event on which the money was to come to the children of A. had never happened, & the plea was good.—BESWICK v. SWINDELLS (1835), 3 Ad. & El. 868; 5 Nev. & M. K. B. 378; 5 L. J. Ex. 287; 111 E. R. 643, Ex. Ch.

289. Amount recoverable—Mistake in calculation.]—A bond with a penalty of £288 was conditioned for delivery of 35,000 tiles to the value of £144 at 15s. 6d. a thousand. The number of tiles at the price mentioned did not amount to that sum, & was inserted in mistake for 185,000:—Held: it being plain that the intent was to satisfy a debt of £144, the bond was good for that sum.—HOLMES v. IVY (1678), 2 Show. 15; 89 E. R. 764.

290. — Foreign money.]—Upon a bond in which a foreigner binds himself by his description as a foreigner in so much "legalis monetae prae dictae" with a condition for the payment of foreign money, he is only bound in foreign money.—BASS v. FIRMEN (1701), 1 Ld. Raym. 697; 91 E. R. 1364. Annotation:—Mentd. Melchart v. Halsey (1771), 3 Wils. 149.

291. — Loans by five bankers—Further advances by four survivors.]—A bond conditioned to repay to five persons all sums advanced by them or any of them in their capacity of bankers, will not extend to sums advanced after the decease of one of the five by the four survivors, the four then acting as bankers.—WESTON v. BARTON (1812), 4 Taunt. 673; 128 E. R. 495.

292. — Dues to Lincoln's Inn—Non-practising barrister.]—Under a bond conditioned for due payment to the society of Lincoln's Inn of all such sums as should from time to time become due & payable, according to the customs & orders of the society, the obligor cannot dispute such payments as were, at the time of the execution of the bond, considered as dues to the society, although he has not lived in the Inn or practised at the Bar.—ROSSLYN (LORD) v. JODRELL (1815), 4 Camp. 303; 1 Stark. 148.

SUB-SECT. 2.—INDEMNITY.

293. Upon proof of loss—After demand.]—Where deft. gave a bond undertaking that if his son, apprenticed to pltf., embezzled any of pltf.'s property, he would pay same to pltf. within three months after demand, upon due proof thereof:—Held: the proof preceded payment, & pltf. was not entitled to sue until three months after proof & notice to deft.—COKAIN v. GOODLAGE (1810), 1 Bulst. 40; 80 E. R. 744.

294. Incumbrance—Grant of presentation—Ouster.]—A. granted the presentation to a church to pltf., & gave him a bond conditioned to make good the grant from all incumbrances made, or to be made, by him & his heirs. On A.'s death, the church becoming void, A.'s heir presented:—Held: (1) such tortious presentation was no breach of the condition, which extended only to lawful disturbances by the heir, who in the present case had no right to present; (2) if the condition had been that he should peaceably enjoy from any act, or acts, made by him or his heirs, a tortious disturbance would have been a breach of the condition.—HUNT v. ALLEN (1621), Win. 25; 124 E. R. 21.

295. — By third party—Wrongful entry.]—The condition of a bond, which recited the purchase from W. by pltfs. of land, was to save them & the land harmless from all manner of mtges., judgments, extents, executions, & other incumbrances, had & obtained, or thereafter to be had & obtained, by T., or any other person:—Held: it bound the obligor against the wrongful entry of T., being particular against the acts of a particular person.—

296. Debts by wife after separation.]—Declaration on bond. Plea that it was conditioned for performance of covenants, which were to indemnify the obligee from alimony & debts incurred by his wife after their separation, & that deft. had performed the covenant. Replication that a judgment was recovered against the obligee by a creditor of his wife, & he paid the debt & costs, of which deft. had notice:—Held: (1) deft. was liable for the costs as the debt paid by pltf. for the covenant to indemnify was general, & it was not necessary for pltf. to give notice that an action was commenced; (2) if it had been necessary, pltf. must have recovered on the pleadings, for deft. had admitted notice.—DUFFIELD v. SCOTT (1789), 3 Term Rep. 374; 100 E. R. 628.

SUB-SECT. 3.—PERFORMANCE OF AGREEMENT OR COVENANTS.

297. Waste.]—In debt upon a bond the condition was to perform all covenants & agreements. Pltf. had covenanted with deft. that it should be lawful for deft. to cut down wood for firebote & hedgebote without making any waste or cutting more than was necessary; the breach of covenant, which was the covenant of pltf., assigned was committing waste:—Held: the condition was broken, for it was the agreement of the lessee, although it was the covenant of the lessor, pltf.—STEVINSON'S CASE (1589), 1 Leon. 324; 74 E. R. 295.

Annotations:—Consd. Saltoun v. Houstoun (1824), 1 Bing. 433; Iven v. Elwes (1854), 3 Drew. 25.

298. Proviso to covenant—Payment.]—The condition of a bond was for the performance of all covenants, payments, articles & agreements comprised in a specified deed. The deed was a deed of feoffment whereby deft. in consideration of £110 had infeoffed pltf. of certain land, with a proviso that on payment of money at such a day the deed should be void, & he might re-enter. Pltf. assigned as a breach that deft. did not pay the money at the day named according to the proviso:—Held: the bond was not forfeited by non-payment of the money at the day, for there was no covenant in the deed to pay money, the proviso merely giving deft. the option to get the land back on paying the money if he chose, so that there was not a "payment" within the covenant.—BRISCOE v. KING (1611), Cro. Jac. 281; 79 E. R. 241.

SUB-SECT. 4.—MISCELLANEOUS TERMS.

299. To deliver possession on request—Assignment to joint tenants—Request by one.]—Where the condition of a bond was that R. should deliver possession of a farm to pltf. or his assigns, upon being requested by pltf. or his assigns, & pltf. assigned his reversion to two joint tenants:—Held: a request by one joint tenant was sufficient.—LINGEN v. PAYN (1617), J. Bridg. 128; 123 E. R. 1250.

300. Maintenance—Action against obligee.]—Where deft. bound himself not to assist a certain person in any actions brought by him against pltf.:—Held: (1) the bond applied only to maintaining such person in his proper suits against pltf., & not to a case in which pltf. had sued deft. & such person jointly, & deft. & such person had afterwards brought a writ of error; (2) deft. might have bound himself by express words not to bring a writ of error, but the law would not imply such a term on such general words as those used.—LAMB v. THOMPSON (1618), Hob. 304; Hut. 40; 80 E. R. 448.

301. Bailiff's returns of warrants—Executed within hundred.]—A bond recited that pltf. was sheriff of S. & had made T. his bailiff of the hundred of B. Condition that if he should execute his office, etc., & make true returns of all warrants directed to him, then, etc.:—Held: though the words of the condition were general, to make return of all warrants directed to him, they must be taken to mean only such warrants as were to be executed within the hundred of which he was made bailiff.—STOUGHTON v. DAY (1647), Aleyn, 10; Sty. 18; 82 E. R. 887.

302. Friendly society committee—Split in society—Two committees.]—By one of the original rules of a friendly society it was ordered that the meetings should be held at a certain public-house, & the club box, containing the society's money, securities, etc., was deposited in the hands of deft., the master of the inn, who entered into a bond to the clerk of the peace, with condition that he, his heirs, etc., would at any time thereafter, when required to do so by a majority of the society at one of their annual, or quarterly meetings, or by their committee for the time being, return & deliver to the committee for the time being of the society, for the use of the society, the society's box, & all their securities, etc., which should have been deposited therein, or otherwise delivered to deft. for the use of the society, uninjured, & in the same manner, plight, & condition that same were, or should be in, when so delivered to him, etc., & likewise would render a just & true account according to the rules, orders & regulations of the society, & of 33 Geo. 3, c. 54. All the members of the society, except twenty-seven or twenty-eight, who continued to assemble at the old house, & appointed a second committee out of their number, removed their meetings to another inn, in pursuance of a resolution carried by them at an extraordinary general meeting, convened at the first house by the legally appointed committee for the time being, & of which six days' public notice had been given, but deft. refused to deliver up the box to the same committee, who had made a formal requisition of it, broke it open, & took out the contents. In an action against him on the bond for the non-delivery:—Held: he had committed a breach in refusing to deliver up the box, etc., to the committee, for the time being, who were, in the circumstances, authorised in demanding it, & the last words of the condition were not to be connected with their demand.—WYBERGH v. AINLEY (1824), M'Cle. 669; 148 E. R. 280.

303. Termination of liability—Specific notice.]—A bond given to secure an account contained a provision that a month's notice in writing might be given by the obligors, "or their respective representatives," in order to determine the liability. Notice of the death of an obligor was given by his exor. to the holders of the bond, but no special notice was given to determine the liability, of which the exor. was wholly unaware:—Held: the word “representatives” included “legal personal representatives,” & as the special notice contemplated by the bond had not been given, the estate of the deceased obligor was liable for his contribution under the bond.—Re SILVESTER, MIDLAND RY. CO. v. SILVESTER, [1895] 1 Ch. 573; 64 L. J. Ch. 390; 72 L. T. 283; 43 W. R. 443; 39 Sol. Jo. 333; 13 R. 448.

304. Trust.—A mother gave a bond to her son, conditioned to surrender a copyhold estate to him, of which she was heir:—Held: she was a trustee for her son.—ALISON'S CASE (1723), 9 Mod. Rep. 62; 88 E. R. 317.

305. “Debt.”—Common Law Procedure Act, 1854 (c. 125).—D., having induced C. to sue J., gave C. a bond for £200, conditioned for payment to J. of such costs as C. should be liable to pay in case he should be defeated in such suit. A non-suit was entered in the action, & the costs of J. were taxed at £199 1s. 10d.:—Held: the bond was a mere covenant of indemnity, & the penalty therein named, being for an unliquidated amount, did not constitute a “debt” within ss. 61, 64, of the Act, so that it might be attached by J.—JOHNSON v. DIAMOND (1855), 11 Exch. 73; 24 L. J. Ex. 217; 25 L. T. O. S. 85; 1 Jur. N. S. 938; 3 W. R. 407; 3 C. L. R. 1010; 156 E. R. 750; subsequent proceedings, 11 Exch. 431.

306. Bond to Crown under 33 Hen. 8, c. 39.—By a bond given to the Crown under the above Act all the lands of the obligor are bound from its date, & as such bond is a voluntary act, the obligor cannot by mortgaging any portion of his lands, even under a power of appointment contained in a deed prior to the bond, render them free from liability under an extent subsequently issued on the bond.—*ELLIS v. 307. Whether heir bound.—A grant by A. of an annuity to B. & his heirs for thirty years to commence at A.'s death, binds A.'s heir, & so it is of an obligation to be paid forty years after.—CLOTWORTHY v. CLOTWORTHY (1629), Het. 137; Cro. Car. 436; 124 E. R. 404; sub nom. TEWKLEY v. CLOTHWORKER, Litt. 245.

308.—Where a bond was entered into in £1,600 to perform covenants in an indenture for payment of £77 a year until £1,100 was paid:—Held: the £1,100 & interest ought to be paid by the heir of the obligor.—WAKE v. CALLEY (1662), 1 Rep. Ch. 201; 21 E. R. 550.

309.—Exors. are bound by their testator's bond, though they be not named, but the heir is not bound unless the bond is expressed to bind him.—HUNT v. SWAIN (1665), 1 Keb. 890; 1 Lev. 165; 1 Sid. 248; T. Raym. 127; 83 E. R. 1303.

Annotation:—Reid. Jackson v. Pesked (1813), 1 M. & S. 234.

310.—An assumpsit is not maintainable against an heir on a promise to pay money due upon the bond of his ancestor, unless the heir was expressly bound in the bond.—BARBER v. FOX (1671), 2 Saund. 136; 1 Vent. 159; 2 Keb. 836; 85 E. R. 860.

313.—T., the heir-at-law & exor. of a bond debtor, entered into possession of his real estates, & admitted assets & died, before 1833, having devised his real estates to A., whom he appointed extrix. A. paid interest on the bond up to her death in 1834, & interest was afterwards paid by her exors. Upon a bill filed within twenty years after the death of A., seeking payment of the bond out of the real estates of T. & A.:—Held: (1) the debt was the personal debt, but not the specialty debt of T., & the creditors were not entitled to have it paid out of his real estates: (2) the debt was not the debt of A., unless by reason of her devastavit, the remedy for which was barred by Stat. Limitations.—THORNE v. KERR (1855), 2 K. & J. 54; 25 L. J. Ch. 57; 26 L. T. O. S. 233; 2 Jur. N. S. 322; 4 W. R. 131; 69 E. R. 691.

PART VI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

304 i. Trust.—W. gave his wife M. a bond conditioned that his exors. should make certain payments to M., & bound himself “to make full provision for her” in his will: & in the event of his not making a will “this” should “be full authority” to his exors. to make such payments. The obligation was to be null & void on the exors. making the specified payments:—Held: the bond could not be regarded as a declaration of trust.—GLASS v. BURT (1884), 8 O. R. 391.—CAN.

PART VI. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 2.

307 i. Whether heir bound.—A bond purporting to bind the obligor & his heirs, & payable 6 months after the obligor's death, cannot be enforced against the obligor's lands.—ANDERSON v. PAINE (1867), 14 Gr. 110.—CAN.

307 ii.—An obligor bound himself & his heirs for the maintenance of B.:—Held: the bond, although naming the heir, was not a charge on real estate.—MCLELLAN v. MCLELLAN (1879), 1 R. & G. 80.—CAN.

SUB-SECT. 3.—MERGER.

See, generally, CONTRACT; MORTGAGE.

314. Of simple contract debt.]—To assumpsit debt. may plead a bond given for the recovery, for the bond determines the contract.—ACTON v. SYMON (1635), Cro. Car. 414; 79 E. R. 960.

315. — Collateral agreement.]—Pltf. brought an action on a special agreement entered into by debt., whose brother was in prison. The agreement given in evidence upon the opening of the cause was only verbal, that pltf. should endeavour to procure debt.'s brother a pardon, & that in consideration debt. should give pltf. £1,000 if he succeeded, & what his labour was worth if he should not. Debt. produced a bond of £2,000 in evidence, with condition that debt. should give pltf. & H. £1,000 if the pardon should be procured in six months. The bond was afterwards cancelled, but it was contended that it drowned the first agreement:—Held: pltf. might give further evidence that the intent of the bond was only to reduce one part of the agreement into writing, as it was the chief, & bring H. to witness that.—BROWN v. HATCH (1729), 1 Barn. K. B. 321; 94 E. R. 218.

316. — —.]—In the case of a bond given by one of several joint debtors, the legal effect of which is to merge the simple contract debt:—Qu.: whether this effect can be controlled by the parties agreeing by a separate instrument that such bond shall be deemed a collateral security only, & that all remedies shall remain for the simple contract debt as if the bond had not been taken.—*OWEN v. 317. — Intention of parties.]—A bond or covenant given to secure an existing debt, irrespectively of the intention of the parties, operates in law as a merger of the remedy on the simple contract.—PRICE v. MOULTON (1851), 10 C. B. 561; 20 L. J. C. P. 102; 15 Jur. 228; 138 E. R. 222.

318. — Sums due or to become due—Pay-ment after notice.]—Deft. opened an account with a banking co. in July, 1834, & in Oct., together with a surety, signed & delivered to the managing directors of the co. a bond, reciting that certain title deeds had been deposited with the co., & conditioned for payment by the obligors to the co., at the expiration of a three calender months'

notice, all such sums of money not exceeding £5,000 as should at the time of the demand be due & owing to the co. in respect of advances already made or thereafter to be made by the co. for or on account of debt., together with interest etc.:—Held: the co. were not precluded by the bond from suing debt. in assumpsit.—HOLMES v. BELL (1841), 3 Man. & G. 213; 3 Scott, N. R. 479; 133 E. R. 1120.

319. — — —.]—Deft. being indebted to pltf. on simple contract, executed, with sureties, a bond in the penal sum of £2,000, whereby, after reciting that pltf. had agreed to give debt. time for payment of the debt then owing, & of such further sums as might afterwards become due, the condition was, that, if debt. should pay pltf. the sum then due, & such further sums as might become due, or in case debt. should make default, & the sureties should, within one month after notice, pay pltf. the sum due, not exceeding £1,000, or, if no notice should be given, the bond to be void:—Held: no merger, & pltf. might, notwithstanding the giving of such bond, recover the amount of the original debt in an indebitatus count for the carriage of goods.—NORFOLK RY. CO. v. M'NAMARA (1849), 3 Exch. 628; 154 E. R. 996.

SECT. 2.—LIABILITY OF SEVERAL, JOINT, AND JOINT AND SEVERAL OBLIGORS.

320. Several—Joint claimants.]—Where joint claimants submit to an arbn., & enter into separate bonds to the opposite party, to abide by the award, if the award be that such joint claimants shall do an entire thing, each of them is bound for the performance of the whole award, although their bonds were several.—HAYES v. HAYES (1636), Cro. Car. 433; 79 E. R. 976.

321. — Drawn as joint by mistake.]—Relief was granted in equity, on an instrument which had been drawn by mistake as a joint bond, & in respect of which the remedy at law was gone, the nature of the transaction implying the obligee's right to demand the consideration from the parties severally.—BISHOP v. CHURCH (1751), 2 Ves. Sen. 371; 28 E. R. 238, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Devaynes v. Noble, Sleech's Case (1816), 1 Mer. 529; Beresford v. Browning, Browning v. Beresford (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 564. Refd. *Burn v. 322. — — —.]—A., B. & C., who carried on business in partnership as A. & Co. & were indebted to X. in a large sum of money, gave to X. a bond, which was in the following form:—“Know all men etc., that we, A. & Co., are held & firmly bound unto X.,” & was conditioned for payment by “A & Co.” to X. & was executed “A. & Co.” by A., but was not executed by B. or C. The intention was that each partner should be severally bound, but the bond was framed as a joint bond through mistake & the ignorance of the parties, & it was executed by A. merely because his name stood first in the firm. B. having died:—Held: B.'s estate was severally liable to X., who was entitled to be admitted as a specialty creditor in the administration of B.'s estate.—BURN v. BURN (1798), 3 Ves. 573; 30 E. R. 1162, L. C.

Annotation:—Reid. Ferguson v. Gibson (1872), 41 L. J. Ch. 640.

323. — “Ourselves & each of us for himself.”]—C., D. & E. entered into a bond in £1,000 each, in the following words:—“for which we bind ourselves, & each of us for himself, for the whole & entire sum of £1,000 each.” The seal of C. had been torn from the bond:—Held: the bond was several, & the seal of one of the obligors being taken away did not prevent the obligees from suing on it against D.—COLLINS v. PROSSER (1823), 1 B. & C. 682; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 112; 1 L. J. O. S. K. B. 212; 107 E. R. 250.

324. Joint—“Ourselves & each of us jointly.”]—Three persons covenanted in the following words:—“we bind ourselves and each of us jointly”:—Held: an action did not lie against one alone, as the words “each of us” did not make the bond several, but only showed the intent of the partners that all should be bound.—ANON. (1588), Moore, K. B. 260; 72 E. R. 567.

325. — Statute staple void for informality.]—A statute staple by two obligors which is void as a statute for want of the required formalities, may be sued against one obligor, in an action of debt as on a bond.—ASCUE v. HOLLINGWORTH (1597), Cro. Eliz. 514; 78 E. R. 791.

326. — Agreement to be bound.]—A., B. & C. agreed to be bound in a bond to D., by such a bond and in such a sum as should be agreed amongst them:—Held: the bond must be a joint bond, & not a joint & several bond.—MALCOT v. DEAN (1614), 2 Bulst. 287; 1 Roll. Rep. 71; 80 E. R. 1127.

327. — Death of joint obligor—Absence of mistake or special agreement.]—A. & B. executed a joint bond to C., A. being principal, & B. surety. The principal died, leaving the surety surviving him. A decree having been made in a specialty creditor's suit, in the usual form, against the estate of A.:—Held: in the absence of proof of any mistake having been made in the preparation of the bond, & of any contract between the parties to the bond, giving a right to the obligees to have the debt satisfied out of the separate assets of A., it could not be the foundation of a claim in equity against A.'s assets.—RICHARDSON v. HORTON (1843), 6 Beav. 185; 12 L. J. Ch. 333; 49 E. R. 796.

328. Joint & several—“Us & either of us.”]—Two persons bound themselves by the following words:—“We bind us and either of us,” without saying jointly & severally:—Held: the bond was joint & several.—ANON. (1572), Ben. & D. 85; 123 E. R. 294.

329. — “Et uterque eorum.”]—If two persons bind themselves “et uterque eorum” in £60 the bond is joint & several.—HARGRAVES v. ROGERS (1604), Cro. Jac. 45; 79 E. R. 38.

Annotation:—Mentd. Booth v. Johnson (1703), 7 Mod. Rep. 143.

330. — “Themselves or any of them, their heirs, etc.”]—Executed by two obligors.]—If two persons jointly seal & deliver a bond, in which they bind “themselves, or any of them, their heirs, exors., or either of their heirs, etc.” it is a joint & several bond, & not a joint bond only.—HANKINSON v. SANDILANDS (1613), Cro. Jac. 322; 2 Bulst. 70; 79 E. R. 275; sub nom. HAUKINSON v. SANDILANDS, 1 Brownl. 121.

331. — “Myself & my heirs, etc.”]—Executed by three obligors.]—The words:—“I bind myself & my heirs, exors., & administrators” in a bond executed by three obligors, render the bond joint and several.—SAYER v. CHAYTOR (1699), Int. 695; 125 E. R. 364.

Annotation:—Mentd. Abbot v. Smith (1774), 2 Wm. Bl. 947.

332. — “Nos et quemlibet nostrum.”]—Where the first words of an obligation were joint, but the latter words were, “si defecrimus, volumus, etc., quod currat super nos et quemlibet nostrum”:—Held: the obligation was joint & several.—ROGERS

a. Several—“Ourselves & each of & each of our heirs.”]—A bond, “We, G., J. & H., are jointly & severally held & firmly bound, in the several penal sums of money hereinafter mentioned, that is to say, the said G. in £3,000, the said J. in £500, the said H. in £500, for which several payments, etc., we & each of us bind ourselves, & each & every one of our heirs, exors., & administrators,” etc.:—Held: a several, not a joint, or joint & several, bond.—ESSEX CORPN. v. BULLOCK (1861), 11 C. P. 323.—CAN.

b. — — — — —]—A., B., C., & D. executed a bond to E., the bond being in the following form: “We, A., B., C., & D., are held & firmly bound to E. in the sum of £50 each, to be paid to E., to which payment we hereby bind us, & each of us, our & each of our heirs, exors., & administrators, & every of them”:—Held: the bond was the separate bond of each obligor.—ARMSTRONG v. CAHILL (1880), 6 L. R. Ir. 440.—IR.

c. S. P. ARMSTRONG v. KELLY (1881), 15 I. L. T. Jo. 138.—IR.

d. — “Severally & firmly held each in the sum of.”]—A bond recited that the parties were “severally & firmly held” each in the sum of:—

Held: the bond was several, not “joint & several.”—LONDON & LANCASHIRE INSURANCE CO. v. HART (1912), Q. R. 43 S. C. 28.—CAN.

e. Joint—General rule.]—Unless otherwise agreed upon, the liability of co-obligors is joint, not several.—DE PASS v. COLONIAL GOVERNMENT (1886), 4 S. C. 383.—S. AF.

f. — “Himself along with the other.”]—Two parties granted separate letters, by which each bound himself “along with the other”:—Held: the obligation was joint, & not joint & several.—ALEXANDER v. SCOTT (1827), 6 Sh. (Ct. of Sess.) 150.—SCOT.

g. — Or joint & several—Intention of parties.]—Where money was lent on credit given by two persons, who passed a joint bond for it, the instrument was joint & several, according to what appeared to have been the intention of the parties.—O'LEARY v. PURCELL (1841), 3 I. Eq. R. 329.—IR.

h. — Non-execution by one obligor.]—The condition of a bond recited that five persons named as obligors had agreed to secure the payment of a sum of money to pltf.; one of the persons named did not execute the bond:—Held: (1) it was the joint bond of the obligors who executed it; (2) the omission of one of the persons named in the bond to execute it did not render it merely the several bond of each obligor who did.—KEATOR v. SCOVIL (1848), 3 Kerr. 647.—CAN.

k. — Release of some joint obligors.]—Deft. with others signed a bond to a bank. The majority of the bondsmen, under an agreement with the bank, took policies in an insurance co. to provide for payment of the amounts severally secured by them, & assigned their interest to the bank. Their liability upon the bond was thereupon released. Deft. also took a policy, but did not assign it:—Held: deft. was liable on the bond.—MARE v. WHITEWAY (1900), 8 Nfld. L. R. 384.—NFLD.

l. Joint & several—“Ourselves & each of us by himself.”]—A bond stated that sureties were jointly & severally held & jointly bound, instead of firmly bound, & “we bind ourselves & each of us by himself,” instead of binds himself:—Held: it was uncertain whether it could be properly construed as a joint & several bond.—JAMIESON v. LONDON & CANADIAN LOAN & AGENCY CO. (1899), 18 P. R. 413.—CAN.

Sect. 2.—Liability of several, joint, and joint and several obligors. Sect. 3.]

334. — “They or either of them, their heirs, etc.” — E. & F. entered into a bond, of which the condition was, that if they or either of them, their or either of their heirs, etc., duly paid an annuity to B. for his life in manner following, viz., one moiety thereof by E. during her life, & the other moiety thereof by F., his exors. or administrators, during the life of E., & after the death of E., the whole by F., his heirs, exors., or administrators, during the life of B., then the bond should be void:—Held: the liability under the bond was joint & several, & F. having failed, after the death of E., in paying the annuity, the estate of E. was liable on his default.—CHURCH v. KING (1836), 2 My. & Cr. 220; 40 E. R. 624.

335. — Obligors “jointly” & their heirs, etc., “respectively.” — Three obligors bound themselves “jointly,” & their heirs, etc., “respectively,” to pay by a bond, which was conditioned to be void, if they or either of them, their or either of their heirs, paid:—Held: it was a joint & several obligation, & one having died, his assets were liable.—TIPPINS v. COATES (1853), 18 Beav. 401; 52 E. R. 158.

Annotation:—Refd. Levy v. Sale (1877), 37 L. T. 709.

336. — Bond drawn as joint—By mistake.]—A tradesman, ignorant of the nature of a bond, filled up one from A. & B. to C., in which the obligors were only jointly bound. One of them being dead, the question arose, whether the survivor was answerable for the whole money:—Held: the ct. would relieve upon the mistake.—SIMPSON v. VAUGHAN (1739), 2 Atk. 31; 26 E. R. 415, L. C.

337. — — — — —.]—Where the intention of the parties is to make a bond joint and several, & such intention appears on the face of the bond, the ct. will treat it as a joint & several bond, although it is only joint in form.—Ex p. SYMONDS (1786), 1 Cox, Eq. Cas. 200; 29 E. R. 1128, L. C.

338. — Intention of parties.]—A joint bond may be treated as joint & several in equity, if the parties appear to have intended it to be so.—

m. — “We hereby become bound.” — Defender & another became bound by an obligation in these terms: “We hereby become bound”; it being expressly understood. In an action for implement in solidum of the obligation, on the ground that it was an obligation ad factum præstandum inferring a conjunct & several liability:—Held: the obligation was ad factum præstandum.—DARLINGTON v. GRAY (1836), 15 Sh. (Ct. of Sess.) 197.—SCOT.

n. — — — — —.]—Three parties granted to a bank a cash-credit bond in the usual style for £400 on an account to be operated on by one of their number. In a question with one of the co-obligants:—Held: the co-obligant was liable for the whole account up to the stipulated amount of the credit.—*REDDIE v. WILLIAMSON (1863), 1 Macph. SECT. 3.—ESTOPPEL OF PARTIES BY RECITALS.

339. Obligor—Statement of fact.]—The obligor of a bond is estopped from denying the truth of the facts in the recital.—HART v. BUCKMINSTER (1648), Aleyn, 52; Sty. 103; 82 E. R. 912.

Annotation:—Refd. Shelley v. Wright (1737), Willes, 9.

340. — — — — —.]—A party executing a deed is estopped, by the recital of a particular fact in that deed, from denying such fact.

Where it was recited in the condition of a bond that the obligor had received sums of money for the obligee, which he had not brought to account but acknowledged that a balance was due to the obligee:—Held: the obligor was estopped from saying that he had not received any money for the use of the obligee.—SHELLEY v. WRIGHT (1737), Willes, 9; 125 E. R. 1029.

p. — Property in goods seized on execution—Indemnity to sheriff.]—A sheriff, holding executions against deft., took from him a bond reciting that the sheriff had seized deft.'s goods, & indemnifying the sheriff “against any loss, damage, or liability, which may be incurred by reason of the execution, wrongful execution, or non-execution of the said writ.” The sheriff was informed by deft. that the goods belonged to G., but sold them contrary to deft.'s wish. G. brought trover against the sheriff & recovered the value of the goods. The sheriff then sued deft. on his bond:—Held: deft. was not estopped by the recital from denying his property in the goods.—CORBETT v. HOPKIRK (1852), 9 U. C. R. 479.—CAN.

several written obligations, the obligation should be void, deft. said he had not made any written obligations by which he was obliged to pay any sum:—Held: no plea, because repugnant to the condition, & he was estopped from speaking against its purport.—ANON. (1561), Ben. & D. 28; 123 E. R. 247.

344. — Existence of lease.]—In debt on an obligation, the condition of which was that whereas J., claimed to have a lease for years of the manor of D., made & granted to him by W., if deft. left without damage pltf. etc., then etc. deft. pleaded that J., had not any such lease:—Held: by the recital deft. was estopped from saying there was no such lease.—BRANTHWAIT'S CASE (1584), 3 Leon. 118; 74 E. R. 578.

345. — Execution of lease.]—Debt on bond conditioned for the performance by R. of all the covenants on his part mentioned in a certain indenture bearing even date with the bond, made or expressed to be made between pltf. & R. Plea that before the execution of the bond it was agreed that pltf. should grant to R. a lease under certain covenants, & that deft. should enter into a bond as surety for performance of those covenants, that deft. did enter into the bond on which the action was brought, & that the indenture mentioned in the condition thereof was the lease so agreed upon & no other, but that the lease never was executed:—Held: deft. was estopped by the condition of the bond from pleading the plea.—HOSIER v. SEARLE (1800), 2 Bos. & P. 299; 126 E. R. 1292.

Annotation:—Refd. Lainson v. Tremore (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 792.

346. — Actions pending.]—If a bond recites that “there are divers suit in Banco Regis,” the obligor is estopped from pleading that there are no suits there.—WILLOUGHBY v. BROOK (1600), Cro. Eliz. 756; 78 E. R. 988.

Annotation:—Refd. Shelley v. Wright (1737), Willes, 9.

347. — Payment of rent reserved—No interest in land demised.]—In debt on bond conditioned for payment of rent reserved upon a demise according to certain articles, deft. is estopped from saying he had not acquired any interest in the land demised by the articles.—STROUD v. WILLIS (1596), Poph. 114; Cro. Eliz. 362; 79 E. R. 1221.

348. — To give all goods devised by father—No goods devised.]—If one be bound in an obligation, that he will give to J. all the goods which were devised to him by his father, in debt brought upon such an obligation, deft. cannot plead that he had not any goods devised to him, for the bond shall conclude him from saying the contrary.—CULLINGWORTH'S CASE (1610), Godb. 177; 78 E. R. 107.

349. — Conveyance of copyhold land—Lands not copyhold.]—In debt on a bond conditioned to convey copyhold land, the obligor is estopped from saying that the lands are not copyhold.—KARNE v. PRYTHER (1615), Cro. Jac. 375; 79 E. R. 320.

350. — To enfeof party of all lands in specified place—No lands there.]—Where the condition is general, as to enfeof one of all his lands in D., the obligor may say that he has no lands there.—PAINE v. SHELTRORPE (1647), Aleyn, 13; 82 E. R. 889.

351. — Obligor & wife—Obligor not married.]—Where the condition of a bond is if deft. & his wife shall appear on such a day at the Palace Ct., it is not a good performance that deft. appeared himself, though he was not married at the time of the obligation or ever afterwards, since he is estopped from denying that he had a wife.—PAINE v. SHELTRORPE (1647), Aleyn, 13; 82 E. R. 889.

352. — Release of lands by stranger—No right of stranger to lands.]—If the condition of a bond be, that the obligor shall procure a stranger to release all the right which he has, or pretends to have, in certain lands, the obligor must at his peril procure such stranger to make a release de facto, though he has no right.—*DOUGHTY v. 353. — Custom of court—No custom.]—Debt upon an obligation the condition was that if deft., who was arrested upon a latitat, should appear such a day ad respondendum J. secundum consuetudinem curie, etc., then it should be void. Deft. pleaded that there was no such custom, etc.:—Qu.: whether deft. was estopped from saying there was no such custom, contrary to the condition of the bond.—FORTH v. WALKER (1673), 1 Freem. K. B. 100; 89 E. R. 74; sub nom. FOORTH v. WALKER, 3 Keb. 160, 181.

354. — To pay legacy devised by will—Revocation before death.]—A bond given after the death of J. to pay a legacy devised by the will of J. cannot be met by a plea that though J. did leave such a legacy by his last will, he revoked that will & left nothing to pltf. Even if the bond were before death of J. deft. has undertaken & must pay it at his peril.—BACKWEL v. BARDJEW (1674), 3 Keb. 303; 1 Mod. Rep. 113; 84 E. R. 734.

355. — To take obligor as apprentice—Whether compelled to take.]—If the consideration of a bond appears by the condition to be that the obligee should take the obligor apprentice, & the condition recites that he had consented so to do, the obligor cannot object in avoidance of the bond that the obligee was not compellable to take him.—*CHESMAN v. 356. — Allowance out of personal estate—Insufficient estate.]—Debt on bond given by deft. on his marriage, with condition that he would permit his intended wife either during the marriage or by will to dispose of £50 out of his personal estate. Plea, that deft. had not prevented his wife disposing of that sum. Replication, setting forth a particular disposition of the money by the wife, & a request on deft. to pay, & a refusal by him. Rejoinder, that deft. had not any personal estate out of which he could pay the £50:—Held: the rejoinder was ill, because deft. was estopped by the condition of the bond from saying he had not sufficient estate.—COSENS v. COSENS (1737), Willes, 25; 125 E. R. 1037.

357. — Amount of rent reserved.]—In an action upon a bond conditioned for payment of the rent of certain premises, recited in the condition to be demised by indenture at a rent of £170, deft. cannot plead that the indenture mentioned in the condition was an indenture by which a rent of £140 was reserved, & that such less rent has been paid, because that is virtually a denial that any such lease as that recited in the bond

358. — Duties of income tax collector.]—

In a bond given as a security for the due performance by L. of his office of collector of income tax, it was recited that L. had been duly appointed collector for the year ending Apr. 5, 1847, & that duplicates of the assessments & a warrant for collecting same had been delivered to him. An action having been brought for default by J. in non-payment of sums received by him as such collector, the jury found a verdict for plffs., subject to a case, which stated that J. having been nominated & appointed in the usual manner, collected several sums which had been assessed under Schedules A & D for the year ending Apr. 5, 1847, that as to the sums collected by him under Schedule A duplicates of assessment & a warrant for collection had been delivered to him, before he collected those sums, but, as to the sums collected under Schedule D, no duplicate assessment or warrant had been delivered to him, & at the time when he received those sums, the time appointed for appeals against the assessments under Schedule A had not expired:—Held: (1) the sureties were liable for the sums collected by L. under Schedule A, but they were not liable for those collected under Schedule D, such collection having been an unauthorised act, for want of the duplicate assessment & warrant; (2) the above recitals in the bond did not estop defts. from setting up the above defence, inasmuch as it was true that J. had been nominated & appointed a collector, in one sense, & duplicates of assessments & warrants to collect had been delivered to him with regard to the sums assessed under Schedule A, though not as to those assessed under Schedule D.—KEPP v. WIGGETT (1850), 10 C. B. 35; 20 L. J. C. P. 49; 14 Jur. 1137; 138 E. R. 15.

359. — Statutory borrowing powers.]—In an action against improvement comrs., the declaration stated that defts., by their writing obligatory, acknowledged that they, by virtue of certain improvement Acts, were bound to P. in a certain sum, subject to a condition for repayment, which recited "that, by virtue of the Acts, defts. were authorised to borrow any sum of money for the purposes of the Acts, & to secure same by their bonds, & that defts., in pursuance of the Acts, had borrowed of P. £5,000 for enabling them to carry the purposes of the Acts into execution." Defts. pleaded that they did not, in pursuance of the Acts, borrow of P. the sum for enabling them to carry the purposes of the Acts into execution, nor was same lent by P. for that purpose, & that the writing obligatory was not made by defts. for securing payment of any sum of money borrowed by defts. for the purposes of & under the powers & provisions of the Acts:—Held: the plea was bad, on the ground that defts. were estopped by the recitals of the bond from denying that the money was in fact borrowed for those purposes.—HORTON v. WESTMINSTER IMPROVEMENT COMRS.

q. Obligeo — Statement of fact.]—A bond contained a recital that the obligee had delivered to the obligors a statement in writing which was made a part of the bond, & further recited that it was agreed & declared that the bond was given upon the faith of such statement by the obligee. In an action on the bond:—Held: the obligee was estopped from disputing the facts

Liability personal or as executor.]—

L., one of the exors. of M., & of the devisees in trust of M.'s estate, gave a bond to O. for £7,000, describing himself as sole exor. of M., but the condition was for payment by L., his heirs, exors. & administrators in an action on the bond:—Held: L. could not plead that the debt was not due from himself personally, but from him in his character of exor.—LINDSAY v. 361. — Extent of estoppel—Will or legacy.]—

A condition in a bond was "to pay all legacies that J. has devised by his will":—Held: the covenantor was estopped from alleging that J. made no will, but he might allege that J. gave no legacy by his will.—PARAMOURE v. DURING (1594), Moore, K. B. 420; 72 E. R. 668.

Annotation:—Refd. Galloway v. Jackson (1842), 3 Man. & G. 960.

362. — Indenture or covenants.]—

The condition of a bond for performance of covenants in an indenture estops the obligor from saying there is no such indenture, but does not estop him from saying there are no covenants.—HOLLOWAY'S CASE (1669), 1 Mod. Rep. 15; 86 E. R. 695.

Annotation:—Refd. Lainson v. Tremere (1834), 1 Ad. & El. 792.

363. — Invalidity of bond or improper execution.]—

In an action against a corpn. on a bond, the condition of which recited, that the co. were, by Act of Parliament, authorised to raise money by bond, & that at a general assembly of the co. it had been resolved that the bond should be issued for that purpose, defts. pleaded non est factum:—Held: although the co. could not, under that plea, show that the bond executed by them was invalidated by collateral matter, they might show that it was void because executed contrary to the Act of Parliament.—HILL v. MANCHESTER & SALFORD WATER WORKS CO. (1833), 5 B. & Ad. 866; 2 Nev. & M. K. B. 573; 3 L. J. K. B. 19; 110 E. R. 1011.

364. Obligeo — Omission of "younger" after name.]—If A. sen. & A. jun. be jointly & severally bound in a bond, but, in reciting their names in the condition, the word "younger" be omitted, the obligee, in debt on the bond, is not estopped from averring that A. jun. is the person named in the condition, for it is consistent with the record.—ANON. (1688), 3 Mod. Rep. 216; 87 E. R. 139.

365. — Estate in tail or for life.]—A., with B. & C. his sureties, entered into a bond to D., the condition of which, after reciting that A. was seised in tail of an estate of which he had covenanted to suffer a recovery at a future day, to enure to the use of D. in fee, was, that the bond should be void, if the recovery should be suffered "so & in such manner as that, under & by virtue thereof, the estate should be vested in D. for ever." The recovery was duly suffered, but A. being seised for life only, D. brought an action upon the bond, to which one of the sureties pleaded that, if A. had been seised in tail, the recovery was suffered so as to vest the estate in D. in fee:—Held: the plea was bad, because the recital in the condition did not estop D. from disputing that A. was seised in tail, nor release the surety from his obligation, it being the intention of the parties, that D. should have an estate in fee.—EDWARDS v. BROWN (1829), 3 Y. & J. 423; 148 E. R. 1244; subsequent proceedings (1831), 1 Cr. & J. 307.

376. ————A., B., & C., being bankers in copartnership, were appointed treasurers of a corporate body & executed a joint & several bond in a penalty of £20,000 conditioned for the due performance by them of various duties as treasurers, & especially that they would "when thereunto required, etc., pay all balances in their hands, etc." A commission of bkpcy. issued against A., B., & C., who had at the time a large balance in their hands, as treasurers, but no demand was made by the co. before the bkpcy. The co. petitioned to prove against the separate estates:—Held: there was not any such breach of the condition as would constitute an existing debt, & entitle the co. to prove under the bond.—*Re DILWORTH, Ex p. execute deed.—The condition of a bond was, that when the parties should see cause to survey & divide lot A., the obligor should execute a deed of the north-east half of the lot to the obligee:—Held: survey & division were not conditions precedent to the execution of the deed.—RUTTAN v. RUTTAN (1840), 4 Ont. Dig. 7169.—CAN.

PART. VII. SECT. 1, SUB-SECT. 1.

366 i. Demand—Payment of money—At named place.—Defts. promised to pay the amount of a bond to the holder thereof upon presentation of warrants or coupons thereunto annexed:—Held: it was not necessary for pltf., as a condition precedent to his recovery, to aver & prove presentment at the particular place.—FELLOWS v. OTTAWA GAS CO. (1869), 19 C. P. 174.—CAN.

s. Tender of deed—Payment of money—Price of land.—Deft. gave a bond to pltf. for the price of land, conditioned to pay £50 on June 1, & the remainder in three annual instalments:—Held: tender of a deed was not a condition precedent to the right to recover the first instalment.—DYKEMAN v. CRAIG (1851), 2 All. 265.—CAN.

Averment, that defts. performed all things on their part to be performed:—Held: (1) it was not necessary to state a request in the declaration; (2) the allegation "by reason of the non-payment," etc., was a sufficient denial of payment to pltf. or E., after plea.—KEPP v. WIGGETT (1848), 6 C. B. 280; 17 L. J. C. P. 295; 11 L. T. O. S. 243; 12 Jur. 831; 136 E. R. 1259; subsequent proceedings (1849), 12 L. T. O. S. 430; (1850), 10 C. B. 35.

379. — — —.]—Debt against deft. as surety for J. on a bond conditioned that J. would duly & faithfully account for, apply & pay to pltf. all sums of money which had or should come to his hands as treasurer of the S. turnpike roads, according to 26 Geo. 4, c. lxxi., & three other Acts extending that Act, & of 3 Geo. 4, c. 126. Plea, that 3 Geo. 4, c. 126 was repealed by 4 Geo. 4, c. 95, & that up to the time of such repeal J. had duly & faithfully accounted, etc. Replication, assigning as a breach that although after the repeal J. was required by the then trustees of the S. roads to render to A. & G., then being persons duly appointed by them for that purpose, a true & perfect account in writing of all money which he had received & disbursed as treasurer, & although a reasonable time had elapsed, yet J. had not rendered such account, & for a further breach, that J. had received large sums of money as treasurer, & had failed duly to account for & pay same, according to the Acts & 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, and the bond, although before & after the repeal large sums remained in his hands, & although during all the time there were trustees entitled & ready to receive same, & although no other person was authorised to receive same. Rejoinders, as to the first breach, that part of the sum was received by J. before the repeal of 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, for which he had duly accounted, & that the residue of the sum was received after the repeal of 3 Geo. 4, c. 126; & as to the other breach, that no part of the sums in that breach mentioned was received by J. before the repeal of 3 Geo. 4, c. 126:—Held: (1) the first breach assigned was bad, as the local Act provided only for the treasurer being called upon to account to the trustee themselves, & the sect. in 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, requiring the treasurer to account to such person or persons as the trustees should appoint, had been repealed by 4 Geo. 4, c. 95; (2) although the other breach required no aid from the repealed sect. of 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, & the statement as to that Act was surplusage, yet as there was no allegation of a requisition to account or pay, as provided by the local Act, the breach failed to show a forfeiture of the bond under that Act, & was bad.—DAVIS v. CARY (1850), 15 Q. B. 418; 20 L. J. Q. B. 48; 15 L. T. O. S. 560; 14 J. P. 623; 15 Jur. 310; 117 E. R. 517.

Annotation:—Reid. Brown v. London Corpn. (1861), 9 C. B. N. S. 726.

380. Request—To sell on request.]—M. sued J. in debt for £90 on an obligation, the condition of which was that J. should observe all the covenants in a certain indenture. By that indenture J. covenanted that he & C., or their heirs, should at the Feast of Annunciation next after the indenture upon the reasonable request of M., or his heirs, sell a third part of the manor of O. secured by a good & indefeasible conveyance drawn by learned counsel, & M. covenanted in consideration of the sale to pay £450 in instalments. J. said M. did not make any requisition for the bargain & sale, & that he was not bound to pay the £90:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover.—METCALF v. JACKSON (1575), Ben. & D. 274; 123 E. R. 193.

381. — — — Seamstress to make linen required.]—The condition in a bond was to make all such linen as deft. should want during his life:—Held: as pltf. was a seamstress & it was not customary for such or tailors to find the linen to make the clothes from, deft. must supply her with it.—OATS v. THORNILL (1662), 1 Keb. 466; 83 E. R. 1056.

382. — — — To free apprentice if requested.]—If a master give a bond to make his apprentice free of the city at the end of seven years, if requested, deft. may plead, to an action of debt on the bond, "that at the end of seven years, or after, he was not requested, etc.," for he was not bound to do it, except upon request made at the time appointed for the performance.—FITZ-HUGH v. DENNINGTON (1704), 6 Mod. Rep. 227, 259; 2 Ld. Raym. 1094; 2 Salk. 585; 3 Salk. 309; Holt, K. B. 68; 87 E. R. 978, 1005.

383. — — — To marry on request.]—Debt on a bond entered into by deft.'s wife dum sola, conditioned that she should, within ten days after pltf.'s return from his voyage marry him if requested:—Held: leave should be given to plead that pltf. never requested her.—DUNN v. VACHER (1731), 2 Stra. 908; 93 E. R. 934.

384. Notice—Indemnity against waste.]—On a bond conditioned to pay within one month after notice the value of such goods as an apprentice should mis-spend, proof must be given to the obligor, before action brought, that the goods have been mis-spent.—TEDCASTLE v. HOLLIWELL (1591), Cro. Eliz. 236; 78 E. R. 492.

Annotation:—Reid. Williams v. Steadman (1693), Holt, K. B. 126.

385. — — —.]—The condition in a bond was that if an apprentice should waste the goods of his master, deft. would pay the damage to the master. Pltf. did not allege that notice of the waste had been given:—Held: none need be given.—FRENCH v. PIERCE (1662), 1 Keb. 467, 471; 83 E. R. 1057, 1060.

386. — — — Indemnity against actions.]—Defts. were obligors in a bond conditioned to indemnify pltf. from all actions, etc., from C., to whom pltf. at the request of defts. were indebted. The debt not having been paid, pltf. were sued by C., & they sued defts. on the bond:—Held: defts. were liable, notwithstanding they had no notice of the loss of pltf.—CUTLER v. SOUTHERN (1667), 1 Saund. 116; 1 Lev. 194; 85 E. R. 125.

387. Payment without action brought.]

—A bond, conditioned to save A. harmless from all actions, legal proceedings & costs, etc., which may be the consequence of delivering over to deft. a bill of exchange, part of the proceeds whereof a third person is entitled to, is forfeited by payment over by A. to such third person of his share of the proceeds, upon his demanding same, without his bringing any action, though A. give no notice of the payment to deft.—KER v. MITCHELL (1786), 2 Chit. 487.

388. — Indemnity against payments—

Expenses incurred on being sued.]—In an action of debt on a bond, on which pltf. was bound with deft., an excise man, that deft. should give a true account of money received by him, & in which deft. was bound that he should save pltf. harmless from all payments, etc., under the bond, pltf. alleged that a sci. fa. was issued against him on the bond & that he was forced to retain an attorney & paid 1s. for his appearance. Deft. demurred that pltf. had not given him notice:—Held: no notice was necessary.—KING v. ATKINS (1670), 1 Vent. 35, 78; 2 Keb. 596; 1 Sid. 442; 86 E. R. 25, 54.

389. — Payment on contingent event.]

In debt on a bond payable within ten days after an act done, notice of performance need not be specially alleged.—NORMANVILLE v. POPE (1607), Cro. Jac. 137, 150; 79 E. R. 120, 131.

390. — —.]

—If a man is bound to pay £100 two months after A. return from Rome, he ought to give notice of his return before he can have an action upon this obligation, for he may land at Newcastle, or Plymouth, where by common intendment the obligor cannot know whether he be returned, or not (DODDERIDGE, J.).—HODGES v. MOORE (1626), Poph. 164; 79 E. R. 1262.

391. — To pay costs due to attorney of obligee.]—On a bond conditioned to pay all such costs as shall appear to be due to the attorney of the obligee, it is not necessary to give the obligor notice that so much was due, in order to sustain an action.—PITMAN v. BIDDLECOMBE (1693), 4 Mod. Rep. 230; 87 E. R. 364.

392. — To pay on notice to obligor or executor.]—A declaration in debt against an exor., on a bond conditioned to pay on notice to the obligor or his exor., must allege that the notice was given after the death of testator.—GOLD v. DEATH (1615), Cro. Jac. 381; 3 Bulst. 55; Hob. 92; 79 E. R. 325.

393. — Failure to account—Embezzlement.]

—Under a bond conditioned that if F. should duly account for all moneys, etc., received by him in pltf.'s service as a clerk, & if F. should embezzle, etc., pltf.'s property, & should, within three days after proof thereof, repay, etc., pltf. the damage sustained by such misbehaviour or misdoing, or, in default thereof, if deft. should, after notice given, make a full recompense to pltf., then the bond should be void, pltf., in order to render deft. liable for F.'s not accounting, must give deft. notice thereof, as by the construction of the condition the notice must be given for F.'s not accounting, as well as for his embezzling.—PHILLIPS v. FORDYCE (1779), 2 Chit. 676.

394. — Dishonoured bill of exchange.]

The condition of a bond, after reciting that deft. & J. had delivered & indorsed to pltf. a bill of exchange, drawn by J. & accepted by A., was, that deft. & J., or either of them, their heirs, etc.

should pay, or cause to be paid, to pltf., his exors., etc. the sum secured by the bill, within one month after it should become due & payable, in case it should not be then paid by the acceptor, to pltf., his exors., etc., according to the tenor of the bill, together with interest from the time the bill became due. To an action on the bond:—Held: it was not a good plea, that the bill, when due, had not been presented for payment to the acceptor, or that due notice of its dishonour had not been given to deft. J., or either of them.—MURRAY v. KING (1821), 5 B. & Ald. 165; 106 E. R. 1153.

395. — Investment to be approved by trustees—Notice by trustees.]

Two persons gave a bond, that if one of them, then about to be married, should die & leave his wife without children, the heirs, exors., etc. of the husband, out of his effects, should, within three months after his decease, put out £1,000 on good security, to be approved of by two trustees. The wife survived, without children:—Held: the surety or co-obligor was bound to find out the heir, & it was not necessary for the trustees, within the three months, to give notice of what security they approved.—JOYCE v. BLOUNT (1824), 3 L. J. O. S. K. B. 9.

396. — Advance by banker.]—A joint & several bond was given by A., B., & C. By the condition, which recited an agreement by pltf.s., bankers, to advance money not exceeding £200 at any one time to B. on security, the bond was to be void if A., B., & C., or either of them, should pay to pltf.s. all such sums not exceeding £200 as pltf.s. should advance for or on account of bills from time to time drawn by B. on pltf.s., within three calendar months "after receiving notice to pay such sums":—Held: in assigning a breach of the condition, it was not enough to aver that deft. "had & received notice" that certain sums were due from B., without averring a notice or request to pay.—BATSON v. SPEARMAN (1838), 9 Ad. & El. 298; 3 Per. & Dav. 77; 112 E. R. 1225.

Annotation:—Distd. Jones v. Williams (1841), H. & W. 80.

397. Election—By obligee—Alternative conditions.]—Where one of two things are to be performed by the obligor at the election of the obligee, "no election" is a good bar to debt on the bond.—SHEPARD v. KEARNE (1588), Cro. Eliz. 119; 78 E. R. 377.

398. — — — Specific date.]—A bond conditioned to do one thing or another at the election of the obligee before a particular day is void, if the obligee do not make the election before the day.—GRENINGHAM v. EWER (1596), Cro. Eliz. 396, 539; 78 E. R. 641, 785.

Annotation:—Apld. Bassett v. Bassett (1677), 1 Mod. Rep. 264.

399. Award—Within limited time.]—A bond conditioned for the assessment of, & arbn. on the damages occasioned by the obligee's working a mine, every two months:—Held: to be imperative & not merely directory.—STEPHENS v. LOWE (1832), 9 Bing. 32; 2 Moo. & S. 44; 1 L. J. C. P. 150; 131 E. R. 526.

Time extended.]—See ARBITRATION, Vol. II., p. 422, Nos. 734, 735.

400. Writ of covenant—Levy of fine.]—In an action on a bond, which contains a condition to levy a fine & that pltf. is to sue out the writ of covenant, deft. must show he has done all that could be done on his side towards a performance; & it is not a sufficient answer that no writ of covenant has been sued out.—WILLIS' CASE (1707), Holt, K. B. 123; 90 E. R. 967.

401. Assignment of judgment.]—To debt on bond conditioned to pay so much money, for which the obligee had recovered judgment against A. upon consideration that the obligee would forbear to sue out execution against A. & assign over the judgment, if deft. plead that the obligee had not assigned, pltf. may reply that he was ready to assign the judgment, for the assignment is not a condition precedent.—TURNER v. GOODWIN (1714), 10 Mod. Rep. 153, 189, 222; Gilb. C. P. 40; 88 E. R. 671, 687, 702.

402. Appointment by will.]—A bond conditioned for payment of a sum of money to such person as A. shall by will appoint, is not forfeited by non-payment to the residuary legatee of A., no specific appointment having been made.—BUCKLAND v. BARTON (1793), 2 Hy. Bl. 136; 126 E. R. 472.

SUB-SECT. 2.—PERFORMANCE.

403. Alternative condition—Performance of first part—Within reasonable time.]—Where the condition of a bond is that if something be done, payment of a specified sum is to be made, & if it is not done, the obligor is to do something else, the first thing must be done within a reasonable time.—WILLIAMSON v. HENLEY (1647), Sty. 11; 82 E. R. 491.

404. — When obligee had son that "shall or can," etc.]—To debt on bond conditioned to pay when the obligee had a son that "shall or can" speak the Lord's Prayer, a plea that he had a son qui potuit loqui the Lord's Prayer is good, for the condition being in the disjunctive, the obligee may show performance of either the one or the other precedent act; but the most apt & proper issue had been, that he had a son qui locutus fuit.—LANE v. COLMAN (1599), Cro. Eliz. 727; 78 E. R. 961.

405. — Proof by confession or otherwise—Notice of confession given.]—To debt on bond conditioned to pay within three months after due proof of a particular act, either by confession or otherwise, if deft. plead that pltf. had not proved the act done, a replication stating that the party had confessed the act, & that due notice of such confession was given, is good, for although the legal mode of proving fact is by trial by jury, yet parties may agree to abide by any other medium of proof.—GOLD v. DEATH (1615), Cro. Jac. 381; 3 Bulst. 55; Hob. 92; 79 E. R. 325.

a. To convey land—Inability to make title.]—A bond recited that deft. had agreed to transfer to pltf. land to which he was entitled as a private in the militia, as soon as a patent should be obtained from the Crown, & the condition was to keep such agreement:—Held: there could be no breach of the condition till a patent had issued.—CRYSLER v. ELIGH (1844), 1 U. C. R. 227.—CAN.

b. — — —.]—Pltfs. acquired a right to purchase a tract of land for the purpose of establishing a colony, & then entered into an agreement with prospective colonists to sell the lands to them. Defts., who had signed the agreement to purchase from pltfs., executed a bond in favour of pltfs., reciting & incorporating the agreement, the condition being that the obligors should duly & faithfully carry out the terms of the agreement by paying to pltfs. a sum, "on account of the purchase-price of the lands":—Held: (1) on the evidence, pltfs. had never acquired legal or enforceable right to purchase, & therefore had no title; (2) defts. were absolved from performing the condition.—COLWELL v. NEUFELD (1910), 14 W. L. R. 83.—CAN.

c. — — — Tender of deed.]—Deft. agreed by bond to sell to pltf.

406. — Payment of bill in India or return protested for non-payment—Protested in India for non-acceptance—In England for non-payment.]—Bills of exchange were drawn by A. in England on B. in the East Indies, payable sixty days after sight, & a bond was entered into conditioned to be void if the bills should be duly paid in India, or come back to England duly protested for non-payment & the amount of them paid by the obligor within a certain time after they should be so returned protested for non-payment. The bills were sent to India, but before they arrived, B., the drawee, had left the country, & his agent there refused to accept them. They were then protested in India for non-acceptance, sent back to England so protested, & being presented to the drawee in England for payment, were protested for non-payment:—Held: a substantial performance of the condition of the bond.—FRENCH v. CAMPBELL (1793), 2 Hy. Bl. 163; 126 E. R. 485; subsequent proceedings sub nom. CAMPBELL v. FRENCH (1795), 6 Term Rep. 200.

407. To pay on statement of bill of costs—By two attorneys chosen by parties—Only one attorney chosen by obligee.]—A bond conditioned to pay when such a bill of costs should be stated by two attorneys, to be indifferently chosen between the parties, as forfeited by a refusal of the obligor to appoint an attorney.—OTWAY v. HOLDIPS (1677), 2 Mod. Rep. 266; 86 E. R. 1064.

408. To pay amount awarded—Note payable at future day awarded.]—The condition of a bond being to pay pltf. so much money as the arbitrators, under a submission entered into between pltf. & A., should award A. to pay to pltf., an award that A. should give a promissory note to pltf., payable at a future day, is within the condition.—BOOTH v. GARNETT (1737), Andr. 28; 2 Stra. 1082; 95 E. R. 283.

See, generally, ARBITRATION, Vol. II., pp. 532 et seq.

409. To pay amount of verdict—No appeal.]—Pltf. obtained a verdict in an action against E., who then, in consideration of a stay of proceedings until the following term, executed a bond, the condition of which was, that if the determination of the action should be in favour of pltf., & E. should pay the amount for which the verdict was given, the bond should be void. A rule to set aside the verdict upon a point reserved at the trial was afterwards discharged, & E. gave notice of appeal under C. L. P. Act, 1854, s. 37, but, no bail having been put in under s. 38, & more than two years having passed without any step being taken to prosecute the appeal, pltf. brought an action land for £600, of which £50 was to be paid down & the remainder "within ten years from the date thereof," with interest, & conditioned that deft., "on receiving the principal & interest at the days & times mentioned for payment thereof," should "sign, seal, & deliver & execute" unto pltf. a sufficient deed in fee of the land, free from all incumbrances:—Held: pltf. was bound to tender a deed for execution & was not relieved by general allegations in the declaration that deft. could not give a good title, etc.—BURNS v. BOYD (1860), 19 U. C. R. 547.—CAN.

d. To pay compensation for market tolls—None received—Pleading.]—A., on the bond;—Held: the time for putting in bail having elapsed, & no bail having been put in, the action against E. must be considered as determined in favour of pltf., & the bond might be enforced.—BURNABY v. EARLE (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 490; 43 L. J. Q. B. 209; 30 L. T. 760; 22 W. R. 877.

SECT. 2.—WHAT AMOUNTS TO PERFORMANCE OR BREACH.

SUB-SECT. 1.—PAYMENT.

410. Where made—At another place.]—If a man be bound in an obligation to pay £10 to the obligee at a place beyond the sea at a certain day, if the obligor pay at another place, & on the same day in England, & the other accepts it, it is good.—ANON. (1546), Bro. N. C. 2, 44; 73 E. R. 848, 866.

See, also, No. 541, post.

411. To whom made—Third person—Release of debt.]—If a man is bound to A. in £20 to pay £10 to J. & he releases to J. £20, which he owes him:—Semle: this is no performance of the condition, for it ought to be a payment in fact.—ANON. (undated), Plowd. Qrs. 23, pl. 130; 75 E. R. 889.

412. — To A. with defeasance on payment to B.—Tender to B.]—On a bond to A., with a defeasance on payment to B., a tender to B. will avoid the penalty, but not if B. had been a mere stranger.—HUISH v. PHILIPS (1603), Cro. Eliz. 754; 78 E. R. 986; sub nom. HUGHES v. PHILLIPS, Yelv. 38; sub nom. PHILIPS v. HUISH, Cro. Jac. 12. Annotations:—Refd. Lancashire v. Turner (1744), Willes, 475.

413. — To creditor by request.]—Debt on bond conditioned to pay "ledd." Deft. pleaded that pltf. was indebted to J. in £10 for "ledd," & that by agreement & consent of pltf. he paid J. the money due to him from pltf. in satisfaction of the price he was to pay to pltf. for the ledd:—Held: deft. was discharged.—FOREWOOD v. DICTON (1616), 1 Roll. Rep. 296; 81 E. R. 497.

414. — Creditor's securities not cancelled.]—A. agreed to sell property to B. for £500 & let B. into possession upon his giving a bond for that amount. Subsequently at A.'s request B. paid £200 to A.'s creditor, C., but took an assignment of C.'s security & later paid £300 to another of A.'s creditors, D., but took security from D. to refund the £300 on certain conditions:—Held: B.'s bond to A. was not discharged by the payments to C. & D., so long as the security assigned by C. & that given by D. were not delivered up to be cancelled.—MAGSON v. FANE (1673), Cas. temp. FINCH, 84; 23 E. R. 45.

415. — Scrivener—Bond in custody of obligee.]—A scrivener put out money on bond, & received the interest from time to time, & then received part of the principal, the bond remaining in the obligee's custody:—Held: not a good payment.—ROBERTS v. MATTHEWS (1682), 1 Vern. 150; 23 E. R. 379.

Annotation:—Refd. Beaufort v. Neeld (1845), 12 Cl. & Fin. 248.

upon being appointed clerk of the market to the board of police of L., entered into a bond to pay a sum in compensation for the market tolls which the board allowed him to receive. Being sued on his bond for non-payment, he pleaded "that he discovered after the execution of the bond that pltf. had no legal right to erect a market, or make by-laws respecting fees to be taken thereat"; & then averred that pltf. had no such authority, & that on this account, the bond was void:—Held: bad, in not showing that no market was erected or existed, & in not averring that fees were not in fact received by him.—LONDON BOARD OF POLICE v. TALBOT (1847), 3 U. C. R. 311.—CAN.

417. — One executor—Bond to two executors.]—D., the obligor of a bond given to two exors., to secure a debt forming part of testator's general assets, thirteen years after testator's death, paid to one of the exors. a moiety of the debt, the other moiety having been previously paid off, & obtained a receipt therefor purporting to be signed by both exors. In fact, the exor. receiving the money forged the signature of his co-exor. to the receipt & appropriated the money to himself. In a suit against D. by the exor. whose receipt was forged & by the cestuis que trust to recover the money from him:—Held: D. was released from his debt by payment to, & the receipt of one exor.—CHARLTON v. DURHAM (EARL) (1869), 4 Ch. App. 433; 38 L. J. Ch. 183; 20 L. T. 467; 17 W. R. 995, L. C.

418. By whom made—Solicitor of both parties—Solicitor indebted to obligor.]—Pltf. at the request of M., her solr., lent to deft. £200 on the security of his bond. M. was also the solr. of deft., & was accustomed to receive his rents & make payments on his account. Pltf. applied to M. for payment of the bond. M., who was then indebted to deft., borrowed the amount from a bank, with whom he deposited the bond as a security, & with the money so borrowed paid the bond. Deft. had no knowledge of the transaction. M. afterwards died insolvent, & the bank sued deft. on the bond in the name of pltf.:—Held: there was no payment of the bond by deft.—LUCAS v. WILKINSON (1856), 1 H. & N. 420; 26 L. J. Ex. 13; 5 W. R. 197; 156 E. R. 1265.

419. How made—To bank account.]—Debt on a bond, dated Jan. 10, 1837, conditioned for repayment of principal & interest on Apr. 6 following, & given as a security by debts. to pltf. on the advance of £1,000 by pltf. to L., one of debts., who had then lately opened an account with a bank, of which pltf. were trustees. Several sums of money had been paid in by L. to the credit side of his account previous to & since the execution of the bond:—Held: there being evidence to lead to such a conclusion, the bond was given as a continuing security, & was not discharged by the sums paid in by L.—HENNIKER v. WIGG (1843), 4 Q. B. 792; 1 Dav. & Mer. 160; 1 L. T. O. S. 229; 7 Jur. 1058; 114 E. R. 1095.

condition of a bond was to pay to the obligee; payment was made by obligor, a person to whom the original obligee's interest had been assigned under an agreement not made with such third person as an obligee but in a different right & character:—Held: such payment could not be considered in law a payment to the obligee.—HOSKING v. NORTON (1844), Res. & Eq. Jud. 12.—AUS.

434. ——— Taxed costs.]—A bond conditioned to pay costs on Nov. 29 in Cumberland, when taxed by the master is forfeited by non-payment, though in fact the costs were only taxed on Nov. 25, of which deft. had no notice on or before Nov. 29, for deft. might have had them taxed before, & thus have known their amount in time.—Bigland v. Skelton (1810), 12 East, 436; 104 E. R. 170.

435. ——— Of infant's majority—Bankruptcy of obligor during infancy.]—A. gave B. a bond conditioned for payment of £1,000 when C. an infant, if living, should attain twenty-one, with interest in the meantime payable half-yearly. A. became bankrupt during the minority of C. At the date of the fiat there was an arrear of interest due on the bond:—Held: the bond was forfeited, & B. was entitled to prove against the estate of A. for the whole £1,000 with interest to the date of the fiat.—Re Cawood, Ex p. Shaw (1850), Fonbl. 159; 15 L. T. O. S. 368.

436. ——— After date.]—In debt on a bond to pay money, deft. pleaded payment of part after the bond was forfeited:—Held: a plea of payment after the day for payment was a bad plea.—Marshall v. Freahe (1622), Palm. 287; 81 E. R. 1086.

443. — Due payment—Payment by receipts of following day.]—Debt on a bond conditioned for the due payment by the chief clerk of a railway co. of all money received by him on account of the co. He allowed the other clerks to be in arrear, & made up the deficiency on one day by appropriating to it a portion of the money received on the following day, but, in fact, he paid over a sum equal to the amount received on each day up to the time of his dismissal:—Held: the condition had been broken.—LONDON, BRIGHTON & SOUTH COAST RY. Co. v. GOODWIN (1849), 3 Exch. 736; 18 L. J. Ex. 337; 13 L. T. O. S. 74; 154 E. R. 1042.

444. Interest—Default.]—A bond executed by deft., as surety for J., on Mar. 1, 1832, was conditioned for payment of £5 interest on a principal sum of £200 on Mar. 1, 1833, £5 on Mar. 1, 1834, & £205 on Mar. 1, 1835. The first year's interest was not paid till Mar. 30, 1833. In June, 1833, deft. became bkpt.:—Held: the bond had been forfeited, & was provable under defts.'s commission.—SKINNERS' CO. v. JONES (1837), 3 Bing. N. C. 481; 3 Hodg. 18; 4 Scott, 271; 6 L. J. C. P. 113; 132 E. R. 495.

445. — — —.]—On a bond with a penalty conditioned for payment of money at a given day, & interest at stated intervals in the meantime, the whole sum becomes demandable on default in the regular payment of interest. It is no defence to plead that the obligors credited the obligee with interest in their books upon which the obligee could draw.—GOAD v. EMPIRE PRINTING & PUBLISHING Co., LTD. (1888), 52 J. P. 438.

446. Of lesser sum.]—The acceptance of a lesser sum pendente billâ cannot be pleaded in abatement to debt on bond. Qu.: whether it can be pleaded in bar.—STONE v. RADISH (1591), Cro. Eliz. 253; 78 E. R. 508.

447. — — —.]—In an action on a bond of £200 with condition for payment of £101 at a day certain, made by deft. & two others jointly & severally, deft. pleaded that pltf. released the bond by payment of £100:—Held: the release of a bond of £200 by payment of £100 did not discharge a bond for payment of £101, for though a greater sum included a lesser as to a tender, yet the debt & duty was entire & could not be discharged by a release of a lesser sum.—CHACE v. GOLD (1648), Aleyn, 71; 82 E. R. 921.

448. — — —.]—Payment of a lesser sum in satisfaction of a greater is not a good plea in an action of debt on bond, though it is good in an assumpsit.—HILLIARD v. SMITH (1685), Comb. 19; 90 E. R. 317.

449. From another obligor.]—Pltfs., on becoming sureties for deft., took a joint & several indemnity bond from deft. & J. Pltfs. afterwards became liable, as such sureties, to pay, & paid, £1098. They then sued J. on the indemnity bond, & obtained a verdict for £1098, but accepted £215 from him in compromise, giving him a receipt as follows:—"Received of J. £215, being the sum we have agreed to accept in discharge of the damages & costs in this action." Pltfs. afterwards sued deft. on the same bond, & he pleaded payment by J. of £215 in full satisfaction:—Held: proof of the compromise with J., as above stated, did not support the plea.—FIELD v. ROBINS (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 90; 3 Nev. & P. K. B. 226; 1 Will. Woll. & H. 145; 7 L. J. Q. B. 153; 2 Jur. 855; 112 E. R. 770.

450. Part payment—Agreement to take residue at future date.]—Part payment & an agreement to take the residue at a future day cannot be pleaded as satisfaction in bar to debt on bond.—BALSTON v. BAXTER (1593), Cro. Eliz. 304; 78 E. R. 555.

*Annotation:—*Reid. Lynu v. Bruce (1794), 2 Hy. Bl. 317.

451. — Another bond given for residue.]—In debt on a bond to pay money, deft. pleaded payment of part after the bond was forfeited, & as to the balance, that he had given a bond to pltf. in exoneration of the bond in suit:—Held: the plea that deft. had given a bond in discharge of the other bond was not a good plea, for they were of the same nature, & one did not determine the other.—MARSHALL v. FREAKE (1622), Palm. 287; 81 E. R. 1086.

452. — & accord as to remainder.]—To an action for breach of covenant in not paying £8 a year & in not purchasing lands worth £100, deft. pleaded that he had paid part, & that for the rest pltf. was to enter & receive profits of certain lands:—Held: an accord was a good plea to a covenant to pay a sum or to an obligation, when joined with other things uncertain.—OUTRAM v. ROLSTON (1666), 2 Keb. 51, 64; 84 E. R. 32, 41.

456. Alternative condition—Performance of things not provided for.]—Where the condition of a bond is to pay, or to do a collateral thing, this cannot be discharged by the performance of another collateral thing.

The first difference, where the condition of a bond is for payment of money, this may be performed by the payment of another thing, because it is of value certain, & this may be performed by any other collateral thing; otherwise it is, where the condition of a bond is to do a collateral thing. A second difference, three are bound to deliver a collateral thing, they pay money for this; this is no good satisfaction, notwithstanding mumms est mensura rerum commutandarum, as if a man is bound to deliver to the obligee so much lead, of the value of £7 certain, & he delivers to him £7, this is no satisfaction of the condition, because that lead may be worth more, the price of this may rise, it may be dearer, or it may be cheaper. A third difference, a man is bound to pay a sum of money, or a powder of lead. If he delivers this to another, by & with the consent of the obligee, this is a good performance of the condition (DODDERIDGE, J.).—MOORWOOD v. DICKENS (1615), 3 Bulst. 148; 81 E. R. 127.

457. — Replace stock sold—Refusal to replace.]—A. agreed to lend B. a loan of £600 Navy 5 per cent. stock. He sold the stock for £522, which he paid to B. A bond was drawn by an unprofessional man, to repay “£522, being the produce of £600 Navy 5 per cent. stock, or such other sum as would replace the stock, with lawful interest.” A sum equal to the dividends was paid half-yearly, but B., on discharging the bond, refused to transfer the stock, & would only pay the money received by her. A. objected to that, but at length received it, & gave up the bond, remonstrating on the injustice of the proceedings, but being told, at the same time, that the money would only be paid in discharge of the bond:—Held: (1) A. had no relief in equity, for he should not have received the money, unless the party paying it had agreed that the remedy should remain open; (2) the costs should be refused.—BARNHAM v. MUNN (1829), Tambl. 84; 48 E. R. 35.

458. — Pay insurance premiums—Lapse & revival of policy.]—A bond was conditioned to pay a sum of money on a given day, or to perform an agreement keeping a life policy on foot. Pltf. did not pay one of the premiums on the proper day, but subsequently to action brought for the principal sum, revived the policy at the original premium:—Held: the fact of pltf. having put himself into his original position as regarded the security of the policy, was not a sufficient ground for granting relief, but the action should be restrained on the ground, that in the peculiar circumstances of the case appearing in the bill & affidavits, pltf. might have been under a mistake as to his liabilities in respect of a family arrangement.—SHEARMAN v. M'GREGOR (1853), 11 Hare 106; 1 W. R. 302; 68 E. R. 1206.

459. Without acquittance.]—In an action on a bond, deft. pleaded payment without acquittance:—Held: payment without acquittance was no plea, & the bond was not discharged.—NICHOLS' CASE (1595), 5 Co. SUB-SECT. 3.—DELIVERY OF BOND OR GOODS.

461. Bond—After judgment.]—A condition to deliver an obligation is not performed by delivery of it after it has been put in suit, & judgment recovered on it.—TEAT'S CASE (1582), Cro. Eliz. 7; 78 E. R. 273.

Annotation:—Mentd. Boson v. Sandford (1688), 1 Show. 101.

462. — To third party to use of plaintiff.]—A condition to deliver a bond to pltf. is not satisfied by delivery of it to a third person to his use.—BEASE v. DRAITON (1589), Cro. Eliz. 143; 78 E. R. 400.

463. Goods—To common carrier—Delivery to servant of carrier.]—If a condition be to deliver so many shoes to A., a common carrier, for the use of the obligee, a delivery of them to the servant of A. is sufficient, & the master shall be bound by it.—STAPLES v. ALDEN (1678), 2 Mod. Rep. 309; 86 E. R. 1091.

h. Of moneys collected—Pleading.]—The condition was to pay over moneys. Plea, payment of all moneys collected, without showing how much collected:—Held: sufficient.—DENISON v. DONNELLY (1846), 2 U. C. R. 395.—CAN.

k. Presumption of—Possession of bond by mortgagor.]—The presumption of payment of a bond which arises from its possession by the obligor loses much of its force when raised, not between the original creditor & debtor, but between debtor & the purchaser of the debt at an execution sale.—DEBENDRA KUMAR MANDEL v. RUP LALL DASS (1886), 1 L. R. 12 Calc. 546.—IND.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.

1. Goods—Delivery to sheriff.]—A bond by a party whose goods are seized under a fi. fa., to deliver them to the sheriff on request, means morely that they shall be forthcoming when demanded, & where, in such case, the obligor has once delivered up the goods to the sheriff, the condition is performed; a refusal to give them up on a subsequent occasion is no breach of the condition.—MALLOCK v. PATTERSON (1844), 1 U. C. R. 261.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 4.

m. Legal result—Trouble & expense.]—A person giving a bond to he is damnified & the condition of the bond is broken the moment judgment for the debt is given, & deft. cannot avoid the penalty by a subsequent payment of the debt.—BUSH v. RENGLEY (1591), Cro. Eliz. 264 ; 78 E. R. 520.

465. — Failure to pay.]—When the principal debtor gives his surety a bond to save him harmless, there is a forfeiture if the principal debtor fails to pay the debt by the due date.—ABBOTS v. JOHNSON (1616), 3 Bulst. 233 ; 81 E. R. 197.

466. Against previous bond—Action commenced—Subsequent payment.]—If a counter bond be given to save the obligee harmless from another bond in which he is the obligor, the covenant is broken if the original bond be put in suit, although the money is afterwards paid.—BOTHWRIGHT v. HARVY (1594), Cro. Eliz. 369 ; 78 E. R. 617.

467. — Previous bond paid—Terror of suit.]—Deft. having given a bond to pltf. to save him harmless against another bond, pltf. went to the place where the money due on the first bond was to be paid, on the day of payment, & perceiving no person there to pay the money due upon it, paid the money to the obligee in the first bond to save the penalty. In an action on the counter bond :—Held : the condition had been broken, for terror of suit was a damnification.—BROUGHTON'S CASE (1600), 5 Co. Rep. 24a ; 77 E. R. 86.

468. — Capias issued.]—Where pltf. was bound as surety for deft., gave pltf. a bond to save him harmless :—Held : there was a breach when deft. failed to pay his debt, whereby there was a capias against pltf.—REVE v. HARRIS (1613), 2 Bulst. 115 ; 80 E. R. 996.

469. — Effect of non-payment.]—Where a counter bond is given to save harmless from a penal bond before condition broken, if the penal sum be not paid at the day, the party to be saved harmless becomes thereby liable to the penalty ; & so is damnified, & the counter bond is forfeited.—GRIFFITH v. HARRISON (1693), 1 Salk. 196 ; Skin. 397 ; 90 E. R. 176.

Annotation :—Mentd. Wright v. Russell (1774), 3 Wils. 530.

470. — .]—X. became bound as a surety with Y. to A. on Aug. 10, 1778, conditioned for payment in six months. On Mar. 1, 1780, he became bound with Y. to B. conditioned for payment in six months ; & on Mar. 4, 1780, Y. became bound to X. conditioned for payment of the two former bonds, & also to indemnify X. against those two bonds. The money secured by the second bond not being paid on the day when it became due :—Held : the last bond was thereby forfeited, though X. was not called on to pay the money in the second bond until afterwards, & X. might prove it as a debt under the commission of bkpcy. that issued against Y. after the forfeiture & before payment.—HODGSON v. BELL (1797), 7 Term Rep. 97 ; 101 E. R. 874.

471. Against claim of dower—Action for arrears.]—The obligee in an indemnity bond, on being damnified, has an immediate right to be reimbursed.

The condition of a bond was that deft. should indemnify pltf. from all manner of claim of dower that might be made by A. A. subsequently married D., who filed a bill for arrears of dower :—Held : pltf. was not bound to wait until the determination of the suit, but had an immediate right to enforce the bond.—CHALLONER v. WALKER (1758), 1 Burr. 574 ; 2 Keny. 297 ; 97 E. R. 455.

Annotation :—Refd. Re Fox, Ex p. Marshall (1834), 3 Deac.

472. Parish against pauper—Maintenance in another parish.]—A bond to indemnify a parish against a pauper is forfeited, though the parish, to avoid the expense of removal, chooses to pay a weekly sum for his maintenance in another parish.—ALLEN v. PESHALL (1777), 2 Wm. Bl. 1177 ; 96 E. R. 694.

473. Parish against inhabitant—Residence after term.]—A bond given to parish officers reciting that B. had taken a house in the parish for a term of seven years, & conditioned to indemnify the parish against any charges which they might sustain on account of B. & his family becoming inhabitants of & belonging to the parish, is not discharged by B.'s purchasing an estate of the value of £30 in the parish, & residing on it upwards of forty days, after the expiration of the seven years' lease.—EDWARDS v. BOBBIT (1813), 1 M. & S. 120 ; 105 E. R. 45.

474. Parish for maintenance of bastard child—Refusal by parish to deliver child to obligor.]—The putative father of a bastard child voluntarily entered into a bond, conditioned to pay pltf., parish officers, & their successors 2s. 6d. a week, for all costs & charges concerning the child, so long as it should live, & be provided for at the expense of the parish. To an action on the bond, to recover weekly payments deft. pleaded that he was able & willing to pay for the child without the assistance of the parish, & that he had requested pltf. to deliver it over to his care, but that the child had been provided for at the expense of the parish, by pltf., of their own wrong, & that, if they were damnified, they were damnified of their own wrong :—Held : the plea disclosed no matter of legal defence to the action, since the only plea in discharge of the bond would be performance, as the child had been provided for at the expense of the parish.—POPE v. SALE (1831), 7 Bing. 477 ; 5 Moo. & P. 336 ; Nev. & M. M. C. 240 ; 9 L. J. O. S. C. P. 150 ; 131 E. R. 185.

Annotation :—Mentd. Follit v. Koetzow (1860), 21 J. P. 612.

475. Against expenses of bastard child—Child under seven removed by mother.]—Debt on bond to indemnify pltf. from charges which he might be liable to on account of a bastard child. Plea, that the mother took the child away from defts. Replication, that it had since been chargeable to the parish, & pltf. had been obliged to pay. Rejoinder that the child was an infant under seven & in the keeping of the mother, & that it was not in defts.' power to take it from her & keep it so as to indemnify pltf. :—Held : the plea was bad, because the bond was a general bond to indemnify pltf. as to the child against all the world, & defts. could plead nothing except either (1) that pltf. had not been damnified, or (2) if he had been damnified he himself was the occasion thereof.—HULLAND v. MALKEN (1760), 2 Wils. 126 ; 95 E. R. 723.

Sect. 2.—What amounts to performance or breach : Sub-sects. 5, 6 & 7.]

5.—OF BONDS DEALING WITH INTERESTS IN AND COVENANTS RELATING TO LAND.

476. Descent to son at death—Land sold & repurchased.]—A man was bound in an obligation on condition that if he allowed his lands to descend to his son immediately after his death without any act being done relating to the lands, the obligation should be void. He sold part of the land during his life, but bought it back & allowed it to descend to his son :—Held : he had broken the condition.—HOWARD (LORD) v. UDER (1537), Benl. 9 ; Ben. & D. 19 ; 73 E. R. 937.

Annotation :—Mentd. Anon. (1562), Ben. & D. 121.

477. Release of rights—Lease to another to use of obligor.]—A. was bound in an obligation that he should release all his right in B. to the obligor, & in performance of the condition he made such a lease, & delivered same to C. to the use of the obligor :—Held : the condition was not performed, because the obligor had not the lease in his own hands to plead, but was put to his writ of detinue against C.—ANON. (1584), 4 Leon. 122 ; 74 E. R. 771.

478. Performance of covenants in lease—Rent reserved by award.]—Arbitrators awarded that the obligee of a bond should grant a lease to the obligor reserving a certain rent. The lease was granted, but the obligor did not pay the rent :—Held : the lessor could not bring an action of debt on the bond, for the words "reserving rent" were not parcel of the award, the effective part of which was the granting of the lease, & the lessor had other remedies for recovering the rent.—ANON. (1535), Benl. 4 ; 73 E. R. 933.

479. — Breach.]—Debt on bond conditioned for performance of covenants in a lease will lie on a breach of the covenants before the condition is performed, though the lease becomes void before the action is brought.—HILL v. PILKINGTON (1591), Cro. Eliz. 244 ; 78 E. R. 500.

481. — — Compromise—Premises let by assignor.]—The assignee of a lease executed a bond to indemnify the original lessees against the covenants contained in the original lease. He afterwards left the country ; the house was left untenanted, & the original lessees were obliged to pay the rent reserved. The assignee, having subsequently returned to England, made a compromise with them for the sum then due in respect of his non-performance of the covenants, & shortly afterwards went abroad, & the original lessees demised the house to a person who continued in possession until the end of the term :—Held : such mode of dealing with the premises did not give the assignee any title in equity to relief against the legal effect of his bond.—ANDERSON v. BAILEY (1826), 1 Russ. 313 ; 38 E. R. 121, L. C.

482. Sale of house to A.—Sale to B.—Subsequent repurchase.]—If a man be bound by his bond, to sell a house to A., & afterwards before any sale by him made to A. he sells the same house to B., by such sale the bond is forfeited, & that is so, notwithstanding afterwards he repurchases the same house again.—ANON. (1611), 1 Bulst. 117 ; 80 E. R. 813.

483. Quiet enjoyment—Interference.]—Where a lessor is bound that his lessee shall take, reap & carry his corn peaceably without interruption, if the lessor comes upon the land & says to the lessee that he shall not reap any corn there, but otherwise does not disturb him, it is a forfeiture of the bond.—ANON. (1584), Godb. 22 ; 78 E. R. 14.

484. Payment of annuity during occupation—Surrender of land.]—A bond to pay an annuity to A. if the obligor or his assigns, shall, or may, occupy the lands let to him, the obligor, by B. is forfeited by non-payment to A., although the obligor has surrendered the lands to B.—FORD v. HOLLINGBOROUGH (1593), Cro. Eliz. 313 ; 78 E. R. 563 ; sub nom. FOORD v. HOLBORROW, Owen, 104.

485. Lessee to give up possession—Refusal.]—A lessee for years was bound in a bond to give up possession of the land demised to the lessor, or his assigns, at the end of the term. The lessor assigned over his interest, & the assignee required the lessee to perform the condition, who replied that he did not know whether or not he were the assignee, & thereupon refused :—Held : he had broken the condition.—ANON. (1618), Poph. 136 ; 79 E. R. 1238.

486. Removal of manure.]—A tenant executed a bond to his landlord, conditioned that it should be void, if he should spread all the manure then collected in the midden-stead or any other part of the farm on the land, & should not sell, cart, or convey away any manure from the farm. The tenant's stock upon the farm having been sold by auction, two of the cows, which were bought by W., were permitted by the tenant to stay upon the premises for some weeks. W. brought all their food daily from his own farm, & took away the manure made by them :—Held : the condition of the bond was broken, as the manure so taken away was made on the land, & ought to have been spread

n. Agreement to settle land—Whether non-performance cancels agreement.]—If a man agree to settle his estate in a particular manner, & give a bond for performance of the agreement, he cannot forfeit the bond & get rid of the agreement, though the estate be worth more than the amount of the bond ; & if the bond is to secure his not doing an act, he cannot, by forfeiting it, enable himself to do the act.—*FRENCH v. t. — — — Conveyance essential—Pleading.]—Declaration on a bond by defts. testator to "execute to pltf. a sufficient deed in law" of land. SUB-SECT. 6.—OF BONDS TO RENDER ACCOUNTS.

487. Neglect to pay money.]—The condition of a bond being, “to render a fair, just, & perfect account, in writing, of all sums received,” if the obligor neglect to pay over such sums, he is guilty of a breach of the condition.—BACHE v. PROCTOR (1780), 1 Doug. K. B. 382; 99 E. R. 247.

Annotation:—Mentd. Wilson v. Wilson (1854), 5 H. L. Cas. 40.

488. — False balance sheets.]—In an action upon a bond, the condition of which was for the honest & faithful service of a banker's clerk, three breaches were assigned, viz., general misconduct, irregular & unbusinesslike conduct, & not faithfully accounting. An arbitrator, to whom the cause was referred, found specially that, on a certain day, the clerk made an erroneous balance sheet, failing to exhibit, as it should have done, a surplus of £100, but that there was no proof that such sum came to the hands of the clerk, & also that, on another occasion, the clerk having received from a customer £213, entered it in the books of the bank as £113, exhibiting on that day's balance sheet a false & unaccounted for surplus of £100:—Held: the above facts did not show conclusively that the condition of the bond had been broken.—JEPHSON v. HOWKINS (1841), 2 Man. & G. 366; 2 Scott, N. R. 605; 133 E. R. 787.

489. — Deficiency on stock taking.]—Deft. gave a bond dated Apr. 18, 1842, to secure his faithful discharge of the duties of the office of agent for a co-operative society. By the condition, the nature of the duties was to render a true account to pltfs., as the directors, or such persons as they should appoint, of all money & other property & otherwise faithfully discharge the office. The breach assigned that deft. received from members and others, on behalf of the society, goods & chattels of the value of £2,800, & was liable to account for same, but that he did not render an account of £80 9s. parcel of the sum. The deft. alleged that he did render an account of the £80 9s., & that he did, when requested, pay over the sum. Deft. had been, from Aug., 1841, agent for the society, & his duties before & after the execution of the bond were precisely of the same description. A deficiency was discovered on taking stock in Aug., 1842, & such deficiency was £112, but in what manner, or at what time, the deficiency was occasioned, was left on the stock-taking quite uncertain. After the first stock-taking deft. remained in his office a fortnight longer, & at the end of it stock was again taken, on which second occasion the deficiency amounted to £128, making an increase in such deficiency of £16 in the interval. Upon that evidence the judge directed the jury to find a verdict for pltf. for £80 9s., with liberty to move to reduce it to £16, or enter a nonsuit, or verdict for deft.:—Held: the rule should be made absolute for reducing the verdict to £16, & the verdict could not stand, because the period of the breach of duty by deft., except as far as regarded the fortnight between the first & second taking of the stock, was left quite in uncertainty, but the stock having been twice taken while deft. remained in his office after the date of the bond, afforded some evidence of breach of duty within the condition.—HARGREAVES v. WOOD (1845), 5 L. T. O. S. 370.

SUB-SECT. 7.—OF BONDS RELATING TO MARRIAGE.

490. Settlement—Subsequent marriage—Of wife.]—A. on his marriage with B., entered into a bond of £1,000 to trustees to her use, in Aug., 1848, conditioned to be void, if he did not within two months settle lands on those trustees, to the use of himself & B., & their heirs, in Nov. next. Afterwards A. covenanted with one of the trustees to stand seised of those lands to the use of himself for life, remainder to B. for life, remainder to his first & tenth son in tail, remainder to his own right heirs. A. died without issue, & B., who survived many years, married C., by whom she had issue, pltf., an infant. A bill having been brought on his behalf against deft., who claimed under the heir of A., to enforce a conveyance according to the condition of the bond:—Held: as there was no agreement but what was in the condition of the bond, & no articles or agreement besides, & as the bond was twenty-two years old, & the above settlement had been made to one of the obligees of the same land mentioned in the condition, though not to the same uses, & as B. had never questioned it in her life, & the agreement was secured by penalty, which was relied upon, there was no reason to turn such agreement into a collateral execution by decreeing the land, & demurrer to the bill allowed.—BAGG v. FOSTER (1870), 1 Cas. in Ch. 188; 22 E. R. 755.

491. — Of obligor.]—Where, in a bond made in contemplation of marriage, the obligor agreed to settle all lands & hereditaments of which he should be seised during his life upon his intended wife, & the issue of the marriage, in such parts & proportions, & to such use & uses as should be thought requisite, the better to make a provision for his intended wife in case she should survive him:—Held: such obligor having survived his wife, by whom he had issue, & married another by whom he also had issue, would not commit a breach of the condition, if he did not make a settlement of property acquired during the second marriage upon the issue of the first.—PREBBLE v. BOGHURST (1817), 7 Taunt. 538; 1 Moore, C. P. 258; 129 E. R. 215; subsequent proceedings (1818), 1 Wils. Ch. 161, L. C.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 6.

488 i. Neglect to pay money—Falsification of accounts.]—A clerk to an urban district council falsified the accounts before entering into a surety bond, subsequently entered into a bond, failed to account & left the country. The condition in the bond was that if he should duly & faithfully execute & discharge all the duties of the said office, etc., then, etc.:—Held: there was a duty on his part to submit his accounts to audit & to pay over the sum of money that would be certified by the auditor to be due.—TULLAMORE URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL v. ROBINS (1913), 48 I. L. T. 180.—IR.

a. — Pleading.]—In debt in bond to pltf., as treasurer, by deft., as collector of taxes, conditioned that if deft. should faithfully collect & pay over to the proper officer the taxes imposed for the then current year, & should well & faithfully comply with all the other duties of his office as specially defined in the by-laws, etc.:

—Held: the declaration should have alleged that the town council had imposed taxes, amount that should have been collected by deft., the by-laws defining duty, etc.—JUDD v. PETRIE (1856), 6 C. P. 48.—CAN.

b. — —.]—Condition, to account once in six months. Plea, that deft. did account, not alleging once in every six months:—Held: bad.—SMALL v. BEASLEY (1846), 3 U. C. R. 40.—CAN.

492. — Satisfied pro tanto—Devise of lands to wife.]—A bond by a wife's father to pay £800 as her portion:—Held: satisfied pro tanto by the devise to her of copyhold lands which the husband had enjoyed.—BRIDGES v. BERE (1708), 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 34; 22 E. R. 29, L. C.

493. — Estate of inheritance—Subsequent annuity.]—One on marriage gave a bond to settle an estate of inheritance of clear £100 a year, to the use of himself for life, remainder to his wife for life, remainder to the heirs of their bodies, remainder to his own right heirs. He afterwards settled [a rentcharge] a perpetual annuity, which he was entitled to, payable out of the customs at Hull:—Held: a performance of the agreement.—MIDDLETON v. PRYOR (1760), Amb. 301, 828; 27 E. R. 260, 521.

Annotation:—Mentd. Turner v. Turner (1783), 1 Bro. C. C. 315.

494. — On husband & wife—Devise to wife—Specific performance.]—A bond was given by the father of an illegitimate child to her intended husband, in contemplation of their intended marriage, in the penal sum of £2,000 conditioned to pay the husband £1,000 & interest. It was recited in the condition, that in consideration of the intended marriage, the obligor had proposed to the obligee to surrender certain copyhold property, then let on lease at a rent of £50 per annum, to the uses thereafter mentioned, & if such surrender should not be so made within eighteen months after the marriage, the husband & wife, or the survivor, should receive, after the death of the obligor, £1,000, & he was, in the meantime, to pay the husband & wife £50 a year for the interest thereof, until the principal sum should be fully discharged. The condition was to the effect of the recital, & that, if the estate should be so settled in substance to the use of the husband & wife for life, remainder to the survivor, remainder to their issue, & if the £1,000 & interest should be paid, or if the obligor should make such surrender in his lifetime, & pay the arrears of interest up to the time of the surrender, the obligation was to be void. The obligor died without making the surrender, having regularly paid the £50 per annum, & by his will he devised the copyhold estate to his daughter, the wife of the obligee:—Held: the bond was not forfeited by reason of the breach of the condition, as there was merely an agreement to settle the land, which was satisfied by the devise to the wife, & it was an agreement of which equity would enforce the specific performance, the penalty being only meant to secure the settlement recited in the condition.—ROPER v. BARTHOLOMEW (1823), 12 Price, 797; 147 E. R. 880.

495. To marry obligee—Refusal to marry.]—The condition of a bond was that the obligor would not marry any other but pltf., & would pay £1,200 in case she did so, or refused to marry pltf.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 8.

*c. Not to sell liquor during pendency of appeal—Sale by third party.]—*During the pendency of a certiorari to remove a conviction of deft. for selling intoxicating liquors contrary to law, deft. was again convicted & fined; part of the amount of the fine was paid, & action was brought on a bond conditioned that deft. would not sell "during the pendency of the appeal" from the first conviction. There was no evidence that he had sold liquor personally, but it appeared that liquor had been sold on the premises by a woman who was not shown to be deft.'s wife, child, or servant:—Held: the breach of the condition of the bond had not been proved.—R. v. MCKENZIE (1880), 1 R. & C. 488.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 9.

d. Not to alter will.]—Deft. gave pltf. a bond conditioned not to alter his will, by which, as recited in the bond, he had devised to pltf. land. He afterwards sold & conveyed the land to C.:—Held: the condition was broken.—MCCORMICK v. McRAE (1854), 11 U. C. R. 187.—CAN.

within a month after her father's death. The obligor married another man, her father being alive:—Semble: the bond was forfeited & the money payable.—BOX v. DAY (1744), 1 Wils. 59; 95 E. R. 491.

SUB-SECT. 8.—OF BONDS RELATING TO ACTIONS BROUGHT.

496. Not to continue action—Continued by attorney.]—The condition of a bond not to continue an action is not broken by the party's attorney continuing it without his privity.—GRAY v. GRAY (1619), Cro. Jac. 525; 79 E. R. 449.

497. To follow suit—Delay by application for injunction.]—A bond to follow a suit with effect is not forfeited by suing an injunction whereby the proceedings are delayed.—ORMOND (DUKE) v. IRELAND (1700), 12 Mod. Rep. 320; 88 E. R. 1350; sub nom. ORMOND (DUKE) v. BRIERLY, 12 Mod. Rep. 380; Carth. 519; Holt, K. B. 127.

SUB-SECT. 9.—OF MISCELLANEOUS BONDS.

499. Place of performance—Not provided for—Release to third party.]—The condition of a bond was that A. should perform an award, which was that he should release to B. all actions, etc. A. made a release to B., which he delivered to a third party for B.'s use. In debt upon the bond:—Held: a good performance of the condition, because no place was appointed by the arbitrators for delivery.—ALFORD v. LEE (1587), Cro. Eliz. 54; 2 Leon. 110; 78 E. R. 315.

Annotation:—Refd. Doe d. Garnows v. Knight (1826), 5 B. & C. 671.

500. Presentation to archdeaconry—Lapse to Crown.]—The condition of an obligation was that if S. procured a grant of the next avoidance of an archdeaconry to be made to B., so that B. at such next avoidance might present, then, etc. Afterwards by the endeavour of S. the grant of the next avoidance was made to B., but before the next avoidance the archdeacon was created a bishop, so that the presentment to that avoidance appertained to the Crown:—Held: the condition was not performed, by reason of the words, "so that B. might present."—BINGHAM & SQUIRE'S CASE (1587), 3 Leon. 151; 4 Leon. 61; 74 E. 502. Money to be devised to children—Devise of land to one child.]—If a man binds himself in a bond to leave his children £200, & he leaves four children, & gives the eldest an estate in land, & to the other three £50 a piece at twenty-one, this is not a performance of the condition.—TAYLOR v. BIRD (1750), 1 Wils. 280 ; 95 E. R. 618.

503. Devise according to advice of third person—Sufficiency of advice.]—If a man be bound to make a sure & sufficient estate, by the advice of J. if he make an estate according to the devise of J. be it sufficient or not, lawful or not lawful, the bond is saved.—LAMB'S CASE (1599), 5 Co. 504. Release to satisfaction of counsel—Presentment of document.]—On a condition to make such a release as shall satisfy pltf.'s counsel, deft. must tender a release to the counsel for his approval. If the condition is to seal such a release as pltf.'s counsel may advise, then pltf. is to procure his counsel to decree the release & then tender it to the deft. to seal.—BAKER v. BULSTRODE (1674), 2 Lev. 95 ; T. Raym. 232 ; 1 Vent. 255 ; 1 Mod. Rep. 104 ; 3 Keb. 273 ; 83 E. R. 466.

SECT. 3.—TIME FOR PERFORMANCE.

Time of payment.]—See Sect. 2, sub-sect. 1, ante.

506. No date fixed—Performance of award.]—A. was bound to B. upon condition to stand to the arbitrament of certain persons, who awarded that B. should make a release to A. of all actions, debts, duties, & demands at the request of A. Afterwards A. went to B. & required him to make a release, whereupon B. said that he was unlearned, & that he would go to one to make it, & the next day after the request he sealed & delivered the release to A., who accepted it : —Held : notwith-

1. To take up promissory note—Giving other notes.]—R. executed a bond in favour of E. to secure a promissory note made by R. in favour of E. The condition of the bond was that if R. properly took up the note with interest, etc., the bond should be void, but otherwise of full effect. On the due date of the note R. made two promissory notes in favour of E. All interest, etc., to date was paid, & on the face of the original note was written "settled by renewal bills." E. retained the bond : —Held : in the circumstances the giving of the two smaller promissory notes did not amount to a proper taking up of the larger note, & the condition of the bond remained unfulfilled.—EWERS v. OUDTSHOORN RESIDENT MAGISTRATE (1880), F. 32.—S. AF.

of land.]—On a bond conditioned that defts. should, on a certain day or before, if they obtained a title, convey to pltf. land in one of two counties in U.S.A. to be taken from lands to be located by defts. : —Held : it was deft.'s duty to convey, & not to wait till pltf. tendered a deed.—THAYER v. STREET (1861), 11 C. P. 243.—CAN.

h. — — — Refusal to convey.]—Pltf. declared on a bond, reciting that deft. had agreed to sell to him land for £600, of which £50 was to be paid down, & the remainder "within ten years from the date thereof," with interest thereon half-yearly ; & conditioned that deft., "on receiving the said principal money & interest at the days & times & in manner therein-before mentioned for payment thereof," should "sign, seal, deliver, & execute" unto pltf., a good, valid, & sufficient deed in fee simple of said land, & to convey the same to him free from all standing the acceptance, the obligation was forfeited, for presently after the request B. ought to have done it in the speediest manner possible.—ANON. (1576), 4 Leon. 190 ; 74 E. R. 813.

507. — — — Performance of transitory or local acts—Convenient time.]—When an act by the condition of a bond to be performed to the obligee is of its nature transitory, & no time is limited, although a place be expressed, the act ought to be performed in convenient time, & when the act to be performed is of its own nature local, without express limitation of any place.

In local acts, where the concurrence of the obligor & obligee is requisite, the obligor shall have time during his life, if not hastened by request of the obligee ; but when the obligor may perform the act for the benefit of the obligee in his absence, the obligor ought to do it in convenient time. Where the concurrence, not of the obligee but of a stranger, is requisite, the obligor shall not have time to do a local act during his life, but he ought to do it in convenient time. But if the concurrence of a stranger & of the obligee be requisite, the obligee ought to hasten the performance of such local act by request.

Where the act, which an obligor ought to do, does not concern the obligee nor benefit him, but is to be done by the sole act of the obligor himself, & no time is limited for the performance, the obligor has time during his life, & the performance cannot be hastened by request. So also when the act to be done by the condition is to be done by the sole act or labour, or industry of a stranger, which in no manner concerns the obligor or obligee, or any other person, & no time is limited for the performance, it is sufficient if the act is done in the lifetime of him who ought to do it.—BOTHY'S CASE (1605), 6 Co. The breach assigned was, that although pltf. had paid the £50, & £250 on account of interest, & was at all times ready & willing, & offered to pay deft. the balance of principal & interest, on receiving from him such deed, yet that deft. could not & would not give him said deed or any title to said land : —Held : the condition being to convey on receiving the purchase money within ten years, deft. could not be compelled to convey before the last day of that time, or at least not without notice of the intention to pay at an earlier day, & a tender accordingly.—BURNS v. BOYD (1860), 19 U. C. R. 547.—CAN.

516. ——— Person to be named in will—Omission of name.]—A bond was conditioned for payment of £10 to him whom the obligee should name by his last will. The obligee by his will named exors., but did not name any person certain to take his £10:—Held: his exors. were not entitled to the £10.

If I be bound to pay £10 to the assignee of the obligee, & his assignee makes an exor., & dies, the exor. shall not have the £10. But if I be bound to pay £10 to the obligee, or his assignees, there the exor. shall have it, because it was a duty in the obligee himself (COKE, C.J.).—MEADE'S CASE (1612), Godb. 192; 78 E. R. 117.

The marriage took place, & A. survived J., but died within the two years after his death:—Held: the condition was disjunctive, & performance having become impossible by the act of God as to one part of the condition, the obligor was not bound at all.—WOOD v. BATES (1628), W. Jo. 171; Palm. 513; 82 E. R. 91.

527. ———.]—Debt for £20 on condition that A. should pay £7 9s. 4d. on such a day to pltf., or personally appear on Jan. 23 in the house of B. precisely at 10 o'clock in the morning. Deft. pleaded that A. on Jan. 23, & before & after was so ill by the visitation of God that she could not go to B.'s house:—Held: though the condition was disjunctive & one part impossible, the other ought to be performed, & judgment should be given for pltf. for the reason chiefly that the appearance was to be by a stranger & not by the obligor himself.—TOPHAM v. PANNEL (1680), T. Raym. 373; 83 E. R. 194.

528. ———.]—Where the condition was to make A. a lease for life, or pay him £100, & A. died:—Held: his exors. should have the £100.—ANON. (1697), 1 Salk. 170; 91 E. R. 157.

Act of God generally, see Nos. 532 et seq., post.

529. ——— Act of obligee.]—Where the condition of a bond was that "the obligor should either make such an assurance as the obligee's counsel should advise within six months, or else pay £300":—Held: it was a good defence to say that the obligee's counsel did advise no assurance within six months.—BASKETT v. BASKETT (1677), 1 Freem. K. B. 228; 2 Mod. Rep. 200; 89 E. R. 163; sub nom. BASSETT v. BASSETT, 1 Mod. Rep. 264.

530. ———.]—A bond for payment of £40 was conditioned that "if deft. should work out the £40 at the usual prices in packing, when pltf. should have occasion for himself or his friends to employ him therein, or otherwise should pay the £40, then the bond to be void." In an action on the bond, deft. pleaded that he was always ready to have wrought out the £40, but that pltf. never employed him:—Held: a bad plea, because deft. did not aver that pltf. had any occasion to make use of him, & it was in pltf.'s election either to have work or money & not having employed him that was a request in law, and he had thereby determined his election to have the money.—WRIGHT v. BULL (1678), 2 Mod. Rep. 304; 86 E. R. 1086.

531. ———.]—On a disjunctive condition if the obligee prevent the performance of one branch, the obligor shall be excused from performing the other.—STUDHOLME v. MANDELL (1697), 1 Ld. Raym. 279; 1 Lut. 688; 91 E. R. 1083.

C. Act of God.

532. General rule.]—Where by the act of God, the performance of the condition of a bond becomes impossible, the bond is not forfeited.—HULBERT v. WATTS (1696), 1 Ld. Raym. 112; 91 E. R. 971.

533. Payment by day certain—Death of obligor—Award.]—Deft. was bound by bond to pltf. that J. should perform the award of C. The award was that J. should pay £20 at the Feast of the Annunciation & £10 at Mich. J. paid the £20, but died before Mich.:—Held: the bond was forfeit.—KINGWELL & CHAPMAN'S CASE (1577), 2 Leon. 155; 74 E. R. 438; sub nom. KINGUEL v. KNAPMAN, Cro. Eliz. 11.

534. ——— Liability of executors.]—The condition of a bond was, that if the obligor, by Nov. 10, did not legally prove money paid, then if he paid the money on the 10th, the bond should be void:—Held: the bond was not discharged by the death of the obligor before the day, for the exors. were bound to perform it.—VINIER v. JOYNER (1679), 1 Freem. K. B. 269; 89 E. R. 193; affd. S. C. sub nom. JOYNER v. VYNER (1680), T. Raym. 415.

535. ——— Death of beneficiary.]—Where a master binds himself to pay his apprentice, his exors. or assigns, a sum of money at the end of his apprenticeship, & the apprentice dies at the end of six years, the money is not payable.—CHEYNEY v. SELL (1607), 1 Brownl. 97; 123 E. R. 689.

536. Enfeoffment of two persons before certain day—Death of one—Rights of survivor.]—Where a person was bound to enfeoff two others before a certain day, & one of them died before the day:—Held: he was discharged from his obligation & not bound to enfeoff the survivor.—BROWN'S CASE (1550), Benl. 8; Ben. & D. 35; 73 E. R. 937.

537. Reimbursement out of third party's estate—Death of third party after approval—No authority to sell.]—A. advanced money to B., taking from him a bond, with a condition to be void, if C. should enable A. to repay himself by the sale of stock belonging to C., or otherwise. C. died, having approved of the advance of money by A.

PART VII. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—C.

532 i. General rule.]—To an action upon an obligation, impossibility by act of God of performance of the condition is a good defence.—LEITRIM (EARL) v. STEWART (1870), 1 R. 5 C. L. 27.—IR.

m. Appearance in court—Death of person.]—The condition of an undertaking was that A. would appear in ct. whenever he was required so to do; he died before the time of appearance had arrived:—Held: the event which occurred put an end to the obligation.—NABIN CHANDRA HAZARI v. MRITUNJOY BARRIK (1913), 17 C. W. N. 1241.—IND.

n. Production of prisoner—Death of prisoner.]—When a person who has been let out on bail commits suicide, the sureties are discharged from their obligation to produce him.—NRISINGHA DEB CHATTERJEE v. KING EMPEROR (1912), 16 C. W. N. 550.—IND.

o. Rendering accounts—Illness of obligor.]—To a suggestion of breaches on a bond, entered into by a collector, for the due collection of public moneys, deft. pleaded that by reason of complete paralysis he was rendered permanently incapable of collecting the said moneys, or of appointing a deputy to collect them. On demurrer:—Held: the defence was bad.—BELFAST BANKING CO. v. HAMILTON (1883), 12 L. R. Ir. 105.—IR.

Sect. 4.—Excuses for non-performance: Sub-sect. 2, C., D., E. & F. Part VIII. Sect. 1.]

to B., but without having given A. a due authority for the sale of the stock, & made A. his exor.:—Held: the ct. would not restrain A. from proceeding on the bond against B.—RITCHIE v. MILROY (1823), 1 L. J. O. S. Ch. 226.

As regards alternative conditions.]—See Nos. 518 et seq., ante.

D. Act of Parties.

538. Obligee—Payment prevented by covin.]—It is no defence to debt on bond, that as the obligor was going to pay it, he was prevented by the covin of pltf.—MORRIS v. LUTTEREL (1599), Cro. Eliz. 672; 78 E. R. 910.

539. — Surrender of copyholds—Copyholds forfeited for arrears of rent.]—Where the condition of an obligation was that the obligor should surrender a copyhold & suffer the obligee & his heirs peaceably to enjoy the land without interference, & the copyhold was after a time forfeited, because the obligee was in arrears with the rent:—Held: the obligor was discharged from his obligation, because by his own act the obligee had occasioned the forfeiture.—ANON. (1537), 1 Dyer, 30 a; 73 E. R. 66.

Annotations:—Reid. Young v. Raincock (1849), 7 C. B. 310. Mentd. Tarling v. Baxter (1827), 6 B. & C. 360.

540. — To procure marriage—Frustration by obligee.]—On a bond conditioned to procure a marriage, if the obligee do any act to frustrate the performance, the obligor is not liable, but he must show that he endeavoured to procure it.—BLANDFORD v. ANDREWS (1599), Cro. Eliz. 694; 78 E. R. 930.

Annotations:—Reid. Lancashire v. Kellingworth (1701), 12 Mod. Rep. 529; Jones v. Barkley (1781), 2 Doug. K. B. 684.

541. — Place of payment not stated—Obligee beyond seas—Pleading.]—Debt on bond to pay money. The bond did not name the place where payment was to be made. Deft. pleaded that pltf. was beyond the seas on the day of payment, but did not say that he was still ready, etc.:—Held: the plea was bad.—HOBSON v. RUDGE (1661), 1 Sid. 30, 82 E. R. 951.

—See, also, No. 410, ante.

542. Obligor—General rule.]—If the obligor in a bond upon condition renders the performance of the condition impossible, the bond is forfeited.—HULBERT v. WATTS (1696), 1 Ld. Raym. 112; 91 E. R. 971.

543. — Obligee discharged from condition precedent.]—Where the obligor has by his own act disabled himself from performing the condition as he might have done when the bond was made, there is a forfeiture, & the obligee is dispensed from performing a condition precedent to the obligation of the obligor.—SCOT v. MAINY (1596), Poph. 109; 79 E. R. 1217.

—See, also, No. 515, ante.

E. Act of Third Parties.

544. Void award.]—The condition of an obligation was to stand to an arbitrement. An arbitrement was made which was void:—Held: the obligation was also void, for the condition was possible & became impossible by the act of the arbitrator.—ANON. (1448), Jenk. 116; 145 E. R. 82, Ex. Ch.

545. Appearance to justify claim prevented.]—On a bond reciting that pltf. had distrained sheep of deft. in a place where deft. claimed common, the condition was that in consideration of pltf. delivering up the sheep deft. would appear at the next ct., & make appear that he had common, it is no defence he was prepared to make appear, but that the steward hindered him, for deft. has taken upon himself to make it appear & he was at his peril to procure the steward to admit him.—BUTCHER v. VANE (1666), 1 Lev. 191; 83 E. R. 363.

546. Resignation of living not accepted by bishop.]—If an obligor undertake for the act of a stranger, he must procure the act to be done.

The condition of a bond was that deft. would within a specified time resign his vicarage, to which he had been presented by pltf., into the hands of the bishop, in order that pltf. might present anew. In an action on the bond deft. pleaded that he had offered to resign the vicarage into the hands of the bishop, who refused to accept it:—Held: that was no defence.—HESKETH v. GRAY (1755), Say. 185; 96 E. R. 846.

Annotations:—Reid. Worsley v. Wood (1796), 6 Term Rep. 710. Mentd. Hughes v. Humphreys (1827), 6 B. & C. 680.

547. Enfeoffment refused by stranger.]—It is said in Co. Litt. that if a man be bound in an obligation to A., conditioned to enfeoff B., a stranger, & B. refuse, the obligation is forfeited, for the obligor has taken upon him to make the feoffment. The reason of this is clear. If a man undertakes what he cannot perform he shall answer for it to the person with whom he undertakes (LORD KENYON, C.J.).—BLIGHT v. PAGE (1801), 3 Bos. & P. 295, n.; 127 E. R. 163, N. P.

PART VII. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.—E.

p. Conveyance of land prevented by act of council—Land converted into highway.]—Debt on bond, conditioned to make to pltf. a good & sufficient deed, clear of all incumbrances, of a strip of land within eight years. Plea, that within the said eight years the council of L. established a public road over the strip, whereby deft. has been prevented:—Held: no defence; deft. should have conveyed such interest as he could.—CÆSAR v. NORTON (1852), 9 U. C. R. 100.—CAN.

q. Cutting wood not permitted by stranger.]—Debt on bond conditioned that "deft. should permit pltf. to cut down & carry away all the firewood from lands, without let, suit, hindrance, etc." Plea, that deft. always permitted, etc. Replication, that deft. conveyed the land in fee to a stranger, who would not permit pltf. to cut the wood, etc.:—Held: bad.—FOWKE v. FOTHERGILL (1835), 4 O. S. 185.—CAN.

r. Delivery of goods prevented by stranger.]—A plea that after making the bond, & before suit, & before defts. had been called upon to return the goods, the landlord of the execution debtor seized them on a distress for rent, & took them out of defts.' control, wherefore they were unable to return them:—Held: no defence.—RAPELJE v. FINCH (1856), 14 U. C. R. 249.—CAN.

s. Payment of money prevented by robbery.]—To a declaration on a bond, conditioned for the performance by deft. of the duties of Collector of Rates, & the immediate payment over to the County Treasurer of such rates whenever the sums received amounted to $100, deft. pleaded, that while the Collector was travelling on the Queen's highway with the sum of $336 lawfully in his possession for the purpose of paying it over to the County Treasurer, he was, without any fault or want of diligence, forcibly & feloniously robbed of said sum:—Held: the plea was good.—R. v. CAMERON (1878), 3 R. & C. 55.—CAN.

t. —.]—Bond of pay clerk, conditioned, when so required, to account in writing for all moneys, etc., & to pay the moneys due on the balance of such account to the obligee. The clerk was necessarily travelling on the public way in discharge of his duty, with the money on his person, & was robbed:—Held: the acts of strangers to the bond could not discharge the obligor.—HORNSBY v. SLACK (1850), 1 I. C. L. R. 126; 3 Ir. Jur. 80.—IR.

F. Act of Law or State.

548. Act of State—Payment out of profits of office—Office abolished—Subsequent revival.]—A bond was entered into before the Civil War, conditioned to pay £40 per annum for twelve years, out of the profits of an office, which was taken away during the Commonwealth. The obligor having been sued on the bond & the office having been revived, he exhibited his bill to be relieved against the bond. The obligee contended that as the office continued some part of the twelve years the Commonwealth existed, & had been revived, the obligor ought to pay the £40 per annum, for twelve years or his suit be dismissed:—Held: the obligor should pay the £40 per annum, for so many years as the office continued, & thereupon the bond should be delivered up.—LAWRENCE v. BRASIER (1686), 1 Cas. in Ch. 72; 22 E. R. 701, L. C.

Annotation:—Refd. Law v. Law (1735), Cas. temp. Talb. 140.

549. Act of law—Rendering accounts—Change of authority.]—By a local turnpike Act the treasurer of the S. turnpike roads, when required, to account to the trustees & pay the balance to them. Debt on bond, dated 1822, conditioned that J., treasurer of the S. turnpike roads, should account & pay according to the directions of the local Act, & of Turnpike Roads Act, 1822 (c. 126). Plea, that so much of 1822 Act as was referred to in the condition was repealed by Turnpikes Act, 1823 (c. 95), & that J. duly accounted & paid up to the time of the repeal. Replication, assigning breaches, (1) that J. received money & did not account for it, though, after the repeal of 1822 Act, he was required by the trustees to render an account to persons appointed by them to receive it; (2) that J. received money which he had not paid over & which still remained in his hands:—Held: (1) so much of the condition as related to accounting under 1822 Act having become impossible by the act of the Legislature, the obligation, so far as related to that, was saved, but, so far as related to accounting under the local Act, the condition remained possible; (2) the first breach was bad, as the local Act did not require the treasurer to account to persons appointed by the trustees, & 1822 Act, which did so require, was repealed; (3) the plea was bad, as not showing that the condition was performed as far as was still possible after the repeal of 1822 Act.—DAVIS v. CARY (1850), 15 Q. B. 418; 20 L. J. Q. B. 48; 15 L. T. O. S. 560; 14 J. P. 623; 15 Jur. 310; 117 E. R. 517.

Annotation:—Refd. Brown v. London Corpn. (1861), 9 C. B. N. S. 726.

550. ——— Annuity payable from tolls—Control of tolls transferred.]—To an action on a bond, the condition of which bound defts. to pay an annuity to pltf. out of tolls collected on the river Thames, the plea was that Thames Conservancy Act, 1857, had transferred all control of the tolls to a new corpn., called the conservators of the river Thames:—Held: (1) the plea was good, & performance of the condition had become impossible by the act of law; (2) the fact of the corpn. having been parties to the Acts for settling the conservancy of the river Thames did not render them liable.—BROWN v. LONDON CORPN. (1862), 13 C. B. N. S. 828; 31 L. J. C. P. 280; 8 Jur. N. S. 1103; 10 W. R. 522; 143 E. R. 327, Ex. Ch.

Part VIII.—Amount Recoverable on Breach of Condition.

SECT. 1.—PENALTY AND COSTS.

551. General rule—Action on bond.]—The obligee of a bond for £1,000 penalty had obtained judgment for that amount. He had already received several sums in part payment:—Held: though the principal & interest exceed the penalty, yet including what had been paid he should recover no more than the penalty.—STEWART v. RUMBALL (1705), 2 Vern. 509; 23 E. R. 926.

552. ———.]—Where a bond is forfeited in the lifetime of testator, the penalty is the legal debt, & on the issue what is due must cover so much assets, but on a bond where the day of payment is not come, the assets only can be covered for the sum in the condition.

Where an extrix. pleads the penalties of three bonds, & the jury by special verdict find assets in one entire sum, if the ct. are of opinion that the penalties of two of the bonds are to be considered as the debt due, but that the third shall cover no more than the sum really due upon it, they may deduct such penalties & sum due out of the assets found, & give judgment for pltf. to recover the rest.—BANK OF ENGLAND v. MORICE (1736), 2 Stra. 1028; 2 Barn. K. B. 183; Lee temp. PART VIII. SECT. 1.

551 i. General rule—Action on bond.]—Pltf. suing on a bond is entitled to a verdict for the penalty, but the ct. will not allow him to recover more than the actual damages, if assessed.—HELEY v. COUSINS (1873), 34 U. C. R. 63.—CAN.

551 ii. ———.]—A judgment creditor, who has received money on account from the receiver, will not be considered as if he had been in a. Act of law—Completion of work at fixed time—Injunction.]—A co. was bound to complete work by a fixed date & due performance of the agreement was secured by a bond. The work was stopped owing to an injunction against the co., & though the injunction was afterwards dissolved, the co. were unable to complete by the stipulated time. In an action on the bond:—Held: non-performance was excused by the injunction.—A.-G. OF BRITISH COLUMBIA v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. CO. (1889), 1 B. C. R. pt. 2, 350.—CAN.

b. ——— To remain within prison limits—Speaker's warrant to attend as witness before House of Assembly.]—To an action on a bond, deft. pleaded that he, by virtue of a warrant of the Speaker of the House of Assembly, was required to attend as a witness before the house, & that to obey the warrant he left the limits & remained away ten days:—Held: no defence, as it was not shown that the Speaker knew deft. to be on the limits, or what occasion there was for requiring his attendance, or that any process had issued by which he was placed in custody of an officer while absent.—

Sect. 1.—Penalty and costs. Sect. 2.]

554. — — — — —.]—Bond creditors are only entitled to prove for the amount of the penalties in their bonds.—CLOWES v. WATERS (1852), 21 L. J. Ch. 840; 16 Jur. 632; sub nom. COLES v. WATERS, 19 L. T. O. S. 371.

555. — — — — — Interest on note of hand.]—When debt. is charged in execution with the penalty of a bond, it may be reduced to the principal & interest, & interest on a note of hand, for which no damages were given by the verdict, shall not be covered by the penalty.—AMERY v. SMALDRIDGE (1771), 2 Wm. Bl. 760; 96 E. R. 444.

556. — — — — — Security for damages.]—In debt for a penalty, for non-performance of covenants, judgment on demurrer may be entered up for the penalty, in like manner as before 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, but then it can stand only as a security for the damages sustained.—*GOODWIN v. Div. in Ireland, ordered the debt to be paid, with interest, notwithstanding the amount exceeded the penal sum mentioned in the bond:—Held: (1) the land ought not to have been extended beyond the penalty in the bond; (2) there was an obvious error in the decree of 1853, & the decree should be corrected by inserting the words, "the principal sum & interest not to exceed the amount of the penalty on the bond."—*HATTON v. 568. Exceptions.]—In 1638, those, under whom deft. claimed a debt of £1300 principal money then lent, acknowledged a judgment for £2000 penalty, defeasanced for payment of the principal money with interest. Deft. for several years kept pltf. out of his debt, by fencing with prior incumbrances, which were in fact satisfied, & by setting up a pretended entail, which on a trial at law was found against him. Pltf. had exhibited a former bill, & thereby only prayed, that deft. might come to an account & accept what, if anything, should be found due to him on those prior incumbrances, & that pltf. might be let into a satisfaction of his debt, but did not pray further, as he might have done, that if deft. should be found to have raised or received more than was due to him, he might pay over the surplus to pltf. Upon the account taken in the cause it was found that deft. was overpaid with a surplus of £4000. Pltf.'s present bill was, that he might have that money towards his debt, & be satisfied his principal money with interest & costs. Deft. pleaded the former bill brought by pltf., & the proceedings thereon, & that after the account taken in the former cause, pltf. had proceeded at law, & revived his judgment by sci. fa. & taken execution by elegit, & that thereupon deft. had brought the whole penalty of the bond into the Ct. of Common Pleas, & insisted that a ct. of equity ought not to charge him beyond the penalty of the judgment:—Held: the plea should be allowed, principally because pltf. after the account taken in the former cause had surceased his prosecution in the ct. of equity, & proceeded at law & taken forth execution, & having elected to proceed at law by a remedy which charged a moiety of the lands only, he could not afterwards seek a decree in equity for the same debt, which would charge the person & the whole estate.

Equity may, & in many cases does, carry on the debt beyond the penalty of the security, as where the party has been delayed by injunction of this ct., & the like; but where it has been so done, it has been always against pltf., when he has come for relief, but there is no precedent where pltf. in this ct. shall charge deft. beyond the penalty & further than he could charge him at law (per CUR.).—*HALE v. 569. —.]—Applt. entered into a bond of £140 penalty, conditioned for payment of £72 on Apr. 20, 1676, & by reason of several promises & delays of payment, it was not put in suit till many years later. Upon a declaration applt. pleaded payment at the day, & after issue joined, & notice of trial, upon some discovery of a defect in the evidence to prove the bond, a motion was made to alter the plea, which was refused. Thereupon a bill was preferred in Ch., on suggestion that applt. had never executed the bond, or that it was obtained by fraud, & that there was no consideration for same. Upon the hearing of the cause it was ordered that applt. should not be relieved, save against the penalty of the bond, & that it should be referred to one of the masters to compute the principal money & interest due thereon, & to tax for resp. his costs both at law and in that ct., & that what should be found due for the principal, interest & costs, should be paid by applt. at such time & place as the master should appoint, who computed the principal & interest at £154, the costs at £67. It having been objected that the order being to save against the penalty, no more ought to have been decreed:—Held: notwithstanding that, when same was referred to a master to tax principal & interest, the order bound the party to pay both, though it amounted to more than the penalty, & the meaning of the first part was only to relieve against the penalty in case the principal & interest came to less than the penal sum, especially same coming to be heard upon cross bills, & as the case was circumstanced, after such delay & such pleading in the Ct. of K. B.—DUVALL v. TERREY (1694), Show. Parl. Cas. 15; 1 E. R. 11.

576. — Voluntary bond—Payable on contingency.]—A bond conditioned for payment of a specified sum to A. after the death of B. & C. & the survivor of them, will bear interest after the death of B. & C., although the engagement was perfectly voluntary, & although the principal was payable on a contingency.

One issue in such case having been taken on the plea of payment, according to the condition of the bond, deft. is not entitled to a verdict on that issue, on proof of payment of the principal without interest. Qu. whether in such case after payment of the principal, an action can be maintained for the interest only.—HELLIER v. 577. — After date fixed.]—In 1852 the trustees of a marriage settlement lent the trust fund in cash to the husband on the security of his bond in a penal sum, conditioned for repayment to the trustees of the sum advanced with interest at 4 per cent. per annum six months after date. The bond contained no stipulation in terms for payment of interest beyond the six months:—Held: (1) the bond, being a penalty bond, was an interest-bearing security carrying interest, though not mentioned beyond the date fixed for payment of the debt; (2) 4 & 5 Anne, c. 3, ss. 12, 13, merely recognised & confirmed the doctrine, previously established by the Ct. of Equity, that, in the case of a bond with a penalty, the true intent of the penalty was to secure payment, not only of the stated principal money & interest on the day fixed, but also of subsequent interest down to the actual payment of the principal, although the bond contained no stipulation for interest beyond the day fixed. Under that Act the interest is payable as interest, & not as damages for non-payment on the day fixed.

stipulation that interest should be paid Apr. 11 every year, & that the principal sum borrowed should be repaid Dec., 1884. Repayment not having been so made, a suit was brought to recover the principal sum together with interest up to the date of plaint:—Held: inasmuch as the bond contained a stipulation for the payment of interest annually & there was nothing in it to suggest that the liability should cease on the day upon which the principal was repayable, interest could be recovered.—JIVANNA PANDITHAR v. APPALU (1899), 1 L. R. 22 Mad. 339.—IND.

h. — Post obit bond.]—The creditor in a personal bond bound himself to repay the principal sum after the death of a certain third party, “& the legal interest of the said principal sum from & after the date of the bond to the foresaid term of payment, & yearly & termly thereafter, during the non-payment thereof.” No interest was paid on the bond during the life of the third party:—Held: interest was not exigible on the bond till the death of the third party; but although not exigible, it was due.—WATT v. 579. — Indemnity bond—Against costs, expenses, etc.—Neglect in suing sureties.]—Deft. conveyed an estate to pltf. with a covenant for quiet enjoyment, & also gave an indemnity bond with sureties against “all costs, claims, demands, damages & expenses whatsoever.” Pltf. having been obliged to pay various sums for arrears of an annuity charged on the estate, sued deft. on the bond to recover back the amounts paid with interest, & the jury found that pltf. had been negligent in not suing the sureties on the bond at the time the payments were made:—Held: assuming that interest might be recovered under the name of damages on such a bond the finding prevented pltf. from recovering the interest, for if the money had been promptly obtained from the surety & promptly repaid out of deft.'s estate, no interest might have become due at all.—ANDERTON v. ARROWSMITH (1839), 2 Per. & Dav. 408.

Acts, 1883 (c. 52), & 1890 (c. 71), or if he should fail therein & the surety should “make good any loss or damage occasioned by any such default to the estate of bkpt.” The trustee improperly retained for some years a sum of money exceeding £50, & on his default being discovered, he was removed from his office, & pursuant to Bkpcy. Act, 1883, s. 7 (6), he was surcharged with interest at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum on the sum he had improperly retained. The trustee made good the sum he had improperly retained, but did not pay the interest with which he had been surcharged:—Held: the interest surcharged was in the nature of a penalty & was not a measure of the loss or damage to the estate occasioned by the default of the trustee, & the surety was not liable under the terms of the bond to pay to the Board of Trade the penal interest or any part of it.—BOARD OF TRADE v. served—Voluntary bond—To defeat settlement.]—A settlor endeavoured unsuccessfully to set aside a deed of settlement, & afterwards executed a voluntary bond for payment of money to A., the object of the execution of the bond being to defeat pro tanto the settlement:—Held: interest upon the amount of such a bond would not be allowed, the bond not containing an express provision therefor.—TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS & AGENCY CO., LTD. v. as such.]—After a decree for administration a receiver who had been appointed to collect the rents of the landed property of deceased, & to keep down the interest on the incumbrances, & who was also a mtgee. in possession, was left undisturbed in possession by the ct. One of the incumbrances was a bond debt, on which judgment had been entered, & the judgment was registered as a mtge. against the lands. Interest was paid by the receiver for a number of years to the bond creditor, & accounts were passed in the suit, & embodied in the final decretal order, showing that the payments were appropriated to interest, & that the principal sum was due to the bond creditor at the date of the final order. Further payments were made, all expressly on account of interest, down to Jan., 1897. The total amount of the payments exceeded the penalty of the bond. All creditors prior to the bond creditor had been paid off, when some

628. — Money lent—Repayable by instalments—Default in payment.]—Pltfs. lent money to S. upon his bond, under which the principal was to be paid in five years by instalments, in case debtor should so long live, the instalments being calculated so as to cover the principal of the loan, interest thereon, the expenses of negotiating it, & a margin representing a premium for the insurance of debtor's life. The condition of the bond made it void, (1) if the instalments were regularly paid till the expiration of the five years, or till the death of debtor, whichever should first happen, (2) if all the instalments which would have become payable at the expiration of the five years, if debtor lived so long, were at any time paid up, the balance of instalments being at once payable on the failure of any single instalment. Deft. as surety executed the bond, & default having been made in payment of one instalment, pltfs. brought an action claiming the entire balance of unpaid instalments:—Held: the amount claimed was not a penalty & could be recovered.—*PROTECTOR ENDOWMENT LOAN & ANNUITY CO. v. SUB-SECT. 2.—BONDS WITHIN 4 & 5 ANNE, C. 3, AND COMMON LAW PROCEDURE ACT, 1860 (c. 126), s. 25.

NOTE.—The above Acts are referred to in this Sub-sect. as 1705 Act & 1860 Act respectively. The chapter of the former Act is that given in the official Chronological Table & Index of the Statutes, & not that given in Ruffhead's edition.

631. What are—Payment by instalments.]—A bond conditioned for payment of money by instalments is within 1705 Act.—BONAFOUS v. RYBOT (1763), 3 Burr. 1370; 97 E. R. 878.

*Annotations:—*Dbtd. Preston v. Dania (1872), L. R. 8 Exch. 19. Consd. Re Dixon, Heynes v. Dixon, [1900] 2 Ch. 561.

632. — — —.]—A money bond payable by instalments is not within either 1705 Act, s. 13, or 1860 Act, s. 25.—PRESTON v. DANIA (1872), L. R. 8 Exch. 19; 42 L. J. Ex. 33; 27 L. T. 612; 21 W. R. 128.

*Annotations:—*Consd. Re Dixon, Heynes v. Dixon, [1899] 2 Ch. 561. Refd. Gerrard v. Clowes, [1892] 2 Q. B. 11.

633. — — — Whole sum due on default.]—Proceedings on bond for payment of money by instalments, & on default to stand in force for the whole sum due, shall not be stayed upon payment of the instalments in arrear, such a bond not being within 1705 Act.—GOWLETT v. HANFORTH (1774), 2 Wm. Bl. 958; 96 E. R. 565.

634. — — — Payment on contingency.]—To an action of debt on bond, by the exor. of the obligee in trust, deft. in his plea set out the condition whereby the bond was to be void, if the obligor, after his marriage, should die in the lifetime of his intended wife, & his heirs, exors., etc., should within six months after his decease pay to the obligee £1,500 in trust for the intended wife of the obligor, but, if the wife should die in the lifetime of the obligor, the bond was to be void, if he should pay to the persons to whom his intended wife, by any will, writing, etc., should give or bequeath all or any part of the £1,500. Seemle: this was a bond conditioned for payment of money upon a contingency, & not within 1705 Act.—ENGLAND v. WATSON (1842), 9 M. & W. 333; 1 Dowl. N. S. 398; 11 L. J. Ex. 102; 6 Jur. 763; 152 E. R. 142. *Annotation:—*Refd. Hodgkinson v. Wyatt (1843), 13 L. J. Q. B. 73.

635. — — — Stay of proceedings.]—The ct. will not interfere, under 1705 Act, s. 13, to stay the proceedings in an action upon a bond, where it is at all doubtful that the payment stipulated by the condition, is not subject to a contingency.—ROBINSON v. BROWN (1846), 3 C. B. 54; 7 L. T. O. S. 183; 136 E. R. 22; subsequent proceedings, 3 C. B. 754.

636. — — — Indemnity of parish against maintenance of bastard child.]—A bond to save the parish harmless from keeping a bastard child is not within 1705 Act.—COOKE v. PETTIT (1753), 2 Wils. 5; 95 E. R. 655.

637. — — — Post obit bond.]—Seemle: a post obit bond, upon which a forfeiture has taken place, is within 1705 Act.—MURRAY v. STAIR (EARL), (1823), 2 B. & C. 82; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 278; 107 E. R. 313.

*Annotations:—*Consd. England v. Watson (1842), 6 Jur. 763. Refd. Smith v. Bond (1833), 10 Bing. 125. Mentd. Spicer v. Burgess (1834), 1 Cr. M. & R. 129; Bowker v. Burdekin (1843), 11 M. & W. 128; Davis v. Jones (1856), 17 C. B. 625; Gudgen v. Besset (1856), 6 E. & B. 986; Cumberlege v. Lawson (1857), 1 C. B. N. S. 709; Wallis v. Littell (1861), 5 L. T. 489; Gerrard v. Clowes, [1892] 2 Q. B. 11; London Freehold & Leasehold Property Co. v. Saffield, [1897] 2 Ch. 608; Strickland v. Williams (1898), 68 L. J. Q. B. 241.

638. Relief on payment.]—1705 Act relieves only on payment of the whole principal.—LAND v. HARRIS (1722), 1 Stra. 515; 93 E. R. 670.

*Annotation:—*Consd. Preston v. Dania (1872), 42 L. J. Ex. 33.

639. — — —.]—A bond was conditioned for payment of a gross sum absolutely at a day certain. Before that day the parties agreed for payment by instalments, & for defeasance of the bond, conditionally on punctual payment of the instalments & on deft. living until all the days fixed for payment were past. Deft. paid two instalments at the due dates & part of a third; at a later date he paid the whole interest due on the whole debt up to that time:—Held: deft. was not entitled to a stay of proceedings on payment of the instalments already due & interest thereon, & unless deft. paid the whole sum he could not be relieved from the penalty of the bond.—BONAFOUS v. RYBOT (1763), 3 Burr. 1370; 97 E. R. 878.

*Annotations:—*Dbtd. Preston v. Dania (1872), L. R. 8 Exch. 19. Consd. Re Dixon, Heynes v. Dixon, [1900] 2 Ch. 561.

640. — — —.]—On an action brought on a bond dated on a day certain in a penal sum conditioned for payment of a lesser sum generally, without naming any day of payment, the ct. will refer it to the master to compute principal, interest, & costs thereon, & on payment of same stay the proceedings by virtue of 1705 Act.—FARQUHAR v. MORRIS (1797), 7 Term Rep. 124; 101 E. R. 889.

*Annotation:—*Refd. Re Dixon, Heynes v. Dixon, [1900] 2 Ch. 561.

641. — — — Payment into court.]—By 1705 Act in an action on a penal bond, if deft. at any time pending the action bring into ct. the principal & interest due upon it & all the costs in law & equity which have been incurred, the ct. may discharge deft. from the bond.—HARROLD v. CLOTWORTHY (1606), Cro. Jac. 126; 79 E. R. 110.

*Annotation:—*Refd. Horne v. Lewin (1701), 1 Ld. Raym. 639.

642. — — —.]—If in an action upon a bond deft. pays money into ct. under 1705 Act, s. 13, he shall not pay the costs incurred for the same cause in other cts.—SISNEY v. NEVINSON (1726), 2 Stra. 699; 93 E. R. 792.

*Annotation:—*Mentd. Saltern v. Wynne (1737), 2 Stra. 1072.

643. — — —.]—In debt on bond:—Held:

PART VIII. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.

641 i. Relief on payment—Payment into court.]—45 Anne, c. 3, s. 13, gives to the ct. an equitable jurisdiction, to be summarily exercised, to allow deft., in an action on a bond, to pay the amount due into ct., & in case the amount is in dispute, to refer the matter to the prothonotary for a report thereon. The prothonotary may also be ordered to report upon facts necessarily involved in the question of the amount due.—EALLES v. DANGAR (1849), 1 Legge, 490.—AUS.

*t. Performance of duties—No breaches assigned—Setting aside verdict.]—*To a declaration in debt as upon a common money bond, non est factum was pleaded. Pltfs. obtained a verdict. The bond was conditioned for due performance of the duties of a poor-law clerk:—Held: that pltfs. did not assign breaches of the condition was no ground for setting aside the verdict.—CASTLEREA UNION v. DILLON (1849), 12 I. L. R. 465; 1 Ir. Jur. 229.—IR.

Sect. 4.—Relief against penalty: Sub-sects. 2 & 3.] upon bringing in what was due upon the condition with costs, all proceedings should be stayed, though the whole conditional sum was not offered to be brought in.—MAIN v. SOMNER (1730), 1 Barn. K. B. 429; 94 E. R. 288.

644. — Payment after due date—Tender & refusal.]—By 1705 Act, s. 12, where debt is brought on any single bill or on any judgment, if the money due thereupon have been paid, such payment may be pleaded in bar; & so of a bond conditioned to pay money, though the money were not paid at the day and the place, yet if it were paid at a subsequent day, debt. may plead it in bar, but debt. cannot plead a tender & refusal of principal & interest at a subsequent day in bar, for that is not within the equity of the Act, for such construction would be prejudicial, as it would empower the obligee at any time without notice to take in his money.—UNDERHILL v. MATTHEWS (1715), Bull. N. P. 167, N. P.

645. — —.]—To an action on a bond conditioned for payment to third persons:—Held: solvit post diem was a good plea, within 1705 Act.—GIDDINGS v. GIDDINGS (1756), 1 Keny. 335; 96 E. R. 1012.

Annotation:—Mentd. Robinson v. Raley (1757), 1 Burr. 316.

646. — — Default in payment of interest—Principal not due.]—On a declaration on a bond conditioned for payment of a sum of money at the expiration of seven years & interest in the interval half-yearly, debt. cannot plead payment of money into ct. under 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, s. 8, & 1705 Act, s. 13, where the breach assigned is non-payment of interest, the principal not having become due.

On such declaration, debt. may, under 1705 Act, s. 12, plead solvit post diem to the interest alone.—HODGKINSON v. WYATT (1843), 1 Dow. & L. 668; 13 L. J. Q. B. 73; 8 Jur. 216.

Annotation:—Refd. Marriage v. Marriage (1845), 1 C. B. 761.

647. — — — Pleading.]—A bond was given for the penal sum of £4,000, the condition of which recited that the obligor was indebted to the obligee in £2,000, & that the obligee had agreed to accept interest for same at 5 per cent., during the lives of the obligee & another party, in full satisfaction of the debt, provided same was regularly paid: it then set out that if the interest was paid half-yearly in July & Jan., the bond was to be null & void, but in case of failure for twenty-eight days next after each half-yearly payment had become due, same having been demanded, the bond to be in full force, & in case of failure in making the payments within the respective times, the bond or payments made under it should not be taken in discharge of any part of the £2,000, but same should, immediately after such default, become payable under the bond. To an action on the bond, debt. pleaded, as to one of the half-yearly payments, that payment had not been demanded on the day when it became due or at any time within twenty-eight days, but that debt., after the expiration of the twenty-eight days & before the commencement of the suit, paid it to pltf., & that no other sum was due:—Held: the plea was bad as a plea of solvit post diem under 1705 Act, because if the principal sum had become payable under the bond, payment of it should have been pleaded, & if it had not become payable, debt. should have shown in his plea that it had not, which he had not done.—MARRIAGE v. MARRIAGE (1845), 1 C. B. 761; 14 L. J. C. P. 244; 5 L. T. O. S. 197; 9 Jur. 581; 135 E. R. 742.

Annotation:—Consd. Husband v. Davis (1851), 10 C. B. 646.

648. — Part payment after due date.]—A plea of part payment post diem, to debt on bond, is a good plea, under 1705 Act, s. 12, after verdict.—HUSBAND v. DAVIS (1851), 10 C. B. 645; 2 L. M. & P. 50; 20 L. J. C. P. 118; 138 E. R. 256.

649. — What amounts to payment—Judgment entered under warrant of attorney—Warrant of attorney set aside—Refund of proceeds of execution.]—To an action on a joint & several bond in the penal sum of £2,800 given by debt., J., & M., conditioned for payment of £1,400, debt. pleaded (1) that the sum mentioned in the bond was secured by a warrant of attorney of even date therewith upon which judgment was to be forthwith entered up, given by J. to pltf., & that J. after the day conditioned for payment of the principal sum, paid same with interest, to pltf.; (2) that pltf. sued J. for detention of the money in the declaration mentioned in respect of the bond, that he obtained judgment, & took in execution goods of J. to the amount of £1,417; (3) that at the time of entering into the bond, J., & debt. & M. as his sureties, executed a warrant of attorney, upon which pltf. was authorised to enter up judgment forthwith for £2,800 for securing payment of the £1,400, but execution should not issue except in case of default being made, that pltf. afterwards sued J. for the debt of £2,800, that J. became bkpt., that pltf. omitted to file the warrant of attorney as required by 3 Geo. 4, c. 39, that certain goods of J. were taken in execution under the judgment so obtained; & that thereby pltf. suspended his remedy against the principal & discharged debt., the surety. Replication to the second plea, that, by reason of the omission to file the warrant of attorney, pltf. was compelled to refund to the assignees of J. the proceeds of the execution. Similar replications to the first and third pleas:—Held: the facts disclosed by the pleadings afforded no defence at law to the action, because the warrant of attorney having been set aside by the assignees of J. could not be treated as payment within 1705 Act.—PARKER v. WATSON (1853), 8 Exch. 404; 22 L. J. Ex. 167; 155 E. R. 1405.

Annotation:—Mentd. Greenough v. M'Clelland (1860), 6 Jur. N. S. 772.

SUB-SECT. 3.—BONDS WITHIN 8 & 9 WILL. 3, c. 11.

650. In general.]—The Act is remedial for the purpose of recovering successive breaches to the extent of the penalty.—MACKWORTH v. THOMAS (1800), 5 Ves. 329; 31 E. R. 613, L. C.

Annotations:—Consd. Jendwine v. Agate (1829), 3 Sim. 129; Hatton v. Harris, [1892] A. C. 547.

651. What are—Payment by instalments—Whole sum due on default.]—A bond for payment of money by instalments, & on default to stand in force for the whole sum due, is not within the Act.—GOWLETT v. HANFORTH (1774), 2 Wm. Bl. 958; 96 E. R. 565.

652. — —.]—A bond, conditioned for payment of a certain sum by instalments, is within the Act, s. 8.—WILLOUGHBY v. SWINTON (1805), 6 East, 550; 102 E. R. 1398.

Annotations:—Consd. Smith v. Bond (1833), 10 Bing. 125. Mentd. Murray v. Stair (1823), 2 B. & C. 82; Kepp v. Wiggett (1847), 4 C. B. 678.

653. — Payment at future date—With interest periodically—Default in payment of interest.]—A bond was conditioned for payment of a principal sum in 1820, with interest in the meantime half-yearly. An action having been brought for the penalty upon a breach of the condition in non-payment of half a year's interest on Sept. 29, 1817 :—Held : (1) the Act, s. 8, did not prevent judgment from being entered up for the full penalty in such a case ; (2) although the non-payment of interest was due to a slip the ct. would not stay the proceedings before judgment on payment of the interest due & costs. Qu. : to what extent the ct. might relieve deft. against the consequences of such judgment.—VAN SANDAU v. (1817), 1 B. & Ald. 214 ; 106 E. R. 79.

Annotations :—Consd. Smith v. Bond (1833), 10 Bing. 125. Mentd. Simmons v. S. E. Ry. Co. (1861), 7 Jur. N. S. 849.

654. ————]—On a bond with a penalty conditioned for payment of money at a given day, & interest in the meantime, with a stipulation that on any default in paying the interest, the whole sum should be demandable, the obligee, on the interest falling into arrear, brought an action to recover the whole principal & interest :—Held : the case was not within the Act, s. 8, & pltf. was entitled, after verdict, to have judgment & execution for the whole principal sum, & not merely for the arrears of interest.—JAMES v. THOMAS (1833), 5 B. & Ad. 40 ; 2 Nev. & M. K. B. 663 ; 2 L. J. K. B. 207 ; 110 E. R. 707.

Attwooll* (1853), 2 E. & B. 23.

659. ——— R. S. C., Ord. 13 & Ord. 14.—The indorsement on a writ claimed £500, as the principal sum due on a bond conditioned for payment by the obligor to pltf. of an annuity of £26 during the life of a child, & until she should attain the age of sixteen years, by specified quarterly payments, & alleged that two of such payments were due and unpaid :—Held : pltf. was not entitled to proceed under Ord. 14, r. 1, to obtain final judgment, but was limited to the procedure specified in the Act, s. 8, and Ord. 13, r. 14.—

PART VIII. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 3.

660 i. What are—Liquidated sum—Rules of court.—A. entered into a bond in the following terms : " I am held & firmly bound to R. in £100 for every month or part thereof during which R., his exors., administrators, or assigns, shall carry on business at B. or within eight miles from B.," etc. The condition of the bond provided that if A. did not do any act in opposition to R.'s business within eight miles of B. the bond should be void & of no effect. A. committed breaches in three consecutive months, & R. sued on the bond & recovered judgment for £300 as liquidated damages :—

Held : the bond was within 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, s. 8, & within the rules of ct.—MOORE v. ORFORD (1908), 27 N. Z. L. R. 577.—N.Z.

660 ii. ———]—H. guaranteed the payment of a co.'s overdraft at a bank to the extent of £1,500, & the co. executed a bond to H. for £3,000 subject to a condition that if the co. "shall at any time upon a demand in writing signed by H. do all acts, matters, & things necessary to obtain the cancellation of the said guarantee . . . then the above-written bond shall be null & void, but otherwise shall remain in full force & virtue." The co. subsequently went into liquidation, Annotation :—Refd. Gerrard v. Clowes, [1892] 2 Q. B. 11.

660. ——— Liquidated sum—R. S. C., Ord. 14.—was executed by deft. for payment of £100 to pltf. The condition of the bond was that if deft. should at all times thereafter, in obedience to a perpetual injunction granted by the High Ct. of Justice, refrain from trespassing on pltf.'s lands therein mentioned, or the walls, gates, or fences thereof, or inclosing same, & from pulling down or removing or otherwise injuring same, or inciting others to commit any such trespasses, the obligation should be void. Deft. committed a breach of the injunction :—Held : the sum secured by the bond was a liquidated sum, to the recovery of which the procedure of Ord. 14, r. 1, was applicable.

On investigation of the bond it turns out not to be within the Act (COLLINS, L.J.).—STRICKLAND v. WILLIAMS, [1899] 1 Q. B. 382 ; 68 L. J. Q. B. 241 ; 80 L. T. 4 ; 15 T. L. R. 131, C. A.

Annotation :—Mentd. Re White & Arthur (1901), 84 L. T. 594.

661. ——— Award.—Leave given to pltf. in debt on bond conditioned to perform an award, after judgment for him upon a plea of judgment recovered, to execute a writ of inquiry upon the Act, s. 8, after a writ of error allowed, & to sign a new judgment on the terms of paying costs & putting deft. in statu quo, etc.—HANBURY v. GUEST (1811), 14 East, 401 ; 104 E. R. 656.

662. ——— Post obit bond.—A post obit bond, upon which a forfeiture has taken place, is not within the Act, s. 11.—MURRAY v. STAIR (EARL) (1823), 2 B. & C. 82 ; 3 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 278 ; 107 E. R. 313.

664. ——— Administration bond.—An administration bond entered into with the President of the Probate Divorce & Admiralty Div. of the High Ct. in the usual form to secure the due administration of the estate of a deceased person is a bond within the Act.—COPE v. BENNETT (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 521 ; subsequent proceedings, [1911] 2 Ch. 488.

& the bank called upon H. to pay the amount guaranteed by him :—Held : the bond was not within 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, s. 8.—Re VEREX, BARKER, & FINLAY, LTD. (1909), 29 N. Z. L. R. 199.—N.Z.

a. Setting aside verdict—No breaches assigned.—In debt on bond, where breaches have not been suggested or assigned in the replication, & the bond comes clearly under 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, it is irregular to take a verdict for the penalty, & the verdict may be set aside.—BROCK DISTRICT COUNCIL v. BOWEN (1850), 7 U. C. R. 471.—CAN.

Part IX.—Assignment.

SECT. 1.—EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT.

See, generally, CHOSSES IN ACTION ; GIFTS.

665. In general.]—A bond is assignable scilicet the parchment & seal, but not the debt, which is a chose in action.—CHAMBERS v. COOKER (1658), 2 Sid. 85 ; 82 E. R. 1271.

666. Upon trust—Notice of trust—Payment to one trustee.]—Money held in trust for the separate use of a feme covert was lent by the trustees on bond. The trust was declared in the bond, & the bond kept by the feme:—Held: this was equivalent to an equitable assignment of the bond, & a payment by the obligor to one of the trustees without production of the bond was not a good payment.—BALDWIN v. BILLINGSLEY (1705), 2 Vern. 539 ; 23 E. R. 950.

667. Payments by order of trustee.]—An obligor of a bond, after notice that it had been assigned on trusts, of the particulars of which there was no proof of his being cognisant, made payments to parties not entitled thereto, some by order of the trustee, & some to the extrin. of the obligee, without such order:—Held: the obligor was not responsible to the cestui que trust for the former, but was liable to repay the latter.—ROBERTS v. LLOYD (1840), 2 Beav. 376 ; 48 E. R. 1227.

668. ——— Subsequent incumbrancers.]—A., a feme sole, held a bond of M. & Co. for £8,000 & interest. Upon her marriage with H., the bond, with other personal property, was assigned to trustees for the separate use of A., etc., & one of the co-obligors had notice of that settlement. By a separate deed, not referring to the other, the real property of A. was settled upon similar trusts. H., having got possession of the bond, treated with B. for a loan of money, & proposed to deposit the bond as a security, representing that it belonged to him jure mariti, & producing the settlement of the realty, which he stated to B. to be the only settlement. B., without previous inquiry of the obligor or the wife, advanced his money upon the acceptance of H. & the deposit of the bond, with an undertaking by H. to assign the bond when required. The acceptance being dishonoured a year afterwards B. gave notice to M. & Co. of his claim. The trustees also claiming the bond, M. & Co. filed their bill of interpleader:—Held: (1) the trustees had the better equity, for previous notice of the first assignment to one of several co-obligors, who was alive at the date of the second assignment, was sufficient to protect the trustees from the claim of the subsequent incumbrancer, with notice to all, and that though the bond were joint and several ; (2) it was not necessary that the notice should be given for the particular purpose ; (3) the question was one of priority of notice, & whether the second incumbrancer made previous inquiries or not was immaterial, if at the time there was no subsisting notice of a prior incumbrance.—MEUX v. BELL (1841), 1 Hare, 73 ; 11 L. J. Ch. 77 ; 6 Jur. 123 ; 66 E. R. 955.

669. ——— Real & personal estate charged with payment—Rights of assignee.]—In 1806 a bond was executed by A. in favour of B., & by a contemporaneous settlement it was settled by B., the obligee, upon certain trusts. By his will, dated in 1812, A. charged his real & personal estate with payment of the bond debt. He shortly afterwards died. Pltf. claimed, as assignee of the bond, a valid equitable lien on the obligor's real estate in respect of the bond debt & interest. The defence was that the obligor died possessed of personal estate amply sufficient to pay the bond debt & interest, & that pltf.'s predecessors in title ought to have obtained payment out of such personal estate, & that not having done so, they waived their right to have recourse to the real estate:—Held: pltf. was entitled to a valid charge in equity for the amount of the bond & interest upon the real estate of the obligor.—JUSTICE v. FOOKS (1887), 57 L. T. 868.

670. Donatio mortis causâ—Without consideration.]—The obligee in a bond gave it to her niece, & afterwards, in her last illness & five days before her death, signed a memorandum, purporting to be an immediate & absolute assignment of the bond to her:—Held: (1) the transaction could not be considered as a donatio mortis causâ, as there was no evidence to show at what time or in what circumstances the bond first came into the niece's possession, & as the assignment was immediate and unconditional ; (2) it could not take effect as a gift, for delivery of a bond did not confer on the donee a right to recover, & equity would not assist the donee of a bond to recover the amount of it, if the gift was made without consideration.—EDWARDS v. JONES (1835), 7 Sim. 325 ; 4 L. J. Ch. 163 ; 58 E. R. 862 ; affd. (1836), 1 My. & Cr. 220, L. C.

SECT. 2.—ASSIGNMENT SUBJECT TO EQUITIES.

See, also, CHOSSES IN ACTION.

671. General rule.]—An assignee of a bond been made over to C. though not formally assigned to him:—Held: C. was to be considered as having taken a regular assignment of the bond.—DULI CHAND v. MONOHUR LALL UPADHYA (1878), 2 C. L. R. 18.—IND.

*d. Whether obligor's consent essential.]—*The obligor's consent is not necessary to the assignment of a common money-bond.—KRISTNA CHETTI v. BALARAMA CHETTI (1863), 1 Mad. 139.—IND.

PART IX. SECT. 1.

*b. Absence of formal assignment—Effect.]—*Pltf. purchased from C. a mill privilege, with a right to overflow land belonging to deft., & abstained at deft.'s instance from obtaining from C. an assignment of a bond securing the right so to flood deft.'s land. In a proceeding afterwards taken by pltf. to compel deft. specifically to perform the contract contained in the bond:—Held: the want of a formal assignment of the bond could not be raised as an objection to pltf.'s right to recover.—RITCHIE v. DRAIN (1878), 25 Gr. 322.—CAN.

*c. ———.]—*A. pledged lands to B., & thereafter granted a lease of the same lands to C. Shortly before the granting of the lease, A. executed a single mtge. of the same lands to D. The consideration-money given by C. for the lease had been expended in paying off B.'s mtge., & the bond had must take it subject to the same equity as it was in the obligee's hands.—COLES v. JONES (1715), 2 Vern. 692; 23 E. R. 1048, L. C.

672. — Set-off by obligor.]—A. being bound in a bond to B., the bond was assigned by B. to C. in satisfaction of a debt due from B. to C. B. became bkpt., & C. not being able to sue at law in B.'s name, brought a bill against A. to be paid the money due on the bond:—Qu.: whether A. out of the money due on the bond could retain a debt due to himself from B.—*PETERS v. 673. Bond void in equity.]—A bond which is void in equity against the obligor is subject to the same equity in the hands of an assignee.

A son on his marriage was to have £3,000 portion with his wife, & privately without notice to his parents who treated for the marriage, gave a bond to the wife's father to pay back £1,000 of the portion seven years afterwards:—Held: the bond was void in equity, & would not be made better by being assigned to creditors.—TURTON v. BENSON (1719), 10 Mod. Rep. 445; 1 P. Wms. 496; Prec. Ch. 522; 1 Stra. 240; 2 Vern. 764; 88 E. R. 803, L. C.

674. Bond voidable in equity—Partnership instalments—Dissolution of partnership—Cancellation of bond.]—An attorney prevailed on a young man, about to be admitted, to become his partner in business for a certain term, and to pay him, as a consideration, a considerable sum of money, a part to be paid on the execution of the articles, & the remainder by yearly instalments. During the term the attorney sued out, in the character of petitioning creditor, a commission of bkpcy. against his partner, whereby on his being declared bkpt., the partnership was necessarily dissolved:—Held: the ct. would not allow a bond fide creditor, to whom the bond to pay the instalments had been assigned as a security for his debt, to put it in suit, because all equities followed the bond in such hands, & the bond must be delivered up to be cancelled.—HAMIL v. STOKES (1817), 4 Price, 161; Dan. 20; Wils. Ex. 39; 146 E. R. 426, Ex. Ch.

Annotation:—Mentd. Freeland v. Stansfield (1854), 2 Sm. & G. 479.

675. — Rescission of sale contract—Deposit paid in bonds.]—W. having agreed to purchase the A. estate, mines, etc., of B. for £250,000, payable by instalments, with the assistance of three other persons, under an arrangement with them, formed a co. to work the mines, borrowing of one of them £10,000 to pay the deposit. W. then contracted to resell to the co. for £350,000, also payable by instalments; £75,000 in bonds of the co., & the rest in cash in four sums. W. paid £50,000 to B. out of £75,000, which he had received from the co. & the co. then refused to complete, alleging a deficiency of 500 acres. W. communicated that to B., & both agreed to throw off £50,000, but the co. refused the offer, & gave notice to rescind. W. then brought an action against B. for £50,000, & £100,000 damages, but it was compromised for £50,000, & the contract between W. & B. cancelled. The co. being ordered to be wound up, a bill was filed by the official liquidator for a return of the bonds, & to restrain their negotiation:—Held: the relief sought as to the bonds was unnecessary, being mere chuses in action, & the transferees having no greater right against the co. than the transferor.—ABERAMAN IRONWORKS v. WICKENS (1868), L. R. 5 Eq. 485; 18 L. T. 305; Revsd. without touching this point 4 Ch. App. 101.

676. — Bond given without consideration—Promise to pay assignee on forbearance to sue—Rights of obligor.]—G., an officer in the army, gave to J., a barrister, without consideration, a bond for £1,000, & at the same time, at J.'s request, he wrote & gave to J. a letter to the effect that the bond was given for the purpose of enabling J. to raise money. Three years afterwards J., who had in the meantime told G. that G. was under no liability for him, assigned the bond for valuable consideration to B., to whom he also gave G.'s letter. B. having demanded payment, G. promised to settle the bond as soon as he should come into some property which was the subject of a pending suit, & upon the faith of that promise B. abstained from suing G. on the bond until after G. had instituted a suit against J. & B. to cancel the bond:—Held: (1) although G. gave the bond with the intention that it should be used as a negotiable instrument, yet as there was nothing on the face of the bond to show such intention, B. took it subject to the equities between G. & J., & could not be allowed to enforce it against G.; (2) G.'s promise having been made in ignorance of his right to restrain B. from suing him on the bond, did not preclude him from enforcing that right.—GRAHAM v. JOHNSON (1869), L. R. 8 Eq. 36; 38 L. J. Ch. 374; 21 L. T. 77; 17 W. R. 810.

677. Bond deposited as security.]—B. entered into a bond to H. & took a counter bond. H. deposited B.'s bond with C. as a security. A bill filed by C. against B. & H., that B. might pay him out of the debt to H., dismissed.—CATOR v. BURKE (1785), 1 Bro. C. C. 434; 28 E. R. 1222, L. C.

678. Post obit bond—Right of reversioner to re-open settled accounts.]—The assignee of a post obit security takes it with notice of all its legal incidents, including the right of the reversioner to open settled accounts between himself & the original mtgor. Recitals in the mtgo deed of an account settled are not binding on the reversioner even as against sub-mtgees.—TOTTENHAM v. GREEN (1863), 1 New Rep. 466; 32 L. J. Ch. 201.

679. — Given for gaming debt—Contrary to recital.]—Debtor executed a post obit bond for payment of a sum of money. The bond recited that debtor owed money to the obligee. The bond was assigned to a third party, who took the assignment upon the faith of debtor's tacit representation that the debt was due as recited in the bond. Debtor afterwards conveyed & assigned his estate & effects to trustees for the benefit of his creditors, & subsequently instituted a suit for performance of the trusts of the deed. The transferee of the bond applied to be allowed to prove, but was opposed by debtor, & his claim was disallowed on the ground that the bond was originally given for a gambling debt:—Held: the debt was provable, for pltf. could not be allowed to set up, as against an innocent transferee, a state of circumstances inconsistent with representations made by debtor before the transfer, & upon the faith of which the transfer was taken, the only evidence in support of the allegation that the debt was a gambling transaction being that of pltf., who was not a trustworthy witness.—HAWKER v. HALLEWELL (1856), 25 L. J. Ch. 558; 27 L. T. O. S. 211; 2 Jur. N. S. 794; 4 W. R. 631, L. JJ.; affg. 3 Sm. & G. 194.

680. Lloyd's bond—Set-off—After notice of assignment.]—Defts. bound themselves to pltf. by Lloyd's bonds, to pay certain sums of money & interest at the expiration of a year. A few days afterwards defts. granted pltf. a lease. Pltf. then assigned away the bonds. In an action brought by pltf. for the benefit of the assignees on the bonds, defts. claimed to be entitled to set off arrears of rent which had accrued due from pltf. under the lease after such assignment & notice thereof:—Held: defts. were not so entitled either at law or in equity.—WATSON v. MID WALES RY. CO. (1867), L. R. 2 C. P. 593; 36 L. J. C. P. 285; 17 L. T. 94; 15 W. R. 1107.

681. Transfer of rolling stock—Interpleader.]—A railway co. gave a Lloyd's bond to their contractor, who handed it to pltf. to secure an advance of £10,000 then made to him by pltf. Pltf. having, in the name of the obligee, brought an action against the co. upon the bond, it was compromised before judgment on the terms that the co. should transfer to him the whole of their rolling stock as security. The rolling stock was transferred, but was subsequently seized by deft., an execution creditor of the co. On the trial of an interpleader issue between pltf. & deft.:—Held: (1) no evidence was admissible to impeach the original legality of the bond; (2) the conveyance of the rolling stock by the co. to pltf. was valid as against deft.—BLACKMORE v. YATES (1867), L. R. 2 Exch. 225; 36 L. J. Ex. 121; 16 L. T. 288; 15 W. R. 750.

682. — Agreement between obligor & obligee—Assignee for value without notice—Estoppel.]—Declaration against a railway co. on a money bond. Plea, on equitable grounds, that by deed between pltf. & defts. it was agreed that when certain instalments which, under the terms of the deed, were to be paid in shares of defts. became due, defts. should, in addition thereto, pay to pltf. such further sums in Lloyd's bonds as should be equivalent to 75 per cent. of the nominal value of such shares, & that pltf. should pay the Lloyd's bonds & interest when they became due, & indemnify defts. against all loss, & that the bond in suit was a Lloyd's bond delivered to pltf. in pursuance of the agreement. Replication, that pltf. assigned the bond for a valuable consideration to third persons, of which defts. had notice, that the third persons never had any knowledge of the deed between pltf. & defts., & that the action was brought in pltf.'s name as trustee for the third persons, who were the beneficial owners of the bond:—Held: the agreement in the plea must mean that the bond was to be delivered to pltf. for the purpose of raising money on it, & the replication was a good answer to the plea, as it showed that the object for which defts. had given the bond had been carried out, & that pltf. was suing only as trustee.—DICKSON v. SWANSEA VALE RY. CO. (1868), L. R. 4 Q. B. 44; 38 L. J. Q. B. 17; 19 L. T. 346; 17 W. R. 51.

683. — For surrender of contract—Purchaser for value without notice—Rights of liquidator of company—Estoppel.]—Lloyd's bonds payable in three years, with interest in the meantime, were given by a co. to their contractor as compensation for the surrender of the contract. Two of the bonds were purchased for value from the contractor, without notice of the arrangement between him & the co. The bonds & the transfers were registered in the co.'s books. The transferee sued the co. for eighteen months' interest, & recovered the amount due. Subsequently proceedings at law were taken against the co. to recover principal & interest, & judgment was entered up by consent against the co., which was then ordered to be wound up:—Held: whether the bonds were valid or invalid in the hands of the contractor, the official liquidator was precluded by the subsequent conduct of the co. from questioning their validity in the hands of a purchaser for value without notice.—*Re SOUTH ESSEX ESTUARY CO., Ex p. 685. Bond of company—Notice of assignment—Equities between obligors & obligee—Purchaser for value without notice—Estoppel.]—An insurance co. having power to issue bonds & other securities, issued to S. a bond conditioned to be void on payment to him, his exors., administrators & assigns, of £250 on a future day. The bond was assigned for value to B., & notice of the assignment given at the office of the co. & accepted, but the assignment was never registered. No inquiry was made as to the validity of the instrument before B. took the assignment. Before the bond fell due, the co. went into liquidation:—Held: the co. had, by accepting notice of the assignment, precluded themselves from setting up against the assignee equities between them & the original obligor attaching to the instrument itself.—Re HERCULES INSURANCE CO., BRUNTON'S CLAIM (1874), L.
